

TRIENNIAL REVIEW OF IRRIGATION IN INDIA. 1921-21.

CHAPTER I.

Results of irrigation operations during the Triennium.

The monsoon of 1921-22 broke at or before the usual time and although the rainfall of the period over the country as a whole was nearly normal, its distribution was somewhat unequal. There was a deficiency over the greater part of the peninsula but in the United Provinces, the North-West Frontier Province, Gujarat and south-east Madras there was an excess of about 20 per cent., while Baluchistan and the south-west Punjab recorded an excess of about 40 per cent., and Sind received double its usual amount. Character of the monsoon.

During 1922-23 the monsoon conditions were generally favourable. The rains broke at the normal time and throughout the season the currents were on the whole vigorous, if fitful. Averaged over the plains of India, the rainfall was 5 per cent. above normal. In the tract of country extending from the the precipitation was in excess over the Peninsula excluding west India.

In 1923-24, the monsoon broke somewhat after the normal date. In the earlier weeks it was vigorous in Burma and Assam and fairly so in Bengal but weak in north-west India. It was not until the beginning of July that the monsoon penetrated effectively into the interior of the country; thereafter, till the 23rd, there was well distributed rain over the greater part of it. In the last week of July the monsoon weakened in the Peninsula but continued active in northern India and gave heavy rain on the Burma coast. The weakness in the Peninsula persisted throughout August but there was heavy rain in north-east, north-west and central India. September was a striking contrast to August in that the monsoon displayed its activity mainly in the Peninsula and the central parts of the country and extended but seldom into north-west India. Averaged over the plains of India as a whole, the aggregate fall of the season was 8 per cent. above normal, and was well distributed over most of the country.

The introduction of the Reforms Scheme led to a complete revision of the general structure of the accounts of the Government of India and, in consequence, changes became necessary in the accounts of the transactions of the Public Works Department. Irrigation works were previously divided into two main classes, viz., major and minor works, Revised classification of irrigation works.

TRIENNIAL REVIEW OF IRRIGATION IN INDIA. 1921-24.

CHAPTER I.

Results of irrigation operations during the Triennium.

The monsoon of 1921-22 broke at or before the usual time and although the rainfall of the period over the country as a whole was nearly normal, its distribution was somewhat unequal. There was a deficiency over the greater part of the peninsula but in the United Provinces, the North West Frontier Province, Gujarat and south-east Madras there was an excess of about 20 per cent., while Baluchistan and the south-west Punjab recorded an excess of about 40 per cent., and Sind received double its usual amount. Character of the monsoon.

During 1922-23 the monsoon conditions were generally favourable. The rains broke at the normal time and throughout the season the currents were on the whole vigorous, if fitful. Averaged over the plains of India, the rainfall was 5 per cent. above normal. In the tract of country extending from the east and north Punjab to Orissa and Bengal the precipitation was in excess, but there was a countervailing deficiency over the Peninsula excluding the west coast and in the region of north-west India.

In 1923-24, the monsoon broke somewhat after the normal date. In the earlier weeks it was vigorous in Burma and Assam and fairly so in Bengal but weak in north-west India. It was not until the beginning of July that the monsoon penetrated effectively into the interior of the country; thereafter, till the 23rd, there was well distributed rain over the greater part of it. In the last week of July the monsoon weakened in the Peninsula but continued active in northern India and gave heavy rain on the Burma coast. The weakness in the Peninsula persisted throughout August but there was heavy rain in north-east, north-west and central India. September was a striking contrast to August in that the monsoon displayed its activity mainly in the Peninsula and the central parts of the country and extended but seldom into north-west India. Averaged over the plains of India as a whole, the aggregate fall of the season was 8 per cent. above normal, and was well distributed over most of the country.

The introduction of the Reforms Scheme led to a complete revision of the general structure of the accounts of the Government of India and, in consequence, changes became necessary in the accounts of the transactions of the Public Works Department. Irrigation works were previously divided into two main classes, viz., major and minor. Personal changes.

Works in progress. The following were among the larger works in progress during the triennium:—

Gandamuddu.

- (1) Restoration of the Kovvur Mangir Jett on Canal—(estimate Rs. 1,37,000)
- (2) Improvements to the upper portion of the Yenamadirru drain—(estimate Rs. 2,51,000)

Kistna d. R.

- (3) Replacing the existing 3 ft. shutters of the Kistna arc cut at Bezavada by shutters 6 ft. high—(estimate Rs. 3,40,000)
- (4) Diversion of the Nallamla drain—(estimate Rs. 7,55,000)

Cauvery d. R.

- (5) Reconstructing the Thoppaduvachi dam—(estimate Rs. 1,11,000)
- (6) Improvements to the lower reaches of the Cauvery from the infall of the Ayyavayyanar to the sea—(estimate Rs. 2,08,000).

Projects under consideration.

Several large projects were under consideration during the triennium, the most important being the Cauvery Reservoir project which was referred to in the previous triennial report. In February 1921 negotiations were concluded with the Mysore State defining the respective rights of Madras and Mysore to the waters of the Cauvery. The estimate of the Cauvery Project, revised in accordance with the current schedule of rates, amounts to Rs. 6.12 crores. The project will improve the existing fluctuating water supplies for the Cauvery delta irrigation of over a million acres, and will extend irrigation to a new area of 301,000 acres, which will, it is estimated, add 15,000 tons of rice to the food supply of the country. It is expected to yield a net revenue of Rs. 47 lakhs, which represents a return of 7.6 per cent. on the estimated capital cost. The project has, since the close of the triennium, been sanctioned by the Secretary of State. The Vengalapuram project in the Nellore district was under examination; it contemplates the irrigation of some 50,000 acres and is estimated to cost about Rs. 10 lakhs. Proposals for a storage project on the Kistna river were revived and preliminary investigations of the dam site started, but these had to be discontinued pending negotiations with the Hyderabad Darbar. This project involves a reservoir on the Kistna at Sangameswaram to store 125,200 million cu. ft. at a cost of Rs. 25.33 crores for the irrigation of 1½ million acres in the Kistna, Guntur, Nellore, Kurnool and Chingelput districts.

In view of the desirability of extending the irrigation resources of the Presidency, a general re-examination of the possibilities in this direction earlier. The latest constructional methods are being made use of in this work, and it is expected that the new storage will provide sufficient head and discharge for the development of about 3,000 E. H. P.

Experiments are being carried out on these canals with a view to entrusting the cultivators with the distribution of water to their fields.

The following were the more important projects under consideration:— Projects under consideration.

- (1) The Dahitna tank for supplementing the supply of water from the Ekruk tank at Sho'apur;
- (2) A scheme for the remodelling of the Mutha Canals;
- (3) The Gokak Canal Extension project; and
- (4) The Nira Valley Development scheme, which provides for the widening and remodelling of the Nira Left Bank Canal as well as for the construction of a new dam at Vir to supplement the supply from the Bhatghar dam.

In regard to item (4) it may be explained that the general proposals for the full development of the irrigational possibilities of the Nira Valley, as described in the "Triennial Review of Irrigation in India for 1918-21", have since been somewhat modified. An additional storage work on the Nira at Vir is now projected to supplement the supply from Bhatghar. The proposed dam site is adjacent to the present pick-up weir at Virwadi. The capacity of this reservoir above the level that is required to supply the canals will be 8,334 mill. c.ft., and it will also serve as a balancing reservoir during the period June to October. The fact that the site is below the confluence of all the main tributaries of the Nira will ensure that the run-off from the whole available catchment area can be utilised for the supply of both the Nira Left Bank and Nira Right Bank canals, a very important consideration in years of scanty rainfall. The Left Bank Canal will be remodelled so that certain suitable areas on the lower reaches of that canal can be brought under perennial irrigation. The new works proposed will bring under irrigation an additional area of 35,500 acres in a very precarious tract.

(b) SIND.

The inundation of 1921 was on the whole very satisfactory, that of 1922 was an exceptionally good one, marked by a steady rise in the river from the very commencement of June, while that of 1923 was also fairly good. The highest readings on the Bukkur and Kotri gauges respectively were 16·8 feet and 22·1 feet in 1921, 15·5 feet and 20·4 feet in 1922 and 14·1 feet and 21·9 feet in 1923. The fair irrigating level of 17 feet or above on the Kotri gauge was maintained in 1923 for a period of 76 days as compared with 102 days in 1922, 55 days in 1921 and 69 days, the average of the previous triennium. The rainfall was general and beneficial to cultivation in 1921, but scanty in 1922 and 1923. Character of the seasons.

BENGAL.

The two irrigation canals in Bengal are the Midnapore and Eden Canals and the average rainfall in the areas served by these canals is about 55 inches. In 1921 the rainfall was normal. In 1922 there was considerable excess all over the tract, more especially in July and August, which led to severe floods in some of the rivers. In 1923 the rainfall was somewhat below normal, particularly in October, but in no year was there shortage of water in the canals. The flood of 1922 in the Cossye, Selye and Darkeswar rivers was unusually high and caused a large amount of damage by breaching various Government embankments. In the Damodar, which supplies the Eden Canal, the floods were of moderate intensity only.

Character of the seasons.

Towards the end of the triennium the water rates on both the canals were raised by 50 per cent. On the Midnapore Canal the cultivators refused in some cases to renew leases which had lapsed, with the result that the total area irrigated during the year was below normal, and the average for the triennium fell from 108,618 acres to 100,492 acres.

Results.

No new works were undertaken during the period.

Works in progress, or completed.

A project for the construction, at an estimated cost of Rs. 70 lakhs, of a canal from the Damodar River was sanctioned by the Secretary of State in 1921. It was designed to irrigate 196,000 acres in the Burdwan and Hooghly districts, including the area to be irrigated by an additional supply to be given to the Eden Canal. Owing to the rise in the price of labour the project estimate is being recast with a view to seeing whether the canal will still prove a productive work. A considerable demand for small irrigation works has arisen in the western part of the province, in the Midnapore, Bankura and Birbhum districts. These works entail the construction of weirs across the small streams which intersect these districts. Four such weirs were constructed during the triennium and projects are ready for several others; there is a prospect of a considerable number of such schemes being taken up in the near future. The country to be dealt with is undulating and the supply of water in some of the streams is perennial. With an increase in the number of these works the liability to famine will decrease.

Projects under consideration.

(b) Sanitary Drainage.

Of the schemes undertaken for the improvement of the sanitation and drainage of the country several were either completed or nearly completed, e.g., the Arapanch Project, the Veragachi-Madanpur and Manikhal Drainage projects in the 24 Parganas district and the Saraswati project in the Howrah district. Investigations have been made into many similar cases in the deltaic portion of the province and, for some, projects have been prepared and it seems probable that a good deal of work will be taken up in the near future. The largest scheme is the Hili Drainage

Work on the Grand Trunk Canal was taken up during the triennium but was stopped on account of financial stringency and other reasons. Certain realignments of the canal were made and the works were redesigned in full detail, which resulted in a reduction of the estimated cost from Rs. 303 lakhs to Rs. 279 lakhs. The total expenditure up to the end of 1923-24 amounted to Rs. 68,17,997 which was mostly incurred on the acquisition of land and on the purchase of a new and improved suction dredger "Ronaldshay". On the Calcutta and Eastern Canal, considerable expenditure is being incurred in reconstructing the bridges over the locked lengths and over Tolly's Nala. On the latter, the construction of a lock and sluice at the head of the Kaorapukur Khal is nearing completion, which will give access to the channels in the 24 Parganas district to the south of Calcutta; it is possible that in future this route will be considerably used by boats trading with Calcutta. The dredging of the Bidyadhari river, which is the outfall for the Calcutta sewage and storm water, has been nearly completed. This river has shown very rapid deterioration and threatens to close entirely within the next few years and it appears probable that Calcutta will have to seek a new outfall for its drainage. In connection with the Madaripur Bhil Route the channel is being widened from a bed width of 175 feet to one of 275 feet and about 8 miles out of the 20 miles have been completed. The Lower Kumar river which forms the eastern approach to the Madaripur Bhil silted very rapidly in 1922 due to excessive and prolonged floods, and it has therefore been necessary to dredge the whole of that river.

The position in the western Sunderbans along the steamer route is fast becoming impossible: owing to reclamation of the forests the tidal spill has now been entirely excluded from some of the rivers with the result that the silt carried up by the flood tide is deposited on the beds of the rivers and the ebb tide is too weak to remove it. Of the three routes which were open a few years ago between Channel Creek and the Sabtamukhi only one, the Doagra, is now navigable, and that with difficulty. The Sabtamukhi river itself is fast filling up and the crossing is becoming year by year more confined; it appears inevitable that, unless a very heavy recurring expenditure is incurred on these rivers, they must die shortly. It is this point more than any other that makes the Grand Trunk Canal a matter of considerable urgency. Attempts have been made to find a solution to this difficulty, but Scheme in the Midnapore district which will deal with about 64 sq. miles of country. It will be carried out on the lines of the Magra Har Draage Scheme and will cost about 50 lakhs of rupees. A portion of the work has been executed in the opening of the Pichandi Kh. and a very marked improvement in the drainage has already taken place. In the southern portion of the delta enquiries are being made to ascertain whether some of the old river beds cannot be revived and a spill of silty water induced so as to prevent stagnation and to destroy the breeding grounds of the anopheles.

without success, without the construction of the canal there appears to be no possibility of maintaining a navigable route in these parts.

Owing to the silting of the Lower Kumar river a project has been prepared for controlling all the side channels on the south bank of this river to prevent the loss of water which now flows into the local depressions known as bhils and which is consequently not available for scouring the river bed. On the Calcutta and Eastern Canals several projects are under preparation with the object of reviving some of the cross channels which have silted up by converting them into locked lengths.

In the Midnapore district, where most of the embankments were breached by the Co-sye, Selce and Darke-swar floods in 1922, the construction of spill escapes in the embankments to pass the highest stages of floods has been proposed, the water allowed to flow over the country being discharged at a point further down the river through large sluices. If this system is adopted it will lead to a considerable reduction in the amount of distress and damage to crops which now occurs.

UNITED PROVINCES.

Character of the seasons.

The triennium 1921-24 was, on the whole, a prosperous one. 1921-22 started under adverse conditions resulting from the failure of the previous monsoon and indifferent winter rains. River supplies were consequently reduced to a minimum, which rendered equitable distribution a matter of great difficulty. Intense hot weather conditions prevailed up to the middle of June and the critical position was only relieved by the advent of the rains during the latter part of the month, which enabled the cultivator to commence his khari sowings. The monsoon was both copious and generally well distributed and timely rain was received during January and February. The year 1922-23 opened with normal conditions. The season from April to the end of June was hot and dry and the demand for canal water intense, but the supplies in the rivers were sufficient to meet all requirements. The monsoon rainfall was sufficient and generally well distributed and lasted till the end of September; the rabi sowings were thus mostly completed without the aid of canal water. Good rain also fell towards the end of December and in February. In 1923-24 the seasonal conditions were very similar to those of the preceding year.

Results.

The favourable conditions of the seasons during the three years of the triennium are reflected in the results obtained from irrigation. The area irrigated (excluding on an average some 14,000 acres irrigated in Indian States) during the triennium compares as shown below with the average of the previous triennium :—

	Acres.
Average of the triennium 1918-21	3,501,818
During 1921-22	2,673,120
During 1922-23	2,618,643
During 1923-24	1,979,021
Average of the triennium 1921-24	2,433,595

The decrease in the area irrigated is attributable to the low river supplies and timely winter rain described above.

Works completed.

construct 1921-22. The Kitham reservoir, which will assist in supplementing the water supply of Agra when the river Jumna runs low, was completed during 1923-24.

Works in progress.

Excellent progress has been made on the Sarda Kichha Feeder and the Sarda Oudh Canals during the triennium, despite the difficulties encountered in respect of the notoriously unhealthy climate of the country operated in. The operations carried out on these works up to the end of 1923-24 involved an expenditure of over 2 crores of rupees. Owing to difficulties encountered in dealing with water in the foundations, progress on the headworks has not been so satisfactory as was expected. The river springs proved much stronger than anticipated and the pumping plant gave considerable trouble. It has now been finally decided that the only way to overcome the difficulties is to put in a central electrical power station, and arrangements are being made accordingly. The headworks are now the critical factor of the whole Sarda Canal construction, and strenuous efforts will be necessary to complete them in time to supply water to the canals which are progressing most satisfactorily. The right and left bank training bunds have been all but completed and some work has also been done on the main barrage. The Deoha Barrage consisting of 11 spans of 40 feet each with 12' high gates has been nearly completed and the steel work and gates erected. Remarkable progress has been made on the excavation of the main canal, branches, distributaries and other smaller channels.

No new large projects other than those enumerated at page 174 of the Triennial Review of Irrigation in India, 1918-21, were under consideration. Of these, the Ohen and Paisuni canal projects in the Ken Canal Division, have been indefinitely postponed. The project for a third reservoir on the Betwa river near Kaprar to supplement the supply of the Betwa Canal has been sanctioned but the design of the weir requires re-examination and revision. The scheme for the extension of the Dhasan canal across the Barma river has been dropped for the present.

PUNJAB.

Character of the seasons.

The year 1921-22 started under conditions unfavourable to the sowing of kharif crops and the monsoon came too late to enable any large addition to the kharif sowings to be made. But full advantage was taken of the monsoon to sow as large an area of rabi crops as possible. Although there was no rain during November, December and January, river supplies were well maintained with the result that the rabi area irrigated exceeded that of the corresponding season of the previous year by about 1,000,000 acres. The rain which fell in February and March was well distributed, benefited the standing rabi crops, and assisted the early kharif sowings of the following year. In April and May of the year 1922-23 the weather was much drier than usual and the rainfall in moderate to large defect. The monsoon was fitful till about the end of August when it strengthened and continued to be vigorous during the first half of September, giving good and general rainfall throughout the Province. It ended on the 22nd September and the total rainfall during the period June to September was slightly in excess of the normal. The September rains were followed by light showers in the first and second weeks of October which enabled good rabi sowings to be made, and the rains which fell during the winter proved useful for the maturing of the crop, the rabi irrigation being a record. In contrast to the previous two years the year 1923-24 opened with favourable conditions for the kharif crop while the early rabi sowings were greatly helped by good and general rainfall during the months of August and September, followed by light rain in March which benefited the standing crops.

Results.

The average area irrigated in the Province by Government works of all classes was 10½ million acres as compared with 9½ million acres, the average of the previous triennium. In addition to this, an average area of 695,000 acres was irrigated from channels, which although drawing their supplies from British canals, lie wholly in Indian States. The area irrigated in 1922-23 was the largest on record and exceeded the average of the triennium ending 1918-21 by 1,454,964 acres.

Taking productive works only, the area irrigated during each of the three years showed an improvement on the figures of the previous triennium and the average of the triennium was over a million acres more than that of the previous period. This increase was shared by all the canals without exception and was due to the favourable climatic conditions obtaining and to the steady development on the canals of the Triple Project, especially the Lower Bari Doab.

The canals in operation (Productive and Unproductive) paid 14½ per cent. in 1921-22, 15½ per cent. in 1922-23 and 17½ per cent. in 1923-24 on a total capital expenditure of Rs. 2,327 lakhs incurred on them.

Works completed.

The Lower Jhelum canal at weir at Tajawala, the head-canal, were completed.

The Sutlej Valley project, to which the sanction of Secretary of State for India was received in the year 1921-22, has been fully described on pages 170 to 172 of the Triennial Review of Irrigation in India, 1918-21. In addition to preliminary work, which included extensive surveying and the selection of the sites for the headworks and the construction of railways, constitution of a committee to estimate the large quantity of stone required, good progress was made on the manufacture of bricks and lime and on the collection of stone, and a large quantity of earthwork was executed on the canals and at three of the four headworks. A notable feature of this great scheme is the introduction of machinery on a large scale. Mechanical excavators of various types are being employed for excavation purposes, while pumps, concrete mixers, etc., driven by electric power generated in large power stations equipped with the latest modern machinery, are in use at the headworks and elsewhere. A sum of Rs. 430 lakhs, including expenditure debitable to the Indian States concerned, was spent on the construction of the work to the end of the period.

Works in progress.

No new projects other than those mentioned in the Triennial Review of Irrigation in India, 1918-21, were under consideration.

New projects.

Many of the towns in the Irrawaddy Delta have large low-lying swampy areas, which form a menace to the health of the population; by raising these areas with sand dredged from the bed of the river the sanitary conditions are improved and valuable sites are made available for dwelling purposes.

See page 20 for map of Mandalay.

In the Mandalay district surveys were carried out and a preliminary estimate prepared for the Yenatha canal project. This canal will take off the right bank of the Madaya river opposite the existing Mandalay canal and will irrigate 19,000 acres. It is estimated to cost Rs. 11,75,000 and to bring in a return of about 3 per cent. The Phwaka canal was becoming less efficient year by year owing to silt caused by excessive velocities in the main channels and consequent silting of minor channels and water courses. Command has been forthcoming to the deepening and widening of the channels, and maintenance has become difficult and expensive as a result of heavy silt clearance and general deterioration of many of the channels. It has accordingly been decided to remodel the system so as to improve the working of the canal. The preliminary estimate was prepared for a total cost of Rs. 13,37,000 and includes an extension of the existing system; the work will bring in an additional area of 35,000 acres and a return of 1.28 per cent. In the Mawla district surveys were in hand for remodelling the Salin canals system, constructing a branch from the North Mon canal, and remodelling the Man canals system; these three projects are roughly estimated to cost 10 lakhs of rupees and to bring under irrigation an area of 37,000 acres of new land. In the Kyaukse district the preliminary estimate for remodelling the Pabik canal of the Zawgyi canal system was prepared, the antiquated cost being Rs. 1,15,815; this is an old Burmese work and the remodelling is expected to bring an area of 5,500 acres of new land under irrigation and to produce a return of 5.8 per cent on the capital outlay. The question of the best method of controlling the floods in the Pantung river which has been under consideration for a number of years is at last in a fair way to be solved by the decision to construct a masonry dam, 120 feet high, to form a flood modulating reservoir on the river. This project is known as the Panalaung improvement Scheme; the preliminary estimate has been prepared for a sum of Rs. 31 lakhs for works outlay.

BIHAR AND ORISSA.

In the areas commanded by the Orissa canals, the rainfall during the triennium was, excepting in the year 1922-23, below the normal, but being favourable and well-distributed, good crops were harvested. The demand for canal water during the period of scanty rainfall was heavy and was well met on the leased areas. In the areas commanded by the Son and Champaran canals the rainfall was seasonable and beneficial to the crops, although irrigation from the canals was much hampered by the extraordinarily high floods in the rivers Son, Ganges, Gogra and Gandak in August and September 1923, which caused extensive damages to the Son and Tribeni canal works, particularly to the anicut on the river Son at Dehri. Character of the season.

The average area irrigated was 960,505 acres, as compared with 988,368 acres, the average of the previous triennium. The decrease of 27,863 acres occurred mainly in the years 1922-23 and 1923-24, and was due to the fact that a number of leases, the term of which expired on the 31st March 1922 and 1923, respectively, were not renewed. The enhancement of water-rates in 1922 may have had some effect, but the chief cause was the favourable rainfall. Results.

The construction of certain distributaries and permanent outlets was completed. Works completed.

No important irrigation project was taken up during the triennium. Works in progress.

Detailed contour surveys in connection with the reservoir on the Kuara river in the Shahabad district, and the Derjang irrigation scheme in the Angul district were taken up, the former being nearly completed during the year 1923-24. The reservoir scheme in the Butana valley, the Kutkuli reservoir scheme for supplementing the supply of the Son river in the Palamau district and the Kiul river irrigation scheme in the Monghyr district were at different stages of investigation. Preliminary investigations regarding some possible minor irrigation schemes in the Bhagulpur district were also made. Projects under consideration.

CENTRAL PROVINCES.

Character of the seasons.

In 1921, though the monsoon was on the whole favourable and the rainfall well distributed, it ended before the rice crop had matured and there was consequently a heavy demand for irrigation both to mature the rice crop and to enable rabi sowings to be undertaken. In 1922, it was also favourable but there was a long break over most of the province in August and very little rain fell in October; the demand for irrigation for rice was good, but for rabi it was slight as there was rain in most districts in each month of the cold weather. In 1923 the rainfall was generally good in all the monsoon months, but there was a considerable demand for irrigation towards the end of July and early in August as also during the months of September and October; good general rain fell at the end of October and made the irrigation of rabi unnecessary. With the exception of 1921, the rainfall conditions of the triennium have not been such as to induce any exceptional demand for the irrigation either of rice or rabi, and indeed in the last two years of the triennium there has been very little demand for rabi irrigation at all.

Results.

During the triennium the average area of irrigation increased from 331,551 acres to 431,579 acres, the maximum area being 438,838 acres in 1921-22. The long term agreement system continued to work satisfactorily and, in areas where agreements have expired, they have mostly been renewed at higher rates. No new works of any importance have come into operation during the triennium and the increase in the area irrigated is therefore due to the development of works that were previously in operation. Much has to be done to secure the full development of these works but, except under the Mahanadi canal, there is not much scope for an immediate increase in the area irrigated. The gross revenue has increased from Rs. 5.72 lakhs in 1921-22 to Rs. 11.72 lakhs in 1923-24. It was Rs. 12.26 lakhs in 1922-23 but this high figure was due largely to the recovery in that year of large amounts of arrears. The revenue now exceeds slightly the costs of maintenance and working expenses.

Works completed.

The following works were completed during the triennium.

1 Jamunia Tank	} Balaghat District.
2. Kattanjeri Tank
3 Wainganga Canal
4. Tandula Canal	} Drug District.
5. Bodalkassa Tank
6. Chorkamara Tank	} Bhandara District.
7. Ghorajheri Tank
8. Naleswar Tank	} Chanda District.
9. Borna Tank
	Jubbulpore District.

Work

In all cases a certain amount of work remains to be done and in some cases, e.g., the Tandula canal, some remodelling will be necessary before the full area that the work should irrigate can be obtained.

In addition to the works mentioned above, the following were the more important works in progress during the triennium. Works in progress.

Mahanadi Canal.—The construction of the Maramasili Reservoir, which acts as a feeder to this Canal, was completed in 1923. In connection with this work a syphon spillway consisting of 31 syphons (8 feet by 8 feet each) of reinforced concrete has been constructed. This installation is the first of its kind to be erected in India on a large scale and it is technically of considerable interest. Fair progress has been made on the distribution system, but a good deal remains to be done to complete it.

Kharung Canal.—A commencement was made on the construction of the Kharung canal in 1921. Moderate progress has been achieved on the headworks and a fair start has been made on both the right and the left bank canals.

Maniari Reservoir.—An estimate for the construction of the Maniari reservoir in Bilaspur, which is intended to irrigate 80,000 acres of rice, was sanctioned in March 1921 and work on it is in progress.

Other works.—The headworks of the Pariat tank were practically completed. Work was also in progress on nine other small projects mentioned below:—

Kusserla tank in the Chanda district.

Amari

Jagwa

Boharibund

} tanks in the Jubbulpore District.

Mala tank in Damoh.

Kumhari tank in Raipur.

Masonry dam for the Chandia nala tank in the Shahgarh tract of the Saugor district.

Chhoti Deori tank in Damoh.

Ratona tank in Saugor.

During 1922-23 a programme of construction of new works was prepared. This programme contemplates the construction during the next 13 years of the following nine new works and the completion of all works that are in progress at a cost of about Rs. 5 crores. Projects under consideration.

Bilaspur District.—Maniari, Arpa and Agar Hap projects which will irrigate about 80,000, 160,000, and 80,000 acres of rice, respectively.

Jubbulpore District.—Katni river and Umrar nala projects which will irrigate about 16,600 and 25,000 acres of rice, respectively, and some area of rabi.

Seoni District.—Bori, Ari and Chichbund tanks which will irrigate about 9,000, 11,000 and 5,000 acres of rice respectively.

Balaghat District.—Muram Nala tank, which will irrigate about 6,000 acres of rice.

Work has been started on the Maniari and Bori projects and an estimate for the Katni river project is under the consideration of the local Government. Considerable progress has been made on the investigation of all the other works that are included in the programme.

In addition to these works some further investigation has been made during the triennium of the Hasdeo project, to irrigate about 250,000 acres in the east of the Bilaspur district. A considerable number of comparatively small works, which might in certain circumstances be undertaken to relieve distress, has also been investigated.

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

The 1921 khariif season was an exceptionally dry one, especially over the Lower Swat and Kabul River Canal tracts. The remaining seasons of the triennium were more or less normal ones. Character of the seasons.

The Paharpur Canal was transferred to the District authorities in 1923; the areas irrigated by the other canals are noted below :— Results.

Lower Swat Canal	..	175,744	170,456	158,763
Kabul River Canal	..	51,328	47,936	46,215

These results indicate a considerable decrease in irrigation but the worst year 1923-24 was better than the average, 341,809 acres, for the previous triennium. Conditions in 1921-22 were very favourable for irrigation, grain was fetching high prices and the rainfall was very light, record areas were irrigated on the Kabul River Canal in both seasons and on the Lower Swat Canal in the khariif season. The irrigation in 1923-24 was seriously affected by plague, good rains and the drop in the price of grain, the Mohmands and other border tribesmen declined to lease land when wheat and barley fetched only about one-half the prices that prevailed in 1921 and 1922.

The zamindari water-courses along the banks of the river in the Swat valley have been linked up to their parent channels; this work materially reduces the cost of building kacha bunds in the river bed to force the supply (reduced by the construction of the Upper Swat Canal) into these water-courses. Works in progress.

The construction of a bund, costing Rs. 14 lakhs, to protect the Dera Ismail Khan city and cantonments from erosion by the Indus river was undertaken by the Irrigation Department and is expected to be completed during 1925-26.

Some minor schemes for irrigation in the Hazara district were investigated but found to be impracticable. The possibility of a canal taking out of the Indus at Kalabagh to irrigate the Dera Ismail Khan district is also being examined. Projects under consideration.

- (2) When a warrant is directed to more officers or persons than one, it may be executed by all, or by any one or more, of them

Notes.

1. Application of the Section.—The Section is directory and not mandatory. A substantial compliance with the provisions of the Section is sufficient.—1 P R 1896 "See 77 Cr P C hereby directs that a Warrant shall ordinarily be directed to one or more Police Officers. It does not say that the name of that Police Officer is to be inserted in the warrant as well as his designation" [3 Pat J. 493]
2. Warrants directed to private persons.—

When Police Officers are available, a warrant should not be addressed to private persons [8 W R 74]

3. Police officers cannot entrust warrants to private persons.—When a warrant is directed to a Police Officer, he cannot endorse it to a private person and thereby authorise him to execute it. See S 79—it can be endorsed only to another Police Officer.—See also Abbot 51 Barb 542]
4. Procedure—Warrants should be directed to the Senior Officer of Police in attendance at a Court, by whom they should be registered in a book, kept for the purpose. He should then endorse on such warrant the name of the officer who is charged with its execution (generally an officer in charge of a Police Station) and should despatch it without delay. The officer receiving the warrant may again transfer it for execution to another Police Officer but in every instance a regular endorsement must take place, so that the name of the officer executing the process may be apparent on the order itself. Ben. Pol Man. 2nd Ed p. 396.

5. Effect of omission of the name of the would certainly be extremely difficult to carry on the Police Administration of the country if every warrant had to be directed by name to a Police Officer and upon his transfer it were to become incapable of execution till the name of some other officer had been substituted in his place "

6. Who may execute the warrant.—In English Law, the actual or constructive presence of the person named or designated in the warrant as the person directed to execute it, is necessary [Whalley 7 C and P. 245, See 1 Cow. 63.]

78. (1) A District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may direct a warrant to any landholder, farmer or manager of land within his district or sub-division for the arrest of any escaped convict, proclaimed offender or person who has been accused of a non-bailable offence, and who has eluded pursuit.

(2) Such landholder, farmer or manager shall acknowledge in writing the receipt of the warrant, and shall execute it if the person for whose arrest it was issued, is in, or enters on, his land or farm, or the land under his charge.

(3) When the person against whom such warrant is issued is arrested, he shall be made over with the warrant to the nearest police-officer, who shall cause him to be taken before a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, unless security is taken under section 76.

79 A warrant directed to any police-officer may also be executed by any other police-officer whose name is endorsed upon the warrant by the officer to whom it is directed or endorsed.

Notes.

1. Endorsement by name.—

Under the terms of S 79 the endorsement should be regularly made by name to a certain person in order to authorise him to make the arrest. Where no name is endorsed, the warrant is illegal and the person resisting it is not liable to punishment [10 N. 85] See however 3 Pat J. 493

2. Endorsement of warrants under Special Acts.—

A special warrant issued under S 6 of the Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act (1V of 1847) can be executed only by the officer to whom it is directed by name S 79 Cr. P. C. does not apply to such cases [38 56] The Burma Gambling Act (1 of 1899) contains no provision authorising the endorsement of the warrant issued under S 6 thereof by the officer to whom it is issued to another officer [21 Cr. 9 (L. B.)]. Similarly only the person named in a warrant under S 45 of the Chowkidari Act (Bengal VI of 1870) can lawfully execute the warrant [37 C 122].

Only the officer named in the warrant can endorse it.—Where the warrant was directed to the Court SubInspector, in his absence, the Court Head Constable, cannot endorse it to any process-serving peon. Only the officer to whom the warrant is directed can lawfully endorse it to another officer [27 C 457]. See also 18 A 246.

Q. The police-officer or other person executing a warrant of arrest shall notify the substance thereof to the person to be arrested, and, if so required, shall show him the warrant.

Notes.

Application of the Section.—All that the Section requires is that the accused shall have reasonable opportunity of knowing on what charge he is being arrested and before what Court he is to appear, so that he may take steps for arranging for his defence. The omission on the part of the Police Officer to explain to the accused the particulars of the warrant after showing him the warrant does not invalidate the arrest, when the accused had sufficient opportunity of reading the warrant itself [3 Pat. J 493].

When arrest will be illegal.—When the contents of the warrant had not been explained to the accused before his arrest and the accused had not had a chance of seeing the warrant and reading it, the arrest was held to be illegal—23 C 690. 26 C. 748.

Resistance to arrest under illegal warrant.—Where the warrant itself is ultra vires and illegal or has ceased to be in force on the date of arrest, resistance to arrest does not constitute any offence—See 10 C. 18; 13 B 164. 22 C 256(200); 10 P. R. 1905; 24 C 320 (323). See also 28 C. 399; 35 A. 103. 16 P. R. 1904 (escape from custody).

Arresting officer bound to have the warrant with him at the time of arrest.—The 4. Process-serving peons—are not Police Officers within the meaning of S 79 Cr P C [27 C 457]. The terms of S 79 expressly provide that no other person except a Police Officer, is competent to execute a warrant of arrest under an endorsement from another Police Officer (ibid).

5. Endorsement should not be made by initials.—A Magistrate is guilty of gross carelessness in not signing his name in full on a warrant but a warrant is not invalid merely because it has been initialled [3 Pat. J 493]. Where one of the endorsements is only by initials, the warrant will be legal if the initials are identified by witnesses [5 C N 447].

officer arresting, must have the warrant of arrest in his possession at the time of making the arrest, otherwise the arrest would be illegal—5 A. 318; See 27 A 258 (259). The person sought to be arrested must be brought before the Court.

officer is bound to do so is to extend the law beyond the limits laid down by the Legislature—27 C. 320.

6. Police officer acting bonafide—is protected by S 79 I. P. C.—See 24 W. R. 51. 19 W. R. 36; 6 W. R. 88.

The police-officer or other person executing a warrant of arrest shall (subject to the provisions of section 76 as to security) without unnecessary delay bring the person arrested before the Court before which he is arrested to be brought before without delay. red by law to produce such person.

Notes.

Character of the warrant to which the section refers.—The warrant is not a warrant for commitment but merely an order authorising the police officer to whom it is addressed to arrest the person and bring him before a particular magistrate. The warrant is exhausted as soon as the person arrested is produced before the Court.

To authorise further detention, an order under S 344 Cr P. C. is necessary. The warrant for further detention would be one of commitment directed to a jailer or other person having authority to receive and keep the prisoner—4 B. L. (sp) 1.

2. Unnecessary detention is punishable.—If a person arrested is detained by a police officer for over 24 hours [as required by S 61 Cr. P. C.], he is punishable under S 23 of Act V of 1861. Detention means continuous detention. See 1 W R 5 - 6 W R 88; 10 W R 26.

British India.

82. A warrant of arrest may be executed at any place in of warrants.—The Code contains no provisions as to the particular week-days or time of day when an arrest may be made. In England, arrests for felonies may be made on all the days of the week and during nights as well as days. See Raulins, 3 Cox 86.

Notes

1. Mere presence in "British India" may not be sufficient.—The arrest of a person for an offence committed in British territory and not committed on the Nizam's Railway (The Hyderabad State Railway) or in any way connected with the administration of the Railway, merely because, he was physically present on a portion of that line of the Railway, is illegal. The taking of the advantage of the fact that criminal jurisdiction along the line of the Railway has been granted to British Government by treaty would be an evasion of the law [See 25 C. 20 (P. C.)].

2. Evasion of the law.—

It would be a mere evasion of the law to arrest a person in British India [e.g., the Residency of Jeypur] after having him first arrested by a constable of the Native State outside British India—7 Bur 83.

83. (1) When a warrant is to be executed outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same, such Court may, instead of directing such warrant to a police-officer, forward the same by post or otherwise to any Magistrate or District Superintendent of Police or the Commissioner of Police in a presidency-town within the local limits of whose jurisdiction it is to be executed.

(2) The Magistrate or District Superintendent or Commissioner to whom such warrant is so forwarded shall endorse his name thereon and, if practicable, cause it to be executed in manner hereinbefore provided within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

Notes.

1. The section applies to warrants issued under the Workmen's Breach of Contract Act. 23 M 245, 23 M. 457, 20 A 124. See also 11 P. R. 1474, 33 P. R. 7438, 17 P. R. 1896.
2. Power of arrest of persons at Aden.—See Reg. and Ord. N. W. P., S 10 p 361.
3. Arrest of persons in Jail.—See S. 3 of the Prisoner's Testimony Act XV of 1860.

4. Outside the local limits.—The expression must not be understood to include any place outside British India. See S. 82 Supra.

5. The section is merely directory and not mandatory.—1 P. R. 1896.

Magistrates competent to act under the section.—The power under the section may be exercised by all provincial magistrates.—See Sch III (1) (3).

84. (1) When a warrant directed to a police-officer is to be executed beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same, he shall ordinarily take it for endorsement either to a Magistrate or to a police-officer not below the rank of an officer in charge of a station, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the warrant is to be executed.

(2) Such Magistrate or police-officer shall endorse his name thereon and such endorsement shall be sufficient authority to the police-officer to whom the warrant is directed to execute the same within such limits, and the local police shall, if so required, assist such officer in executing such warrant.

(3) Whenever there is reason to believe that the delay occasioned by obtaining the endorsement of the Magistrate or police-officer within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the warrant is to be executed, will prevent such execution, the police-officer to whom it is directed may execute the same without such endorsement in any place beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued it.

(4) This section applies also to the police in the town of Calcutta.

85 When a warrant of arrest is executed outside the district in which it was issued, the person arrested shall, unless the Court which issued the warrant is within twenty miles of the place of arrest or is nearer than the Magistrate or District Superintendent of Police or the Commissioner of Police in a presidency-town within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the arrest was made, or unless security is taken under section 76, be taken before such Magistrate or Commissioner or District Superintendent.

86 (1) Such Magistrate or District Superintendent or Commissioner shall, if the person arrested appears to be the person intended by the Court which issued the warrant, direct his removal in custody to such Court:

Provided that, if the offence is bailable, and such person is ready and willing to give bail to the satisfaction of such Magistrate, District Superintendent or Commissioner, or a direction has been endorsed under section 76 on the warrant and such person is ready and willing to give the security required by such direction the Magistrate, District Superintendent or Commissioner shall take such bail or security, as the case may be, and forward the bond to the Court which issued the warrant.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a police-officer from taking security under section 76.

C.—Proclamation and Attachment.

87 (1) If any Court has reason to believe (whether after taking evidence or not) that any person against whom a warrant has been issued by it has absconded or is concealing himself so that such warrant cannot be executed, such Court may publish a written proclamation requiring him to appear at a specified place and at a specified time not less than thirty days from the date of publishing such proclamation.

(2) The proclamation shall be published as follows:—

- (a) it shall be publicly read in some conspicuous place of the town or village in which such person ordinarily resides;
- (b) it shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the house or homestead in which such person ordinarily resides or to some conspicuous place of such town or village; and
- (c) a copy thereof shall be affixed to some conspicuous part of the Court-house.

(3) A statement in writing by the Court issuing the proclamation to the effect that a proclamation was duly published on a specified day shall be conclusive evidence thereof.

requirements of this section have been complied with, and that the proclamation was published on such day

I. Condition precedent to order.

1. Previous issue of warrant.—

The previous issue of a warrant against the person whose attendance before the Court is required, is a necessary condition. If this is wanting, all proceedings relating to proclamation and attachment would be illegal.—15 P. R. 1893; 5 N. 123; 2 Weir 40

2. Magistrate is bound to satisfy himself that the accused is really absconding. Note that for war issuing a written proclamation, the officer, sent to serve the warrant, must be examined as to the measures adopted by him to serve it. If on his evidence or on other grounds the Magistrate is satisfied that the accused is absconding or concealing himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of the warrant, then only the procedure laid down in Ss 87 and 88 should be adopted [3 W. R. 63; 8 W. R. 73]. The Magistrate must judicially find that the necessary conditions for the issue of a proclamation are present. [19 W. R. 12; 6 W. R. 73; 3 W. R. 63].

3. Meaning of the term "absconding."—

The term "absconding" is not to be understood as implying necessarily that a person leaves the place in which he is. Its etymological and its ordinary sense is to hide oneself; and it does not matter whether he departs from a place or remains in it if he conceals himself. Nor does the term apply to the commencement of concealment. If a person having concealed himself before process issues, continues to do so after it has issued, he absconds.—[1 M. 343] But an absent person should not be too readily assumed to be an absconder without due enquiry and notice [2 Weir 40]

4. For a conviction under S. 172 I. P. C.—

It is necessary to prove that the accused knew or had reason to believe that a warrant had issued.—See 4 M. 393. See also 5 W. R. 71; 7 N. P. 302; 9 W. R. 70; 24 P. R. 1890

5. Proclamation in petty cases.—

When the offence is a petty one, it would be more judicious to drop proceedings than to issue a proclamation against the absconder.—3 L. B. 116

6. Procedure.—

When it is alleged that an accused person has absconded, evidence to prove the allegation should be taken [cf. S. 512 infra]. If the Magistrate considers there is sufficient prima facie proof of the offence, he can proceed under Ss 87 and 88. If there is no prima facie proof, proclamation and attachment should be refused.—See 3 L. B. 116; 19 W. R. 12. See also 7 M. 436.

7. Change of Law.—

Under the Codes of 1861 and 1872 proclamations could not be issued in summons cases [See S. 172, Code of 1872]. But the word "any person" in the section clearly includes also an absconding accused in a summons case. But to lay the foundation for the issue of the proclamation, a warrant should be previously issued under Cl (6) of S. 90 Cr. P. C.—5 N. 125

8. The warrant previously issued must be a valid one.—

Where a person discharged in a case of cheating was called upon to show cause why he should not be re-tried but before he had opportunity of showing cause, a warrant of arrest was issued—held—that the order for warrant and the orders under Ss 87 and 88 Cr. P. C. upon the accused absconding were passed without jurisdiction.—15 P. R. 1893; See also 5 N. 125

See Sch. III. Cl (4)

II. Publication of the Proclamation.

10. As to the Form.—

See Sch. V. Forms No 4 and 5.

Mad H. C. Cr. Rev. case 209 of 1901 and 12 of 1905; Cr. R. 7 of 45-01

13. Provisions of clauses (a) (b) and (c) imperative.—

In respect of the rules regarding the time and the places of proclamation the section is imperative and a neglect of such rules renders all proceedings void.—19 M. 3; 21 Cr. 210 (P); 25 A. 572; 14 B. R. 163. Where a proclamation issued on 6th Nov. fixed the date of the appearance of the accused as 11th. Dec. and although published by affixing a copy on the Court-house on the 6th and was not published in the place where the accused resided till the 16th—held—there was no legal proclamation [19 M. 3]. But See 17 W. R. 10

14. Publication at the accused's place of residence the most important part.—

The most important part of the publication of a

12. Omission to give thirty days' time renders the proclamation void.—

Where a proclamation under S. 87 of the Cr. P. C. does not give thirty days for the appearance of the accused, the proclamation is illegal and the subsequent proceedings following upon it are liable to be set aside.—21 Cr. 210 (P); 17 M. 3; 43 N. 3; See proclamation under S. 87 Cr P C is the publishing of it in the accused's place of residence [6 P R, 1916]

- 15. Absence of validating order under Cl. (3)
In the absence of a statement issued by the court in writing to the effect that the proclamation was duly published, the subsequent attachment is illegal, and sale under it is a nullity. 27 A 572 See 9 P R 1908 22 A, 216 Magistrates when acting under S 87 should always make an endorsement or statement in writing validating the proclamation as contemplated by cl (3) of the section 6 P. R. 1916
- 16 Effect of defective order under Cl (3)
An order under S 87 (3) Cr P C stating that the proclamation was duly published, but omitting to specify the date of the publication, cannot be considered as conclusive evidence that the requirements of S 87 had been complied with 21 Cr 210 (P)

- 17 Proof of publication The prosecution in a case against an absconding accused ought to file the statement referred to in cl (3) of S 87 Cr P C to prove the fact of absconding 17 Cr 78(M)
- 17a. When informality is curable. Where a proclamation under S 87 Cr P C is made and is read and published in the places, where the absconders are most likely to hear of it, the mere omission to affix a copy of it to the court house, is in the absence of prejudices, an irregularity curable by S 537 Cr P C 36 P R 1917 Con 19 M 3
- 17b. For instructions regarding publication of proclamation See Beng Pol Code p 250

III. Penalty for disobedience.

- 18 The Position of an absconder An accused person against whom a proclamation has been issued, must be regarded as in contempt until he has come in and surrendered. No petition on his behalf can be entertained until he has so surrendered—2 N P. 441 17 W, R 10
- 19. What an absconder should do after surrender—The absconder should appear before the Magistrate and apply to be discharged, on the ground that the warrant is informal, or otherwise offer some explanation by way of purging his contempt. He may apply at the same time for the release of his property. The Magistrate may then determine judicially whether the warrant was a valid one and when he has done so, the absconder may apply for a revision of the proceedings—See 2 N P. 441, 5 W R 71
- 20. Magistrate enforcing penalty cannot utilise provisions of S 537 Cr. P. C—It is not for the Magistrate enforcing the penal consequences of alleged disobedience to a proclamation under S 87 Cr P C to utilise the provisions of S 537 Cr. P. C. to cure any defect in the mode of publication of the proclamation. It is for the Sessions Judge on appeal or the High Court in revision to consider whether the defect is curable or not—19 M 3.

- 21. Section of the I. P. C. applicable on disobedience A warrant of arrest should be sharply distinguished from a summons, notice or order. It is addressed not to the person arrested but to the police officer directed to make the arrest an absconder should be dealt with under the Criminal Procedure Code and not under S. 172 I. P. C. [7 N P-302] If the absconder fails to attend in obedience to the proclamation he should be proceeded against under S 174 I. P. C. [5 W R 71, 7 N. P. 302 See 9 W. R 70; 23 P R 1890]

IV. Miscellaneous.

- 22. Cost of proclamation to be paid by absent witness—When a proclamation has been issued for an absent witness, if the witness shall afterwards appear, and the Court shall be of opinion that such witness has absconded or concealed himself for the purpose of avoiding the service of a warrant upon him, such Court may order the witness to pay the cost of the proclamation—Wilkins 42
- 23. Simultaneous proclamation and attachment—A Magistrate may in a proper case, simultaneously issue proclamation and make an order for attachment of the property of the absconding accused - 29 C 417

[Note—The words “at any time” in S 88 points to this conclusion]

- 24 Proclamations to be preserved.—Magistrates ought to take particular care in cases where a Court is asked to confiscate private property to preserve proclamations; and the records must be so clear as to satisfy the Court that all the legal formalities were duly observed. 14 B R 161 Where, therefore, on account of the neglect of the Lower Courts, these materials were not forthcoming, the order for attachment was set aside. [2, 4]

88 (1) The Court issuing a proclamation under section 87 may at any time order the attachment of any property, movable or immovable, or both, belonging to the proclaimed person.

(2) Such order shall authorize the attachment of any property belonging to such person within the district in which it is made; and it shall authorize the attachment of any property belonging to such person without such district when endorsed by the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate within whose district such property is situate.

(3) If the property ordered to be attached is a debt or other moveable property, the attachment under this section shall be made—

(a) by seizure; or

(b) by the appointment of a receiver; or

(c) by an order in writing prohibiting the delivery of such property to the proclaimed person or to any one on his behalf;

or

(d) by all or any two of such methods, as the Court thinks fit.

(4) If the property ordered to be attached is immoveable, the attachment under this section shall, in the case of land paying revenue to Government, be made through the Collector of the District in which the land is situate, and in all other cases—

(e) by taking possession; or

(f) by the appointment of a receiver; or

(g) by an order in writing prohibiting the payment of rent or delivery of property to the proclaimed person or to any one on his behalf; or

(h) by all or any two of such methods, as the Court thinks fit.

(5) If the property ordered to be attached consists of livestock or is of a perishable nature the Court may, if it thinks it expedient, order immediate sale thereof, and in such case the proceeds of the sale shall abide the order of the Court.

(6) The powers, duties and liabilities of a receiver appointed under this section shall be the same as those of a receiver appointed under Chapter XXXVI of the Code of Civil Procedure.

(7) If the proclaimed person does not appear within the time specified in the proclamation, the property under attachment shall be at the disposal of Government; but it shall not be sold until the expiration of six months from the date of the attachment, unless it is subject to speedy and natural decay, or the Court considers that the sale would be for the benefit of the owner, in either of which cases the Court may cause it to be sold whenever it thinks fit.

Proposed amendments to the Section— After subsection (6) of Section 88 of the said Code, the following subsections shall be inserted, namely:

lates and requires proof that the offender did not abscond or conceal himself for the purpose of avoiding arrest, and that he had not had such notice of the proclamation as to enable him to attend within the time prescribed—15 B R 175 See 3 W R 63 G P R 1916

5. Objection by the absconder to validity of proclamation, attachment and sale.—It is open to the alleged absconder to prove (1) that he was not absconding (2) that there was no publication at all or that the proclamation was defective, e.g. that it specified no date for his appearance—39 P R 1917 But See G P R 1916

6. Recusant witness.—Where a recusant witness does not make his appearance the Magistrate may sell any part of the attached property and recover the amount of fine imposed on him, and the fine is not illegal by reason of the witness's answer to the charge not having been recorded—2 W R 44 (12)

7. Procedure.—Forfeiture of property of an absconding offender who appears within two years from the attachment of his property should not be carried into effect, until after a regular enquiry into the case of the offender's absence, and when the accused appears, he is bound to satisfy the Magistrate that he has not been avoiding the process of the Court—3 W R 63

8. Applicant's remedy if the property has already been sold.—S 89 Cr P C provides for applications by the absconding offender only, for restoration of the property attached, and no provision is made for claims by third parties to such property. Once the sale of the property has duly taken effect, it cannot be set aside even at the instance of the absconder—[5 P R 1911] Criminal Courts cannot compel restitution by the purchaser [22 A 216 27 A 572 See 39 P R 1917]

9. Suit by absconder to recover property sold.—S 89 Cr P C has no application if the attachment and sale under S 88 is not a valid one [See 21 Cr 210 (P) 6 P. R. 1916 Contra 39 P R 1917.] In such a case there would apparently be no legal bar to a civil suit for recovery by the absconding party [See (14) A. N. 139, 39 P R 1917]. But where the accused whose property was attached, did not appear within 2 years of the attachment and the property was thereupon ordered to be sold, no civil action would lie to set aside the sale [5 W R (Civ) 257]

10. Application barred if made after two years.—An application under S 89 Cr P C for return of the property attached made more than two years after the attachment, is barred—6 P R 1916; See 22 A. 216.

11. Property does not vest in Government. The language of sections 87 to 89 does not warrant the construction that from the date of attachment, the interest of the absconder is severed and vests in the Government—31 M J 120 (F.B.).

12. Remedies of the absconder against order under the section.—(1) The accused has a right of appeal under S 405 infra if his application for restoration of the attached property is rejected (2) The High Court may also reverse orders under the section—39 P R 1917; 8 P R 1911, 19 M 3 22 A. 216

13. Order releasing attached property.—A Magistrate's direction to his subordinate to write to the Collector and authorise the taking off of a certain attachment will amount to an order releasing the property from attachment—5 W R 8

14. Magistrates empowered to act under the section.—All provincial Magistrates have the power to make an order under S. 89—See Sch. III Cl 6

D—Other Rules regarding Processes.

90 A Court may in case in which it is empowered by this Code to issue a summons for the appearance of any person other than a juror or assessor issue, after recording its reasons in writing, a warrant for his arrest—

(a) if, either before the issue of such summons, or after the issue of the same but before the time fixed for his appearance, the Court sees reason to believe that he has absconded or will not obey the summons, or

(b) if at such time he fails to appear and the summons is proved to have been duly served in time to admit of his appearing in accordance therewith and no reasonable excuse is offered for such failure.

1. Warrant cannot be issued only where a Magistrate is empowered to issue summons.—(1) This section authorises the issue of a warrant only in cases in which the Magistrate is empowered to issue a summons. Where there is no power to issue summons, S 89 does not apply. A warrant cannot therefore be issued against a discharged accused before the order of discharge is set aside—15 P R. 1893

2. Every Summons.—This would include summons to Jurors and Assessors.—S. 326, Summons to produce documents.—S. 91, etc.

3. Every Warrant.—See for instance Search Warrants (S. 96); Search for persons wrongfully confined (S. 100); Warrant of arrest under S. 107(1); Warrant for arrest issued under S. 114 Cr. P. C. etc.

CHAPTER VII.

OF PROCESSES TO COMPEL THE PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS AND OTHER MOVEABLE PROPERTY, AND FOR THE DISCOVERY OF PERSONS WRONGFULLY CONFINED.

A.—Summons to produce.

94 (1) Whenever any Court, or in any place beyond the limits of the towns of Calcutta and Bombay, any officer in charge of a police-station considers that the production of any document or other thing is necessary or desirable for the purposes of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code by or before such Court or officer, such Court may issue a summons, or such officer a written order, to the person in whose possession or power such document or thing is believed to be, requiring him to attend and produce it, or to produce it, at the time and place stated in the summons or order.

(2) Any person required under this section merely to produce a document or other thing shall be deemed to have complied with the requisition if he causes such document or thing to be produced instead of attending personally to produce the same.

(3) Nothing in the section shall be deemed to affect the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, sections 123 and 124, or to apply to a letter, postcard, telegram or other document or any parcel or thing in the custody of the Postal or Telegraph authorities.

Notes.

1. Application of the Section.

1. The Section applies to accused persons.—“It will be observed that the law, so far as the immediate subject before us is concerned, is practically the same as it was in 1872, and there can, I think, be no doubt that the Legislature intended, as I have already observed, that an accused person might be compelled to produce evidence against himself.”—Per Ghose J. [See 15 C. 109 at pages 140 and 141] This view is also adopted in 19 C. 52; 16 C. N. 1078; 41 C. 201; 4 Pat. W. 65; 37 M. 112; 36 P. B. 1911. A contrary view seems to be indicated in 34 C. 301. But the very same Judges who decided it, say in 16 C. N. 1078 that if the ruling in 34 C. 301 “intended to lay down that a Police Officer is not empowered to search an accused's house for stolen property relevant to the case, it is not a correct statement of the law.” In 12 C. N. 1016 a distinction is apparently drawn between an accused person and an accused person on his trial. The provisions of S. 94 are held “not to apply to the case of an accused person on his trial to whom a notice has been issued to produce an incriminating document.” See Com. 12 Cr. 93 (C).

2. Safe-guards provided by law.—“The only safe-guard as far as I can see, which the Legislature provides are; first that the documents called for or in regard to which a search warrant is issued, must be distinctly specified; second, that the inspection should be confined to the documents covered by the search warrant—15 C 109 5 B R 980 See 8 W R 174 [The ruling in 15 C 109 applies where the procedure prescribed by S 94 or 96 has been complied with—5 B R 978]

13. Inspection at the Office of accused's Solicitor—A Magistrate is not authorised under S 94 to allow the prosecution to inspect the entries in the account books kept by the accused at his Solicitor's office. They must first be produced in Court, when, of course, they can be inspected [5 B R 978]

14. Security for production whenever required cannot be taken—There is no section of the Code enabling a Magistrate to demand security from the person in possession of the documents or articles for their production, when ever required—7 C N 322 (504)

15. Disposal of the property produced before the Court See Ss 517 and 520 Cr P C See 19 C 52 (65) 3 C 379 12 B A 217

16. Accused cannot insist on the document or thing being put in evidence The fact that a document is produced by the Court will not give the accused any right to insist upon the prosecution putting it in evidence. The prosecution is entitled to inspect it, to determine whether it is to be put in evidence or not—15 C. 109 5 B R 980.

17. Penalty for failure to produce.—In addition to omission to produce a document before public servant by a person legally bound to produce it, is punishable under S 173 I. P. C. non-production of the document for which a summons has been issued under S. 94 Cr. P. C. by accused does not amount to an offence under 173 I. P. C. [12 C N. 1016 12 Cr. 95 (C)] conviction will be only when the production of the document is necessary for the decision of case in which it is called for, but not otherwise [1 Pat W 65]

18. Person producing document not a witness A person summoned to produce a document does not become a witness by the mere fact that he produces it and cannot be cross-examined and until he is called as a witness S Evidence Act (I of 1872)

19. Revision—The High Court can interfere under S 339 Cr P C Where a Magistrate erroneously refuses to make an order for the production of necessary document or thing—See 19 C. 52

95 (1) If any document parcel or thing in such custody is, in the opinion of any District Magistrate, Chief Presidency Magistrate, High Court or Court of Session, wanted for the purpose of any investigation, inquiry or other proceeding under this Code, such Magistrate or Court may require the Postal Telegraph Authorities, as the case may be, to deliver such document parcel or thing to such persons as such Magistrate or Court directs

(2) If any such document, parcel or thing is, in the opinion of any other Magistrate, or any Commissioner of Police or District Superintendent of Police, wanted for any such purpose, he may require the Postal or Telegraph Department, as the case may be, to cause search to be made for and to detain such document parcel or thing pending the orders of any such District Magistrate, Chief Presidency Magistrate or Court

96 (1) Where any Court has reason to believe that a person to whom a summons or order under section 94 or a requisition under section 95, sub-section (1) has been or might be addressed, will not or would not produce the document or thing as required by such summons or requisition, When such warrant may be issued

(2) Nothing herein contained shall authorize any Magistrate other than a District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate to grant a warrant to search for a document, parcel or other thing in the custody of the Postal or Telegraph authorities

Notes.

I. Scope and application of the section.

1. Order in the nature of attachment before judgment not contemplated.—S 46 Cr P C authorises and compels the production in court of the property in respect of which a search warrant is issued, but when property not alleged to be stolen is in the hand of the third parties, such production can only be sought for the purpose of evidence and ought not to be granted for the sole purposes of attaching property the title to which is in dispute Rat 677 See 19 C 52

2. Power not to be exercised for "fishing for evidence" The power of issuing a search warrant is not intended to be used for the purpose of giving complainants an opportunity of fishing for evidence. The warrant is intended for use in respect of defined documents believed to exist which must be clearly specified in the warrant. 27 Cr 543 (L B) 8 W R 74 (75)

3. Warrants can be issued only for specified documents or things.—A Magistrate has no authority for issuing, on the application of the complainant a search warrant ordering the summary seizure of all the goods of a certain description in the possession of the accused [12 P W 1916 17 Cr 543 (L B) 16 C N 1075] See 21 Cr 313 (C)

4. Prompt action necessary.—The whole object of issuing a search warrant is to ascertain by a surprise visit whether the property which the complainant alleges, is in possession of the accused, is actually in his possession at the place named in the application, and to secure it for the purposes of trial identification. Delay in issuing a warrant cannot but operate to defeat this purpose.—22 C N 719 See 13 M 18

II. Procedure.

5. Condition precedent to issue.—A Magistrate, before issuing a search warrant, is bound to give reasons for believing that the accused would not produce the articles required, if a summons were issued to him for their production. A failure to do so makes the order of the Magistrate issuing the search warrant illegal and improper [12 P W 1916 (17) M N 494 15 C 109 (134) 5 B R 1032 17 Cr 543 (L B)]

6. Application of Police Officers.—No doubt statements of a police officer engaged in the investigation is entitled to great weight but a Magistrate should apply his mind to the facts and proceed on his independent judgment. He ought not to issue a search warrant simply because a police officer asks him to do so.—21 Cr 313 (C)

7. A person in S. 96 includes the accused.—The words "a person" in S. 96 Cr P C include a person accused in the case. [36 P R 1914 15 C 109 19 C 52 41 C 261 37 M 112 5 B R 980 Con 34 C 304 12 C N 1016 12 Cr 98 (C)] See note No 1 under S 94 Cr P C

8. Issue of warrant a judicial act.—The act of issuing a search warrant is a judicial act and before a Magistrate issues it, it is his duty to weigh the circumstances before making up his mind on the question. A mere statement in an affidavit that in the opinion of the deponent, a summons may not have the desired effect, is not sufficient to justify the issue of a search warrant [(17) M N 494 15 C 109 35 C 1075] Before issuing a search warrant, the Magistrate must have before him some information or evidence that the documents are necessary or desirable for the purposes of the enquiry before him [17 Cr 543 (L B)] See 22 B 949 But a search warrant cannot be issued upon the basis of a telegram received by the Police [22 B 949 Rat 680]

9. The stage at which a search warrant may be issued.—It is not necessary that the Magistrate should be sitting as a Court or some proceeding requiring his judicial determination should have been initiated before him. A search warrant may be issued before any proceedings of any kind are initiated and in view of "an enquiry to be made [39 C 953 (P C) overruling 26 C 433 Contra—22 B 949 (956)] It is not obligatory upon the Magistrate to wait till a preliminary enquiry is held and all the witnesses for the prosecution examined and cross-examined. Such a restriction would often tend to defeat the object with which search warrants are issued.—13 M 18

10. Complainant to be examined on oath before issue of search warrant.—The Matributed by the Code [13 M 18 22 B 94] Where a District Magistrate transferred a complaint to the Deputy for enquiry and disposal, and the latter without examining the complainant on oath, etc., for the deposit or sale of stolen property, or for the deposit or sale or manufacture of forged documents, false seals or counterfeit stamps or coin, or instruments or materials for counterfeiting coin or stamps or for forging, or that any forged documents, false seals or counterfeit stamps or coin, or instruments or materials used for counterfeiting coin or stamps or for forging, are kept or deposited in any place, he may by his warrant authorize any police-officer above the rank of a constable—

(a) to enter, with such assistance as may be required, such place, and

(b) to search the same in manner specified in the warrant, and

(c) to take possession of any property, documents, seals, stamps or coins therein found which he reasonably suspects to be stolen, unlawfully obtained, forged, false or counterfeit and also of any such instruments and materials as aforesaid, and

(d) to convey such property, documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials before a Magistrate, or to guard the same on the spot until the offender is taken before a Magistrate, or otherwise to dispose thereof in some place of safety, and

(e) to take into custody and carry before a Magistrate every person found in such place who appears to have been privy to the deposit, sale or manufacture or keeping of any such property, documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials knowing or having reasonable cause to suspect the said property to have been stolen or otherwise unlawfully obtained, or the said documents, seals, stamps, coins, instruments or materials to have been forged, falsified or counterfeited, or the said instruments or materials to have been or to be intended to be used for counterfeiting coin or stamps or for forging

(2) The provisions of this section with respect to—

(a) counterfeit coin,

(b) coin suspected to be counterfeit, and

(c) instruments or materials for counterfeiting coin, shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply respectively to—

(a) pieces of metal made in contravention of the Metal Tokens Act, 1889, or brought into British India in contravention of any notification for the time being in force under section 19 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878,

(b) pieces of metal suspected to have been so made or to have been so brought into British India or to be intended to be issued in contravention of the former of those Acts, and

(c) instruments or materials for making pieces of metal in contravention of that Act.

Notes.

1. Distinction between S. 93 and S. 98
Cr. P. C.—This Section (S. 93) is much wider than S. 98 and its language is very similar to that of S. 6 of the Burma Gambling Act, 1899 [L. B.
21]. While S. 98, Cr. P. C., contemplates the existence of a judicial proceeding in the course of which alone the Magistrate can issue a search-warrant, S. 93 does not require a criminal proceeding as a prerequisite for the issue of a search warrant [A. C. 1076]

2. Strict compliance with the provision enjoined—When a statute creates a spe-right, but certain formalities have to be complied with, antecedent to the exercise of that right, a strict observance of the formalities is essential to the enjoyment of that right—36 C 433

3. Notification under S. 19 of the Sea Customs Act 1878.—See Fair St George Gaz Notification 5 1 87

4. Warrant under S. 100 drawn up on form used under this Section with necessary alterations is legal. See 39 C 403 16 C N 136 20 C 17 (c) Chaitin 11 C N 836 S c also Note No 24 under S. 96 C P C

5. Right of private defence.—If there search warrant under S. 94 C. P. C., the search is not a legal search, and the occupiers of the house have a right of private defence in resisting the search—38 C 301.

6. For form.—See Sch. V, No 9

7. Erroneous issue of Search Warrant by Magistrate.—If any Magistrate not empowered by law to issue a search warrant under S. 94 C. P. C. erroneously in good faith does so, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground that he was not so empowered—S. 629 (a) C

99. When, in the execution of a search-warrant at any place beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued the same, any of the things found in such search is made, are found, such things, together with a list of the same prepared under the provisions hereinafter contained, shall be immediately taken before the Court issuing the warrant, unless such place is to the Magistrate having jurisdiction therein than to such Court, in which case the list and the things shall be immediately taken before such Magistrate, and, unless there be good cause to the contrary, such Magistrate shall make an order authorizing them to be taken to such Court.

Disposal of things found in such search beyond jurisdiction.

which search is made, are found, such things, together with a list of the same prepared under the provisions hereinafter contained, shall be immediately taken before the Court issuing the warrant, unless such place is to the Magistrate having jurisdiction therein than to such Court, in which case the list and the things shall be immediately taken before such Magistrate, and, unless there be good cause to the contrary, such Magistrate shall make an order authorizing them to be taken to such Court.

Notes.

Power to endorse a search warrant and to order delivery of the thing found is common to all P. C. Magistrates. See III c 9 reason to believe that any person is confined under such circumstances that the confinement amounts to an offence, he may issue a search-warrant, and the person to whom such warrant is directed may search for the person so confined; and such search shall be made in accordance therewith. If the person, if found, shall be immediately taken before a Magistrate, who shall make such order in the circumstances of the case seems proper.

Notes.

1. Duty of Magistrates.—When a Magistrate has an application before him containing the allegations that are required by the section, and asking him to issue a search warrant under it, it is incumbent on such Magistrate to satisfy himself that there is some foundation for the application, and that in order to enable him to so satisfy himself he would be acting within his powers in making an enquiry—31 P. R 1916

2. Enquiry under the section is judicial enquiry.—The enquiry made by a Magistrate under the section preliminary to the issue of a warrant is a judicial proceeding—31 P. R 1916 15 P 1091; (17) M. N. 191; 35 C 1075 Con G A 187. See Note No 8 under S. 96 C P C Supra

3. Order under S. 100 as to custody can only be made on an warrant being issued under the section.—Where although a warrant for the production of a boy was ordered, but no search warrant was issued, nor boy brought up in execution of such a warrant, and upon the materials on record, it is held whether the confinement (if any) amounted to an offence, an order directing the child to be given over to the complainant was set aside as it was not a proceeding under S. 100—20 Cr. 729 (C)

4. Complaint against husband.—In a case of a complaint being made against the husband that he was keeping his wife in confinement, a Magistrate can not make a summary order before disposing of the proceedings, he must hear both sides, and after making such order as may seem necessary, he should pass an order if he finds the confinement to be an offence, he should let the husband go, and warn the husband against interfering except through a Civil Court. If on the other hand, he arrives at the conclusion that

Practical Provisions relating to Searches

101. The provisions of sections, 74, 75, 77, 79, 82, 83 and 84 shall, so far as may be, apply to search-warrants issued under section 96, section 98 or section 100.

Direction, etc., of search warrants

Notes.

1. Application of S. 79 Cr. P. C. to search warrants issued under the Gambling Act of 1867.— Search warrants issued under Act III of 1867, are governed by those provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code which provide for the issue of warrants in general. Consequently a search warrant may be endorsed by a Police Officer, to whom it has been originally directed, to another who is not of a rank below that authorised under the Act to enter and search. 30 A 60

The section not applicable to warrants under Burma Gambling Act. Section 101 Cr. P. C. is not applicable to warrants issued under S. 6 of the Burma Gambling Act (I of 1899), and the Act itself contains no provision for endorsement of search warrants. Consequently a search by an officer to whom the warrant was not originally directed but endorsed by the officer named in the warrant is illegal. 21 Cr. 9 (L. B.). See 22 P. R. 1895

102. (1) Whenever any place liable to search or inspection under this Chapter is closed, any person residing in, or being in charge of such place shall, on demand of the officer or other person executing the warrant, allow him free ingress thereto, and afford all reasonable facilities for a search therein.

(2) If ingress into such place cannot be so obtained, the officer or other person executing the warrant may proceed in manner provided by section 48

(3) Where any person in or about such place is reasonably suspected of concealing about his person any article for which search should be made, such person may be searched. If such person is a woman, the directions of section 52 shall be observed.

Note.

S 102 (3) applies to searches made under Burma Gambling Act (I of 1899). S. 6 of the Act requires that all searches made under that Section shall be made in accordance with the terms of Subs (3) of S. 102 and of S. 103 Cr. P. C. [See 3 L. B. 229 (230) 4 L. B. 134 (136)] The presumption arising under S. 7 of the Act arises only when the searches are so conducted, but not otherwise [4 L. B. 134 (136)] See also 4 L. B. 213

Searches under the Opium Act.—S. 16 of the Opium Act (I of 1875) makes the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code applicable to all searches under Ss. 14 and 15 of the Act—See 4 L. B. 121 (122) 4 L. B. 213

Searches made under Subs. (3).—The person under search is entitled to a list of all things taken out of his possession—See S. 103 (1) below

103 (1) Before making a search under this Chapter, the officer or other person about to make Search to be made in presence of it shall call upon two or more respectable inhabitants of the locality in which the place to be searched is situate to attend and witness the search.

(2) The search shall be made in their presence, and a list of all things seized in the course of such search and of the places in which they are respectively found shall be prepared by such officer or other person and signed by such witnesses; but no person witnessing a search under this section shall be required to attend the Court as a witness of the search unless specially summoned by it

(3) The occupant of the place searched, or some person in his behalf, shall, in every instance, be permitted to attend during the search, and a copy of the list prepared under this section, signed by the said witnesses shall be delivered to such occupant or person at his request.

(4) When any person is searched under section 102, sub-section (3), a list of all things taken possession of all things taken possession of shall be prepared, and a copy therefore shall be delivered to such person at his request

Proposed amendments to the Section.—(1) In sub-section (1) of Section 103 of the said Code, after the words "attends the search," the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"and may, if necessary, issue an order in writing to them or any of them so to do"

(2) After sub-section (4) of the same section the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(5) Any person who, without reasonable cause, refuses or neglects to attend and witness a search under this section, when called upon to do so by and under a written, shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 187 of the Indian Penal Code."

Notes.

Interpretation of the Section.

1. Object of the Section. The intention of the Legislature in framing S. 103 Cr. P. C. beyond doubt seems to have been to ensure that searches are conducted with decency and order, and that no wrong doing, such as planting of articles by the Police in the house searched should take place. The regularity and proper conduct of the search is to be secured by two or more witnesses [4 L. B. 213 See 21 Cr. 742 (743) Pat]. The object of S. 103 Cr. P. C. in requiring that respectable inhabitants of the locality "should be called to witness the search is to ensure that false evidence may not be fabricated [31 Cr. 70 (L. B.)] The object is to afford a guarantee of fair dealing and the absence of collusion. See judgment of Robinson J. in 7 Bar T. 143 (F. B.) See 4 L. B. 229

2. Meaning of the word "respectable."—"Respectability in S. 103 means the same things as 'impeccability'."—Per Twomey J. [4 Bar T. 91 (F. B.) See also judgment of Robinson J. in 7 Bar T. 143 (F. B.)] Only those should be chosen as witnesses who can be reasonably relied on to secure the desired result, viz. prevention of the fabrication of evidence and decent and orderly conduct on the part of the officers conducting the search, and whose trustworthiness and ability towards the carrying out of the particular duty required of them should be felt. The intention of the Legislature was to exclude from the category of the inhabits those in whom confidence could not be felt and those against whom a reasonable suspicion arises that they may not carry out the duty required of them [4 L. B. 213] The importance apply to a search for a bottle of liquor by an Abkari Officer in a cart. B H C R 186-85.

14. Rules concerning the search-list.

- (1) Signature of witnesses—Under S. 103 Cr. P. C. unless the list of the things seized is signed by the witnesses mentioned in the section, the search-list would not be legal—4 L B 134
- (2) Addition to search-list—A police officer should not add any new items to a search-list

III. Miscellaneous.

15. Penalty for refusing to assist a police officer in conducting a search.

- (a) Refusal to sign search-list—Where a person, on requisition attended a search held under S. 103 Cr. P. C. and witnessed the search but refused to sign the search-list when duly prepared, held that he was not guilty of an offence under S. 187 I. P. C. as the signing of the search-list is an independent duty imposed on the witness, having no personal relation to the execution of the duty by the police officer.

26 M 419 (F.B.)

(b) Refusal to attend as search witness.

Failure to render assistance to an officer authorised by law to demand such assistance in making a search e.g.—to attend and witness when called upon, is an offence punishable under S. 187 I. P. C. 21 Cr 33 (M).

16. Resistance to illegal search.

A police officer in carrying out search under S. 103 Cr. P. C. is bound to call upon two or more respectable inhabitants of the locality to attend and witness the search; and if he omits to do so, a householder will be justified in closing his door and refusing an ingress into the house. 20 Cr 605 (A). Contra 19 M 349. Search after sunset—A Sub-Inspector, acting under S. 14 of the Opium Act (I of 1878), has no right to enter the premises after sunset. See 20 Cr 742 (Pat). But a mere ill-talents in the exercise of a right of search under the Opium Act is not in itself a sufficient ground for setting aside a conviction. [20 Cr 745 (Pat) Con 24 Cr 742 (Pat)]

17. Can articles found in the course of an illegal search be the basis of a conviction?

Even if the search is illegal, the occupier of the house searched can be convicted for unlawful possession of the articles recovered in the course of the search. [35 A 358; 20 Cr 745 (Pat) See 31 C 557 35 B 225 Contra 20 Cr 742 (Pat)]

18. Duty of prosecution to examine persons present at the search—The fact that the prosecution believed that some persons who were present at the search had formed an opinion unfavourable to the prosecution story, is no reason why these persons should not be called by the prosecution. The prosecution is in duty bound to call such persons, unless it is of opinion that they should misrepresent facts and would misstate what had happened [19 C.N. 438]. It is always open to the defence to challenge the evidence of search witnesses, and a court is not bound to accept as true their evidence merely because the formalities of the law with regard to the search and preparation of the search list had been observed [16 A J. 721 See 33 M 413]

- (3) Omission to prepare list fatal—In conducting searches the provisions of S. 103 (2) Cr. P. C. should be strictly complied with. An omission to prepare a list of articles found and to take signatures on it renders the search illegal—S. Bur T. 131.

sons present at the search—The fact that the prosecution believed that some persons who were present at the search had formed an opinion unfavourable to the prosecution story, is no reason why these persons should not be called by the prosecution. The prosecution is in duty bound to call such persons, unless it is of opinion that they should misrepresent facts and would misstate what had happened [19 C.N. 438]. It is always open to the defence to challenge the evidence of search witnesses, and a court is not bound to accept as true their evidence merely because the formalities of the law with regard to the search and preparation of the search list had been observed [16 A J. 721 See 33 M 413]

19. Evidentiary value of search-list.

A search-list is not evidence of the matter stated therein, within the meaning of S. 91 of the Evidence Act. It does not therefore exclude oral evidence of such matter [33 M. 413; 34 M. 24] (F. B.) Contra 2 Weir 47]. A search list not signed by witnesses is illegal [4 L B 144]

20. Oral evidence of things seized during the search is admissible.

When a search has been conducted under S. 103 Cr. P. C. other evidence than the search-list itself can be given regarding the things seized in the course of the search, and regarding the places in which they were respectively found. 34 M. 349 (F. B.) See 7 B H 45 (b3). See 5 S 31

Power to impound document, etc., produced.

104. Any Court may, if it thinks fit, impound any document or thing produced before it under this Code.

Notes.

1. General principles on which the section is based. When the Legislature empowers an Officer to delegate an authority to a certain person or persons, it necessarily implies that the original authority is such as is fully and completely in the Officer himself, but that it is necessary for the exigencies of business that it should be able to be delegated to persons acting under authority derived from him. H.B. 418
2. A Magistrate has power to himself conduct a search under S 6 of the Bombay Gambling Act (IV of 1887). See H.B. 418
3. The Scope of the Section. Having regard to the ordinary powers of a Magistrate as specified in the Third Schedule I, (8) and S 96 Cr. P. C., any Magistrate has in the circumstances stated in Ss 94 and 96, the power or authority to conduct, as such Magistrate, a search under the section — 9 C 953 (P. C.) [50 C 433, 6]

CHAPTER VIII.

OF SECURITY FOR KEEPING THE PEACE AND FOR GOOD BEHAVIOUR.

1. Security for keeping the Peace on Conviction.

106. (1) Whenever any person accused of rioting, assault or other offence involving a breach of the peace or of abetting the same, or of assembling armed man or taking other unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing the same, or any person accused of committing criminal intimidation, is convicted of such offence before a High Court, a Court of Session or the Court of a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class, and such Court is of opinion that it is necessary to require such person to execute a bond for keeping the peace, such Court may, at the time of passing sentence on such person, order him to execute a bond for a sum proportionate to his means, with or without sureties, for keeping the peace during such period, not exceeding three years, as it thinks fit to fix.

14. Rules concerning the search-list.

- (1) Signature of witnesses—Under S 103 Cr P C unless the list of the things seized is signed by the witnesses mentioned in the section, the search list would not be legal—4 L B 134.
- (2) Addition to search-list A police officer should not add any new items to a search-list after it has been signed under S 103 Cr P C, but the act would not invalidate the search especially when the irregularity is satisfactorily explained 7 L B 275.

- (3) Omission to prepare list fatal—In conducting searches the provisions of S. 103 (2) P C should be strictly complied with. An omission to prepare a list of articles found and to sign it renders the search illegal—8 T 131.

III. Miscellaneous.

15. Penalty for refusing to assist a police officer in conducting a search.

- (a) Refusal to sign search-list When a person on requisition attended a search held under S 103 Cr P C and witnessed the search but refused to sign the search list when duly required, hitho that he was not guilty of an offence under S 187 I P C. Notes.

1. General principles on which the section is based. When the Legislature empowers an Officer to delegate an authority to a certain act to another person it necessarily implies that the original authority took such act as fully and completely in the Officer himself, but that it is necessary for the exigencies of business that it should be done in the majority of cases by persons acting under authority derived from him. (H. B. 438)
2. A Magistrate has power to himself conduct a search under S. 6 of the Bombay Gambling Act (IV of 1887). See H. B. 438
3. The Scope of the Section. Having regard to the ordinary powers of a Magistrate as specified in the Third Schedule I (8) and S. 96 Cr. P. C., any Magistrate has in the circumstances stated in Ss. 94 and 96, the power or authority to conduct, as such Magistrate, a search under the section 39 C 953 (P. C.) [36 C 473, O]

- 4 Magistrate acting under the Section is protected. A Magistrate making a general search in view of an enquiry under this Code, acts in the discharge of his judicial functions and may therefore claim protection under Act XVIII of 1859 (An Act for the protection of Judicial Officers 39 C 953 (P. PART IV PREVENTION OF OFFENCES.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF SECURITY FOR KEEPING THE PEACE AND FOR GOOD BEHAVIOUR.

Security for keeping the Peace on Conviction

106. (1) Whenever any person accused of rioting, assault or other offence involving a breach of the peace, or of abetting the same, or of assembling armed man or taking other unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing the same, or any person accused of committing criminal intimidation, is convicted of such offence before a High Court, a Court of Session or the Court of a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class, and such Court is of opinion that it is necessary to require such person to execute a bond for keeping the peace, such Court may, at the time of passing sentence on such person, order him to execute a bond for a sum proportionate to his means, with or without sureties, for keeping the peace during such period, not exceeding three years, as it thinks fit to fix.

- 14 Subdivisional Magistrates.—A subdivisional Magistrate can act under this section, though he has 2nd class powers only. [37 A. 230] Subdivisional Magistrates dealing with a case under S. 341 cannot pass orders under this section, when the referring Magistrate has already convicted the accused. The proper course for the latter is to submit his opinion and the record of the case without passing any final order or sentence [11 Cr. 170 (C)]
- 15 2nd and 3rd Class Magistrates.—If a Magistrate of the second or third class be of opinion, that it is necessary for the accused in a case before him to be bound down under S. 100 Cr. P. C., he must refer the whole case to the proper authority for the latter to pass the sentence. It is not open to such Magistrate to pass any part of the sentence himself. 35 C. 1091. 21 C. 622. 11 Cr. 170 (C)
- 16 Only the Magistrate who convicts the accused can pass orders under S. 103 Cr. P. C.—35 C. 1091. 21 C. 622. 11 Cr. 170 (C). 22 P. R. 1971
- 17 A Bench of Honorary Presidency Magistrates—can act under the section. See S. 14 (2) Cr. P. C. 7 B. R. 833.
- 18 Bench of Honorary Magistrates in the mofassil—could not act under this section as enacted in the Code of 1872 [21 W. R. 12 S. 2 C. L. 319]; but under the present Code a Bench is competent to do so, if any of the members who compose it has first class powers.—Title 5. 17 Cr. P. C.
- 19 Proceedings of a Magistrate not empowered—are void. See S. 530 (C) Cr. P. C. 21 C. 622
- 20 Whether Period of Security can exceed six months in the case of Subdivisional Magistrate, 2nd class.—A Subdivisional Magistrate of the 2nd class can pass an order under S. 106 Cr. P. C. binding over a person convicted to keep the peace for a period exceeding six months. If the period exceeds 1 year S. 123 (2) applies. 37 A. 230

III. MEANING OF "INVOLVING."

21. The meaning. The words 'offences involving breach of peace' in S. 106 Cr. P. C. must be construed to mean an offence into which breach of peace necessarily enters as a constituting element [19 M. J. 66]. An offence merely provoking or likely to lead to a breach of the peace is not within the section. The offence must be one in which breach of the peace is a necessary ingredient. [11 C. 671. 30 C. 366. 30 C. 393. 21 M. 190. 26 M. 469. 20 Cr. 543 (B)]
- 22 Divergence of Judicial opinion.—The expression "involving a breach of the peace" is so illusive that it must of necessity attract different interpretations from different minds. To my thinking the words cover at any rate two classes of cases. • • • The first class of cases is where there actually has been a breach of the peace, (not where it has been intended or been likely to occur but where in fact it has occurred). The other class is where the definition of the offence involves a breach of the peace, as it does in one of the two classes of cases which occur under S. 504 I. P. C. [Per Hutton J. in 20 Cr. 543 (B)]
- 23 Difference of fact.—It has been held in M. T. 408, facts put in that the accused did acts involving a breach of the peace, an order cannot be passed if the offence of which he is convicted is "not one of which breach of peace is a necessary ingredient." But there is now a consensus of opinion in a large majority of cases that where the accused actually committed a breach of the peace [See e.g. 43 C. 671. 26 C. 376], or manifested by his conduct or acts an unmistakable intention to break the peace [See 90 C. 381], or, after taking steps to compass his crime by violence was prevented by circumstances over which he had no control from committing a breach of the peace—e.g.,—timely flight of the complainant [See 37 A. 771. 5 C. N. 270. See 31 C. 850], the section applies; although, the offence of which he is convicted, cannot strictly speaking, be said to be one 'involving a breach of the peace' within the meaning of the section of the Penal Code where it is defined '04) U. B. 14 (1) [See Note No 5 (1)—Object and application of the section, where all the rulings are collected]. In 30 C. 366. 26 M. 469. 64 P. R. 1857. See also 20 W. R. 57 offences which do not necessarily involve a breach of the peace but are merely likely to lead to it are held to be excluded by the section. This view is directly opposed to the former wide definition which has been adopted in 31 A. 771 [See also Cr. R. 13 of 8.5.05]. Viz. that the word "involve" connotes the inclusion not only of a necessary but also of a probable future, circumstance, antecedent condition or consequence" (Dissent also from 29 M. 190. 30 C. 63)

IV. WHEN OFFENCE NOT STRICTLY WITHIN PURVIEW MAY JUSTIFY ORDER.

24. House-trespass.—An order under S. 100 Cr. P. C. can be passed against a person convicted of house-trespass, if he committed it with the object of causing hurt.—7 C. N. 25 (26); 21 Cr. 255 (A). 8 L. R. 461. See (45) A. N. 301.
25. Criminal trespass.—A person convicted of criminal trespass can be ordered to give security under the section only when the Court finds that the intention of the accused in committing the trespass was to commit a breach of the peace

[20 W. R. 27, 7 W. R. 14, 7 C. N. 25] For where house-trespass was found, the trespass being connected with the object of having illicit intercourse with the complainant's wife [25 C. 628], even if intent to commit theft (4 L. R. 277) an offence under S. 106 Cr. P. C. is the substance.

[Note. Abdul Rahim J. in M. T. 408, however, refused to make an order, based upon a conviction under S. 414 I. P. C. though the fact showed that in committing the offence, the accused did not make any breach of the peace.]

26. Theft. A person is liable under S. 374 I. P. C. in case of house-trespass to commit an offence under S. 106 Cr. P. C. unless it is clearly found that force was employed or that arms or weapons were present. 20 C. 340, 8 C. N. 517 (519), 1 C. N. 196 (187), 7 C. J. 172, 20 M. 469, 4 N. P. 151, Rat 422, Rat 48, See 20 M. 48.

27. Unlawful Assembly. S. 140 Cr. P. C. applies to a conviction under S. 141 I. P. C. only when it is expressly found that force was employed or arms or weapons were present in committing the offence.

28. Hurt.—When there was no specification in the charge of a common intention to cause grievous hurt, and the conviction was finally only under S. 323 I. P. C., the Court held that "the conduct of the accused who entered the premises where their enemy was, used violence to him, cut and tore his ears and deprived him of his jewellery involved a breach of the peace in the wider sense of the expression. [19 M. 429 (M)] See also Rat 48, 7 N. P. 328, (76) A. N. 181]. See however, 4 N. P. 151 where it was held that the section "does not refer to offences affecting the human body. [Con. (76) A. VII. CRIMINAL INTIMIDATION.

42. Criminal intimidation within the meaning of the section.—The criminal intimidation specified in S 106 Cr. P. C is the offence specifically defined by S 303 I. P. C. A person convicted under S 143 I. P. C cannot be convicted merely because, intimidation by show of criminal force is the fourth and fifth parts of the definition in S 111 I. P. C. of the offence punishable under S. 143 I. P. C. 126 P. L. 1910
43. Scope of the term enlarged in the Code of 1898.—In the Code of 1882, the word "intimidation" was in consequence of the ruling in (1879) 2 A. 351 qualified by the phrase "by threatening injury to person or property." The words have been omitted in the Code of 1898 with the effect that the operation of the Section has been enlarged. Upon a conviction under S 506 I. P. C, S 106 Cr. P. C. is now applicable without any reservation. 8 C. N. 517.

43a. T-40. A. V.

VIII. INTENTION.

- 44 Intention means intention at the time of committing the offence.—An intention to commit a breach of the peace must be proved before a prison can be called upon to give security under S. 106 Cr. P. C. and the intention must have reference to the time of committing the offence of which he was convicted.—9 O C. 381 (384)
45. Finding of evident intention to commit breach, essential.—An order under S. 106 can be made only where there is an express finding that in doing the acts on which the conviction is based, the accused either committed a breach of the peace or had an evident intention of committing the same. 26 C. 578 43 C. 671 11 C. N. 176
46. Provoking others to commit a breach.—Where the accused (Mahomedans) were proved to have instigated others to beat the tanton in front of a Hindu temple—an act likely to lead to a breach of the peace—held—that the instigation would not in itself amount to “taking unlawful measures with the evident intention of committing a breach of the peace” within the meaning of the section.

47. Reasonable probability of breach taking place must be proved.—It is not sufficient to prove an intention to commit a breach of the peace; it must be shown that there was a reasonable probability of breach occurring regard being had to the conduct of the accused [20 W. R. 37-7 W. R. 14]. If the likelihood is strong on proof of an intention to use force, the Court may act under s. 106 Cr. 131 P. C. with reference to a conviction under s. 143 P. C. [11 C. S. 176].

IX. PROCEDURE.

(1). Conditions precedent to order.

48. (a) Conviction.—A finding that the accused is guilty of criminal intimidation (or other offence specified in the section) is not sufficient, unless there is conviction also for that offence. 8 C N 517. 8 C N CCN [See—(1) Object and application (3)]
49. (b) Clear finding of facts making the section applicable.—When a person is convicted of offences which do not in themselves and apart from any other incidents, come within the terms of S 306, it is not necessary to find that the accused was guilty of the offence which is the basis of the conviction. The finding is sufficient. 26 C 576. 517 (518). 40 C 100 C

XII. APPEAL, REFERENCE, ETC.

(1) General rules.

94. No appeal from order under S 106 Cr. P C No appeal lies from an order under S 106 Cr P C [2 Weir 104] But where an appeal lies from the order of conviction for the substantive offence under S. 107 or 108 Cr. P. C the matter may be reopened (3 O C 101) as a consequential order within the meaning of S 123 (d) [ibid]

- 95 Order under S 106 (3) can be made by the District Magistrate only when sitting as appellate Court District

Magistrate while considering an application for enforcement of the sentence as to the giving of the case as a court of appeal has no jurisdiction to order the accused to keep the peace under S. 100, 106 A & 207.

(2) Change of Law

- 90 The Code of 1872 did not expressly authorize Appellate Courts to pass orders under the Section in 4 A 212 (FB) it was held that a District Magistrate while exercising the powers of an appellate court is expected to require the appellant to give security under this Section. The decision was dissented from in a large number of cases. 144 (84) A N 71 (10) A N 170 (10) A N 201 16 C 779 (1881) 1 M J 252 (1894) 17 A 67 (1896) Est 100 (1897) In 1908 the law was made conformable to 4 A 212 (FB) [1st Sub. (3)] and the contrary decisions above were superseded.

(3). Limit of Appellate Court's power under Subs (3).

- 97 An Appellate Court's powers are not limited merely to what the lower court could and should have done. It is competent to pass an order under S. 100 Cr. P. C. in a case in which the lower court was not empowered by law to make an order under the section. The words "under the section" in Subs (3) have reference to the powers given by the section and not to the Courts by which those powers are in the first instance exercised.

(4). Powers of Appellate Courts.

- 101 (4) It cannot, after acquitting on appeal, order that the bond shall be maintained—95) A N 141

[Note.—Order for security abates on acquittal—See 7 N P 475]

(5) Miscellaneous.

- 102 (a) Appellate Court includes Courts other than the High Courts—21 P. R. 1905
- 103 Order under Sub (3) not an enhancement of sentence.—The exercise by appellant Courts of the power given by Cl (3) requiring Appellate to furnish security is not an enhancement of sentence—21 P R 1905 20 Cr 303 (A); 20 Cr. 760 (N)
104. Subs (3) applies only when there is substantive sentence.—The provisions of S 100 (1) can be invoked only when there has been awarded a substantive sentence on conviction for one of the offences specified in the section—21 B 53
105. Imprisonment in default not a part of the sentence.—Imprisonment in default of security cannot be taken as part of the sentence for the purposes of appeal—7 O C 334

107. (1) Whenever a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class is informed that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquillity or to do any wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace, or disturb the public tranquillity, the Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with or without sureties for keeping the peace for such period not exceeding one year as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

(2) Proceedings shall not be taken under this section unless either the person informed against or the place where the breach of the peace or disturbance is apprehended, is within the local limits of such Magistrate's jurisdiction, and no proceedings shall be taken before any Magistrate other than a Chief Presidency or District Magistrate, unless both the person informed against and the place where the breach of the peace or disturbance is apprehended, are within the local limits of the Magistrate's jurisdiction.

(3) When any Magistrate not empowered to proceed under sub-section (1) has reason to believe that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquillity or to do any wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquillity, and that such breach of the peace or disturbance cannot be prevented otherwise than by detaining such person in custody, such Magistrate may, after recording his reasons, issue a warrant for his arrest if he is not already in custody or before the Court, and may send him before a Magistrate empowered to deal with the case, together with a copy of his reasons.

(4) A Magistrate before whom a person is sent under this section may in his discretion detain such person in custody until the completion of the inquiry hereinafter prescribed.

Proposed amendments to the Section—In sub-section (4) of section 107 of the said Code, for the words "this section" the words figure and sign "sub-section (3)" shall be substituted, and for the words "until the completion of the inquiry hereinafter prescribed" the words "pending further action by himself under this Chapter" shall be substituted

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) The object of the section.

1. Proceedings under the section are intended to be only precautionary—The object is the prevention and not the punishment of crime. It should not be used for requiring securities to an amount which may prevent the person bound down from finding the same. The punishment for past conduct is not intended; the object is the prevention of acts leading to a breach of the peace in future. See 11 C. N. 898, 31 C. 350; 11 C. N. 223, 11 A. J. 769, 36 M. 315

Section compared with Ss. 106, 110, 144 and 145 Cr. P. C. See "Allied Sections."

2. The object of the section is to prevent regular trials under the section would very seriously prejudice the accused in their defence. 9 C. N. 898; See 27 C. 781.

- 4 The object is not to help one party at the expense of another—Proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C. are only intended for the security of public peace and not for the purpose of enabling one of the two contending parties to help themselves to recover or retain possession of immovable property after having their adversary's hands tied down by an order under that section—25 C. 798, 3 C. N. 463. See 144 P. L. 1917.

(2). Infringement of legal right should be avoided.

and not to take proceedings under the section 9 C. N. 898. Con 19 Cr. 246 (Pat)

3. Order under the Section in expedient where regular trial is contemplated. An order incapable of being enforced owing to the exercise of such a jurisdiction and where the breach of peace apprehended by the Magistrate is a likely result of the enforcement of his legal right by a party in a legal way and the illegal denial of the corresponding obligation of the other party, the Magistrate should not bind down the party who has the legal right in him—34 C 935 See 6 B 192, 20 Cr. 194 (Pat) 16 A J 279, 21 Cr 235 (Pat) 21 Cr. 347 (A)

6. Recognisance should not be taken from one person to prevent breach by another—It is illegal and contrary to the provisions of the section to take recognisance from one person to prevent another from committing a breach of the peace [17 W R 54 4 P R 1912] It is not the intention of the Legislature that a person should be prevented by a Magistrate from exercising his legal rights in a lawful manner, merely because another person would be likely to commit a breach of the peace if he did so [15 P R 1902 (F B.) 34 C 935 12 C N 703 19 W R. 17 3 C L 280 17 W R 54 32 A 571 6 A 26 (F B.) 37 A 33 16 A J 270 6 B R 802 15 Cr. 461 (M) 22 M J 251 6 M 203 (F B.) (16) 2 U B 157 O S 77 4 P R 1912 21 P R 1885 54 P R 1887 See "(8) Wrongful Act"

(3) Only a person likely to disturb peace can be bound down.

7. Before a person is bound over to keep the peace, it must be shown that he is himself likely to commit a breach of the peace or do a wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace or disturb public tranquillity—7 A J 1161 (16) 2 U B 157 See 7 A J 649 9 A 452 37 A 33. 16 A J 279 195 P L 1912 4 P R 1912. 54 P R. 1887 10 B L 441 12 C N 703 32 A 571: 6 M 203

Note—Proceeding should not be initiated against a person not likely to commit a breach of peace simply because other persons are likely to do so in his interest—[17 W R 54] A non-resident Zemindar cannot be bound down merely because his local agents are committing acts likely to cause a breach of the peace [10 C L 430] But if it is shown that the person while keeping himself in the back ground is making preparations for the enforcement of a claim likely to be fought over by armed forces on both sides through a servant who is continually armed, he can be bound down [1 P J 361]

8. Party opposing exercise of lawful right should be bound down—Where no doubt exists, concerning the respective rights and obligations of the parties the magistrate should bind down the party in the wrong. The infringement of a legal right in a person by another should never be encouraged—34 C 935: 22 M J 271 See 3 C N 164 20 Cr. 529 (Pat)

(4) Application of the section.

9. The section applies when violence is directed against certain person or persons only.—When all that the evidence discloses is that a certain person might commit a breach of the peace by using violence against certain person or persons and not the community as a whole, action should be taken under S. 107 Cr. P. C. and not under S 110 Cr. P. C.—27 A 92.
10. Change in the Law. Section 107 of the Act X of 1882 (Cr. P. C.) did not make one of the objects of the section the mere disturbance of public tranquillity. These words were added in the present Code and they are very important words. A person bound over may be a person who is not likely to commit a breach of the peace and still is likely to disturb the public tranquillity—14 A. J. 430.
11. Power discretionary.—The power of taking action under this section is a discretionary power—2 Weir 51 S 33 C 117
12. Party opposing wrongful act of aggression should not be bound down.—Where certain persons who attempted to do bada puja on a waste land were not entitled to perform it and the persons who opposed the act, acted properly and within their rights, the order of magistrate binding down the latter was held to be illegal—3 C. N. 463.
13. Prevention of disturbances during pendency of Proceedings.—The Code of Criminal Procedure as it stands at present, does not provide any obvious remedy for the prevention of disturbances during the pendency of the proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—43 C 277

[Note—But See, S. 114, proviso.]

II. INFORMATION.

- (1) Information on which a Magistrate may act.

14. Nature of information required—Information of the kind mentioned in S 107 Cr P. C.

[Note.]—e.g.—the allegation that the accused have committed "discrete acts of oppression" is too vague to justify proceedings 7 C N 32 See 16 P R. 1888, 6 A 211

15. Information not setting out definite acts.—It may well be that all the information which a Magistrate receives is, that there will be a breach of the public peace without any information as to the acts intended to be committed—no from a motive as 67.

16. Sufficiency of information.—Sufficiency of an information is a matter for the Magistrate to determine. [8 W. R. 79, 7 Bur 116] He is justified in taking action on any information which he thinks credible. [22 W R 79] It is not necessary to call witnesses in support of an information laid before a Magistrate previous to issuing a summons to show cause under the section [11 W R 6.]

17. Information must refer to acts in present contemplation.—The act of which information is given, and in respect of which security is required, must be an act which is shown to be in contemplation at the time, the information is given, and not merely one which may be apprehended on account of the past misdeeds of the same kind on the part of the accused. [2 Weir 19 (37-40) P R 15. See however 19 Cr 226 (C)]

[Note. "It may well be that though there were no actual overt acts on the part of the accused during the six months preceding the commencement of the trial there might still be a likelihood etc.—19 Cr 226 (C)"]

18. Information may be of hear-say nature. The information to be required by a Magistrate before issuing an order under s. 112 Cr P C may to some extent be of a hearsay and general description. [6 A 132]

[Note. But an order cannot be based on hearsay evidence. [21 Cr 50 (N). See 6 A 132]

(2) Reports of Police Officers, complainants, etc.

19. Reports of Police Officers. A Police report in itself may be sufficient information on which a Magistrate may issue a summons but it is in no sense, evidence on which the final order can be based. [11 L 46 (F. B.) 10 W. R. 55. See 21 W R 25] But a vague Police report that a person is quarrelsome, headstrong and continuations without allegations of specific conduct on the part of the accused cannot be acted on. [10 W R 41. See 21 P R 1885] Where however the accused has accurate apprehension of what the information is, a preliminary order based on a Police report containing very scanty and indefinite information was upheld. [14 A J. 430]

[Note. Duty of the Police.—Where it appears that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace &c., it is the duty of the Police to lay information before the Magistrate having jurisdiction. In laying such information the Police should carefully set out the evidence on which they rely, or the circumstances leading to the information. C P Pol Man I 55]

20. Complainants.—A statement by a complainant that he expected the defendant at any time to make an attempt on his life and property is sufficient, if believed. [7 W R 30. See 17 W R 37] But a petition unsupported by a formal complaint or statement on oath and declared by the Police to be false is not credible information within the meaning of the section. [8 W R 65]

21. Report by Subordinate Magistrate.—The power of taking action under s. 107 Cr P C is a discretionary power, and there is nothing irregular in the Magistrate calling for a report from a Subordinate Magistrate before issuing notice under s. 112 Cr P C, especially, if he doubts whether the information before him is reliable. [2 Weir 51] Such a report is "credible information" which will justify the issue of a notice to show cause. [2 M 11 219 8 B H (C C) 162 6 B. H. (C C) 1 (5).

10 W R 11] But it cannot, unsupported by other evidence, form a sufficient ground for final adjunction. [6 B H (C C) 1. 6 B H. (C. C.) 105]

(3) Extra-judicial information.

22. Extra-judicial information and knowledge. Conversations out of Court with persons, however respectable, are not legal or proper materials upon which a Magistrate should adopt proceedings under this section. [6 A. 132 (136). See 3 Shome 27] He cannot rely on the information derived in a case of rioting in which the accused was tried but acquitted. [37 A. 30]. He possesses knowledge of certain facts which he obtains from sources outside the record, he should not base his judgment upon the facts but should base it upon evidence relevant to the case. [14 A. J. 769] A Magistrate cannot refer to confidential papers in his possession or import his outside knowledge into the case. [37 A. 34].

(4) Information forming subject of a previous enquiry.

23. In initiating proceedings under s. 107 Cr. P. C. A Magistrate should not rely upon facts and information which formed the subject of a previous enquiry and in which the accused were discharged. The same facts cannot form the subject of repeated proceedings either under the Penal Code or under the Criminal Procedure Code.—[41 M. 246 36 M 315. See 37 A 30].
24. Substance of information should be set out in the notice.—See (6) Notice (b2)

(5) Credible information.

25. What is credible information.—(a) Report by Subordinate Magistrate.—See No 21 Above (b) Report of a Head Constable.—10 W. R. 41 (c) Reports of Police Officers.—See No 19 above (d) Statement of complainant, that the accused might at any time make an attempt on person or property. [7 W R 30. See 2 N. P. 461; 20 W R 18]. (e) Information contained in the record of a case in which the person proceeded against was charged with an offence and acquitted.—[10 W. R. 1 (See 37 A 30)]

(6) What is not credible information.

26. What is not credible information.—(a) Statement by a private person unsupported by oath or solemn affirmation.—3 B H (C. C.) 1. (b) Petition without formal complaint and deposition on solemn affirmation. [8 W. R 85] (c) Police report recommending proceeding under s. 110 Cr P C. [184] A N. 54] (d) Extra-judicial information. [See No 22 above] (e) Evidence of a witness in the course of a trial for rioting showing that he himself was one of the rioters. [5 M. 380] (f) Vague information that the accused have committed diverse acts of oppression. [7 C. N. 22; 16 P. R. 1888-6 A. 214] (g) An unproved charge of false imprisonment. [6 W. R. 1].

III. JURISDICTION—LOCAL LIMITS.

27 Permanent residence of accused within local limits not necessary—Nothing is said and no language is used in the Section bearing upon the question of residence at all. The Magistrate has power to deal with the accused, if he happens to be within the local limits of his jurisdiction at the time of the initiation of proceedings, no matter whether he is a permanent resident therein or merely a casual visitor [See 14 A J 1974 which adopts the principle laid down in 36 M 96—See 24 C 344-14 B. R. 884 (on 27 C 993]

28. Person residing outside the limits cannot be proceeded against—A person who has already left the jurisdiction of the Magistrate before the notice is issued cannot be bound down by him [See 14 B R 889] It is altogether ultra vires to call upon a person residing beyond the Magistrate's jurisdiction to give security against breach of the peace within his jurisdiction [9 A 26 (FB) 14 A 49 24 B 32 (35) 11 C 737 (738)-12 C 133 (135)]

29 Jurisdiction derived from a superior Magistrate—Where a proceeding under S 107 has been properly initiated by the District Magistrate or by a Magistrate empowered under Subs (1) and (2), the District Magistrate may transfer the proceeding to a first class Magistrate or a Subdivisional Magistrate although the latter has no local jurisdiction over the accused within the meaning of Subs (2) [See—31 C 350 (354) 27 C J 314 24 A 751 (707) S 2 See also 29 C 389 and 10 C N 1005 (1008) 37 A 23 Contra—41 M 216 13 C N. 550] This rule does not apply when the transfer takes place before the proceedings are legally initiated. A District Magistrate without recording any opinion as to likelihood of a breach of the peace transferred the case to a subordinate Magistrate or merely directed a subordinate Magistrate to draw up a proceeding against a person residing out of the latter's jurisdiction—held that his order was illegal. He ought to have tried the case himself and brought the proceedings to a conclusion—41 M 216 13 C N. 380 Contra—

19 Cr. 206 (C) where the District Magistrate "sanctioned the proceedings"]

[Note—In 13 C N. 340 and 41 M. 216 the power of transfer after initiation is not recognised]

30. First class Magistrate at the Headquarters—Under S 12 Cr. P. C. unless the powers of Magistrate have been restricted to certain local areas, he has jurisdiction over the entire District. [29 C. 389; See 10 C. N. 1005 (1008)]

31. Enforced residence—Enforced residence of the accused is arrested outside the jurisdiction and brought up in police custody within it cannot entitle the Magistrate to act under the section [(41) A N. 85]

[Note—There is a great divergence of judicial opinion on this point—See notes under S 11 infra]

32 Chief Presidency Magistrates and District Magistrates—(1) Under the provisions of Subs. (2), a Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate has power to proceed against a person, who, residing beyond the limits of the Magistrate's jurisdiction, threatens breach of the peace within such limits [11 C. 737 and 12 C. 133 are obsolete]

(2) "As this section stood, proceedings could not be taken against a person outside the jurisdiction, but as such extended power requires careful exercise, we have provided that the power of taking action in such cases shall only be exercised by a Chief Presidency or District Magistrate" (See Comm Report)

33 On Transfer by High Court—District Magistrate cannot make over case to 2nd class Magistrate—Where the High Court transferred a case instituted by a First Class Magistrate to the District Magistrate with instruction to make it over to some other Magistrate subordinate to him and competent to try the case—Held, that the District Magistrate has no authority to make over the case to the file of a 2nd class Magistrate—37 A. 20

IV. JURISDICTION—JURIDICAL.

Jurisdiction under Chapter XII no bar to action under this section.

34 (a) S 145 Cr P C—The fact that there is a dispute concerning land likely to cause a breach of the peace does not deprive a Magistrate of jurisdiction under S 107 Cr P C when he is informed that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb public tranquillity or to do any wrongful act which may probably occasion a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquillity—29 C 170 (FB) - 32 C 946, 9 C N 751 7 C N 746, 31 A 419, 9 A J. 582, 9 A J. 693, 24 A 400 16 Cr 211 (M), 26 M 471 24 M 364 See King v. Justice of Leicestershire 7 Rand C. 12 C N 506—Contra 35 C 117 25 C 559 7 C N 142 - 7 C N 29 6 C N. 884 - 3 C N 247 - 25 A 537

Note—The only ground on which proceedings under S 107 Cr. P. C. can be preferred to those under S 145 Cr. P. C. is that the claim to possession by one of the parties is not bona fide 1 Pat W 544.

35 (b) S 147 Cr. P. C—The jurisdiction vesting in Magistrates under S 147 Cr P C does not necessarily oust the jurisdiction vesting in them under S. 107 Cr. P. C. : 2 Weir 50 : See above

36 Jurisdiction under S. 144 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate has a jurisdiction to proceed either under S 144 Cr P. C. or S 107 Cr. P. C.—26 M 471 32 C. 966

37. European British Subject.

When a proceeding under S 107 Cr. P. C. is instituted against a European British Subject, his case falls within the purview of S 443 Cr P. C. and he is entitled to claim that he should be tried by a Justice of the Peace or a District Magistrate or Presidency Magistrate provided that the Justice of the Peace is a Magistrate of the first class and a European British Subject. 20 C 167

38. Power to proceed under Subs (3).—The power to proceed under Subs (3) ought to be used with the greatest caution. The discretion of the Magistrate is very much limited by the language "has reason to believe" as distinguished from "is informed" in Subs (1). The question is not whether there was belief, but whether there was reason to believe and not merely to suspect.—1 R 472.

[Note.—For definition of "reason to believe" See S 261, P C

39. Jurisdiction not affected by pendency of Civil proceedings.

- (1) The fact that both the parties have applied to the Land Registration Court for registration of their names as proprietors of an estate, will not necessarily oust the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to proceed under S 107 Cr P C against one of them when it appears that the latter was out of possession and was seeking to obtain possession by unlawful means which were likely to cause a breach of the peace.—11 C N 121
- (2) The mere fact that a dar patnadar had brought a suit to set aside a sale held under Reg VIII of 1849, where everything had been done by the Revenue

Authorities and Zemindar to give possession to the purchaser of the patni-Taluk, would not prevent a Magistrate from binding down the dar patnadar who set out in continuing to collect rents was likely to cause a breach of the peace. 9 C N 702.

40. Enquiry started by predecessor.—A Magistrate has jurisdiction to carry on the proceedings started by his predecessor who was transferred after examining a few of the prosecution witnesses subject to the defendant's right to ask for the resuming and rehearing of such witnesses. 1 C L 452

41. Conditions precedent to exercise of jurisdiction.—See (5) Proceedings (44)

42. Jurisdiction derived from superior Magistrate.—See (3) Jurisdiction (29)

43. Jurisdiction of Subordinate Magistrate to start fresh proceedings on a proceeding already started by a superior Magistrate being referred to "for disposal." On the application of the complainant, a Subdivisional Officer after calling for and perusing the Police report instituted proceedings under S 107 Cr P C, against one only out of several persons and the Magistrate had jurisdiction to try the persons named in the Police report. 1 Pat, W. 610. See 29 C 389

V PROCEEDINGS.

(1) Condition precedent to institution of proceeding or preliminary order.

44. (a) Likelihood of breach of the peace.—The law requires that in order to justify institution of proceedings under the section there must be credible information that the persons proceeded against are likely to commit a breach of the peace or to disturb public tranquillity or to do any wrongful act that may occasion a breach of the peace or disturb public tranquillity. In the absence of any of these elements an order is entirely without jurisdiction.—11 A J 769 14 Cr 238 (1). 22 W R 79 24 W R 21 17 W R 35 3 C L 72 21 P R 1888 21 Cr 453 (Pat) 7 C P 9 See 6 B R 862 32 A 571 115 P L 1903 126 P L 1911 16 A J 279 7 N P 233

[Note.—But proceedings may be initiated on any information satisfactory to the Magistrate.—7 Bur 116]

45. (a) Specific information must be given.—There must be specific information that the persons named in the complaint are likely to commit a breach of the peace or to disturb public tranquillity or to do any wrongful act that may occasion a breach of the peace or disturb public tranquillity. In the absence of any of these elements an order is entirely without jurisdiction.—11 A J 769 14 Cr 238 (1). 22 W R 79 24 W R 21 17 W R 35 3 C L 72 21 P R 1888 21 Cr 453 (Pat) 7 C P 9 See 6 B R 862 32 A 571 115 P L 1903 126 P L 1911 16 A J 279 7 N P 233 part of the accused from which a reasonable and immediate inference could be drawn that the accused were likely to commit a breach of the peace [21 P R 1888]. Proceeding cannot be initiated on the mere fact that there has been for sometime past, a series of disputes, litigation and high feeling between the parties, in the absence of a danger of a breach of the peace [14 A. J 769], or the possibility of the occurrence of the disturbance (where no likelihood of a disturbance is established) [14 Cr. 238 (A) See 5 C J 447] or merely because

A police report that a person is "quarrelsome, headstrong and contumacious" is insufficient foundation for a preliminary order [21 P. R 1888 See 21 Cr 571 (P)]

46. (c) The likelihood of breach of peace must not be due to exercise of lawful rights in a lawful manner.—See (1) Object etc (5) and (6)
47. (d) The party to be proceeded against must be himself likely to commit breach. See (1) Object etc (7)
48. (e) Breach of peace must be imminent.—See (7) Likelihood (72)

49. (f) The party to be proceeded against must be a person of legal age. See (1) Object etc (5) and (6)

(2) The contents of the preliminary order.

50. It should appear on the face of the preliminary order that the Magistrate received credible information about a likelihood of breach of the peace [6 W R 93]. The accused is entitled to notice of the particular conduct complained against [21 W R 6]. The substance of the information on which action is taken must be set forth [1 N P. 101, 1 N P. 304 15 W R 13 6 A 214 See 41 M 295]

(3) Jurisdiction of magistrate to draw up fresh proceedings on transfer.

51. Where a case instituted by a subdivisional Magistrate has been transferred to a Magistrate not having local jurisdiction but stationed at District headquarters, the latter has jurisdiction, upon the former proceedings being found defective, to draw up fresh proceedings on the same information.

See—(4) Jurisdiction—Juridical (No 43)

(4) Repeated proceedings on same facts.

52. It would be improper to vex a party repeatedly with proceedings under Chapter VIII on the same facts which were found insufficient to justify an order for security in a previous proceeding. 36 M 315 41 M 245

Note—Second recognizance on same facts. Where a matter in respect of which in the security to keep the peace is required is the same as that before the Magistrate on the first occasion, the case can be dealt with only under S. 290 of the Code of 1861. 7 W R 25 7 W R 23 See 18 W R 57

(5) Pendency of Civil proceedings no bar to initiation.

53. See (4) Jurisdiction—Juridical. [No 39]

(6) Nature of the proceeding.

54.

order in a criminal trial and the proceedings are proceedings in a criminal matter or cause within the meaning of S. 15 Letters Patent [27 M 510]

55. Is the person proceeded against an accused person?

There is a great conflict of rulings as to whether a party against whom proceedings under S. 17 Cr. P. C. are instituted is in the position of accused person as will appear from the rulings and Cases quoted below:—

Pro.—36 C 163; 28 C 709; 27 C. 676, 4 C. L. 4 21 A. 107; 24 A. 118 (150); 2 L B 50 15 P. 1000; 21 P. R. 1007 [0], 33 P. R. 1605 [1 16 B 461, 35 B 301.

56. Is the proceeding a criminal case within the meaning of S. 528 Cr. P. C.?

See—(14) Transfer, (215).

(7) Miscellaneous.

57. Simultaneous proceedings under S. 1 and 107 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate having passed an order under S. 107 Cr. P. C. has jurisdiction under S. 1

under S. 150 (P) Cr. 37 (C)

58. Simultaneous proceedings under S. 1 and 107 Cr. P. C.—Where on the application of the petitioners for the assistance of the Magistrate in respect of the possession of a piece of land, injunction was issued under S. 144 Cr. P. C. at the same time petitioners were called up to furnish security under S. 107—held—that procedure was bad, as in effect, it debarr'd petitioners from giving evidence of possession. 19 Cr. 367 (C)

Can a subordinate Court be directed initiate proceedings?

59. The power of taking action under this section is a discretionary power [2 Weir 51; 35 C 117]. District Magistrate cannot direct a subordinate Magistrate to take action under S. 107 Cr. P. C. also 24 C 391; 1 Pat. W. 258. The High Court direct a Magistrate to initiate proceedings on the section [3 A. 545 (F B)]

60. Jurisdiction to drop proceedings—Is competent to a Magistrate holding enquiry on S. 107 Cr. P. C. to drop proceedings under 1 section and to proceed under S. 145 Cr. P. C. Cr. 712 (Pat); See 4 Pat W 195

VI. NOTICE.

(1). Procedure.

61. (I) Form etc.

Notice should be in form no 12, Sch. V and accompanied by a copy of the preliminary order under S. 112 Cr. P. C. Omission to follow this procedure is illegal. 9 Cr. 179 (A) 10 C. L. 130 See 14 A. 1 794

(2) Contents of the Notice.

62. (i) The substance of the information received should be set forth—3 N. P. 106, 1 N. P. 304; 15 W. R. 13 6 A 214 See 41 M 295.

63. (b) The accused should be called upon show cause—Ibid

64. (c) Should distinctly specify the amount & nature of the security required and the time for which it is to run—20 W. R. 36, 15 W. R. 3 N. P. 96 1 N. P. 304 But See S. C. 724

65. (d) The particular conduct of the accused which the magistrate thinks is likely to lead to a breach of the peace etc. should be mentioned [21 W. R. 6 See 6 A 26 (F.B.)] The fact that Magistrate has received credible information that the accused is likely to commit a breach the peace must appear on the face of the notice [6 W. R. 101]. The wording of the notice should not be vague. It should state when the alleged threats were uttered, who are the persons who are threatened and when the apprehension of a breach of the peace arose [41 M. 245].

66. (c) Sufficient time to show cause must be given.—20 W. R. 14. 22 W. R. 70.

(3) Miscellaneous.

67. Separate summonses should be issued on each accused. 7 N. P. 91.
68. What is not a valid Summons.—A summons which merely sets out that the person summoned is charged with an offence under the Section and requires his personal attendance in court, but which does not state any of the matters which the law requires to be set out in a summons under this Section, is not a valid summons. 10 C. L. 430.

69. Proceedings commence only on issue of notice. A Magistrate cannot be said to have taken proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C. until he issues notice to the person charged to show cause why he should not be proceeded against under the Section. 11 M. 246.
70. Final order without previous issue of notice is illegal.—See (11) Final order (155).
71. Notice issued under S. 107 Cr. P. C. followed by an order under S. 110 is illegal. See (15) Allied Sections (216).

VII. LIKELIHOOD OF A BREACH OF THE PEACE.

(1) Meaning of "Likelihood."

72. Likelihood means with reference to this Section a reasonable probability and not merely a fair possibility. [20 W. R. 57. See 2 Weir 40.] It is not enough to show that there is great probability of a breach of the peace ensuing. It must further be shown that the party is likely to do illegal acts of violence. [6 B. R. 842.] Where all that the evidence established was that owing to a series of disputes, feeling was running very high between the parties, and the Magistrate considering that there was a probability of a breach of the peace, made an order under S. 107—held—that there was no likelihood of a breach of the peace within the meaning of the section. [14 A. J. 769. See 38 A. 468. 37 A. 33. 7 A. J. 1161.] It must appear to the Magistrate that a breach of the peace is imminent and cannot be prevented without taking action under this section. [7 N. P. 233.] To justify an order under the section, the Magistrate must believe that the person against whom he makes the order is about to commit a breach of the peace, etc. [32 A. 571.] The probability must be strong and reasonable. [115 P. L. 1903. 24 W. R. 10. 3 J. G. 37.] A Magistrate cannot act on a merely vague apprehension. [22 M. J. 251. 1 A. J. 418.] There must be a present danger and not merely one which may occur in the future. [2 Weir 49. 26 A. 190. 2 N. P. 233. 6 B. R. 663. 7 C. L. 352.]

(2). Likelihood should not be inferred merely from past misconduct or enmity between the parties.

73. See: (c) Proceeding.—See also 26 A. 190. 2 Weir 49. 6 B. R. 663. 1 A. J. 418. 126 P. L. 1911.

(3). Likelihood after crisis has passed.

74. An order would not be justified when all fear of a breach of the peace passes away before it is passed. [See 31 P. W. 1907. 9 M. T. 271.] But security should be taken in a case where, after the occasion on which ill feeling between the parties came to a head, had passed without any actual disturbance, there still remained the probability of a recurrence of it in the near future in fact at any moment. [8 A. J. 1050.] Where, however, the occasion of such ill feeling was an annually recurring festival, which had passed away without any disturbance, an order cannot be made with a view to prevent disturbance at the next recurrence of the festival. [26 A. 190. See 6 B. R. 663.] But the fact that a breach of the peace was averted by the precautionary measures taken by the authorities is no ground for discharge of a person from liability to be bound over to keep the peace.—[31 C. 370].

75. Where there is nothing to show that the person called upon to furnish security was himself likely, at the time the proceedings are taken, to commit a breach of the peace or cause a disturbance of public tranquillity, he may not be bound over merely on the ground that he was a wealthy and influential member of a party which was on terms of enmity with another party of the village.—7 A. J. 1161.—See (1) Object (7) and 32 A. 571. 3 C. L. 280.

76. See (1) Object etc. (7) and (9).

G. Miscellaneous.

77. Likelihood must be established by legal evidence.—15 W. R. 42. See (1) Evidence and Witnesses (134).
78. Likelihood condition precedent to initiation of proceedings.—24 W. R. 23. See (7) Proceedings (44).
79. Overt acts as evidence of 'likelihood'.—Threats of violence are sufficient to indicate an intention to commit a breach of the peace, [31 C. 370. See 9 M. T. 271.] A hoarse speech may be likely to cause a breach, but it will not justify order, when the fear of a breach of the peace has passed away. [31 P. W. 1907.] A likelihood of a breach of the peace is not necessarily absent, because no overt act within six months of the proceeding has been established [19 Cr 246 (C)]. Where the accused were alleged to have said "If the suit went on we would plant a flag on the Nirkottu and build a mosque"—held—that this was mere boast which did not justify an order under the section (1 M T 271). The fact that the accused is found merely to be a quarrelsome fellow, that he fights and quarrels with everybody, is not sufficient indication of likelihood of a breach of the peace by him [21 Cr 511 (V)].

80. Police report by itself no evidence of likelihood. — See (2) Information (19)

81. A person may still be of good quality.—who is not likely to commit a breach of order and is likely to disturb the public tranquility, and if there is reasonable apprehension, that will so act, the Cole authorities the Magistrate bind him over so that he will not disturb public tranquility—11 A. J. 190.

VIII. WRONGFUL ACT.

1. Meaning.

82 The word "wrongful act" in S 107 means an act forbidden by the Penal statutes of India or declared to be penal and wrongful by such statutes —Per Dns 1 in 21 Cr 153 (Pat)

83. Wrongful act in S 107—means a definite wrongful act which may occasion a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquility. An act, however wrongful, would not justify action unless it is shown that if it is committed, it would in all reasonable probability lead to a disturbance.—See. 7 C N 32 61 P R 1857 3 C N 463 See also 9 A 452 7 A J 1161 126 P L 1911 6 B R 562

84. History of the term.—The word "wrongful" was first inserted in the Code of 1862 in consequence of the ruling reported in 10 B L R 411 in reference to the corresponding section (282) of the Code of 1861.

(2). When an act lawful in itself may become wrongful.

85. Persons who perform religious ceremonies in a place not set apart for the purpose, and where no such ceremonies had been performed before, and feel-

33 A.

775] Similarly construing by a Michigan is not illegal but it may be wrongful where it amounts to a public nuisance or is obnoxious to rules and regulations lawfully promulgated [30 A 181]

(3) Lawful act performed in a lawful manner cannot be basis of proceedings even when likely to induce others to commit breach.

86. (a) Religious matters.—Decent exercise of religion to which others take offence is not a wrongful act [O S 77] The saying of the word "amin" in a loud voice in the bonafide performance of devotions in a mosque not exclusively appropriated to any particular sect of worshippers cannot be wrongful though the act may cause disturbance to other worshippers [15 P. R. 1902 (F.B.) 37 P. R. 1887] Similarly cross killing in a private place by a Mahomedan is not a wrongful act though the act is calculated to hurt the religious susceptibilities of matters is not a wrong, but the prevalence of ill feeling between certain people likely to attend the meeting or any other branch of the peace is expected [2 U. B. 15 Salvation Army (14 B. D. 308)]. But see 7 and S 127 Cr. P. C. post]. The Hindu residents of a town whose object was to take the Dussehra procession or to cause it to be taken down a particular route not forcibly or in defiance of any prohibition which might be issued by the authorities, because some other resident may be induced to use force to prevent the procession [37 A. 35].

87. (b) Other matters—(a) Attempt to take able possession of land by lessee who derives his from an owner, rightfully entitled to the land wrongfully kept out of possession [25 C. N. 57] Servants of a proprietor who assemble for the pose of ploughing a land already lawfully possession of their master, cannot be bound under S 107 Cr. P. C. [(84) A. N. 57] of a procession along a public road, over the applicants have a right to pass in pro-(merely because some one else proposes to fere with that right) [12 C. N. 703 : See 26

88. (c) Resistance to unlawful aggression.—(1) Opposition to an attempted performance of a public duty.—Resistance by a person to the performance of a public duty by another person is not a crime if the person resisting is acting in self-defence or in defence of the property of himself or of another person. [12 C. N. 400.]

(4) What is not wrongful act with the section.

89. (i) Singing of ballads in public streets on of which there might be a possible obstruction to crowds collecting there—13 P. R. 1889

90 (b) The attempt to get up false cases by a perwould continue to do so unless prevented-1887.

91 (c) Host's speech likely to lead to a breach of the peace (particularly when the risk of disturbance is over)—31 P. W. 1907

92 (d) Menace of violence and to disturb—40 M. T. 271

93 (e) Quodlibet or Quodlibet or Quodlibet or Quodlibet—21 P. R. 1888

94 (f) Use of force or Use of force to stop the services of the village barber, washerman, etc. involving "diverse acts of oppression"—7 C. N. 32

95 (g) Obstruction to interference—19 W. R. 32

96 (h) Use of force or Use of force to stop the services of the village barber, washerman, etc. involving "diverse acts of oppression"—14 Cr. 218 (A)

97 (i) Menace of a woman likely to provoke her husband to commit murder or a breach of the peace

(5) Wrongful acts within the meaning of the section.

98 (a) The act of a dispossessed collecting rent after sale and delivery of possession of joint holding—9 C. N. 732

99 (b) Violent assertion of a right by a lessee of a property attached under S. 149 Cr. P. C. against one of the dispossessed parties—18 Cr. 1007 (Pat)

100 (c) Attempt to eject by force a party in possession—28 A. 496

101 (d) Instigation to do wrongful acts by a non-resident Zemindar—10 C. L. 400

102 (e) Assertion of a claim and making of preparations for enforcing that claim through a servant continually armed—1 Pat. J. 754

103 (f) Nearly religious ceremony performed with the deliberate intention of wounding the feelings of members of other community—31 A. 775 [See No. 86 above].

(6) Wrongful acts under the employer's orders

104 A proceeding lies against persons who commit wrongful acts—e.g.—acts of oppression with a view to extort labour—not in their own interest but for the benefit of their common master [9 C. N. 508. See 10 C. L. 430]

(7) The wrongful act must be in present contemplation and not merely an inference from past misconduct.

105 2 Weir 49 6 B. R. 633 [See (10) Evidence and Witnesses (139)]

(8) Disputes about immovable property

108 S. 145 just contemplates the case of two persons contending in good faith for the possession of land etc. both of them rightly or wrongly believe that they are entitled to possession. But where it is clear that there is no bona fide belief by one of the parties that they have any title whatever to the property, an assertion of a claim by the latter amounts to a wrongful act within the meaning of S. 107 Cr. P. C. In such a case the party in the wrong should be bound over in a proceeding taken under S. 107 Cr. P. C., as the dispute is not really a dispute about possession of immovable property within the meaning of Chapter XII. See. 28 A. 406

See (4) Jurisdiction—Jurisdiction

IX. ENQUIRY AND PROCEDURE.

(1) Showing cause.

107. Procedure as in Summons Cases—An enquiry in a proceeding for security to keep the peace must be made in the same way as a trial in a summons case. The finding must be based on legal evidence

25 A. 273 4 Pat. W. 44 See S. 117 (2) Cr. P. C. 9 A. 452.

108. Accused entitled to have opportunity to show cause—Persons who are bound over to keep the peace should be given an opportunity of showing cause and all the procedure laid down by Ch. VIII of the Code should be strictly followed

10 A. J. 353 See 22 W. R. 68 21 W. R. 6 3 C. L. 72 1 C. L. 48 See (81) A. N. 155 14 A. J. 794 72 P. R. 1909 Rat. 421. 9 W. R. 16 2 N. P. 189.

109. Accused entitled to sufficient time to show cause—Every person to whom a summons is issued, calling on him to show cause, why he should not find security to keep the peace, is entitled to proper information as to the materials upon which process has been granted against him and to a reasonable interval within which to prepare himself to meet such information by evidence or otherwise, as the matter may require 6 A. 214 See 10 A. J. 353 20 W. R. 18

110. Meaning of 'showing cause'—An order under Ss. 107 and 112 Cr. P. C. requiring any person to show cause why he should not be ordered to furnish security for keeping the peace, is not in the nature of a rule nisi implying that the burden of proving innocence is upon such persons. The onus of proof lies upon the prosecution to establish circumstances justifying the action of the Magistrate in calling upon persons to furnish security 4 B. L. 46 (F. B.) 9 A. 452. 2 N. P. 431.

111. Adjournments—The party charged is not entitled, when sufficient time has already been given to show cause and to produce his witnesses, to an adjournment in order to summon witnesses. In such a case he must either bring his witnesses with him or apply for summons in such time as to enable him to bring them to Court on the date fixed [23 W. R. 9] An adjournment sine die pending decision by Criminal Court amounts to a discharge [5 C. L. 360]

(2) Procedure.

112. Scope of the Enquiry—The enquiry, should not go beyond the terms of the notice served [21 W. R. 6] The kind of enquiry required to be held by a Magistrate is a full judicial enquiry, evidence being taken in the presence of the parties charged, and opportunity being given for the cross examination of witnesses—14 W. R. 2.

113. Bail—Where the accused person has been arrested under a warrant under S. 114 Cr. P. C. in connection with a proceeding under S. 107 Cr. P. C. the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to refuse bail—31 M. 315 (F. B.) 32 C. 80:98. 154 But See 36 M. 474

114. Right of accused to know the definite facts alleged against him—The Magistrate should give notice to the accused of the particular offence on which he is complained of [21 W. R. 6]. He is entitled to know tangible facts and details, so that he may know what he is to meet [6 A. 26 (F. B.)]

114A. The accused should be interrogated before commencing enquiry—The accused is entitled to have the preliminary order explained to him [8. 113]. He should be interrogated as required in S. 212 Cr. P. C. But merely to put the question "Are you willing to execute the bonds required?" is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of law. Even if the reply is in the affirmative it would not by itself justify the binding down of the accused 34 M. 139

115. Pleader for the accused.

(1) A Magistrate should permit a non-resident accused to appear by pleader in the absence of special reasons to the contrary

12 C. 133 [See also S. 116 Cr. P. C.]

(2) The Court is bound to hear the pleader engaged by the accused 25 A. 375 (177). 27 C. 656 4 C. N. 797 G. O. C. 262. See 22 C. 493

116. Magistrate may call for a report from Subordinate Magistrate previous to issue of notice—The power of taking action under S. 107 Cr. P. C. is a discretionary power and there is nothing irregular in the Magistrate calling for a report from a Subordinate Magistrate before issuing notice under S. 112, especially if he doubts whether the information before him is reliable. 2 Weir 51

117. Accused entitled to cross-examine complainant and produce witnesses—The accused should have an opportunity of disproving the allegations against him by cross-examining the complainant and his witnesses. He should have an opportunity also of calling and examining his own witnesses.

7 W. R. 59. 10 W. R. 48. 10 W. R. 1. 18 W. R. 2. 2 N. P. 461. See also 12 W. R. 60 (F. B.) 16 W. R. 45. 20 W. R. 18. 21 W. R. 6. 1 C. L. 48. 3 C. L. 72

118. Duty of Magistrate to summon witnesses—A Magistrate is bound to assist both parties in a case under S. 107 Cr. P. C. in bringing their witnesses by issuing summonses to witnesses 22 W. R. 70 See above (109) 16 W. R. 45. 7 W. R. 59. 2 N. P. 461.

119. Do novo trial under S. 350 Cr. P. C.—A person proceeded against under S. 107 Cr. P. C. has the same right under S. 350 Cr. P. C. as a case

Note—Where a Subordinate Magistrate after receiving some evidence returned the case to the District Magistrate—held the latter is bound to proceed de novo [21 W. R. 52]

120. Ex parte orders—Order cannot be passed ex parte. Warrant should be issued if the accused fails to appear [1 C. L. 48].

121. When Accused expresses willingness to be bound down—The mere fact that an accused person says that he is willing to give security to keep the peace is not the kind of proof required by S. 118 Cr. P. C., as condition precedes to taking security. The Magistrate is bound to record evidence to prove that the accused was likely to commit a breach of the peace or to do any wrongful act that may occasion a breach of the peace etc. 35 C. 674. 12 C. N. 415. 34 M. 139. 30 M. 330. 21 Cr. 176 (A) 21 Cr. 38 (A). 37 A. 30. 37 P. R. 1917. 24 P. R. 1915. 14 P. L. 1912. Cou. 11 W. R. 50

122. Statement of contending parties—Magistrate may act on statements of contending parties without taking further evidence—[8 W. R. 11]

123. Record of evidence—Procedure—Magistrate is bound in proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C. only to make a memorandum of evidence under S. 355 Cr. P. C. [3 Pat W. 14] Evidence recorded under the section need not be read over to the witnesses [ibid]

124. Witnesses—Recognition from—See (10) Evidence and witness (154).

(3) Joint Enquiry.

125. Principles applicable—The main principles applicable to a criminal trial regarding joinder of charges and the joint trial of accused persons are also applicable to inquiries under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—8 C. N. 180. 9 A. 452. 6 A. 214

126. Rival factions should not be tried together—Where both the parties to a proceeding under S. 107 Cr. P. C. were tried together, some of them having been examined as witnesses also—held—that there was a misjoinder of parties, and S. 537 did not cure the defect—8 C. N. 140. 11 C. N. 472. 14 A. J. 263 See 9 C. N. 808. 31 M. 276 (277). See 9 A. 452. 8 S. 207

[Note—Such a trial is not ipso facto illegal and may be allowed to stand in the absence of prejudice—9 A. 452. 11 B. R. 740. 3 L. B. 52.

127. Meaning of "associated together"—Where the wrongful acts were alleged to have been committed by certain persons, as servants for the benefit of their common master—held—that although (1) each of the acts alleged was not done by all of them together, (2) the acts imputed were done by them as individual members but as servants of another person, they were associated together within the meaning of S. 117 Cr. P. C. and a joint enquiry was justified—[See Judgment of Henderson J. in 9 C. N. 898]

128. S. 30 Evidence Act does not apply to joint enquiries under this section—For joint enquiries under this section—For persons against whom proceedings are taken jointly under S. 117 Cr. P. C. cannot be said to be on their joint trial for the same offence within the meaning of S. 33 of the Evidence Act. Incriminating statements by one accused are therefore, admissible against the other—20 Cr. 206 (A).

120. The case of each individual accused must be examined separately.—In a joint proceeding under S. 107 Cr. P. C. it must be shown by proof of definite facts what each individual person implicated has done to furnish a basis for the apprehension that he would commit a breach of peace or do a wrongful act which may occasion a breach of the peace or disturbance of public tranquillity. The evidence must show that the persons sought to be bound down are individually and not collectively connected with those facts—20 Cr. 191 (Pat); 8 C. N. 180; 39 A. 468; 37 A. 33 9 A. 452; 126 P. L. 1911; 35 C. 029; 9 M. T. 271.

X. EVIDENCE AND WITNESSES.

(1) Evidence must be recorded.

131. Evidence must be recorded in the presence of the accused.—The magistrate must adjudge on the question whether there is reasonable ground for believing that the defendant is likely to commit a breach of the peace, after taking evidence in the presence of the person charged, and giving him an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses—4 R. L. 46 (F.B.); 18 W. R. 2 21 W. R. 6 10 W. R. 1 10 W. R. 46 1 C. L. 48 3 C. L. 72 2 N. P. 406 2 N. P. 401 See 16 W. R. 45 See 12 W. R. 16 20 W. R. 68

132. Legal evidence must be recorded and judicially adjudicated upon before passing orders.—Although a magistrate may accept the statement of the complainant on oath or police report etc. as credible information for the purposes of his preliminary orders and act on it by summoning the person complained against to show cause why he should not be required to enter into bonds to keep the peace, he must take further evidence in the presence of the accused, giving the latter an opportunity to cross-examine the complainant and his witnesses and to produce his own evidence. He is bound, before taking bonds for the preservation of the peace, to adjudicate judicially on evidence given before him as to the necessity for taking security from the accused—2 N. P. 461 2 N. P. 431 5 W. P. 40 4 B. L. 46 (F.B.); 20 W. R. 18 22 W. R. 79 24 W. R. 30 3 C. L. 72 9 A. 452 64 P. R. 1887

133. Evidence must be recorded even when accused is willing to be bound down.—See (9) Enquiry and procedure (121)

(2) Nature of evidence required.

134. Satisfaction as to probability of breach of the peace.

wrongful act likely to occasion a breach of the peace or disturbance of public tranquillity—6 A. 132 105 P. L. 1912 22 M. J. 251 7 A. J. 1161 See 4 B. L. 16 (F.B.) 24 W. R. 23 17 W. R. 35 15 W. R. 42 37 A. 33 14 A. J. 769 7 N. P. 233

135. Evidence need not be as conclusive as in regular trials.—In holding the enquiry under S. 117, the nature of quantum of evidence need not be as conclusive as in a trial for offences. But a magistrate is bound to see that substantial grounds (and not merely a vague apprehension) are established by proof of facts against the person implicated, which would lead to the conclusion that an order for security is necessary—9 A. 452 8 C. N. 180 (95) A. N. 241 7 Bur. 116.

- [Note.—Threats of violence are sufficient to indicate an intention to commit breach [31 C. 350 See 9 M. T. 271]. But an order under S. 107 Cr. P. C. cannot be passed merely on a vague apprehension—[22 M. J. 251]

136. Facts sought to be proved must be definite.—The evidence must point to some specific conduct or act on the part of the accused from which a reasonable and immediate inference can be drawn that he is likely to commit a breach of the peace—25 W. R. 15 8 C. N. 180 10 C. C. 325 6 A. 26 (F.B.) 9 A. 452 39 A. 468 (93—'00) U. R. 16 See 22 W. R. 79 21 P. R. 1888 20 Cr. 194 (Pat) 126 P. L. 1911

137. Statement of contending parties.—Magistrate may act on the statements of the contending parties without taking further evidence [16 W. R. 11]

(3) Facts necessary to prove in proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C.

138. (a) Overt acts.—Overt acts must be proved where the nature of the information requires it [9 A. 452 (93-'00) U. R. 16 See 21 P. R. 1888] But it is not necessary that in all cases overt acts should be proved to support an order for security. A general impression that the accused are likely to commit breach is sufficient [(95) A. N. 241] Order must be based on satisfactory evidence that the party bound down has done something or taken some step that indicates an intention to break the peace [6 A. 132]

139. (b) Past conduct and past relations between the parties.—Evidence of past misconduct may be given to show that similar acts may be committed in future [9 C. N. 189] A court is entitled to look into the evidence of past relations of the parties and the antecedent and existing circumstances [9 M. T. 271]. But the mere fact that a person has done a wrongful act in the past creates no presumption that he is likely to do the same again [2 W. R. 49, 26 A. 100 6 B. R. 473]. Mere proof of animosity between the parties without anything to show that there is an intention to break the peace is inadmissible [1 A. J. 418 126 P. L. 1911 7 C P 9]

140. (c) Threats.—Threats of violence are sufficient to indicate an intention to commit a breach of the peace [31 C 359 9 M T. 271] But where there are merely idle threats couched in bombastic language, an order should not be made [9 M 271] A hasty speech made in the heat of the moment when there is no indication to follow it up by action is insufficient [31 P R 1301]
141. (d) The act complained of must be shown to be in present contemplation.—Order cannot be passed where "no act is shown to be in contemplation likely to occasion a breach of the peace" (84) A N 54

(4) What is not legal evidence under the Section.

- 142 General Principles.—The final decisions under S 107 Cr P C should be based simply and entirely upon evidence legally brought on the record—37 A 43 10 W R 1 12 W R 16 15 W R 42 17 W R 45 20 W R 68 6 B H 1 5 B H 105 8 B H 162 6 B L 145 25 A 273
143. (i) Facts outside the record.—A Magistrate cannot refer to confidential papers in his possession or impart his outside knowledge into the case [37 A 31] A Magistrate cannot base his order upon facts the knowledge of which he has obtained from sources outside the record [14 A. J. 769]

See (2) Information (22)

144. (b) Hearsay evidence.—Evidence of General repute is inadmissible in a proceeding under S 107 Cr P C—25 A 273 21 P R 1888 16 P R 1888 2 P R 1897 21 Cr 700 (N) See 6 A 132
145. (c) Police Report.—The report of a police officer though it justifies the issuing of a summons is not sufficient ground on which a man can be bound over in a recognisance to keep the peace [4 B L 46 (F B.) 6 B L 145] A report of an Inspector of Police and the evidence given by the same Inspector are not sufficient to justify an order under the section [10 W. R. 55 15 W R 42, Can 10 W R. 41]
146. (d) Report of Subordinate Magistrate.—The report of a Subordinate Magistrate is not evidence on which a Magistrate can properly arrive at a conclusion that the accused is likely to be a breach of the peace [4 B. H. (Cc.) 182: 6 (Cc.) 1: 5 B H (Cc.) 105: 3 J R. 37] 8 Information (21).

147. (i) Evidence in a previous criminal cannot prevail over evidence given in the trial of the accused in the proceeding—22 W. R. 1 W. R. 36; See 37 A 30.
148. (f) Admission by pleader.—A statement made for the accused cannot be taken as admission of the intention of the accused to commit a breach of the peace [30 M 340]

(5) Miscellaneous.

149. Onus probandi.—The burden of proof must lie on the person called upon to furnish security to keep the peace but on the prosecutor [9 A. 452 (400); 2 N P. 441; 1 R. L. 96 (F. B.)]
150. Where evidence is sufficient, H Court would not interfere.—The High Court would decline to interfere with an order passed by a Magistrate in a case in which the evidence is sufficient to warrant an order under this section although such evidence was taken in verbatim and in disregard of the provisions of the Cr [13 W R 20: See 4 M. H. (ap) 35]
151. Defence.—It is no defence to say that wrongful act was done under the employment of others—9 C. N 698
- 151-A. Evidence in joint enquiry.—See Enquiry and Procedure (129) and (130).

(6) Witnesses.

152. Stage at which they should be called.—Witnesses need not be called before the enquiry stage [11 W. R. 6]
153. Witness cannot be bound down.—Witness cannot be bound over (without taking legal proceedings and going through the procedure laid down in Chap. VIII)—5 M. 350 See 4 B L 46 (F. B.)
154. Procedure on adjournment. A party should not be called upon to repeatedly summon his witnesses on payment of fresh process to simply because the Magistrate may have been unable to record the evidence on the date originally fixed for examining them. In such case it is his duty to direct the witnesses to attend to appear on the adjourned hearing—6 P. L. 1812

XI. FINAL ORDER.

(1) Requisites of a valid final order.

155. (a) Issue of a notice.—A final order without previously issuing a notice to the person called upon to furnish security is illegal—2 N P 189. 9 W. R. 16, 11 M. 246
156. (b) The notice issued must be a notice under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—ex—A final order under S 107 after starting proceedings under S 110 Cr. P. C. is illegal [30 M. 282 See however—14 Cr. 65 (M). An order under S. 107 Cr P C made in a proceeding under S 145 Cr P C wholly without jurisdiction [14 A. J. 791]

157. (c) Accused must be given a reasonable opportunity to show cause against the order—(81) A. N. 155—See (4) Enquiry and Procedure (108)
158. (d) The existence of a likelihood of the accused committing a breach of the peace etc. must be proved by legal evidence—17 W R 35

See (10) Evidence and witnesses (134)

159. (c) Legal evidence must be recorded and judicially adjudicated upon before passing orders. See (10) Evidence and witnesses (132)

160. (f) Evidence must be recorded even if the accused agrees to submit to the order.

See (9) Enquiry and procedure (121)

161. (g) In the case of a joint enquiry against several accused, there must be a finding of definite facts against each making the section applicable

See (9) Enquiry and procedure (124)

162. (h) The order must conform to the terms of the notice (to show cause)—21 W R 6

167. (3) Order binding down a person merely because he has not interfered to prevent a riot when he might have done so—19 W R 32

180. (6) A person disobeying an illegal order—eg—an order prohibiting a Mahomedan from killing cows—7 A J 649

(5) When both parties may be bound over

181. (1) Where there are doubts as to the existence of the respective rights and obligations of the parties, the magistrate should bind down both parties so that his order may not be detrimental to either.—31 C 915 See 20 Cr 194 (Pat)

182. (2) when the magistrate finds that there is a

P C—39 A 197 See 11 C N 146 1 C L 632

183. (3) Where there is a bonafide dispute as to the right of possession of a land, giving rise to a likelihood of a breach of the peace the proper order is either to bind down both the parties under S 107 or to institute a proceeding under S 145 and not to bind down only one of the parties—12 C N, 606

XII. DETENTION PENDING ENQUIRY.

184. No bail from person against whom proceeding is merely contemplated—No bail should be called for from a person against whom proceedings under S 107 Cr. P. C. are contemplated but not actually initiated. The most that can be required of him is to furnish recognisance, and that only, where there is any likelihood of his absconding himself from Court 11 C N 415

185. Remand to custody not to exceed 15 days—The period for which a Magistrate can authorise the detention of a person preceded against under sub cl (3) in police custody cannot exceed 15 days on the whole. 23 B 32

186. Rearrest after release on bail.—After enlarging the petitioners on bail, a Magistrate pending the proceedings directed their rearrest and remanded them to custody until the termination of proceedings.—held—that, firstly, the remand was illegal and secondly the Magistrate was bound to release under S 496, Cr P.C. the petitioners on bail.—32 C 80
187. Special circumstances referred to in Cl. (3) and (4).—Only in the special circumstances referred to in clauses (3) and (4) of S 107 Cr

P.C. does the law empower a Magistrate detain a person against whom proceedings been instituted under S. 107 in custody the completion of the enquiry. 32 C. & M. 315 (F.B.) ; 30 M. 171.

188. Proceedings other than under (3) and (4).—In proceedings other than under Subs (3) and (4), a Magistrate is to enlarge, the person proceeded against. 32 C. 60, 31 M 315 (F.B.) ; 98 158

[Note.—Even when an accused is sent up Cl. (3) bail should be granted unless the special reasons to the contrary. 32 C. 60]

XIII. SECURITY.

(1) Object etc.

189. The object of taking a security bond is the prevention of crime and not to obtain money for the crown. To ensure this object the liability of surety has not been made co extensive with that of the principal debtor as in the ordinary cases of a surety for a debtor for the payment of his debt. A surety is an additional safe-guard. 36 C. 562
190. Liability of Surety not co-extensive with principal's. A surety is liable to pay the penalty of his bond, quite irrespective of the question whether the amount of the bond of the principal has been repaid or not. 36 C. 562. Con (1904) 1 B I 31 13 (13) C B I 159.
191. Person on recognizance cannot be imprisoned on forfeiture without issuing warrant of attachment.—A Magistrate is not competent to direct that in default of payment the person whose recognizance is forfeited should be imprisoned without first issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of his moveable property.—10 C L 571

(2) Amount of security.

192. Should not be excessive.—The Second proviso to S 118 is that the amount of every bond shall be fixed with due regard to the circumstances of the case and shall not be excessive. The fact that upwards of 21 months had elapsed without the person required to furnish security being able to do so, is conclusive proof of the amount being excessive [23 A 80. See 19 W R. 1]
193. Should not be disproportionate to the means of the accused.—The amount of security demanded should not be excessive or disproportionate to the means of the accused. 22 W. R. 73. See 2 C. 110, 2 C 351. 1 C L 268. 16 B. 372, 21 A. 60. 28 P. R. 1901. 5 S. 10. 4 M H. (Ap) 16
194. Should not be larger than the amount called for in the notice.—The first proviso to S 118 says that no person shall be ordered to give security of a nature different from or of an amount larger than or for a period longer than that specified in the order made under S 112 Cr P. C.—the provision follows 2 J. O 2. 9 B L 11. (Ap). See also 23 P. W 1009 and overrulen (1915) A N 241

(3) Miscellaneous

195. Sureties cannot be demanded mentioned in the notice.—9 B L (Ap)
196. Discharge of Surety.—The mere fact the principal party not being proceeded against is no ground for holding that the surety discharged. 25 C. 110
197. Security should not be demanded a longer period than necessary.—Security should not be demanded for a longer period than is necessary to obviate danger. "As the date at which the disturbance was anticipated, have been over in a fortnight it was an excessive exercise of jurisdiction to require the parties to furnish security for one year. 6 A. 214
198. Surety cannot be rejected on the ground (a) that he lives at a distance from the place of the accused.—1 C. N. 797.
(b) that he is a relation of the accused.—25 A
199. Insertion of onerous conditions in bond. (1) The insertion of a condition in the making the executant responsible for the acts of his servants and dependants is illegal. Magistrate had no power to put him (executant) under any such obligation for he could not be responsible for his own acts and not for acts of others". (81) A. N 152
- High Court can reduce the amount of the bond if it is excessive.—23 A. 80. 16 B. 372

(4) Renewal of bonds.

200. Finding sureties a second time person cannot be required without fresh proceedings taken against him, to find sureties at a time when in consequence of a breach his own security is forfeited. The Code does not provide for the renewal of the bond without fresh proceedings. 7 M T 90. See 7 W R. 26. 7 W R 23. 14 W R
201. Order for fresh Security before expiry of the first.—A second order requiring fresh security from the same person to continue after the expiry of the term of the security already given, passed during the continuance of the first, is not a proper order. If at the end of the period the dispute is continued, a further order can be demanded on fresh proceedings properly taken. 4 C N 121

XIV. FORFEITURE.

202. Order for forfeiture must be passed at the time of conviction.—If on convicting a person of an offence involving the forfeiture of a bond for keeping the peace a Magistrate who has knowledge of the fact that the person, before him, has by his conduct forfeited his bond does not make any order for forfeiture he must be taken to have decided not to take action on the bond in respect of that particular breach of the peace, and he cannot thereafter reconsider and add to his order by directing for forfeiture of the recognizance. 13 P. R. 1914 (F.B.). 24 P. R. 1994 1 C. L. 134 3 C. L. 406 Con 26 A 202
203. Condition precedent.—No forfeiture takes place unless the offence of which the person under recognizance is convicted is one involving a breach of the peace. 7 P. R. 1906
204. Order must be made in the presence of the Surety. The mere fact that the person for whom another stands surety has been convicted of an offence involving a breach of the peace is not sufficient to make the surety bond executed by the surety liable to forfeiture without any evidence being taken in the presence of the surety to show that the forfeiture has been incurred. 25 C. 440; 4 C. 805; 10 C. R. 571. 9 C. P. S. Con.—32 P. R. 1903 4 M. H. XXXVIII.

205 Reduction of the amount forfeited.

- (1) When a Magistrate thinks that the amount forfeited should be reduced, he should refer the matter to the Local Government. He cannot reduce the amount himself.—19 W. R. 1; 3 C. 757 8 C. L. 72 1 B. H. 138.
- (2) High Court.—The High Court can reduce the amount forfeited. 15 P. R. 1905 Con. 3 C. 757 8 C. L. 72

XV. ALLIED SECTIONS.

(1). Ss. 145 and 107 Cr. P. C.

The following rules deduced from the numerous and often conflicting rulings, may be laid down as crystallized by authoritative decision

203. (1) S. 145 and S. 107 Cr. P. C. not mutually exclusive—

- (a) The fact that there is a dispute concerning land likely to cause a breach of the peace, does not deprive a Magistrate of jurisdiction under S. 107 Cr. P. C. when he is informed that any person is likely to commit a breach of the peace or disturb public tranquillity or to do any wrongful act that may probably occasion a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquillity

Pro.—29 C. 159 (T.B.). 22 C. 966 9 C. N. 551 7 C. N. 746 3 C. N. 297 36 A. 143 34 A. 449 28 A. 406 12 A. J. 162 9 A. J. 683. 16 Cr. 211 (M.) 26 M. 471 24 M. 364. 2 Weir 50. 2 S. 18; 1 S. 50 5 N. 94 19 Cr. 712 (Pat)

207. (2) The question of bonafides.

- (b) In every case in which a Magistrate finds that there is a bonafide dispute about land and that an order under S. 145 will suffice to keep the peace

Magistrate comes to the conclusion that there is a bonafide belief by all the parties that they have any right to the land in dispute however erroneous such belief may be, the proceeding should be under S. 145 Cr. P. C. When there is no such belief, the party wrongfully asserting his claim, is in reality committing a wrongful act and should be bound over under S. 107 Cr. P. C. 28 A. 406;

1 S. 50 See 11 C. N. 176 12 C. N. 600 See Rat 462 14 B. 23.

209. (3) Where disputing parties are jointly entitled to the land.—When the Magistrate finds that there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace between two parties jointly entitled to the land, he may either bind both the parties over, under S. 107 Cr. P. C. or proceed under S. 145. He should not bind down only one of the parties under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—36 A. 17; 12 C. N. 606; 11 C. N. 176; 1 C. J. 632 See 34 C. 935; 20 Cr. 194 (Pat); 5 C. J. 447. 1 C. J. 632 [See Notes under S. 145]

209. (4) Simultaneous proceedings.

210. (5) Proceedings under S. 107 followed by an order under S. 145 Cr. P. C. and vice-versa.—Whether after proceeding under S. 107 Cr. P. C. it will be proper for the Magistrate to act under S. 145 depends on the circumstances of each case [39 C. 150 (F.B.)]. A Magistrate by reason of having passed an order under S. 107 Cr. P. C. does not lose his jurisdiction to make an order under S. 145 [21 C. N. 160 See 10 C. N. 384]. It might be sometimes necessary to take security from one of the opposing factions under S. 107 Cr. P. C., even after passing an order under S. 145 Cr. P. C. where the Magistrate is satisfied that notwithstanding such an order, they are likely to take the law into their own hands.—36 M. 315

211. (6) Proceedings under S. 107 and S. 145.

212. It cannot be laid down as a general rule that simply because members of one party to a dispute relating to possession of land have been bound down under S. 107 no order of attachment can

116 Cr. P. C. can be made in respect of the disputed property—10 C N 384

(3). Ss. 147 and 107 Cr. P. C.

213. The jurisdiction vesting in Magistrates under Chapter VII (S 147) does not necessarily oust the jurisdiction vesting in them under Ch VIII (S 107) Cr. P. C. [2 Weir 50]. Where a competent Civil Court has given a decision on the rights of the parties, the Magistrate ought not to proceed under S 147 but under Ch VIII of the Cr. P. C. [Rat 462 14 B 25]. See also 6 M 203 (F.B.); 6 M 835 16 W R 21

(4). Ss. 144 and 107 Cr. P. C.

214. When an order under S 144 does not prove sufficient for the purpose, the right procedure to adopt is to commence proceedings under S 107 Cr. P. C. [20 C N 758 19 Cr 367 (C)]. See 4 Pat J 130. The proper way of preventing a breach of the peace is to proceed under S 107 Cr. P. C. and not S 144 Cr. P. C. [11 C N 223]. S 144 Cr. P. C. does not oust jurisdiction under S 107 merely because the dispute relates to immovable property [32 C 966 1 S 50]. But simultaneous proceedings under Ss 144 and 107 are bad [19 Cr 367 (C)]. Where prohibition of public meetings is concerned, S 144 and not S 107 is the proper Section for application [2 L B 157]

(5). S. 106 and S. 107 Cr. P. C.

215. For a comparison of the scope of the two Sections —See 21 W. R. 6, 1 Cl. 18; 3 Cl. 72; where an effect of an order under S 106 will be to prevent the rightful party from asserting his lawful rights, an order binding down the party in the wrong should be made [11 C N. 176; 11 C N. 810]

(6). Ss. 107 and 110 Cr. P. C.

216. (a) Where a Magistrate finds that S 110 with reference to which notice under S. 112 had been issued is inapplicable to a case, he ought not to proceed under S. 107 Cr. P. C. without issuing a fresh notice under S. 112 with reference to the altered view of the circumstances [30 M. 242 25 C. 798 (See)]. Where after issuing summonses to parties under S. 107 Cr. P. C. the Magistrate took proceedings under S. 110 but the evidence was recorded at length and the parties had opportunity to cross-examine all the prosecution witnesses and were not prejudiced—Held, that the irregularity in procedure was cured by S 337 Cr. P. C. [11 Cr 65 (M)]

- 217 (b) Distinction between the Sections—S 110 (c) also refers to habitual commission or attempt to commit or abetment of offences involving a breach of the peace. The distinction lies in this that while S. 107 refers to acts of violence community as a whole—See 27 A. 32

XVI. IRREGULARITIES.

(1) Irregularities which vitiate.

218. (a) Summons not in accord with Sch. V Form No 12 and not accompanied by an order under S 112 Cr. P. C. See (6) Notice (61)
219. (b) Joint trial of two opposing factions See (9) Enquiry and Procedure (120)
220. (c) Order binding down several persons in one proceeding without specific finding against each. See (9) Enquiry and Procedure (120)
221. (d) Order under S. 107 made in a proceeding taken under S 145 Cr. P. C. [14 A. J 794].
222. (e) Order under S. 107 made in a proceeding started under S. 110 without issue of fresh notice 30 M. 282 But see 14 Cr. 65 (M)
223. (f) Omission on the part of the Magistrate to adjudicate on evidence or to allow the accused opportunity to show cause See (9) Enquiry and Procedure (108). (10) Evidence and witnesses. (132).
224. (g) Order ex parte. See (9) Enquiry and Procedure. (120)

(2) Irregularities which do not vitiate.

225. (1) Omission to set forth substance of information in notice and to serve a copy of the order under S 112 where there is no prejudice. 5 D. C. 313
- But see (6) Notice
226. (2) Omission to insert in the notice the amount of security required
- 8 C. 724 Con.—20 W. R. 36 3 N. P. 96.
227. (3) Order under S 110 after summoning accused under S. 107 Cr. P. C. Where no prejudice has been caused 14 Cr. 65 (M)
228. (4) Omission to draw up a proceeding under S 107 by a District Magistrate before referring the case to a subordinate Magistrate having no local jurisdiction over the accused 19 Cr 266 (C)—But see 41 M. 246 11 C N 850
229. (5) Recording evidence in vernacular in disregard of S. 356 Cr. P. C.—See 13 W. R. 20

XVII. APPEAL REFERENCE Etc.

(1) Appeal.

230. There is no right of appeal by the person bound over in a proceeding taken under S. 107 read with S. 114. 35 A. 303, 37 A. 623, 14 A. J.

268; 2 A. J. 716 32 C 945 10 J. 511 11 B. 740 19 Cr. 246 [247] (Pat).

231. (b) Letters patent appeal.—No appeal under S 15 of the Letters patent against the judgment of a single Judge of the High Court dealing with a revision petition presented against an order of a Magistrate under S. 118 Cr. P. C. read with S. 107 27 M 510 41 C 719 16 Cr 203 (31)

(2) Reference by District Magistrate.

233. It is only in the power of the District Magistrate to examine the record, and if he finds that an improper order has been passed, to submit the case to the High Court for the exercise of its revisional powers. 35 A 103

(3) Cancellation of bond by Magistrate.

234. (a) The District Magistrate's powers do not extend to cancellation of the bonds on meats. Under S. 125 he can cancel the bonds only on the ground that they are no longer necessary. [35 A 103 32 C 918 10 J 511] A District Magistrate has power to direct the cancellation of a bond executed on an order by a Subordinate Magistrate on other grounds than that the bond is no longer necessary. The words "sufficient reasons" do not necessarily mean reasons in connection with something which has occurred after the execution of the bond [34 C 1 (F.B.) 12 P W 1904 11 N 98 (05) A N 113] 19 Cr 640 (N) 14 Cr 546 (F.B.) (M)]

235. (b) Nature of Proceedings under S. 125 Cr. P. C.—A District Magistrate acting under S. 125 Cr. P. C. is neither a Court of Appeal nor of revision. No party has therefore any right to be heard either personally or by Pleader—19 Cr 216 (Pat)

233. (c) On transfer. Where a proceeding under S. 107 is transferred from one district to another, the bond taken can be cancelled only by the District Magistrate of the latter place. 20 Cr 337 (C)

(4) Revision by the High Court.

237. Principles to be observed.—"In questions arising under S. 110 and what is really a cognate section 5, 107, the moment it is shown, speaking for myself, prima facie that there is something which the Courts below have done either in excess of their powers or by a too summary exercise of their powers or by misapplying the rules of evidence or by not giving due effect to the evidence for the defence, I should have no hesitation in admitting an application for revision, but the High Court will not interfere on the merits except in very extraordinary cases."—Mr. Walsh J. in 17 Cr 461 (A) 2 I C 225 17 C P. 107 10 Cr. 660 (N)

238. High Court will not interfere.

When there is evidence to justify the finding of likelihood of a breach of the peace [4 M. H. ap 38], or where the irregularity in proceedings has caused no prejudice [14 Cr 65 (W) 9 A. 152 3 L B 52 50 C 413 8 C. 721]

239. High Court will interfere.

When there is evidence on the record to justify an order under the section. [See (10) Evidence and witnesses (112)]

240. Order dropping proceedings under S. 145.

Can not be interfered with during the pendency of a proceeding under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr 134 (C) But see 13 C N 125 28 C 416

241. Right of audience.—A party interested in the result of the revision proceedings is not entitled to be heard on a rule being issued to the District Magistrate—25 C 719

(5) Further enquiry.

242. It is now fairly well established in spite of several rulings to the contrary, that S. 437 Cr. P. C. applies to a proceeding taken under the section

Con—21 A 107 2 L B. 80 15 P.R. 1900 35 B 401 8 C N. 883 24 A 148 (150)

243. (6) Review.—A Magistrate, one month after passing an order requiring the accused to furnish security in a certain sum, to keep the peace, directed him to furnish security in a larger sum. Held—the order was ultra vires. He had no jurisdiction to alter his order—20 Cr. 456 (A)

244. (7) Revival.—Proceedings may be revived in the same facts. S. 403 Cr. P. C. does not apply to Security Proceedings. Where the Magistrate by mistake endorsed the word "acquitted" on a petition for withdrawal of proceedings (an act absolutely unwarranted by any section of the Cr. P. C.)—Held—that Ss. 495 and 493 did not apply and there was no bar to a revival—36 M 315

VIII. TRANSFER AND WITHDRAWAL.

(1) Transfer by High Court (S. 526).

- 245 Cases under S. 107 Cr. P. C. are Criminal cases "Subject to the application of cl (6) of S. 526 Cr. P. C. and the Magistrate trying a case under S. 107 Cr. P. C. is bound to adjourn the case if an application is so made [11 C. 719] But it must be an extremely exceptional case that would justify the interference of the High Court with the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District taking preventive action within his own boundaries and imposing such foreign and extraneous law on the Magistrate of another District [14 Cr. 382 (C)]. The fact that the District

Magistrate visited a place where a rival market

(2) Withdrawal by District Magistrate and Chief- Presidency Magistrate.

246. A Chief Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate and Subdivisional Magistrate have authority under S. 524 Cr. P. C. to withdraw or recall a case from the file of a Subordinate Magistrate and try it himself.—31 C 350, 29 C 349; See 10 C 1035 2 C J. 611.

(3) Powers under S. 107 (2) and 528 Cr. P.C.

- 247 The section confines the power of the District Magistrates to transfer proceedings taken under the special powers conferred by S 107 (2) to a Subordinate Magistrate not having local jurisdiction over the person proceeded against, only after initiating it but not before.—27 C. 314, 31 C 350 24 A 151 (07) Smith 2 Can. 11 M 216, 13 C N 560

[Note—A Magistrate to whom proceedings are transferred can amend the proceedings.—29 C 343]

- 247A. Appointment of the party as Special Constable as a ground for transfer.—The appointment of the party against whom proceedings under S 107 were instituted as special constables, might raise a reasonable apprehension that they would not have a fair and impartial trial, although the order was in abeyance at the time, they moved the High Court.—14 C. N 121.

XIX. MISCELLANEOUS.

248. (1) Order for compensation under S.

250 Cr. P. C.—An order for payment of compensation cannot be made against a person who has petitioned a Magistrate to take action under S 107 Cr. P. C.—36 A 382 7 A J 743. 25 B 49. 33 P R 1902 37 P R 1881 See also 16 P R 1893 4 P R 1896. 9 P L 1903

250. (3) Ss. 403 and 495 are not applicable to security proceedings.—36 M 315

252. (5) Court fee—No court fee is necessary for security bonds taken under S 107 Cr. P. C.—See Gaz. of India Pt. I. 504

(6) Miscellaneous.

253. (a) Right of taking procession along public street [See. 7 A 401 (F.B.): 12 A 494 (F.B.): 13 A 419 (F.B.) 18 C. 448 (P.C)] 12 C. N 703
254. (b) Is the person proceeded against, an accused person? See (5) Proceeding (5)

108. Whenever a Chief Presidency or District Magistrate, or a Presidency Magistrate or Security for good behaviour from per. Magistrate of the first class specially empowered by the Local fons disseminating seditious matter. Government in this behalf, has information that there is within the limits of his jurisdiction any person who, within or without such limits, either orally or in writing, disseminates or attempts to disseminate, or in anywise abets the dissemination of,—

(a) any seditious matter that is to say, any matter the publication of which is punishable under section 124A of the Indian Penal Code, or

(b) any matter the publication of which is punishable under section 153A of the Indian Penal Code, or

(c) any matter concerning a Judge which amounts to criminal intimidation or defamation under the Indian Penal Code, such Magistrate may (in manner hereinafter provided) require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for his good behaviour for such period, not exceeding one year, as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

No proceedings shall be taken under this section against the editor, proprietor, printer or publisher of any publication registered under, or printed or published in conformity with, the rules laid down in the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867, except by the order or under the authority of the Governor-General in Council or the Local Government or some officer empowered by the Governor General in Council in this behalf.

Proposed amendments to the Sections—In section 108 of the said Code, after the words "in writing," the words "or in any other manner" shall be inserted, and after the figures "1867," the words "with reference to any matter contained in such publication" shall be inserted

Notes.

1. Object of the Section—The provisions of Chapter VIII. Cr. P. C. are preventive in their scope and object and are aimed at persons who are a danger to the public, by reason of the commission by them of certain offences. The test under S. 108 Cr. P. C. is whether the person proceeded against has been disseminating seditious matter and where there is a fear of the repetition of the offence. In each case, it is a question of fact, which must be determined with reference to the antecedents of the person and other surrounding circumstances.—11 B. R. 743. See 10 B. 174 2 A. 835 6 A. 132 (137) 3 M. 248 6 B. 34 (35) 27 C. 741

2. Deliberate intention to provoke feeling of hatred. In order to sustain an order under S. 108 (b) Cr. P. C. it is not sufficient to prove that the language used was highly offensive to a community, but it must be shown that the applicant intended to provoke feelings of enmity or hatred between two communities. It is not necessary, however, that he should have succeeded in exciting such feelings, if deliberate intention to do so can be inferred. 124 M. O. 397 [4 Bur. T. 84 See Beatty vs. Gilbanks 92 B. D. 308 Stato vs. Evans 124 M. O. 397 (con. 13 C. 291)] In estimating the intention and probable effect of a man's public utterances it is proper to consider not only the personality of the speaker but the tone and spirit of the speeches and also the circumstances in which he spoke [ibid]. To justify an order under S. 108 (b) one has only got to find that there are words used in the leaflet or the matter complained of, which are likely to provoke feelings of enmity and hatred and one finds such words present, there is no necessity for finding intention as would be necessary if the person was placed under his trial under S. 133 A. [41 C. 571]

3. Religious preaching.—Preachers are at liberty to decant on the errors of other religions and to extol their own faith to the skies. But they may not consciously inflame the minds of their hearers by holding up the ministers and followers of other religions to public execrations. Such an act may come within the purview of S. 108 (b). 4 Bur. T. 84 See Wise vs. Dunning 18 T. L. R. 65

4. European British Subjects.—S. 151 Cr. P. C. applies only to trials, and an enquiry under S. 108 (b) is not a trial. A Magistrate who is a European British subject and a Justice of the Peace is competent to hold an enquiry under S. 108 Cr. P. C. against a European British Subject.—4 Bur. T. 84

5. Mode of constructing seditious speeches.

(1) The speeches on the basis of which proceedings under S. 108 Cr. P. C. are taken must be read as a whole. A fair construction must be put on them straining nothing either for the Crown or the accused, and paying more attention to the whole general effect than to any isolated words or passages. The question is, whether upon such fair constructions, these speeches offend under S. 124 A. or not.—Per Batchelor J in 18 Cr. 567 (10)

(2) The speeches must be read as a whole "in a fair and liberal spirit." In dealing with them one "should not pause upon an objectionable sentence here or a strong word there". They should be dealt with "in a spirit of freedom" and "not viewed with an eye of narrowed criticism". The case should be viewed "in a free, bold, manly and generous spirit towards the petitioner" (See Rog. vs. Burns (50) 10 Cox. C. C. 355 (302)) Per Shah J. (ibid)

(3) The test.—The test is, whether the accused has been disseminating seditious matter, and whether there is a fear of a repetition of the offence. In each case, it is a question of fact which must be determined with reference to the antecedents of the person and other surrounding circumstances. 11 B. R. 743. See Bur. T. 81

6. "Swaraj"—The word "Swaraj" does not necessarily mean Government of the country to the exclusion of the present Government. The word if literally translated, means 'Self-Government' i.e., Government by the people themselves under the King and under British sovereignty i.e., Home Rule under the present Government. When a person used the word "Swaraj" in addressing the audience and invited the members of the meeting to exert themselves to secure Swaraj—held—that there was nothing which could bring the case within the purview of S. 124 A. I. P. C. or S. 108 Cr. P. C.—31 C. 901. See however 32 M. 3.

7. Ss. 108 and 110 not mutually exclusive.—The mere fact that S. 108 Cr. P. C. may have been applicable to a case, does not necessarily make S. 110 Cr. P. C. inapplicable.—23 C. N. 103.

8. Reason "We have considered the question whether these orders should be subject to appeal or revision; and we have come to the conclusion that they ought to be subject to revision, as the High Court can then act of its own motion as well as on the petition of the party aggrieved. In case there should be any doubt on this point, we have provided in S. 430 (b) that all orders under the Code (not expressly excepted) made by an inferior Court shall be subject to revision by the High Court."—*Sch. - IX. Miscellaneous.

I. OBJECT AND SCOPE,

1. Object of the Section—The power conferred by this section is for summary disposal of cases of coquards in where sturdy rogues are found to be lurking about [1 O S. 73] Action under the section is intended to be taken not against persons suspected of any offence but from persons lurking within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate and having no ostensible means of livelihood or who are unable to satisfactorily account for their presence [Rat 63 Rat 23 39 C. 456]
2. The Section is preventive and not punitive—The object of the Section is the protection of society against the perpetration of crimes by individuals and not as punishment for crimes committed [2 Weir 52]
3. Scope of the clauses
 - (a) Scope of clause (a)—The whole of cl. (a) S. 103 Cr P. C must be read together and the object of concealment must be with a view to committing some offence, mere concealment with a view to avoid observation is no offence at all [39 C 456 22 C N 163 (Per Huda J)]
 - (b) Scope of clause (b)—The whole object of the second part of cl (b) of S 103 is to enable Magistrates to take action against suspicious strangers lurking within their jurisdiction [C. 456] Cl. (b) of S 109 Cr. P. C applies only to vagabonds but it covers suspected persons of any class who cannot give a satisfactory account of themselves [13 Cr. 239 (c)] Cl. (a) gives a Magistrate very wide discretion [A. J. 253],

4. Association with political suspects—Where a person was found in a District other than in which he resided, and at the house of a man who was suspected of being a dangerous political conspirator and to have collected large amount of seditious literature, Held that an order by a Magistrate requiring such person under S 109 cl (b) Cr P C to give security was justified—[13 Cr 239 (C)]
5. The Section is not applicable to respectable and well-to-do citizens—S VII. Satisfactory account. [42]
6. Magistrate must form his own independent opinion as to necessity of action—See IV. Procedure and Evidence (24)

II. INFORMATION.

7. Must be credible—A Magistrate is empowered to act whenever he has credible information of the nature required by the section—31 C 557 See 6 A. J. 253
8. Police report—Both sections 109 and 110 show that the Magistrate's action must be based on information received, and there is no reason why the information should be to the information of the people [1905] U. B 29
9. Information on oath taken in the presence of the accused—The reference to "for the evidence" in S 117 infra, indicates that some evidence may be taken before a preliminary order is made under S. 112 Cr P. C. A Magistrate would generally exercise a wise discretion by taking some evidence on oath before framing the order under S 112 infra—[1905] U. B 29
10. Report by constable—A report of crime made by a constable is no evidence on which a Magistrate may act—[Rat 23]

III. JURISDICTION.

(1) Local Limits.

11. Residence within jurisdiction not necessary.

It is not necessary that a person against whom proceedings are taken under S. 109 have been taken at all have a residence within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate who is asked to exercise the powers conferred by S. 109 Cr. P. C. 2 Weir 53.

12. How the accused came to be within limits must not be considered.

Whether the person before the Magistrate is under lawful arrest or not is immaterial. It is sufficient that he is at the time the proceedings are taken, within the local limits of the jurisdiction—11 C 557. See 20 M 124.

13. A person cannot be called on to furnish security for acts committed outside jurisdiction.

The fact that a person had been previously connected with any criminal conspiracy or might still be in correspondence with any criminals outside the jurisdiction of the Magistrate would not be relevant in a case under S. 109 Cr. P. C. 39 C. 456.

(2) Of Magistrates.

14. Honorary Magistrates may be empowered to put in force the provisions of S. 109 Cr. P. C.—11 C 557.

15. Magistrates not empowered.—If a Magistrate not duly empowered demands security, his proceedings are void.—See S. 520 (d) post.

IV. PROCEDURE.

(1) Procedure.

16. Opportunity to show cause must be given.

In a case of security for good behaviour, the accused must be given an opportunity of entering upon his defence, and of citing witnesses and must be clearly informed of the nature of the accusation which he has to meet—11 C 14.

17. The preliminary order.—The proceedings taken must clearly specify whether the accusation which the accused has to meet is one under this section or S. 110. The two sections overlap each other. They must be carefully worked and given if care should be bestowed not to abuse them—Mad. Pol. Man. p. 69.

18. Bail.—A person against whom proceedings are commenced under the section should be given the option of bail—14 A 47.

19. Joint enquiry.—Separate proceedings should be instituted against each accused unless there is association between them [2 Weir 51, 2 Weir, 52 6 P. R. 1896]. A joint trial in the absence of connection between the accused is illegal [See Rat 559, 9 A 452; Mad. H. Pro 17-3-63].

A Magistrate should not hold a single enquiry under Ss. 109 and 110 Cr. P. C. in the case of two persons unless he is satisfied that the two men were acting in concert or were associated in the acts charged—[11 Cr. 50 (31)]. The two sections deal with essentially different matters and proceedings against one person under Ss. 109 and 112 should not be amalgamated with proceedings under Ss. 110 and 112 against another person [80 C. 91].

20. Prosecution in the Punjab.—As to how such prosecution should be conducted, See Punjab R. and O. chap. XLIV, p. 392.

(2) Evidence.

21. Evidence must be legally sufficient.—To justify a Magistrate in passing an order under

S. 109 Cr. P. C., there must be evidence before him and that evidence must be legally sufficient to establish the fact that the person charged is a person of the character mentioned in the section. He cannot proceed to pass an order either without evidence or in opposition to the evidence before him. An order so passed is illegal—2 N. P. 455.

22. Evidence must be recorded.—Evidence to the effect specified in the section must be recorded before security is ordered—11at 44.

23. Evidence of past misconduct.—Where previous conviction for a simple breach of the person had been previously connected with any

24. Police Report.—The report of a police officer is not evidence except against the officer making it [5 W. R. 2, 11 W. R. 35]. A Magistrate must form his own independent opinion as to the necessity of passing an order under this section. He should not send people to jail simply because the opinions of the Police witnesses are unfavourable to them. [Rat. 727].

25. Confession before the Police.—Inability to give a satisfactory account of oneself or the want of ostensible means of living is not an offence. So the statement made by a person proceeded against under S. 109 Cr. P. C. to a police officer are not confessions, and they may be proved—3 N. 51.

(3) Order under S. 109 as well as S. 110.

26. A person cannot be bound down both under Ss. 109 and 110 at the same time.—There is no provision for bonds from an accused person both under S. 109 and 110 Cr. P. C.—38 M. 555; 38 M. 556 (N); 11 Cr. 50 (M) 6 M. T. 154 Rat 946 See also 8 C. N. 543 27. Order under S. 110 during continuance of order under S. 109 is illegal.

See 109 and 110 Cr. P. C. having the same object, an order under S. 110 is not valid during the continuance of an order under S. 109—8 C. N. 543

V. CONCEALMENT MEANING AND APPLICATION.

28. Change of Law.—In the Code of 1872, the words "lurking within the jurisdiction" were used instead of 'conceal'

29. Meaning—Concealment within S. 109 Cr. P. C. means concealment with a view to commit offences and not merely temporary concealment with a view to avoid observation [39 C. 456] Cl (a) of S. 109 Cr. P. C. refers to a continuous act and does not therefore apply to a case where there is a momentary effort at concealment to avoid detection or arrest—Per Huda J in 22 C. N. 163 [See also Rat 63]

30. Secret gambling. Members belonging to gang of ring game players, who secretly carry on their trade cannot be proceeded under S. 109 Cl (a) as the game may be legal or illegal according to the manner in which it is played, but they may be bound down under sub Cl (b)—6 A. J. 253

31. Secret delivery of letters and giving a false name—A person who gives a false name and secretly delivers letters arranged for the commission of dacoities or demanding money for the means of committing crimes falls within S. 109 cl. (a) Cr. P. C.—15 Cr. 255 (C)

32. Habitual offenders should be produced before the Magistrate.—When well known habitual offenders are found under distinctly suspicious circumstances lurking at night in suspicious places in possession of house-breaking instruments or implements for conning, travelling on the railway for no ostensible purpose except crime or in possession of suspicious property which cannot be accounted for, such men should be put up before the Magistrate and an order if possible obtained—Mad. Pol. Man p. 69

VI. WANT OF OSTENSIBLE MEANS—MEANING AND CASES.

28. Meaning of 'vagrancy.'—A vagrant is one who having no visible means of subsistence lives in idleness or in the practice of drinking or gaming and who by the whole of his conduct and character gives just reason to believe that he gains his subsistence by illegal means [New York Cr. P. Code S. 973] The word "vagrant" has been defined in S. 3 of the European Vagrancy Act (IX of 1874)

34. Young man supported by his father is not a vagrant.—Where a young man out of house and him, he means of) S. 109.

35. Gambling habit—Opium smoking and gambling are not sufficient proof of vagrancy—[1 Bur. S. 246].

36. Living by means of Ring Game—It is not an offence under the Gambling Act, to conduct the ring game which can be honestly conducted. Consequently the mere fact that a person lives by means of that game, does not justify the conclusion that he has no ostensible means of subsistence. I.O. C. 702 See 6 C. J. 708 But See 6 A. J. 253.

37. What does not amount to vagrancy.

(1) Previous conviction for bad livelihood is no indication by itself of vagrancy—5 C. N. 25

(2) The mere fact that a person "does no work" does not necessarily imply that he has no ostensible means of livelihood—5 C. N. 25

(3) The fact that the accused is a member of a wandering tribe does not necessarily bring him within Cl (b) M. H. Pro 13-7-83. 2 Weir 53

38. Proof of want of ostensible means not sufficient by itself.

Mere proof of want of ostensible means of subsistence is not by itself a sufficient reason for issuing an order under S. 118 Cr. P. C. A Magistrate is bound by the Section to consider whether the order is really necessary in order to secure good behaviour which is a matter for the Magistrate's own judicial discretion [Rat 723. See 2 Weir 53]

VII. SATISFACTORY ACCOUNT—MEANING AND APPLICATION.

39. The meaning—The words "give a satisfactory account of himself" in S. 109 Cr. P. C. do not mean that a person spends his time or at least his leisure moments in a satisfactory manner—8 A. J. 1097.

40. Cl (b)—applies not only to vagrants but it covers suspected persons of any class, who can not give a satisfactory account of themselves [13 Cr.

239 (C)] The whole object of the second part of Cl (b) is to enable Magistrate to take action against suspicious strangers lurking within their jurisdiction [39 C. 456].

41. False explanation of presence under suspicious circumstances. Where the petitioner's occupation and residence within the Magistrate's jurisdiction is well known that the accused were residents of another District, were dealers in cattle, and had money of their own. Held—that the account given by the accused of themselves was reasonably satisfactory. 21 Cr 366(A)]

43. Association with bad Characters.—The accused, a man in the employment of the Municipality as a Peon whose occupation and residence are well known was bound down because he "prowls about at night, associates with scoundrels, bolts from the place, and is armed with and uses a lath." Held that the order was not justified. 5 A J 1097

44. Residence in the house of a dangerous political suspect. Where a person was found in a district other than that in which he resided, and in the house of a man who was suspected of being a dangerous political conspirator and to have collected a large amount of seditious literature. Held that an order requiring such person under S. 109 cl (b) to give an account of himself was justified. - 11 Cr 279 (C)

ND SURETIES.

it should not be regarded simply from the point of view of the motable property he possesses.—17 Cr 107 (C). 17 Cr 81 (C)

40. Second Security.—A second security cannot be demanded after the prisoner has served out

1 BUI 420

50. Security once accepted cannot be rejected.—When a surety offered by a person for good behaviour has once been accepted, the Magistrate has no power subsequently to cancel the bond on the ground that the surety is an unfit person and to demand a fresh bond.—1 C N. 394
28 P R 1901 : 16 P R 1805.

51. Magistrate of another district cannot enquire into fitness of surety.—A Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in one district has no jurisdiction to make an enquiry into the sufficiency of security required under S. 109 Cr. P. C. by a Magistrate of another District.—52 P. W. 1918
See 18 P. R. 1906 - 6 P R 1914

LLANEOUS.

54. S. 517 Cr P. C applies to proceedings under S. 109 Cr. P. C.—The Criminal Court has for sufficient cause, power to pass confiscation order in respect of property found upon the ore it in 117 Cr
that any

55. Appeal.—S. 406 Cr. P. C. gives a right of appeal from an order under S. 109 Cr. P. C.

110. Whenever a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, or Sub-divisional Magistrate Security for good behaviour for or a Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government receives information that any person within the local limits of his jurisdiction—

- (a) is by habit a robber, house-breaker or thief, or
- (b) is by habit a receiver of stolen property knowing the same to have been stolen, or
- (c) habitually protects or harbours thieves or aids in the concealment or disposal of stolen property, or
- (d) habitually commits mischief, extortion or cheating or counterfeiting coin, currency notes or stamps or attempts so to do, or
- (e) habitually commits or attempts to commit, or abets the commission of, offences involving a breach of the peace, or
- (f) is so desperate and dangerous as to render his being at large without security hazardous to the community, such Magistrate may, in manner hereinafter provided, require such person to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with sureties, for his good behaviour for such period, not exceeding three years, as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.

Proposed amendments to the Section—In section 110 of the said Code—

(i) In clause (i), the word "or," where it first occurs, shall be omitted, and after the word "thief" the words "or receiver," shall be inserted

(ii) For clause (i) the following clause shall be substituted, namely—

"(i) habitually commits the offence of kidnapping, extortion, cheating or mischief, or any offence punishable under Chapter XII of the Indian Penal Code, or habitually attempts so to do or."

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Object is to ensure future good behaviour, and not to punish for past offences.

1. The object of S 110 is the prevention, not the punishment, of crime, and to take good and sufficient security for the purpose of securing future good behaviour. Any attempt to use it for the purpose of punishing for past offences is wrong and not sanctioned by law. 31 C. 350 27 C 781; 1 C. L. 269 (271). 9 C. N. 898 (903) 17 C N. 238. 13 C N. 318. 20 Cr 30 (C) 10 M T. 333 3 M. 238; 6 B R 34 10 B 174. Rat 830 7 A 67 (72). 2 A 835 2 Weir 62. O S 73. 6 O C. 199. 28 P. R 1901. 23 P. 2. Note.—The intention of the law in the matter of sureties for good behaviour and so forth is not

(2) Section enacted for protecting society from habitual offenders.

3. The statutory provisions of S. 110 Cr P C were enacted by the Legislature for the purpose of of their estate the efficiency of which, very foolishly perhaps, they might not appreciate—Per Mookerjee J. 17 C N. 238. ('60) A N. 114

4. Section not limited to offences menacing safety—S 110 is not limited to offences in which the safety of property is menaced, but applies also to a case where the objects of the accused are primarily directed against the security of person only.

Con—17 C N 238. 2A 835.

(3) Great caution necessary in applying the provisions

5 (1) The preventive power with which the Magistrate is vested is a powerful means to secure the interests of the community from injury at the hands of hardened criminals of the most dangerous class. The very fact, however, renders it necessary that those powers should be exercised with caution and discretion. 17 C N 238 See 5 P R 1892

6 (2) A Magistrate can not be too cautious in making sure that proceedings are not utilized for wreaking private vengeance under the guise of a crown prosecution—Per Chatterji J 38 C 156 4 P. R. 1898

(4) Section should be put in motion in the interest of public welfare only.

7 The powers with which officers in charge of Police Stations and District Magistrates have been armed under the Code for the purpose of putting bad characters under restraint are exceptional powers, and should be put in motion with the greatest deliberation and only when the Magistrate is convinced of the absolute necessity of action in the interest of public welfare. 17 C N 238 1 C L 268 6 C 14; 39 C 156 See 2 Weir 52. 16 B 372 3 M 238; 14 A 45 5 P R 1892 4 N P 117 (193) A N 181 1 A J 616

(5) Offender to be put under substantial but not excessive security.

8 The object of the section is not to obtain money for the Crown by forfeiture of recognisance, but to ensure good behaviour [20 A 206]. Habitual and possible offenders should be put under such substantial but not excessive security as will prevent them from resorting to evil courses [(69) A N 114]. It is always to be borne in mind that the object is not to put the habitual offender into jail, but to secure his good behaviour outside [Cr R 17-4. 96].

(6) Distinction between a regular prosecution under the Penal Code and a prosecution under S. 110.

9. A person required to furnish security for good behaviour is not charged with an offence within the meaning of S. 44 I. P. C. [7 A. 67]. The exercise of powers under S. 110 is not confined to cases in which positive evidence is forthcoming of the commission of crime by persons against whom it is sought to enforce the law [3 M. 238]

Where there is direct evidence of the commission of an offence, a regular prosecution for the offence must be made; but where there is no direct evidence but only hearsay evidence amounting to evidence of general reports, action under S. 110 is to be taken [6 B R 34]. It is not necessary for the purposes of S. 110, that specific instances of crime should be given, for if specific instances are established, the accused should be charged with the offences under the I. P. C.—9 B R. 161 [See 1 C L 268. 27 C 781. 6 C N. 898]. But the section does not provide for the binding down of persons on an indefinite charge after prosecution against them on definite charges under the Penal Code has failed. [11 C N 413. 6 A. J. 487. 4 S. 70 Con—32 A. 51].

(7) Section should not be put to illegit. male use.

10. (1) Opportunity to police to detain suspects.—The section is not intended to afford the police an opportunity of detaining suspects until they are able to work out a case against them—10 A. J. 351. 12 A. J. 336. 43 P. R. 1885

11. (2) Unnecessary harassment.—The powers under the section should not be used to unnecessarily harass persons. It is incumbent on Magistrates to exercise the greatest caution and impartiality and to be careful not to be influenced by outside gossip and vague rumour 1 P R. 1898; See 30 P. L. 1916

(8) The section applies only to habitual criminals.

12. The section applies only to persons who habitually commit offences [24 W R 37]. It can not apply to persons of "a violent and turbulent character" [6 W R 6]

(9) The section is inapplicable when.

13. (1) The section is not intended to be applied to co-erce landlords, however recalcitrant, to adopt methods of management of their estates, the efficiency of which they might not appreciate 17 C N. 238

14. (2) The fact that a landlord has tenants of bad character, that he lends money or paddy when the latter are in difficulty, and because they are his tenants, and he settles disputes between two men, one of whom is a thief and the other is not, does not subject him to a proceeding under S. 110 Cr P. C.—6 C J. 711

15. (3) The section is inapplicable in the case of persons who as bar-badazars in a zemindari commit acts of extortion in the performance of their duties in the interests of their employers, and not in their own private capacities. The proper course for dealing with the case is to prosecute them for specific acts of oppression—27 C 781.

II. INFORMATION.

(1) No restriction as to source of information.

10. The Magistrate may initiate proceedings on information from any source; the Statute does not impose any restriction as to the quarter from which the information may be derived. The Magistrate is further not bound to reveal the source of his information; it is sufficient if he states the substance thereof as the Court must be bound as to the actual steps taken to examine the witnesses who will support the case by their evidence. 17 C N 238 240 242 243 244 245 246 247 248 249 250 251 252 253 254 255 256 257 258 259 260 261 262 263 264 265 266 267 268 269 270 271 272 273 274 275 276 277 278 279 280 281 282 283 284 285 286 287 288 289 290 291 292 293 294 295 296 297 298 299 300 301 302 303 304 305 306 307 308 309 310 311 312 313 314 315 316 317 318 319 320 321 322 323 324 325 326 327 328 329 330 331 332 333 334 335 336 337 338 339 340 341 342 343 344 345 346 347 348 349 350 351 352 353 354 355 356 357 358 359 360 361 362 363 364 365 366 367 368 369 370 371 372 373 374 375 376 377 378 379 380 381 382 383 384 385 386 387 388 389 390 391 392 393 394 395 396 397 398 399 400 401 402 403 404 405 406 407 408 409 410 411 412 413 414 415 416 417 418 419 420 421 422 423 424 425 426 427 428 429 430 431 432 433 434 435 436 437 438 439 440 441 442 443 444 445 446 447 448 449 450 451 452 453 454 455 456 457 458 459 460 461 462 463 464 465 466 467 468 469 470 471 472 473 474 475 476 477 478 479 480 481 482 483 484 485 486 487 488 489 490 491 492 493 494 495 496 497 498 499 500 501 502 503 504 505 506 507 508 509 510 511 512 513 514 515 516 517 518 519 520 521 522 523 524 525 526 527 528 529 530 531 532 533 534 535 536 537 538 539 540 541 542 543 544 545 546 547 548 549 550 551 552 553 554 555 556 557 558 559 560 561 562 563 564 565 566 567 568 569 570 571 572 573 574 575 576 577 578 579 580 581 582 583 584 585 586 587 588 589 590 591 592 593 594 595 596 597 598 599 600 601 602 603 604 605 606 607 608 609 610 611 612 613 614 615 616 617 618 619 620 621 622 623 624 625 626 627 628 629 630 631 632 633 634 635 636 637 638 639 640 641 642 643 644 645 646 647 648 649 650 651 652 653 654 655 656 657 658 659 660 661 662 663 664 665 666 667 668 669 670 671 672 673 674 675 676 677 678 679 680 681 682 683 684 685 686 687 688 689 690 691 692 693 694 695 696 697 698 699 700 701 702 703 704 705 706 707 708 709 710 711 712 713 714 715 716 717 718 719 720 721 722 723 724 725 726 727 728 729 730 731 732 733 734 735 736 737 738 739 740 741 742 743 744 745 746 747 748 749 750 751 752 753 754 755 756 757 758 759 760 761 762 763 764 765 766 767 768 769 770 771 772 773 774 775 776 777 778 779 780 781 782 783 784 785 786 787 788 789 790 791 792 793 794 795 796 797 798 799 800 801 802 803 804 805 806 807 808 809 810 811 812 813 814 815 816 817 818 819 820 821 822 823 824 825 826 827 828 829 830 831 832 833 834 835 836 837 838 839 840 841 842 843 844 845 846 847 848 849 850 851 852 853 854 855 856 857 858 859 860 861 862 863 864 865 866 867 868 869 870 871 872 873 874 875 876 877 878 879 880 881 882 883 884 885 886 887 888 889 890 891 892 893 894 895 896 897 898 899 900 901 902 903 904 905 906 907 908 909 910 911 912 913 914 915 916 917 918 919 920 921 922 923 924 925 926 927 928 929 930 931 932 933 934 935 936 937 938 939 940 941 942 943 944 945 946 947 948 949 950 951 952 953 954 955 956 957 958 959 960 961 962 963 964 965 966 967 968 969 970 971 972 973 974 975 976 977 978 979 980 981 982 983 984 985 986 987 988 989 990 991 992 993 994 995 996 997 998 999 1000

18. (1) A Magistrate shall not pass an order upon knowledge locked within his own breast and not put upon his oath or can be said to have personal knowledge as to the proceedings. 27 P R 1891. See G A 172.

19. (2) Although S. 110 does not expressly provide for a case under S. 110 still when a Magistrate institutes proceedings under S. 110 in some measure, if not mainly, on his own knowledge of the character of the accused, he is not the proper person to proceed with the case. See 27 C 302 4 Pat J 7 27 P R 1891. See 27 A 172.

20. (3) Conversations out of court with persons, however respectable, are not legal or proper material upon which to adopt proceedings under S. 110. G A 132. But See 27 A 172.

21. (4) The language of the section places no limit to the source of information. The language of S. 110 and 112 does not place any limit as to the source from which a Magistrate may derive his information regarding the accused. The sections are not controlled by Ss. 109 and 101 Cr P C. That the Magistrate has acted on private information can not, therefore, be a ground for applying for the transfer of such proceedings. See 27 A 172. See 17 C N. 238. Con.—29 C 392 4 Pat J 7 4 P. R 1898.

(3) Magistrate ought to sift the information.

22. (1) Although the information may be, to some extent, of hearsay and general description (G A.

132) a Magistrate ought to be careful not to act on information based on gossip and vague rumour [1 P R 1898 27 P R 1893]. He is bound to test the information even if the accused waives enquiry [(62-63) C B. 1]. A Magistrate need not confine himself to the information contained in the Police papers. He may take information on oath in the accused's presence.

23. A Magistrate is bound to set forth the substance of the information received, in his preliminary order.

(b) If the Magistrate's jurisdiction were confined to persons residing within local limits, it would defeat the object of the section.—i.e. prevention of crime, as then it would be impossible to deal with wandering gangs of criminals having no fixed residence, or with habitual thieves of desperate character belonging to foreign territories, who infest British India.—36 M 96 See 43 C. 153.

38. Magistrate not having local jurisdiction cannot act though directed by District Magistrate.—If the accused is not within the local limits of the Magistrate's jurisdiction, the Magistrate cannot proceed to deal with him, though he is ordered to do so by the District Magistrate who has local jurisdiction over the accused (18) M. B. Jurisdiction.

42. Jurisdiction is based solely on receipt of information.—A Magistrate has no jurisdiction of any kind to act under S 110 Cr P C, until he has such information before him as will suffice for his making an order in writing, setting forth its substance and the further particulars required by S 112 Cr. P. C.—12 A J 336

43. In the Punjab.—All First class Magistrates have been specially empowered to act under S 110 See Pan. Gaz Feby 3, 1892 Pt I p. 32

[Note: But the police can arrest such a person under S. 55 Cl. (C) Cr. P. C.—14 Cr. 619 (A)]

IV. PROCEEDING (PRELIMINARY ORDER).

1. Initiation of Proceedings.

51. (1) Condition Precedent. A Magistrate has no jurisdiction of any kind to act under S. 110 Cr. P. C. until he has such information before him as will suffice for his making an order in writing setting forth its substance and the further particulars required by S. 112 Cr. P. C.—12 A. J. 296

52. Proceedings are initiated as soon as the Magistrate draws up a proceeding in writing setting forth

- (1) the substance of the information received. (See (81) A. N. 15, 29 W. R. 43)
- (2) the amount of bond to be executed
- (3) the term for which it is to be in force
- (4) the number, character and class of sureties (if any) required. See S. 112

53. Magistrate may record evidence before making the preliminary order. 2 Weir 51

(2) The contents of the Preliminary Order.

54. (a) The substance of the information.

- (1) The Magistrate is not bound to reveal the source of his information if it is sufficient if he states the substance thereof. [17 C. N. 298, 35 C. 213, 20 C. 392, 27 A. 172] The setting forth of the information received from a police officer is a sufficient statement [35 C. 213] A Magistrate is bound to set forth the substance of the information received, in his preliminary order. Omission to do so is bad [12 A. J. 316] The preliminary order should not merely be a reproduction of the language of cl. (a) to (f) of S. 110 Cr. P. C. A notice under the section should be a sufficient indication of the time and place of the acts charged, with sufficient details to enable the accused to know what facts he has to meet.—Per Moore J [21 Cr. 354 (M)]—Con 35 C. 213]

55. The Magistrate should give notice to the party who is to be affected by the order, of the particular conduct on his part which is complained of.—11 C. 13, 21 W. R. 6; (81) A. N. 155, 17 P. W. 1910.

56. Amount of security required, etc.—The summons should distinctly specify the amount and nature of the security required, and the time for which the security is to run.—[20 W. R. 36] See 17 P. W. 1910

(3) Procedure.

57. Separate proceedings must be drawn up against each individual accused.—Where a general report is made by the police against a number of persons, the Magistrate should set the case against each, and proceed to pass an order against each, under S. 112 Cr. P. C. A 'whole sale' order is illegal.—2 Weir 55

59. Order must be signed, and not merely initiated.—The original order was only initiated, and not signed, by the Magistrate—held—that this was a material defect.—See 17 P. W. 1910

4. Is omission to draw up a proceeding fatal?

59. An omission on the part of the Magistrate to make an order in writing setting forth the substance of the information received etc is not in itself a fatal irregularity unless a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby.

Pro.—(91) A. N. 40, 8 C. 724; 15 W. R. 43, 11 B. R. 710, 10 O. C. 365, 20 Cr. 763 (N) Con.—30 M. 282; 17 M. J. 438; 2 Weir 55, 9 W. R. 16, 21 W. R. 6, 17 P. W. 1910, 18 P. W. 1910; 12 A. J. 336

[Note—Where the order is passed in open court in the presence of the parties, and they are fully informed of the grounds of the order, there is no necessity of issuing a summons.—3 B. L. (ap.) 29.]

5. Materials justifying proceeding.

60. (1) Previous conviction.—by itself not sufficient for initiation of proceedings.—17 C. N. 318, 12 C. 320, 10 B. 174; 2 A. 835.
61. (2) Materials of a trial which has terminated in acquittal.—Proceedings may be initiated.

11 C. N. 129

62. Second prosecution on nearly the same materials.—Where about a year before, the accused were prosecuted under S. 110 but discharged and a fresh case was started in which almost all the witnesses who figured in the first case gave evidence, and it was not proved in the subsequent proceeding "that since those orders were passed, the petitioners had acquired the reputation of being habitual thieves or receivers of stolen property, held—there is no sufficient proof on the record against the accused to justify an order for security 33 P. W. 1913, 19 C. N. 223.

63. Proceeding under S. 110 taken after issuing notice under S. 107 Cr. P. C. See (13) Allied Sections

V. NOTICE.

1. What the notice should contain.

64. A notice which does not set forth the substance of the information received by the Magistrate as required by S 112 Cr P C is utterly void [12 A J 336]. Notices under S 110 must contain something more than a reproduction of the clauses of the section. There should be sufficient indication of the time and place of the acts charged, and sufficient details which would enable the accused to know what facts he has to meet, but it is not necessary to give a list of witnesses [35 C 243 ('18) M N 751].

2. Procedure.

65. Every summons or warrant under S 114 shall be accompanied by a copy of the preliminary order made under S 112, and such copy shall be delivered by the officer serving or executing such summons or warrant to the person served with, or arrested under, the same (vide S 115 Cr P C).

[See Ss 69, 70, 71 Cr P C (Summons) and S 75 to 86 Cr P C (Warrant)] See 20 W R 36. Proceedings were set aside on the ground that the notice was not personally served upon the person to whom it was given—18 P. W. 1910.

66. Return of service.—The serving officer in certifying service must also certify the date of the copy of the order. See S 70 and 71 Cr C. as to service of summons.
67. Service of notice, condition precede to jurisdiction.—Notice to show cause under S 112 Cr P. C. must be served before a magistrate can pass an order requiring security.—9 W R 6.
68. Sufficient time should be given.—1 notice should give the accused sufficient time to produce evidence.—20 W. R. 18.
3. Notice should be issued only after a consideration of the materials before the Magistrate.
69. The issue of a Notice under S. 110 Cr P being a judicial act to be exercised after a consideration of the materials placed before the Magistrate, and not merely an executive order to be passed as a matter of course on the complaint by the police. ('18) M. N. 751.

VI. ENQUIRY AND PROCEDURE.

A.—Enquiry.

(1) Showing cause.

70. Meaning of "showing cause."

"I am wholly unable to accept this contention, nor am I able to understand the English phrase "to show cause" as implying that the Legislature intended that all the fundamental principles of jurisprudence in connection with criminal cases should, by dint of such an ambiguous phrase, be reversed. It is not for him who is free and who has not transgressed the law, to show why he should remain free and why his freedom should not be qualified, it is for him who wishes to take away that freedom or wishes to qualify it to establish circumstances which by the force of law would operate either in defeasance or in derogation of that freedom"—Mahmood, J 9 A 452.

72. Magistrate's record must show parties had opportunity of showing cause.

parties were not heard, but were simply directed to execute recognizance. ('61) A. N. 155 See 11 C 13.

73. Reasonable time should be allowed.

74. Ex parte order can not be made on failure to show cause.

Even where the accused on being required to show cause, fails to do so, an ex parte order under the section binding him down can not be made in the absence of evidence. Rat 585.

(2) Accused to come ready with evidence.

75. The person who is called upon to show cause for bad behaviour must be ready with his evidence at the time of the notice; if not, he cannot be taken into custody.

when he appears, to apply at once for summons to the witness he proposes to call. 9 B R 13. See 23 W R 9 (Per Anislie, J).

(3) Onus on the prosecution.

(5) Nature and Scope of the Enquiry. Nature of Enquiry.

81. The enquiry must be a judicial enquiry and the order should be passed upon legal evidence duly taken. 1 C 1, 48, 4 M H (ap) 22, 10 W R 46, 11 W R 50, 18 W R 21, 18 W R 16, 20 W R 18, 5 B R 106, 6 B R 111, 8 B R, 162, (81) A N 155.

Since the case has come into Court, S 117 provides that the enquiry is to be conducted as a judicial enquiry. 10 P R 1809.]

82. Scope of the enquiry.

I am constrained to point out that it is desirable that very clear and full evidence with as much detail as possible, should be required by the Magistrate before his making an order under S 118 read in conjunction with S 110 Magistrates can not be too careful before passing orders to require, and to place upon record, evidence of cogent convincing and reliable kind, and they are not to make up for carelessness, supineness or incompetence on the part of the Police to bring home a specific crime to a particular person, calling on the accused to find an amount of security which he can not provide and then, by reason of his default, commit him to jail"—Straight, J. (89) A N 114.

B.—Procedure.

(1) As in warrant cases.

83. "Such enquiry shall be made as nearly as may be practicable where the order requires security for good behaviour, in the manner herein after prescribed for conducting trials and recording evidence in warrant cases except that no charge need be framed."

See 117(2) Cr P C, 11 C 800, 10 A J 383, 12 C 89 (L B).

84. Order passed under S. 112 is equivalent to a charge.

In security cases, the order passed by the Magistrate under S 112 is equivalent to a charge in warrant cases and the person against whom the order is made is fully aware of what is alleged against him [1 P R 1916]. The accused should be clearly informed of the accusation which he has to meet [11 C 13 (81) A N 155, 8 Bar T. 53]. The Magistrate is bound to ask the accused if they can show cause why they should not be required to execute bond. [7 M T. 304].

What the order under S. 112 must contain.—Notices under S 110 must contain something more than a reproduction of the clauses of the section. There should be sufficient indication of the time and place of acts charged, and sufficient details which would enable the accused to know what facts he is to meet, but it is not necessary to give a list of witnesses. [35 C. 243 Ed. J. (18) M. N. 751.

3. Cross examination of prosecution witnesses.

(1) Opportunity to cross-examine.—Witnesses have the presence of opportunity of. 2 N. P.

The record should show whether the accused wished to cross examine any of the witnesses for the prosecution already examined, and should, if he wishes, be allowed to cross-examine them. 12 Cr 89 (L B).

(2) Defendant must be examined.

87. The accusation must be clearly explained to the accused [S 113, 11 C 13].

The accused should be given an opportunity of making a statement. (68) M H. (ap) 22, 7 M T. 304.

[Note—It is misleading to ask the accused, "Are you willing to execute the bond required, or do you wish for further enquiry?" 34 M. 139. In the case of a joint-trial, the case of each accused must be individually examined. 4 P. R. 1909, 15 O C 263. See 34 M. 139.

88. The accused should be questioned as to his means and intention of earning an honest livelihood. 10 B. 174.

Accused's admission, "I am of bad character and have been to jail," is not sufficient. 6 B. R. 269.

(3) Procedure on Admission.

89. If the accused admits the truth of the allegations against him, and the facts so admitted bring him within the purview of the section, the Magistrate should record the statement as nearly as possible in the words used by the accused. He may bind him over on the basis of the admission. [11 W. R. 50 (51), 17 M. J. 438]. But there is a consensus of opinion that he can not do so without recording any evidence and without enquiring into the truth of the allegations. [35 C. 674, 7 N. P. 223, 30 M. 330, See 34 M. 139, 10 A J 383, 3 B. R. 269, (02-03) U. B. 1.]

(4) Prosecution witnesses cannot be cross-examined a second time.

90. It is beyond dispute that S. 256, Cr. P. C. which gives the accused a right of double cross-examination, is confined in its operation, to warrant cases, and that it does not apply proprio iure to security proceedings.

In security cases, the order passed by the Magistrate under S. 112 is equivalent to a charge in warrant cases, and the person against whom the order is made, is fully aware of what is alleged against him. The evidence is thereafter recorded in his presence, and he has every reasonable opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses. There is consequently no conceivable reason why he should be allowed the right of a second cross-examination, and why he should thereby protract the proceedings unnecessarily. The reason which underlies the rule as to double cross-examination is absent here, and the principle of cessante ratine legis cessat ipsa lex is fully applicable." Shadi Lal J.

96. Under Sub-S. 2 of S 117, a case under S 11 to be conducted as if it were a warrant case, the procedure to be observed in the trial of a warrant case is laid down in Ss. 231 to 256 Cr P. According to the said sections, an accused can be called upon to enter on his defence until prosecution closes its case. No further evidence can be admitted against the accused except as S 540 for which there must be valid reasons which must be recorded. 10 A. J. 353

97. Opportunity to produce defence evidence must be given.

A person who has such a serious charge alle against him as an accusation under S 110 P C must have time to bring his witnesses have their evidence recorded. Where such opportunity has not been given, the proceedings must be set aside. 41 C. 806

A doubt on this point has been raised in L B 49 where it has been held that the clause does not apply. But this view has not been accepted elsewhere. (A) Evidence of General Repute

- 117. Hearsay evidence. Hearsay evidence amounting to evidence of general repute is admissible for the purposes of proceedings under Chapter VIII. 6 B R 14, 5 L B 72 (74). See 3 M 238, 9 B R 164, 19 C 269 (A), 10 M T 334, 17 C N 248, Cr R 36 of 12th May 1903, Com 138) M N 751.

Note. The evidence admissible under this section is not confined to positive evidence of the commission of crime. 3 M 238, 17 C N 248, 10 M T 447, 6 B R 14, Cr R 36 of 12th May 1903.

- 118. Evidence not legally admissible must not be brought on record. S 110 read with S 117 gives the Magistrate extensive powers, but these powers should be exercised with scrupulous care. Materials not legally admissible should not be brought on the record. 23 Cr 689 (A).

- 119. Exception. But evidence of general repute is no proof for the purposes of a case under Cr (f) 24 C 779, 27 C 11, 13 C N 241, 11 C N 189, 5 C N 244, Rev No 448 of 1903 (C), 13 A 372, 13 A J 112, 12 A J 937, 13 Cr 9 (A), 25 A 273, 44 M 255, (11) M N 34, 21 Cr 354 (M), 6 B R 34, 9 C (13), 19 Cr 871 (N), 8 P C 1907, 8 Bur T 53.

- 120. Evidence of general repute though unsupported by evidence of particular instances of crime is admissible.—27 C, 781, 31 C 370, 43 P R 1887, 9 B R 164, 10 P R 1894. But see below.

- 121. Evidence based on mere belief.—Evidence relating to mere beliefs and opinions without reference to acts or instances which have indicated the witnesses to form the opinion, can hardly be regarded as evidence of repute. 43 M 450, 49 C 1129, 35 C, 243, 29 C 770, Com 3 M 219.

- 122. Evidence of general repute admissible only as proof of habitual offences.—It is only in the case of a person who is a habitual offender and is called upon to furnish security for good behaviour that the fact of his being a habitual offender may be proved by evidence of general repute.—25 A 273, 8 M T 347.

- 123. Distinction between general reputation and rumours.—It is hardly necessary to say that evidence of rumour is mere hearsay evidence and hearsay evidence of a particular fact. Evidence of repute is a totally different thing. A man's general reputation is the reputation which he bears in the place in which he lives amongst all the townsmen; and if it is proved that a man who lives in a particular place is looked upon by his fellow-townsmen, whether they happen to know him or not, as a man of good repute, that is strong evidence that he is a man of that character. On the other hand, if the state of things is that the body of his fellow-townsmen who know him look upon him as a dangerous man and a man of bad habits, that is strong evidence that he is a man of bad character; but to say that, since there are rumours in a particular among a certain class of people that a man done particular acts or has characteristic in certain kind, these rumours are in themselves evidence under this section, is to say what it does not justify us in saying; and consequently we think that the evidence of general repute in this case is evidence of little or no value. Per Petheram C J, in 21 C 621 (625). See 903, 35 C 243, 21 Cr 354 (M) & 1 A J 1 A J 616, 10 A J 353, (64) A N 18, L B 71, 1 L B 90, 10 C 168, 50 C 20, Cr 542 (B).

- 124. Evidence of general repute need not necessarily be evidence given only by neighbours.—Evidence of general repute given by people of the village where the facts had taken place is certainly to be treated as evidence of general repute required by 35 C 243. See 11 C N 789, (18) M N 751.

- 125. When the accused is a well-known resident of a city his fellow citizens do not bring in the neighbourhood are common witnesses to prove his general repute. [1 N 789]

Note.—A contrary view indicated in 23 C 621 C 903, (703) A N 181, 10 C 168.

- 126. Evidence of witnesses speaking matters within personal knowledge must be given.—Vague and general statements that a man is a habitual offender are insufficient evidence on which an accused person is liable to be bound down under S 110 P. C. The evidence of repute must be the denance of persons who are speaking to me within their personal knowledge and not mere hearsay. 1 A J 616, 20 Cr 354 (19 C 69), (18) M N 751, 27 C 779, 8 Bur T, See 8 C N 513, 13 A J 412.

- 127. Mere Evidence of suspicion insufficient. The mere statement of witnesses that they suspect or are under the impression the persons proceeded against are thieves or deacons where no fact is mentioned to indicate that there is sufficient reason for the suspicion or impression is not sufficient for the purposes of S 110 Cr. P. C. 11 C N 113, 2 P R 18 (18) M N 751, 215 P L 1915, See 6 C 14, 372, 11 A J 461, (65) A N 34, 1 C L 21, 1 Bur. S. R. 422, 8 Bur T 53, 1 A J 611, 21 Cr 1907, 12 Cr 542 (B), 20 P. Specific instances of crime in which the accused suspected were not good evidence and cannot be said to fall within the meaning of "general repute" under S 117 Cr. P. C. - 128. [Note.]—But evidence need not necessarily be evidence of the commission of definite offences by the accused. [10 P. R. 1894, 3 M 239]. In C. 1128, although the High Court held that there were grounds for suspecting that the accused were members of a gang of pick-pockets.

139. Intention of returning to dishonest course must be proved.—The fact, therefore, of a person having been convicted on a former occasion will not justify his being treated as a habitual offender under this Chapter, unless it is shown that since his release, he has indicated an intention of returning to a dishonest course of livelihood. O S 70 23 P L 1907; 29 P. R 1910 2 A 835 G A 132. See G W R 18 ('11) M N 355 C H Pro 29-7-62 12 C. 520: 10 B 174

140. Proof should be of habitual offence, and not merely bad character.—It is not sufficient that a person is a 'bad character, it must be proved that he is a habitual offender. The mere statement of the accused, 'I am a bad character, and have been to jail' is not sufficient [3 B R 266]. The section does not apply to 'a by no means reputable character' [6 C 14]. See also 29 C 779 Rat 44

141. Proof of habit.—It is necessary to prove habit by an aggregate of similar acts [1 Weir. 452 36 P W 1912]. The evidence that some of the several accused who have been charged with dacoity were 36 P W 1912] Evidence of general repute is not of much value, unless the witnesses can adduce instances of the misconduct imputed [3 M 235]. To constitute a habitual offender within the meaning of the section it is necessary that subsequent offences charged should have been committed by the accused after the previous conviction [Rat. 143]. The fact of a person having been convicted on a former occasion will not justify his being treated as a habitual offender.

10 B 174] were evidence of general repute as a habitual offender will not do, unless it is so overwhelming as to leave no doubt in the mind of the Magistrate [Rat 639]

[2 B R 57] proof of actual previous conviction

143. Evidence should be carefully tested.—Where actual convictions are not relied on, great care should be taken to test the evidence on behalf of the prosecution with a view to ascertain what their witnesses' means of knowing the facts stated by them may be, e.g., 'the accused's movements, his constant companions, his way of earning his livelihood, his antecedents, etc.' 2 B R 57 1 Bur. S 512 35 C 241 20 Cr. 689 (1)

144. Evidence of witnesses examined in batches.—Where the witnesses for the prosecution were examined in three batches on three different dates, and the evidence of the witnesses on the first two dates were of little help to the prosecution, the evidence of the witnesses examined the last date is open to suspicion, and should be received with great caution. 12 Cr. 542 (9)

See C. No. above

145. Is proof of specific acts necessary?
There is a conflict of rulings on this point. Bombay [See 9 B R. 164], it has been held, a finding, that the accused person was by general repute a habitual offender committing mischief and protecting thieves, is sufficient to support an action being taken under S 110 Cr P. C. It is not necessary to give or establish specific instances of such offences. [See also 12 P R 189] A contrary view is taken in 27 C 779 [See a Rat 44 which was decided in 1870]. In S C 543, it was held that the evidence must be of a nature as would lead to a reasonable and sufficient ground for coming to the conclusion that the accused is a habitual thief [See O S 70: 43 1125]. Where two sub-Inspectors and some private witnesses say that the accused has been a man of bad character, but it is not very clear from their evidence what exactly he has been doing and how he has been living since the occasion on which he ceased to be on parole—held—that there was an absence of proof that the accused had in recent times lived a reputable life—[30 P. It is not sufficient to give general evidence as to bad character. Facts must be established to show that the accused had done something or taken some step indicating an intention to commit any of the offences mentioned in the various clauses, or indicating the formation of a habit falling within the scope of the section. So where the only evidence on record consisted of accused's confession that he was of bad character and had been in jail—the Court held that, that did not prove that the accused was a habitual thief [3 B. R. 260]. See also 1 Bur. 422 5 W. R. 2 5 P. R. 1892; 4 P. L. 211 6 A. 132 23 C. 621 6 A. 214 24 W. R. 37.

(6) Evidence under Sub-clause (c).

155. Evidence of intention.—In order to amount to "harbouring or protecting thieves" [cl. (c)] the acts must be done with the intention of screening the offenders from punishment, and with the object of preventing them from being apprehended.

U. B. (1916) 64

150. Employment of bad characters.—The fact that the applicant employed or associated with two ex-convicts one of whom was subsequently sent to jail, or that he employed or associated with two persons who were reputed to be thieves and one of the latter was convicted for committing dacoity at the applicant's house, it was held that in neither case, there was protection or harbouring within the meaning of S. 110 (c) Cr. P. C. [U. B. (1916) 1 q. 4]

157. Alleged place of concealment not private property of accused.—A manager of a public shrine which does not belong to him and is freely open to the public and which is used generally as a gambling resort, can not be proceeded against because some thieves have been arrested there on several occasions [37 P. W. 1910]

158. Occasional visits to the kothar of the accused.—Where the evidence amounted to nothing more than that persons said to be of bad character, had been seen on occasions at the kothar where the accused did his work,—held that it did not justify the Magistrate in holding that the accused habitually protected and harboured thieves. 15 O. C. 263

159. Shelter given out of motives of humanity.—A person who from mere motive of humanity and without any intention of enabling the fugitive to escape from justice gives food to a starving man and surgical assistance to a wounded man even with full knowledge of his character, can not be bound under cl. (c)

(1910) U. B. 64

160. Failure to actively oppose dacoits.—"It must be borne in mind that neither the applicant (Zemindar of the village) nor any of his villagers could be bound down merely because they did not actively oppose the dacoits. It would be very well if the Zemindar and others recognised their duty to give assistance to the Police, when gangs of dacoits settle in their neighbourhood, but their omission to do so does not render them liable under S. 110. There is no evidence that the applicant is in the habit of harbouring thieves"—Richards, C. J.

(7) Evidence under sub-clause (d).

161. Habitual extortion.—Habitual extortion within cl. (d) must be committed by an accused as an individual member of the community. If he commits these acts as servant or agent for the benefit of his master, the clause will not apply. 11 C. N. 789 See 27 C. 781.

162. Habitual cheating.—When the question is

163. Person who brings false Civil Courts by means of forged documents.—The obtaining of decrees by forged documents is an offence under S. 309 C., but is neither cheating nor extortion as

139. Intention of returning to dishonest course must be proved.—The fact, therefore, of a person having been convicted on a former occasion will not justify his being treated as a habitual offender under this Chapter, unless it is shown that since his release, he has indicated an intention of returning to a dishonest course of livelihood. O S 70 23 P. L. 1807 29 P. R. 1910 2 A 835 G A 132 Ser G W R 18: (11) M N 355 C II Pio 29-7-82 12 C 520 IO B 174

140. Proof should be of habitual offence, and not merely bad character.—It is not sufficient that a person is a 'bad character,' it must be proved that he is a habitual offender. The mere statement of the accused, "I am a bad character, and have been to jail is not sufficient [3 B R 269] The section does not apply to a by no means reputable character [6 C 14] See also 29 C 779 Rat 44

141. Proof of habit.—It is necessary to prove habit by an aggrege of similar acts [1 Weir 452 36 P W 1912] The evidence that some of the several accused who have been charged with dacoity were previously convicted of theft is not sufficient to convict all the accused with association for habitually committing the offence, even if the evidence were admissible [27 C 139 (132) See 9 P R 1880 36 P W 1912] Evidence of general repute is not of much value, unless the witnesses can adduce instances of the misconduct imputed [3 M 238] To constitute a habitual offender within the meaning of the section it is necessary that subsequent offences charged should have been committed by the accused after the previous conviction [Rat 144] The fact of a person having been convicted on a former occasion will not justify his being treated as a habitual offender, unless it be shown that since his release he has indicated an intention of returning to a dishonest course of livelihood [O S 70] Mere evidence of general repute as a habitual offender will not do, unless it is so overwhelming as to leave no doubt in the mind of the Magistrate. [Rat 639]

142. Proof of actual previous conviction unnecessary.—In a case under S 110 Cr P C it is not enough to prove by evidence of general character that a man is by repute a habitual thief, robber or house breaker. It must further be convicted by proof of actual previous conviction [2 B R 57]

143. Evidence should be carefully tested.—Where actual convictions are not relied on, great care should be taken to test the evidence on behalf of the prosecution with a view to ascertain what their witnesses' means of knowing the facts stated by them may be, e.g. the accused's movements, his constant companions, his way of earning his livelihood, his antecedents, etc 2 B R 57. 1 Bur 4 512. 35 C 243; 29 Cr. 689 (1)

144. Evidence of witnesses examined in batches.—Where the witnesses for the prosecution were examined in three batches on three different dates, and the evidence of the witnesses on the first two dates were of little help to the prosecution, the evidence of the witnesses examined on the last date is open to suspicion, and should be received with great caution 12 Cr. 642 (9). Past misconduct as proof of the formation of habit.

See C No above.

145. Is proof of specific acts necessary?—There is a conflict of rulings on this point. In Bombay [See 9 B R 164], it has been held that a finding, that the accused person was by general repute a habitual offender committing mischief and protecting thieves, is sufficient to support action being taken under S 110 Cr. P. C. It is not necessary to give or establish specific instances of such offences. [See also 12 P R. 1892] A contrary view is taken in 27 C 779 [See also Rat 44 which was decided in 1870]. In S C N 543, it was held that the evidence must be of such a nature as would lead to a reasonable and definite ground for coming to the conclusion that the accused is a habitual thief [See O S. 70; 43 C 1129] Where two sub-Inspectors and several private witnesses say that the accused has been a man of bad character, but it is not very clear from their evidence what exactly he has been doing and how he has been living since the last occasion on which he ceased to be on surveillance—held—that there was an absence of proof that the accused had in recent times lived a disreputable life—[30 P L 1916]

148. What the Magistrate is to ascertain from witnesses.—Magistrates ought, specially when no conviction is proved, to take great care to test the evidence for the prosecution. The Magistrate should ascertain (1) what the witnesses' means of knowing anything about the accused are, (2) whether the accused is known to have associated with criminals, (3) whether he has frequently been known to have been near the place where thefts etc. have been committed; (4) whether he has any, and what, means of livelihood; (5) whether there has been any quarrel in which the accused was concerned which would supply a motive for bringing a false charge, and (6) whether any instances of the commission of

171. Evidence of general repute not admissible under Cl. (f)—S. 7(1) General repute. No. 119 above

172. Evidence must be specific.

(2) To prove a charge under Cl. (f) of S. 110, there should be proof of specific acts showing that the accused, to the knowledge of some particular individual is a dangerous or desperate character. It is not sufficient that persons, however respectable, should come forward and depose that they have heard that such person is a thief and dangerous character, when they themselves have no personal knowledge of, or acquaintance with, him—29 C 779 34 M. 255. 25 A 273 9 O. 190. Evidence should be tested by quality, and not by quantity.—Evidence should, as a rule, be tested by its quality rather than by its quantity, and where the quality on both sides is indifferent, the prosecution must fail. When the quality is good on both sides, the case must fail, if the evidence for the defence altogether outweighs that for the prosecution. 4 P. R. 1898. 11 A J 461

VIII. PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS AND ACQUITTAL.

A. Previous Convictions.

224. Previous conviction is not substantive evidence.

Previous convictions are not substantive evidence in a case under S 110 Cr P C though they may have an effect in deciding for what length of time the accused is to be bound down—13 C N 318, 10 B 174, 2 A 835, 12 C 520.

Note.—Evidence of previous conviction for offences is admissible as evidence of 'habit'.

See 38 C 404, 3 P R 1915, 15 I C 811.

225. Magistrate's duty when no previous conviction.

Magistrates ought, specially where no previous conviction is proved, to take great care to test the evidence for the prosecution and to assure themselves beyond reasonable doubt that the accused is really a habitual offender of the class named—1 Bur S R 512, 2 B R 57, 12 C N 290.

See 43 C 1124.

226. Previous conviction must be legally proved.

Whenever it is required to prove a previous conviction, whether it be for the purpose of enhancement of punishment under S 75 I P C or in proceedings under Chapter VIII Cr P C, such previous conviction must be proved strictly and in accordance with law. Unless they are so proved no Court, whether it be that of a Presidency Magistrate or not, can properly take such previous convictions into consideration as against an accused person. 43 C 1125.

227. Proof of previous conviction.

Previous conviction can not be proved by the mere production of an extract from the jail register and certified copies of previous convictions, without proof of identity. 43 C 1124.

228. Additional evidence to show an intention to return to former course of life necessary.

"The mere fact that the person, from whom the security was demanded, had been previously convicted of offences against property is not, in itself, sufficient to justify proceedings under S 110 Cr P C, unless there is additional evidence that the person complained against has done some act or resumed avocations which indicate on his part an intention to return to his former course of life and to pursue a career of preying on the community."—Straitt, J. 2 A 835; 6 W R 14, 12 C 520, 10 B 174, 6 A 132. 232. Judgment of acquittal establishes innocence of the accused.

A judgment of acquittal fully establishes the innocence of the accused, and a criminal proceeding which ended in the acquittal of the accused can not be relied on by the Crown as evidence of bad character in a subsequent proceeding under S 110 Cr P C against him 17 C N 248, 16 C N. 69 O S 70 53 P. 237. Unsuccessful trial for Dacoity.

A person was convicted by the Sessions Judge charge of dacoity but was acquitted by the Judicial Commissioner's Court. The Magistrate thought it important that the had been convicted by the Sessions Judge though afterwards acquitted on appeal mainly, if not solely on the basis of the evidence in the Sessions case which was rejected as reliable and insufficient by the Appellate bench him over under S 110 (f) Cr. Theitioner was tried in 1910 and 1915 for murder was acquitted on both occasions, in the first by the Court of Session, and in the second by Punjab Chief Court. Held that having been acquitted in two capital cases, it was clear that the eye of law, he must be held to be innocent and the Magistrate was therefore in error in trying to, and relying on, the above two criminal trials as showing that the petitioner was a dangerous person 8 P. IX. LOCUS PENITENTIAE.

240. The greatest criminal entitled to locus penitentiae.

(1) The greatest thief is entitled to locus penitentiae, when he has served out his punishment. It is only when he outrages that grace which is extended to him, and thereby shows that he is reformed, that the machinery of the Act should be brought into operation in order to obtain a substantial guarantee for society that he will not commit further depredations upon it 2 A 633 (837) (15) P. X. FINAL ORDER.

(1) Final order should correspond with preliminary order.

242. The final order must correspond with the notice to show cause under S. 112 and should not impose conditions as to the amount, nature and period of the security which were not entered in the original order. (18) A N 276 41 R 135 26 M 471 9 B L. (ip) 41 7 M T 182 11 O C 267 19 P W 1910 25 W R 50 11 P W 1907. See S. 118 proviso (1)

[Note. In cases where heavier security is deemed necessary, the Magistrate ought to issue fresh summons. 9 B L. (ip) 41]

243. Final order is illegal when necessary formalities have not been observed.

(2) Requisites of a valid final order.

- (1) When substance of the information received as required by S. 112 Cr. P. C. has not been given in the notice. 17 P W 1910 18 P W 1910
(2) When the notice has not been personally served on the person to whom it is given. 18 P W 1910 30 M 282. See also 2 W R 56 Rat 421.
244. Final order cannot be made on the basis of a notice under S. 107 Cr. P. C. Where the notice requires a person to show cause why he should not be bound to keep the peace, order can not be made binding him to be of good behaviour. 25 C 708. See 30 M 282 (per rema).
245. Final order cannot be made ex parte. Order cannot be made ex parte without enquiry and proof even in cases where the accused, on being required to show cause, fails to do so. Rat 585. See 1 C L 48 9 A 152

246. Final order must be based on clear and legal evidence.—Order must be based on discretion is not confined to cases in which positive evidence is forthcoming of the commission of crime by the accused. 3 M 288

247. Magistrate should give reasons for the finding based on legal proof.—The mere finding that a person was of bad character is not sufficient for landing down the accused. 8 M T 246 10 B 174. See 27 C 656

248. Note.—A Magistrate making an order under this section, or a Sessions Judge confirming the same under S. 121, is bound to find a specific ground on which the order may be based. When there is a finding in general terms, e.g. that the order is required in the interests of the community at large, such finding is not sufficient for the purposes of S. 110. 27 C. 656 [See also 5 L. B. 72]. But a finding that the accused was by general repute a habitual offender is sufficient to support the order. It is not necessary to give or establish specific instances. 9 B R 161

249. Order must show that Judge has considered the case of each individual prisoner.—In cases of joint enquiry under S. 110 Cr. P. C. each accused is entitled to an entirely independent examination of his own case. There must be a separate finding against each accused. 37 C 91 35 C 929 4 P R 1909 1 P R 195 25 P W 1909

250. Magistrate should discuss evidence of either side in the judgment.—30 P R 1916. When evidence on both sides is of an indifferent and interested character, the prosecution must fail. 4 P R 1898 27 P R 1903.

251. What is not sufficient evidence for the purposes of an order under S. 110. Persons cannot be bound down on mere evidence of suspicion when sufficient reasons for the suspicion are not given [11 C N. 413]. Mere association with men of bad character is not sufficient, unless the association is for the purpose of committing any of the offences enumerated in the Section [6 C J 711]. Nor is evidence of witnesses who say that they began to suspect the accused since he was tried for, but acquitted of, a charge of dacoity, sufficient [11 C N. 129]

(3) Miscellaneous.

252. Persons liable to be prosecuted under the Penal Code should not be bound down.—In a case where certain persons are liable to be prosecuted for acts of extortion committed by them, an order requiring them to any honours from the Government is not necessarily not respectable [Cr R 9 of 1902]. The High Court altered the terms of the security by substituting the words "persons of respectability and substance" for the words "respectable land holders" in Rat 876.

(6) Who may be sureties.

- 267 (i) Pairabikar.—Friends although they might have evidenced their interest in the accused by helping him in his defence.—16 A 1 263.
- 268 (i) Ex-convict. The fact that the proposed surety has on one occasion been convicted of offences under Ss 147 and 325.1 P C does not of itself render him for ever afterwards unfit for being a surety. 25 A 189. See 21 C—365 (A).
269. (i) Caste-fellows. Sureties should not be rejected merely on the ground that they are caste fellows or relatives of the accused [16 B R 38 S 8 173]. The mere fact that the surety belongs to the same tribe as the accused is no disqualification. Cr R 21 of 11.3.01.

(7) Magistrate should not impose arbitrary conditions.

- 270(a) The amount should not be excessive. A Magistrate should consider the station in life of the person concerned and should not go beyond a sum for which there is a fair probability of his being able to find security [1 M R (ap) 16 2 C 384 22 W R 37 21 A 80 5 S 10 16 B 372].

The means of the accused should be considered in fixing the amount [6 C 14 2 C 110 2 C 384 1 C L 264 22 W R 74 19 W R 1 23 A 80 (90) A N 204 16 B 372 1 M H (ap) 46 1 P R 1883 30 P R 1890 17 P R 1900 24 P R 1900 30 P R 1900 28 P R 1901 60 C 199].

- 271 Note.—Amounts considered excessive—

19 W R 1 [One in sum of Rs 50,000, two, Rs 10,000 each, and three, Rs 4,000 each]
22 W R 74 [One in sum of Rs 10,000 with two sureties of Rs 5,000 each]
2 C 110 [Bonds amounting altogether to upwards of Rs 60,000]
1 C L 204 [Security of Rs. 20,000 in 4 sureties of Rs 5,000 each]
1 M H (ap) 46 [Security of three persons in two sureties of Rs 500 each] 16 B 372 [A bond for Rs 500 for one year with sureties for the like amount]

- 272 Note.—The High Court will reduce the amount of security if unreasonably excessive.—16 B 372. 21 A 80 28 P R 1901 2 C 384. 5 S 10.

- 273(b) Magistrate should not rule out a security merely on the ground of relationship.

A Magistrate has no right to impose an arbitrary condition requiring that the sureties to be furnished must not be related to the person bound down [22 W R 37 10 C N 1027 4 C N 707 25 A 131 16 B R 134. 6 O C, 189 39 P R 1880 24 P R 1900 6 P R 1914 8 S 173 1 S 3 (14) L B II 44—Con—24 C 155]. A little reflection will show that a relation is more likely than any other person to have influence over a man, and will be able to keep an eye on him. In short relationship is a recommendation [6 P R 1914 25 A 131].

- 274(c) A surety is not necessarily unfit because he is not a neighbour.—There is some divergence of opinion on this point. Residence in the neighbourhood at least at a place not far off from the place where the accused resides, has been deemed necessary, because otherwise the surety is not likely to be able to exercise any control over the accused [See 24 A 47 20 A 206 (98) A N 109 1 B R 529]. But later rulings are against the imposition of such restrictions [See 10 A. J. 354 15 A J 845 16 A J 263 14 Cr 214(A) 21 C 377 B] 17 Cr 95(C). See (15) U B II. 863. In S A J 785 it was held that "if the Magistrate is satisfied that the surety is able to exercise proper influence over the accused, it is immaterial where that person may reside."

- 275(d) Ability to exercise control over the accused.

The much debated point—Should the surety be able to control the accused?—has been the subject of discussion in quite a host of rulings. The preponderance of judicial opinion seems to be now on the side of the negative, that is to say, it is not a necessary condition for the fitness of a surety that he should be able to control the accused [43 C 1024 37 C 146 37 C 91 35 C 100 (401) 6 C N. 593 1 C N. 797 4 C N. 130 15 C. 254 (C) 16 B R 198 10 A J 374 14 Cr 214 (A) 11 O C 267 6 O C 199 24 P R 1900 1 S 14 (14) U B II 44]. The contrary view has been taken in 20 A 206 21 A. 471 (98) A N 199 (95) A N 143 12 A J 785 44 C. 747 11 C 764 24 C. 155 13 C N. 80 1 S 46 3 S 230 8 S 229 8 Bar T. 53].

- 276 [Note.—It is not proper to call upon sureties to state in writing what influence they have over the accused and to reject them if they fail to do so.—37 C 91]

- 277 Pecuniary fitness of surety.—A Magistrate can not direct the exclusion of immovable property from the security to be furnished [18 P. R 1806] See Cr R 8 of 24.1.1903; Cr. R. 28 of 4.4.03.

- 278 The condition that sureties should be inhabitants of one village is arbitrary and illegal.—(15) U B II 863.

322. (1) High Court can interfere in revision with the appellate order of the District Magistrate
10 P R 1899

323. Rules for interference in revision.—The High Court will be justified in interfering when it is shown prima facie that there is something which the courts below have done either in excess of their powers, or by too summary exercise of their powers, or by misapplying the rules of evidence, or by not giving due effect to the evidence for the defence. The High Court will not interfere on the merits except in very exceptional cases. 17 Cr 461 (A) See 20 Cr 689 (A) 14 A J 1055

324. Findings of fact.—The High Court will not ordinarily enter into the merits of the case. It will interfere with findings of fact only on the very clearest and strongest grounds.—21 P R 1889 See 14 B 331 (343) 6 A J 457 17 Cr 461 (A)

They have the power to release persons imprisoned for failure to give security or make an order reducing the amount of security or the number of sureties or the time for which the security is required [S 124 Cr P C]. They can cancel any bond for good behaviour for sufficient reasons [S 125].

XV. APPEAL.

328. An appeal lies to the District Magistrate

Where the accused has been bound over by a subordinate Magistrate S. 406 applies to final orders but not to preliminary orders under S. 112

24 P. R. 1856 15 P. R. 1900 (P. 34) 9 C. 878 But See 18 P. W. 1910 17 C. N. 239.

But where the District Magistrate as the executive head of the District has been actually concerned in the institution of proceedings he is debarred from entertaining an appeal by S. 556 Cr. P. C. [1 S. 95]

329. No appeal lies.

(a) From the order of the District Magistrate to the High Court—9 C. 978 (98) A. N. 127 23 Cr. 689 (A)

(b) From the order of a District Magistrate after confirmation by the Sessions Judge under S. 123 Cr. P. C.—1 C. 978

(c) From the order of a Sub-Divisional Magistrate after confirmation by the Sessions Judge under S. 123 Cr. P. C.—(87) L. B. 391 15 P. R. 1903.

Appellate judgment to show examination of evidence on record.—A District Magistrate's appellate judgment must show that he has considered and appreciated evidence both for and against the accused. If the record does not show this, the High Court will remit the case for further consideration [4 O. J. 141. 38 A. 333; 14 A. J. 279 ; 13 Cr. 9 (A) ; 6 A. J. 457 See 17 C. N. XX ; 8 P. R. 1901 ; 12 P. R. 1885 ; 30 P. R. 1916 23 Cr. 551 (C) ; 12 Cr. 542 (O)] It is the duty of the appellate Court to look into the evidence adduced by the defence in the case although that evidence is ignored by the counsel for the defence in the appeal [14 Cr. 419 (C)] But the High Court will not interfere except in exceptional cases and provided that the judgment of the Court hearing the appeal under S. 436 Cr. P. C. shows that it has really and not merely nominally gone through the record [6 A. J. 457 ; 17 Cr. 461 (A) 13 Cr. 9 (A)].

District Magistrate cannot order further enquiry.—A District Magistrate on appeal can not order further enquiry to be made after setting aside the order—31 C. 8. Appeals from orders under Chapter VII should not be summarily rejected.

"It is not unreasonable for the High Court to insist that the District Magistrate should not dispose of an appeal of this nature otherwise than by a judgment shewing on the face of it that he has applied his mind to a consideration of the evidence on the record and of the pleas raised by the appellant both in Court below and in his memorandum of appeal" Per Pigot J. in 39 A. 393

XVI. TRANSFER.

District Magistrate.

(1) May transfer cases under S. 110 to any subordinate Magistrate under S. 192 Cr. P. C. The words 'my case' in S. 192 include a case under S. 110 Cr. P. C. and are not limited to criminal cases only—45 C. 241 [See also] 31 C. 350 26 M. 188 [10 C. N. 1005 2 C. J. 614 (616) 5 P. R. 1905

(2) District Magistrate acting under S. 110 Cr. P. C. may transfer the case for enquiry to a sub-Divisional Magistrate 2 L. B. 80

The fact that the Magistrate has acted on private information is a ground for transfer Section 190 (1) (e) applies to proceedings under S. 110 and hence S. 191 Cr. P. C. also—S. 29 C. 392 See 19 Cr. 881 (Part) Contra 27 A. 372

High Court.

Cannot transfer a case in which the Magistrate has acted within the meaning of S. 117 Cr. P. C. 19 A. 29

[But the ruling must be held to be obsolete. The word 'acted' has been omitted in S. 117 as enacted by the Code of 1908]

Has the High Court power to transfer the case to a Court outside the District?

The Allahabad High Court has held the view that it cannot in these cases [See 16 A. 9 ; 19 A. 291 ; 39 A. 47] This view has not been accepted in a later ruling of the same Court [32 A. 612 ; 12 A. J. 736] and elsewhere [See 3 O. C. 247 ; 1 S. 98] In Punjab following the ruling in 25 B. 179 and 28 C. 709 (cases under S. 145 Cr. P. C.) the Chief Court held that it had no power under S. 326 Cr. P. C. to transfer a case under Section 110 Cr. P. C. [13 Cr. 563 (P)]

A case under S. 110 cannot be transferred

(1) by a Magistrate not empowered; but the irregularity will not vitiate proceedings in the absence of prejudice [35 C. 249] See also 4 C. N. 821 [tribunal under S. 145]

(2) to the file of a subordinate Magistrate not empowered to act under the section by the District Magistrate. If the former tries the case even after transfer the proceedings will be illegal—Rat 878 See S. 530 (1) ; 22 C. 608 Contra—1 S. 2 See also 31 C. 350. 21 A. 151.

Magistrate bound to postpone proceedings.

Case cannot be submitted to District Magistrate for orders. A subordinate Magistrate after instituting proceedings under S 110 Cr P C cannot submit the case to the District Magistrate for orders—14 B R 713.

What is not a sufficient ground for transfer.

—It is not a sufficient ground for transfer that the case is causing considerable excitement in the District and most of the inhabitants had their sympathies enlisted on one side or the other—36 A. 210 See 6 C 191 21 C 195 19 A. 64

XVII. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Penalties for false prosecution. A private complainant who sets the law under S 110 in motion, can be prosecuted under Sec 211 I P C [18 132]

A Police Officer can not be prosecuted on the failure of the prosecution 13 A J 412

(2) Damage suit lies for malicious prosecution.—A person having information on the basis of which proceedings under S 110 are drawn up may be liable for damages for malicious prosecution.

S 250 Cr P C does not apply to miscellaneous proceedings like proceedings under S 110 (1) P. C.—15 A 365 25 B 48 See 42 P R 1905

(4) Bail.

Magistrate is empowered to require bail from the accused 12 Cr 533 (B)

Arrest without warrant of person against whom proceedings are contemplated. Under S 55 cl (c) an officer in charge of Police station can not arrest without warrant a person against whom proceedings under S 110 are contemplated 14 Cr 618(A)

(5) Admissibility of previous orders under S. 110 Cr. P. C. in a trial under S. 401 I. P. C. Previous orders under S 110 Cr P C binding the accused over to be of good behaviour on the ground of his being a habitual thief are relevant evidence for the purpose of proving association and intention to habitually commit theft within the meaning of S 401 I P C—16 Cr 909(P)

(6) S. 167 does not apply to proceedings under S 110.—Sec 167 Cr P C applies to proceedings under Chapter XIV, and not to those under S 110 Cr P C, and therefore a second class Magistrate has no power to remand the accused to custody and to keep him in sub jail as prisoner with a view to proceedings being taken under S 110—39 M 925 36 A 262

(7) Proceedings against persons registered under Criminal Tribes Act. The fact that the persons proceeded against are already registered under the Criminal Tribes Act may be a factor and an important factor which the Magistrate should take into consideration before he makes any order against them under S 110 Cr P C—21 Cr 30 (C)

(8) S. 517 Cr. P. C. applies to property produced in the course of an enquiry under Chapter VIII.

Courts acting under the preventive sections 107 to 110 Cr P C have power to make an order under S 517 Cr P C with regard to property which has been properly produced before them in the course of the enquiry under S 117 Cr P C

P.O.—20 C 135(M) 34 C 347

(9) S. 403 and S. 495 Cr. P. C. do not apply to security proceedings.

In proceedings under S 110 Cr P C no charge is framed. The proceedings commence with the order made under S 112 Cr P C. The accused is merely 'released', he can not be 'discharged', or 'acquitted' Ss 495 and 403 Cr P C do not, therefore, apply to security proceedings 36 M 315 21 Cr 386 (C)

(10) Analogous Law.

Analogy with S 36 of the Legal Practitioners Act (Touts).

The recognised principles applicable in cases under S 110 Cr P C are applicable to proceedings under S 36 Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879) i. e. to say hear say evidence is admissible in both cases 19 Cr 269 (A)

The procedure applicable to proceedings under S 110 Cr P C is applicable to proceedings under S 3 of the Burma Opium Law Amendment Act and also S 1 of the Gambling Act

See—20 Cr 321 (U B)

(11) Principles of S. 190 (c) Cr. P. C. applies to proceedings under S. 110 Cr. P. C.

5. Not to be a mere reproduction of the language of clauses (a) to (f) of S. 110.

(1) The preliminary order under S. 112 should not merely be a reproduction of the language of clauses (a) to (f) of S. 110 Cr P C. A notice under the section should be a sufficient indication of the time and place of the acts charged with sufficient details to enable the accused to know what facts he has to meet—Per Moore J 21 Cr 374 (W) 1 C L 130 11 C 13; (18) M N. 751 11 W R 35 15 W R 2 6 W. 6(2) The discretion in this section that the order should set forth the substance of the information received is not complied with by the mere repetition in general terms of one of the headings of the clauses specified in S. 110 or by mere mention of the perusal of statements made to the Police. The order must set forth the particular circumstances of a previous conviction, suspicion of connection with certain offences, which form the grounds of the accusation—and when the enquiry is directed against more than one person the circumstances justifying the institution of joint proceedings with sufficient detail to give the accused a clear understanding of the matter he is required to meet in his defence—Cr R 12 of 2-2-03 See 12 A J 336 See 1 N P 304 3 N P 96 6 A 132 17 I C 571

7. What is substance of information—A statement in the order that the Magistrate has received information that the person to whom the order was addressed was a habitual cattle thief and receiver of stolen properties is a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this section—16 A N 73

(2) Amount and Term of the Bond.

10(a) Amount—In fixing the amount of security the Magistrate should consider the station in life of the person concerned and should not go beyond a sum for which there is a fair probability of his being able to find security—[4 M H (ap) 46 47 2 C 384 22 W R 37 23 A 80 16 B 372 5 S 10 Cr R 17-4-96] When the Magistrate fixed the amount (Rs 500) after taking into consideration five previous convictions recorded against the accused and the fact of his being a habitual thief, held that the Magistrate had not exercised a proper discretion [16 B 372] See notes under S. 110 (11) Security and surety

11(b). Term—In S. 107 cases security should not be demanded for the extreme term of one year except when absolutely necessary [6 A 214] Security for more than one year should not be demanded, except in very bad cases [16 Cr 611 (W)] The order should set forth a definite period for which security is required [3 M. 238; 20 W R 39]

(3) Sureties.

12. The words "character and class of sureties," in this Section include both respectability and solvency [8 S 173, 3 S 249; 20 A. 206; Cr R of 17-4-96] The Magistrate is entitled to lay down the number of sureties—the character of the sureties—i.e., they should be men of good character and the class of sureties—that is they should be men of sufficient substance to furnish security, but we do not think that the restriction to local men is in any way contemplated by S. 112 Cr P C—Holmwood J 15 Cr 234 (G).
13. Magistrate should not act arbitrarily.

21A(a) Where a general report in the Police against a number of persons is made to a Magistrate, the Magistrate should sift the case against each and draw up a separate preliminary order against each under this Section 2 Weir 55

21B(b) Where a Magistrate binds that S. 110 with reference to which notice under S. 112 Cr P C was issued is inapplicable to a case, he ought not to proceed to deal with the case as one under S. 107, without first issuing a fresh notice under S. 112, with reference to the altered view of the circumstances. 30 M. 282

III. NOTICE TO SHOW CAUSE.

22. The Code gives the Magistrate no power to issue summons, warrant or order of detention until he has first recorded in writing the ground upon which he is taking action. 26 A 262
23. Object—When a person is called upon to show cause it means that he must be ready with evidence on the day fixed for hearing and apply for summons at once, if he has sufficient cause for his not being ready with evidence. 9 B 1185
24. Procedure Warrant must be accompanied by a copy of the preliminary order. [S 115 Cr P C]

See—also 2 Weir 55 But omission to attach a copy of the order to the warrant is a mere irregularity in the absence of prejudice and is not fatal to the trial—21 Cr 321 (Pat)

25. Notice against each out of several persons proceeded against.—Where a general report by the Police against a number of persons is made to a Magistrate, the Magistrate should sift the case against each and pass an order against each accused under this Section. 2 Weir 55

IV. IRREGULARITIES.

- (1) Which vitiate.
- 23(a). Security for keeping the peace or for good behaviour should not be demanded from a person who is already undergoing imprisonment for an offence. (93 100) L. B. 201
- 27(c) Omission in the order to give the accused sufficient time to bring his witnesses and to have their evidence recorded—11 C 806
- (2) Which do not vitiate

V. MISCELLANEOUS.

31(1) Revision by the High Court. |

The High Court has jurisdiction to revise interlocutory orders under this section [20 B 543 See 25 C 234 22 C 131] The Chief Court Punjab has issued such orders under S 112 Cr. P. C. on merits [17 P. W. 1910 18 P. W. 1910 See 130 P. L. 1741 (L. B. 109) (110)] The High Court acted on a reference being made by the Sessions Judge (although the accused has not appealed) in 14 A 1 215

32(2) Power to cancel order.

A Magistrate has power to cancel an order calling upon a person to show cause why he should not be bound over to keep the peace—10 W. R. 10.

33(3) Transfer and stay of proceedings.

(i) The High Court has power to transfer proceeding under S. 112 Cr. P. C. from the Court of one

District Magistrate to that of another District Magistrate [11 C. 247]

(ii) For power to stay proceedings—See 14 C N et seq

34(4) S. 167 Cr. P. C. does not apply

S. 167 Cr. P. C. authorising a Magistrate to remand an accused to Police custody pending investigation does not apply to cases where action is taken under this section [36 A 262]

35(5) Conditional Bail.—When a Magistrate allows bail to petitioners on condition of their undertaking that no attempt would be made by them and nothing to the peace, he imposed off the bail

Contra—11 C. N. 121

113. If the person in respect of whom such order is made is present in Court, it shall be read over to him or, if he so desires, the substance thereof shall be explained to him.

Notes.

1. S. 113 applies even if accused is brought up illegally. A was summoned by the Police and then placed before the Magistrate, who called on him to furnish security under S. 110

Cr. P. C. The Magistrate postponed the hearing of the case and bound over A in the sum of Rs. 250 for appearance on the next date. A was not arrested by the police on a warrant A 115 Every summons or warrant issued under section 114 shall be accompanied by a copy of the Copy of order under section 112 to the order made under section 112, and such copy shall be accompany summons or warrant delivered by the officer serving or executing such summons or warrant to the person served with, or arrested under, the same.

Notes.

- 1. Shall be accompanied by a copy of the order made under S. 112.—This provision, was wanting in the Code of 1861 under which it was a order [20 W. imperative on with the sum-ceedings in the absence of prejudice [21 Cr. 321 (Pat) 11 B R 740 (741) 7 O C 313 20 Cr 763 (N) Con—2 Weir 55 17 M, J 438 ('97-'01) U, B 16]
- 2. Mode of service.—There must be a separate summons to each person and for each charge [3 N- P. 90 2 Weir 55] The service should be effected in the manner provided by Ss 69 to 71 supra. The serving officer in certifying service must also certify to the delivery of the copy of the order See Ss 70 and 71 supra.

- 3. Object.—The object is to provide the person called upon to show cause with proper information as to the materials upon which process has been granted against him—G A 214 See 1 C L 130 See 20 Cr. 354 (M) (Per Sashagiri Aiyar J.)

116. The Magistrate may, if he sees sufficient cause, dispense with the personal attendance of any person called upon to show cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond for keeping the peace, and may permit him to appear by a pleader.

Notes.

- 1 Application of the section.—The Section applies only to proceedings under S 107 Cr. P. C and not Ss 108 to 110 [2 Weir 54]
- 2. Exercise of discretion.—Where the person against whom proceedings were taken was at a distance and there was no special circumstance making his personal attendance necessary, it would be a very unwise exercise of his jurisdiction, seeing that the Magistrate could under S 116 allow him to appear by a pleader—12 C 133

117. (1) When an order under section 112 has been read or explained under section 113 to a person present in Court, or when any person appears or is brought before a Magistrate in compliance with, or in execution of, a summons or warrant issued under section 114, the Magistrate shall proceed to inquire into the truth of the information upon which action has been taken, and to take such further evidence as may appear necessary

(2) Such inquiry shall be made, as nearly as may be practicable where the order requires security for keeping the peace, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for conducting trials and recording evidence in summons-cases; and where the order requires security for good behaviour in the manner hereinafter prescribed for conducting trials and recording evidence in warrant-cases, except that no charge need be framed

(3) For the purposes of this section the fact that a person is an habitual offender may be proved by evidence of general repute or otherwise.

(4) Where two or more persons have been associated together in the matter under inquiry, they may be dealt with in the same or separate inquiries as the Magistrate shall think just.

Proposed amendments to the Section—In section 117 of the said Code—

(1) In sub-section (4), after the word "framed," the words "nor shall any witness be re-called for cross examination except with the permission of the Court" shall be inserted

(2) After sub-section (4), the following sub-section shall be inserted—

"(3) Pending the completion of the inquiry under sub-section (1), the Magistrate, if he considers that immediate measures are necessary for the prevention of a breach of the peace or disturbance of the public tranquility, or the commission of any offence, or for the public safety, may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, direct the person in respect of whom the order under section 112 has been made to execute a bond, with or without sureties, for keeping the peace until the conclusion of the inquiry, and may detain him in custody until such bond is executed or, in default of execution, until the inquiry is concluded."

Provided that the conditions of such bond, whether as to amount or as to the number of the sureties or the nature of their liability, shall not exceed those specified in such order.

(iv) Sub-section (3) shall be re-numbered (1), and after the words "habitual offender" in the said sub-section, the words "or is so desperate and dangerous as to render his being at large without security hazardous to the community" shall be inserted, and the words "or otherwise" shall be omitted.

(v) Sub-section (4) shall be re-numbered (3).

Notes.

1. Nature of the enquiry under the Section.

"Enquiry under this Section amounts to a judicial proceeding and must be conducted judicially—[10 P. R. 1899 18 W R 2 See 25 A 273 4 M R xxi] The institution of proceedings under S. 117 Cr P C is not an accusation for an offence triable by a Magistrate [2 B R 339]

2. Place where the enquiry should be held.

(1) An enquiry under S. 110 should not be held at a place which is outside the local limits of the Magistrate's jurisdiction and where he has no power under the law to conduct proceedings—3 C J 195 of his sureties if any—[10 P. R. 1899 18 W R 2]

3. Procedure where the Magistrate has personal knowledge. If a Magistrate institutes proceedings on materials based on his own knowledge, he should not proceed with the trial [29 C 392 See 22 W R 79] The proper procedure where it is necessary to utilise the personal knowledge of a Magistrate, is that the case should be tried by another Magistrate and the Magistrate with the personal knowledge should be examined as a witness [27 P R 1903 See also 2 A 405 4 P R 1899]

4. Terms explained.

(a) Meaning of "further evidence."—The words "further evidence" in S. 117 mean evidence ejusdem generis with the evidence described in and the words "enquire into the truth of the information upon which action has been taken" and therefore can not go outside the information—36 A 239

(b) ————— "or otherwise"
— — — — — ded to list of cases where the accused were suspected [12 A J 937] The effect of the words "or otherwise" is to render admissible any evidence which would be relevant if the accused person or persons were being tried on a charge of being habitual offenders—per Piggot J [20 Cr 206(A)] Though it is not very clear what the precise meaning of the words "by evidence of general repute or otherwise" may be, it is the intention of the Legislature that the Magistrate should use a very large discretion as to the evidence which he may admit in proceedings under S. 110 Applying the principle of "ejusdem generis," the nearest approach to general repute would be hearsay not amounting to general repute [(44) A N 140]

5. Powers to be exercised with scrupulous care.—Sec 110 read with S. 117 gives very extensive powers to magistrates and should be administered with scrupulous care and materials ought not to be brought on to the record which are not legally admissible in evidence and which are liable, if on the record, to prejudice the accused [20 Cr 689 (A) Rat 641 Rat 640] It is incumbent on the Magistrate to exercise the greatest caution and impartiality and to be careful not to be influenced by outside gossip and vague rumour [Rat 639 4 P R 1899 27 P R 1903 29 C 392 2 A 405]

6. Enquiry not strictly limited by the terms of order under S. 112.—The enquiry provided by Ss 117 and 118 is not strictly limited by the terms of the order drawn up under S. 112 though if the person eventually bound down can show that he was misled or prejudiced by the terms of the order he would be entitled to relief—17 C N 331

7. Evidence of general repute.—Sec 7 (A) Evidence of general repute—S. 110 Cr. P C

8. Meaning of Habitual offender.—Sec 7 D Evidence of Habitual offender—S. 110 Cr. P C

9. As to procedure.—Sec (IX) Enquiry and Evidence S. 107: (IV) Procedure and Evidence S. 109: (6) Enquiry and Procedure S. 110

10. Joint trial—Meaning of "associated together"

Sec IX (3) Joint Enquiry under S. 107.

6 D—Procedure and rules as to joint trial under S. 110.

4A. Order must be based on formal proceedings.—An order of a Magistrate under S. 118 Cr. P. C. can not be supported where it appears that the procedure prescribed by S. 112 Cr. P. C. was not followed by him.—2 Weir 56.

5. Minors.—Minors cannot be detained in reformatory on default. Minors should not be detained in reformatory merely for being unable to furnish security. [6 C. P. 13]

6. Third proviso does not apply to S. 502 Cr. P. C. The third proviso to this Section that a bond for keeping the peace or for good behaviour in respect of a minor shall be executed only by his sureties does not apply to bonds of first offenders released on probation under S. 502 infra.—4 L. B. 12

7. Order under this section can not be treated as previous conviction.—A previous order under S. 118 requiring security for good behaviour can not be taken into consideration for the purpose of enhancing sentence, upon the accused being subsequently convicted for an offence under the I. P. C.—1 Bur. S. R. 190 See 21 Cr. 357(C)

8. Final order should be postponed to give accused reasonable opportunity to furnish security.—If for any cause, the accused has not had a reasonable opportunity of furnishing sureties with which he ought under normal circumstances, to come already furnished, the only legal method of giving him time for his purpose is to postpone the making of the final order under S. 118 for such period, as may be deemed necessary. After order is passed, it is illegal to allow time to find sureties.—Unj. Cir. Chap. XLIV para 13a p. 168

to furnish security for good behaviour it is illegal to make an order at the same time under S. 7 of the Punjab Restrictions of Habitual Offenders Act the restricting his movements.—21 Cr. 357(P)

10. S. 403 Cr. P. C. inapplicable to orders under Ss 110-118 Cr. P. C. An order under S. 118 Cr. P. C. is merely preventive and does not amount to a punishment for any offence. Consequently there is no bar to the subsequent punishment of a person bound down for an offence under S. 401 I. P. C. [being members of a gang associated for the purpose of habitually committing crimes].—21 Cr. 356(C) 36 M. 315

11. Bond can be taken for future good conduct of the person under trial only. A condition inserted in a bond for keeping the peace that the person executing it should be responsible for any breach of the peace by his servants and dependants is illegal.—(1881) A. N. 152

Appeal.

12. Orders confirmed under S. 123 Cr. P. C.

(i) Orders under S. 118 for the purposes of appeal under S. 406 Cr. P. C. do not include orders requiring confirmation by the Sessions Judge under S. 123 infra and affirmed by the latter [23 P. R. 1886 (on 20 C. 307)] No appeal lies to the High Court from an order by the District Magistrate confirmed by the Sessions Judge under S. 123, detaining a person in prison till he is able to furnish security for good behaviour [9 C. 575 15 P. R. 1000 See (93-00) L. B. 381]

13. Orders for security to keep the peace.—No appeal lies from an order requiring a person to furnish security to keep the peace. 35 A. 103: 27 A. 623 14 A. J. 268 2 A. J. 716 32 C. 918. 10 J. 541 11 B. R. 740 19 Cr. 216 (Pat) [217]

14. Letters Patent appeal.—Proceedings taken for binding over persons to keep the peace under Chapter VIII are criminal trials within the meaning of S. 15 of the Letters Patent. So an appeal does not lie from the judgment of a single Judge dealing with a revision petition presented against the order of a Magistrate under S. 118 Cr. P. C. 16 Cr. 303 (M) 27 M. 510 11 C. 719

15. Appeal to Privy Council under S. 41 Letters Patent.—No appeal lies to the Privy Council from an order passed by the High Court affirming an order passed under S. 118 under which the petitioners have been bound over to be of good behaviour for a period of 3 years.—18 C. J. 119

16. Applicability of S. 118 Cr. P. C. to special acts.

(1) An order under S. 3 of the Burma Opium Law Amendment Act (VII of 1909) should be made in terms of S. 118 Cr. P. C.—30 Cr. 321 (U. B.)

(2) Similarly the provisions of S. 118 are applicable to proceedings under S. 17 of the Burma Gambling Act.—See (97-01) L. B. 1. 227

17. Magistrate bound to supply High Court with reasons.—On a revision being made by the High Court the Magistrate is bound to state the grounds on which he fixed the amount of security.—2 C. 384

119. If, on an inquiry under section 117, it is not proved that it is necessary for keeping the peace or maintaining good behaviour, as the case may be, that the person in respect of whom the inquiry is made, should execute a bond, the Magistrate shall make an entry on the record to that effect, and if such person is in custody only for the purposes of the inquiry, shall release him, or, if such person is not in custody, shall discharge him.

Notes

1. Meaning of "discharge".—The term "discharge" in S. 119 has been used in a non-technical sense, it merely means "a permission to depart"—[Per Miller J. in 33 M. 65] 'The word

"discharged" has not been defined in the Code and there is no valid ground for departing in respect of it from the rule of construction, that where in a statute the same word is used in different sections, it ought to be interpreted in the same sense throughout, unless the context in any particular section plainly requires that it should be understood in a different sense.—[Per Chatterjee and Hutton J J in 35 B 401.] The word "discharge" is used in contradistinction to the word "release." It does not amount to an acquittal [(93) A N. 233]

2. Is S. 437 Cr. P. C. applicable to the case of a person 'discharged' or 'released' under S 119. The language of S. 437 Cr. P. C. is wide enough to cover the case of a person in whose case an order of release or discharge (both of which are really to the same effect) has been passed under S 119 Cr. P. C.—Per Tudball and Piggott J J in 36 A. 147.

C—Proceedings in all Cases subsequent to Order to furnish Security.

120 (1) If any person, in respect of whom an order requiring security is made under section 106 or section 118, is, at the time such order is made, sentenced to, or undergoing a sentence of, imprisonment, the period for which such security is required shall commence on the expiration of such sentence.

(2) In other cases such period shall commence on the date of such order unless the Magistrate, for sufficient reason, fixes a later date

Notes.

1. Sub-clause (1)—See 120 (1) contemplates an order under S 118 Cr. P. C. being made at a time when the person against whom it is made is in the jail and S 121 does the same.—Per Robinson J [S. L. B 351 (F. B.)] The order of a Magistrate that the period of rigorous imprisonment imposed upon the accused under S 118 Cr. P. C. was to run concurrently with the sentence which the accused was at the time actually undergoing in another case is illegal with reference to the terms of S 120 (1) Cr. P. C. read with S 123 (1) Cr. P. C.—16 Cr 272 (M)
2. Sub-clause (2)—The object of sub-clause (2) is to allow a Magistrate to grant time to the accused instead of at once proceeding to order imprisonment as if in default [1 C N 121 (122)] But cl (2) does not enable a Magistrate to pass, during the subsistence of the first, a second order for security to keep the peace and postpone its operation till after the expiry of the first order [ibid] See Cr. R. 14 of 28-7-02

3. Extension of the period.—Once the date from which the period for which security is required has commenced to run, it cannot be altered or a fresh date fixed so as to enlarge the period [Cr. R. 3 of 6-6-02 & Bar. T. 270] A District Magistrate who released the appellants pending the appeal on bail, cannot add the period of bail to the time for which the security is to run, as it would have the effect of extending the period [Cr. R. 3 of 8-4-02]
4. For further notes.—See Notes—under S 123 Cr. P. C.
5. Sections 120 to 126 have been declared to apply to the security required under S 31 A of the Bangalore Police Act 1897 (Bar. Act IV of 1897)

121. The bond to be executed by any such person shall bind him to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour, as the case may be, and in the latter case the commission or attempt to commit, or the abetment of, any offence punishable with imprisonment, wherever it may be committed, is a breach of the bond.

Notes.

1. Analysis of the Section.—A distinction is drawn between a bond for keeping the peace and the same for good behaviour. In the case of former, a forfeiture takes place only on the commission of an offence involving a breach of the peace [See 18 W. R. 63. 7 P. L. 1906]. In the case

[See—6 O. G. 262 17 C P 127.]

3. Discharge on technical grounds. The accused was discharged, under S. 119 Cr. P. C. as the proceedings were by mistake drawn up on a "police report dated July 27th" (there being no such police report but one dated the 29th July) on an existence to a fresh meeting the date by another Magistrate—14 Cr. 109 (C).

4. S. 250 Cr. P. C. does not apply.—S. 250 Cr. P. C. is not applicable to proceedings under Chapter VIII, and a complainant cannot be directed to pay compensation to a person released or discharged under S 119 for being called upon to show cause against a frivolous and vexatious complaint—37 P. R. 1854 & P R 1896 16 P R 1893.

of the latter a conviction for any offence punishable with imprisonment is sufficient. [See 10 P R 1915]

2. Form and Contents of the bond.—See Sch V p 61 A. It is a serious mistake to make each of the sureties liable for the full penalty of the bond [(17-01) U B 1 119; 4 Bar 1 27]. Where the bond is not executed till after the date on which the prison for which security is required commences, it should state plainly the date on which the prison expires [4 Bar T 270]. Where a bond ordered under § 110 was by mistake taken on a form appropriate to an order under § 107 Cr P C—h—it was not enforceable in law [32 P R 1904].

3. Application of S 121.—S 121 Cr P C is explicit, and so far as bonds for good behaviour are concerned is restrictive, though it might not be so as regards bonds for keeping the peace. Where an accused is not shown to have committed an offence, to have attempted to do so, or to have abetted such a thing—held—his bond for good behaviour cannot be forfeited under § 121 Cr P C—5 P R 1910 [2 M 169; Not F]. So a bond is not forfeited merely because the accused was found within the period of his bond under § 101 Cr P C in possession of costly clothes for which he could not satisfactorily account but there was no proof that an actual theft had taken place [2 Weir 57]. A second order for security for good behaviour during the term of the first one will not justify forfeiture [(92-96) U B 20].

4. Change of law.—The penultimate clause of S 502 the corresponding section in the Code of 1872 "The commission or attempt to commit or abetment of any offence whatsoever and wherever it may be committed is a breach of the bond," was interpreted as an illustration of some modes in which the peace may be broken [2 M 169]. But the addition of the words "and in the latter case" obviously makes the following words applicable only to a case where the bond was taken for good behaviour. In this view 2 M 169 can hardly be regarded as binding under the Code of 1898 [See 18 W R 63; 7 W R 1906].

5. Forfeiture of bonds for keeping the peace.—A bond for keeping the peace cannot be enforced on conviction for "any offence punishable with imprisonment." The offence must be one in which the person is liable to be sentenced to imprisonment. The offence must be one in which the person is liable to be sentenced to imprisonment.

will not justify the forfeiture of the bond, where the terms of the bond are general. The bond may be forfeited upon conviction for assault committed upon a person other than the man on whose charge the bond was originally taken [15 W R 11]. Before a bond can be forfeited it must be proved that the person under security has either personally broken the peace or abetted some other person or persons in breaking it. The mere fact that the accused is a servant of one of two rival parties for whose benefit the breach took place is not sufficient [11 W R 52].

6. Forfeiture of bond for good behaviour.—It should be observed that the section refers to "any offence." It is therefore unnecessary in the case of a bond for good behaviour that the offence justifying an order for forfeiture should correspond to the particular kind of offences mentioned in the subclause of § 110 under which the bond was taken [See 28 A 629]. So a person bound over for being a receiver of stolen property and also a dangerous man and the son of a notorious deceit forger his bond on a conviction under § 323 I P C [10 P R 1915; Con 15 P R 1913; 15 P R 1105]. The dictum of Kensington J in 15 P R 1913, "No man would ever undertake to be a surety if he was thereby compelled to undergo liability for any conceivable form of offence committed by the person for whom he stood security" has not been accepted in 10 P R, 1915 and 62 P L 1914. A conviction under § 13 of the Gambling Act III of 1867 would lead to a forfeiture [(96) A N 13].

7. Exercise of moderation necessary.—A Magistrate should always treat a man who has stood surety for another in a considerate manner. It would be contrary to all principles of justice to make him liable for a sudden act of violence—15 P R 1913. See 15 P R 1905.

8. "Wherever"—meaning—A British subject under security forfeits his bond upon being convicted for dishonest receipt of stolen property in a Native State (28 P R 1910). A executed in District T a recognizance to keep the peace against B A was afterwards convicted in the District S of having assaulted B in that District—held—that A had forfeited his recognizance and the Magistrate of T could proceed against him under this section [2 B L (sp) 11].

9. Effect of omission to direct forfeiture of bond on conviction.—If in convicting a make any order for forfeiture, he must be taken to have decided not to take any action on the bond in respect of that particular breach of the peace and he cannot thereafter reconsider and add to his order by directing forfeiture of the recognizance—6 P. W. 1913 (F. B.); 26 P. R. 1904; 1 C L 134; 3 C L 406; Con. 26 A. 202.

10. Order for forfeiture must be passed after taking evidence in the presence of the surety.—The mere fact of the person for whom another stands as surety being convicted of a breach of the peace ought not to be sufficient to make the surety bond executed by the latter liable to forfeiture without any evidence being taken in the presence of the surety to show how the forfeiture has been incurred—25 C 410; See 4 C. 865 (F. B.); 10 C L 571; 9 C P 6. Contra 32 P. R. 1903; 4 M H. xxxviii. See also 18 Cr. 508 (P).

11. Accused entitled to show cause.—A Magistrate ought not to forfeit a recognizance to keep the peace without giving the person charged with the breach an opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses upon whose evidence he relies to show cause has been issued.—4 C. 865 (F. B.) See 7 N. P. 375; 12 W. R. 54; 11 B. H. 170.

12. Procedure on forfeiture.—It is not competent to a Magistrate to direct that in default of payment, the person whose recognizance is forfeited shall be imprisoned without first issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of his immoveable property—10 C. L. 571, 28 A. 629
13. Bond cannot be forfeited by instalments.—The accused who was under security for good behaviour for three years in a sum of Rs 150 was convicted under S 372 I P C. The Magistrate thereupon ordered a partial forfeiture to the extent of Rs 25. He again committed an assault under S 372 I P C. within the said 3 years and the Magistrate proceeded to enforce another sum of Rs 25 out of the bond. Held—that a penalty once remitted ceases to be in force and cannot be enforced. The Magistrate's second order was therefore illegal—11 P R 1689

14. Fresh security cannot be taken without fresh proceedings.—A bond cannot be renewed without fresh proceedings being taken under S. 112 Cr. P. C. [7 M T. 80]. There is no power to demand fresh security or to imprison the person under security for the period of the bond [(192-96) U. R. 21]
15. Power to reduce the amount forfeited. Under the old Codes, neither the Magistrate nor the High Court had power to reduce the amount due as penalty on bonds and the only remedy was to refer the matter to the Government [3 C. 737, 19 W R 1, 8 C. L. 72, Rat 20; 2 P. R. 1843]. But under the present Code a Magistrate himself has power to remit a portion of the penalty [15 P R 1905]. In 6 P. R. 1915 the Chief Court further reduced the amount confiscated by the Magistrate (Rs. 250 only out of Rs. 1000) to Rs. 50 only

122 A Magistrate may refuse to accept any surety offered under this Chapter, on the ground that, for reasons to be recorded by the Magistrate, such surety is an unfit person

Proposed amendments to the Section.—For section 122 of the said Code, the following section shall be substituted namely—

"122 (1) A Magistrate may refuse to accept any surety offered under this Chapter on the ground that such surety is an unfit person for the purposes of the bond

Provided that, before refusing so to do, he shall either himself hold an enquiry on oath into the fitness of the surety, or cause such enquiry to be held and a report to be made thereon by a Magistrate subordinate to him

(2) In every such enquiry the Magistrate holding the same shall record the substance of the evidence adduced before him

(3) If the Magistrate by whom the order for security was made is satisfied, after considering the evidence so adduced either before him or before a Magistrate deputed under sub-section (1), and the report of such Magistrate (if any), that the surety is an unfit person for the purposes of the bond, he shall make an order refusing to accept such surety and recording his reasons for so doing "

Notes.

1 Powers of the Magistrate under the Section.

The powers of the Magistrate under the Section are wide. The question of fitness is left to his discretion which is not fettered in any way [13 C N 80, 44 C 737, 41 C 764, 37 C 449, 60 C. 199, 1 S 3 Cr R 3 of 8-1-02]. But though the discretion is a wide one and not to be lightly interfered with, it must be exercised with moderation and impartiality [15 Cr 727 (A), 27 A. 294, 16 Cr 54(A)]. The ground for refusal of a surety must be valid and reasonable [22 W. R. 37, 41 C 764, 10 C N 1027]. If the Magistrate acts in an unreasonable and arbitrary manner his order will be set aside [43 C 1024, 17 Cr 95(C), 25 C 400, 60 C N 593, 15 Cr 727(A), 7 N P, 219, 48 173, 7 S 94, 1 S 18, 2 S 11]. Mere conjectures and surmises are not valid grounds for rejecting a surety [10 C N 1027]

- 1A. The word "Magistrate" in S. 122 Cr P C includes the Magistrate who made the order under S. 118 Cr P C or his successor in office who is properly seized of the inquiry—5 S 87.

2. Meaning of discretion.—When a power is coupled with a discretion as to its exercise, the discretion does not mean that the Magistrate is left to exercise that power at his sweet will and pleasure, but that he has to determine whether an occasion for its exercise has arisen in the particular case—5 S 2 S 11, Maxwell p 345

3. Nature of proceedings under S. 122 Cr P C.—Proceedings under S. 122 Cr P C are judicial proceedings, as defined in S. 1(1)(m) Cr P C and S. 5 of the Oaths Act (X of 1873) and are therefore governed by the regular rules as to the admitted facts and legal evidence under the Evidence Act or other law relating to evidence. A person making a false deposition in the course of an enquiry under S. 122 Cr P C is liable to be prosecuted under S. 122 Cr P C—26 A 371 (94), A N 151 (01), A N. 36, 19 C N 220, 47 C 1024, 7 S 94, 5 S 87, 4 S. 18, 2 S 15, 2 S 11, 8 S, also 16 Cr 54(A) and 21 Cr. 377(B)

4. Procedure

- (a) Magistrate bound to take evidence.—In all cases under S. 122 Cr P C, it is the duty of the Magistrate to examine the sureties offered as to their fitness and to take such other evidence as the accused may call on the same point [2 S 11, 7 S 91, 1 S 18, 2 S 15, 27 A 297, 20 A

271; (30) A. N. 76; (38) A. N. 174; 14 C. N. 709; 10 C. N. 1027.] But a Magistrate is justified in refusing to accept sureties who have been called upon by the Magistrate to attend for examination do not do so. [37 C. 91.] Where however the Magistrate called on the sureties to state in writing what inference they possessed over the accused, the sureties could not be rejected for having failed to comply with his arbitrary order [37 C. 91; 1 S. 14.]

(b) Evidence to be recorded.—The ruling in 4 S. 15 "It is not necessary formally to record the evidence" is opposed to the decisions in 27 C. 23; 21 Cr. 365 (A); 43 C. 1024. Perhaps a memorandum under S. 355 (1) Cr. P. C. ought to be made.

(c) Representation by pleader.—The right of a person ordered to furnish security under S. 115 Cr. P. C. to be represented by a pleader in the subsequent proceeding relating to the fitness of sureties offered under S. 122 Cr. P. C. is entirely within the discretion of the Court.—4 S. 49.

(d) Reasons for rejection must be recorded.—The Magistrate in rejecting sureties under S. 122 Cr. P. C. must record his reasons for doing so in his own handwriting [14 C. N. 709; 37 C. 91; 21 Cr. 377 (B); Cr. P. 21 of 113; 04 Cr. R. 9 of 7-12-02.] Before giving reasons he should carefully consider and test them. This could best be done by bringing them to the notice of the persons offered as sureties and allowing them an opportunity of controverting them [14 C. N. 709.] When a Magistrate failed to record the reasons and in his explanation to the High Court stated he did not remember the exact circumstances the order rejecting the sureties was set aside [13 C. N. xxvii].

(e) Case of each surety to be separately examined.—A general order without investigation of the circumstances of each of the sureties is obviously not contemplated by law. 14 C. 1024.

F. Police reports.—There is no law rendering reports of Police Inspectors of Mukhtyarkars admissible evidence in an enquiry under S. 122 Cr. P. C. [4 S. 18; Cr. P. 21 of 1-3-01.] If the Magistrate asks the police to report, it should be with a view merely to enabling them to collect and call evidence. But in every such case his order must be based on a consideration of the evidence and not of the police report [2 S. 11; S. G. C. 490.] Where the Magistrate omits to examine the sureties themselves and acts merely on the report of a police Inspector, the order rejecting the surety is without legal foundation [2 S. 15; 2 S. 11.] A Magistrate acts wrongly in rejecting a surety on the basis merely of an officer's report of a Takhtar or a Sah Inspector gajhar [15 Cr. 727 (A); 13 A. J. 489; 27 A. 233; 25 A. 272; (38) A. N. 154; 16 C. J. 54 (A); 10 C. N. 1027; 10 C. N. xxiii; See also Cr. R. 21 of 11-3-04; Cr. R. 9 of 7-12-02.]

6. Personal knowledge of the Magistrate.—The Magistrate is justified in applying his knowledge of his division when acting under S. 122, and if he knows that the inhabitants generally of a village bear a bad character, he is justified in rejecting as unfit any such inhabitant who may be offered as surety provided he records his reasons for so doing [3 S. 168.] But the sureties must be allowed an opportunity of controverting the facts within the Magistrate's knowledge [14 C. N. 709.]

7. Power to investigate cannot be delegated.—The question whether a particular person who is offered as a surety is or is not a fit person within the meaning of S. 122 Cr. P. C. must be decided by the magistrate himself and his decision must be based upon evidence taken for the purpose. Sureties offered should not be refused except after judicial enquiry. The Magistrate cannot call upon other persons to exercise the functions which are entrusted by law to him alone.

8. Surety once accepted cannot be cancelled.—Where a surety offered by a person is once accepted, a Magistrate has no power subsequently to cancel the security bond, though he might be of opinion that such surety is an unfit person. 1 C. N. 394; 10 P. R. 1005. See 29 C. 155; 8 A. J. 658.

9. Note.—For grounds for rejecting sureties etc.—See (11) Security and surety under S. 110 Cr. P. C.

10. Revision by High Court.—See S. 410 Cr. P. C. The duty of the High Court is merely to see that the Magistrate has exercised his authority with reasonable discretion and has infringed no rule of law. 3 S. 168.

123 (1) If any person ordered to give security under section 106 or section 118 does not give imprisonment in default of security such security on or before the date on which the period for which such security is to be given commences, he shall, except in the case next hereinafter mentioned, be committed to prison, or, if he is already in prison, be detained in prison until such period expires or until within such period he gives the security to the Court or Magistrate who made the order requiring it.

(2) When such person has been ordered by a Magistrate to give security for a period exceeding one year, such Magistrate shall, if such person does not give such security as aforesaid, issue a warrant directing him to detained in prison pending the orders of the Sessions Judge or, if such Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate, pending the orders of the High Court, and the proceedings shall be laid, as soon as conveniently may be, before such Court.

(3) Such Court, after examining such proceedings and requiring from the Magistrate any further information or evidence which it thinks necessary, may pass such order on the case as it thinks fit

Provided that the period (if any) for which any person is imprisoned for failure to give security shall not exceed three years.

(f) If the security is tendered to the officer in charge of the jail, he shall forthwith refer the matter to the Court or Magistrate who made the order, and shall await the orders of such Court or Magistrate

(5) Imprisonment for failure to give security for keeping the peace shall be simple

Kind of imprisonment

(6) Imprisonment for failure to give security for good behaviour may be rigorous or simple as the Court or Magistrate in each case directs.

Proposed amendments to the Section—After sub section (3) of Section 123 of the said Code, the following sub-sections shall be inserted namely —

(3a) If security has been required in the course of the same proceedings from two or more persons in respect of any one of whom the proceedings are referred to the Sessions Judge or the High Court under sub section (2), such reference shall also include the case of any other of such persons who has not given the security ordered to be given by him, and the provisions of sub sections (2) and (3) shall, in that event, apply to the case of such other person also, except that the period (if any) for which he may be imprisoned shall not exceed the period for which he was ordered to give security

"(3b) A Sessions Judge may in his discretion transfer any proceedings laid before him under sub-section (2) or sub section (3a) to an additional Sessions Judge or Assistant Sessions Judge, and upon such transfer, such Additional Sessions Judge or Assistant Sessions Judge may exercise the powers of a Sessions Judge under this section in respect of such proceedings"

Notes.

(1) Nature and object of imprisonment in default.

1. Object of the imprisonment.—The imprisonment is provided as a protection to society against the perpetration of crime and not as a punishment for crime committed; and being made conditional on default of finding security, it is only reasonable and just that the individual should be afforded a fair chance of complying with the required condition of security.

2. Kind of imprisonment to be awarded.

4. Procedure where a person already undergoing imprisonment is ordered to furnish security.—If a person undergoing a sentence of imprisonment is ordered under S 118 Cr P. C. to furnish security for his good behaviour, it is premature and illegal to pass against him an order under S 123 Cr P C. while such imprisonment lasts. If in the meantime he is convicted of another offence and sentenced to a fresh term of imprisonment the order should not be passed until the expiry of both the imprisonments [Rat 771. (4) Procedure in the Court of reference.

18. Notice to the accused.—The Sessions Judge receiving a record under subs (2) should at once give notice to the person ordered to give security, of the date on which the case will be taken up—13 C 351 27 C 656 21 C 491 25 A 375. See (98) A N 60 21 A 101.
19. Right of audience.—A Sessions Judge ought to give the accused an opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader—[5 L B 31 (F B) 31 L B 11 21 C 193 27 C 656 35 B 271 15 P B 1999] In a case referred to a Sessions Judge under S 121 (2) the Judge is bound to hear a pleader who may appear on behalf of the defendant [1 C N 767 21 C 491] In 1 S 39 however it has been held that "the right of a person ordered to furnish security under S 118 Cr. P. C. to be represented by a pleader in the subsequent proceeding relating to the fitness of sureties offered etc is entirely within the discretion of the Court"

20. Further evidence.—Sec. 123 (3) contemplates further enquiry and evidence [5 L B 31 (F B)] The addition of the words "from the Magistrate" after the word "requiring" clearly gives the Sessions Judge the power to remand the case for further evidence. In this view (98) 24 C 155 which lays down that "under S. 123 a Sessions Judge is not competent to remand a case to an inferior Court to take further evidence".
21. Sessions Judge and High Court entitled to decide on merits.—Subs (3) of S. 123 contemplates a decision by the Sessions Judge or the High Court on the merits of the order demanding security for good behaviour. The Judge is entitled to pass such orders as the circumstances of the case in his opinion may require [35 B 271. 12 C N 453] An order made under Sub Cl. (3) is not merely an order confirming the magistrate's order; it is a decision on merits based on an independent view of the case [5 S 87 29 P R 1910 4 L B 135] It is the duty of the Sessions Judge in a reference to consider the evidence and pass an order after doing so. His duty is not merely a matter of routine [29 P R 1910 See 6 P R 1914]. He must pass his own order [4 L B 135 (00 '02) L B 75 6 C P 27]
22. Power of a Sessions Judge to act otherwise than under subs (3).—The Sessions Judge cannot on his own initiative, order any person to furnish security. He can do so only when he is set in motion by a Magistrate [18 P R 1866 See 24 W. R. 10]
23. Sessions Judge to decide fitness of sureties himself.—A magistrate has no jurisdiction to decide on the fitness of sureties on a bond ordered by the Sessions Court. When the order is of the latter Court the adequacy of the security should be made by that Court.—5 S 87 2 L B 76 (80) Contra 12 C N 453
24. Case of each prisoner must be separately considered the case of each individual prisoner—37 C. 91.

25. Joint Sessions Judges.—have no power to pass orders on a reference under this section Rat 840—

[Note.—In the Code of 1852 the words were "Court of Sessions"]

26. Imprisonment in default.—Although it is within the competence of a Sessions Judge acting under § 121(3) to direct that a person who has been ordered to give security shall, on failure to give such security be imprisoned for any term not exceeding 3 years, yet it is advisable that the term of imprisonment in default should always be the same as the period, for which the security is directed to be given—23 A 422 Rat 541 1 L B 135 Rat See Cr. R. 31 of 23-1-1901.

27 Contents of the order

(1) The order should distinctly specify the period of imprisonment to be ordered in default of security.—C. 6411

(2) The order should not be framed in general grounds. It should show on what special ground the security for a period over one year has been demanded. It is not sufficient to say that the order is for interest of the community at large.—27 C. 164; (157) S. 1 (19) A. N. 14.

(3) Appeal.

28 Appeal to Magistrate in a case under reference. A person ordered to give security for good behaviour by a Subordinate Magistrate is entitled to appeal to the District Magistrate notwithstanding that the proceedings may have been laid before the Sessions Judge under S. 124 Cr. P. C. But the right of appeal is not open as the Sessions Judge has quashed the order in the case under R. 124(1) 130 C. 371 Cr. 20 C. 307 (13) A. N. 181.

29 No appeal lies from the order of a Sessions Court made under Sub-S. (3) 24 W. R. 12 130 C. 151 (10) A. N. 181.

30. Right of appeal lost by merger.—The right of appeal subsists so long only as no order has been passed under subcl. (1). As soon as the order is passed, the order of the Magistrate becomes merged in the order of the Sessions Judge and the right of appeal is lost.—13 O. C. 351; 2 O. C. 207; O. C. 678 35 B. 371; 21 P. R. 1860; 15 P. R. 1000 (17) L. B. 381; (91) A. N. 181. See (91) A. N. 219 24 W. R. 12; 23 P. R. 1886.

(6) Miscellaneous.

31 Report by District Magistrate against order by Sessions Judge.—It would be contrary to every principle to allow a District Magistrate to report against an order of the Sessions Judge to whom he is a subordinate. If the Magistrate who is responsible for the peace of the district is dissatisfied, he should ask the Public Prosecutor to move the High Court in revision.—24 C. 249 28 A. 91.

32. Change in the law.—By omitting the words "or to the officer in charge of the jail in which the person so ordered is detained," which were at the end of the first clause in the corresponding section of the Code of 1859 and adding suba (1) the Legislature has deprived superintendents of jails of the power they formerly had of releasing persons under detention on the security being tendered to their satisfaction.

33. Escape from custody.—A person in custody for his inability to give security is not in custody for an offence, with which he has been charged or of which he has been convicted. He cannot therefore be convicted of escaping from such custody under 224 F. P. C.—2 Weir 65.

124. (1) Whenever the District Magistrate or a Chief Presidency Magistrate is of opinion that any person imprisoned for failing to give security under this Chapter, whether by the order of such Magistrate or that of his predecessor in office, or of some subordinate Magistrate, may be released without hazard to the community or to any other person, he may order such person to be discharged.

(2) Whenever any person has been imprisoned for failing to give security under this Chapter, the Chief Presidency or District Magistrate may (unless the order has been made by some Court superior to his own) make an order reducing the amount of the security or the number of sureties or the time for which security has been required.

(3) Whenever the District Magistrate or a Chief Presidency Magistrate is of opinion that any person imprisoned for failing to give security under this Chapter as ordered by the Court of Session or High Court may be released without hazard to the community, such Magistrate shall make an immediate report of the case for the orders of the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be, and such Court may, if it thinks fit, order such person to be discharged.

Notes.

Change in Law.—The word "Chief" was introduced for the first time in the Code of 1898 before the words "Presidency Magistrate." The effect has been to limit the exercise of powers under the section to Chief Presidency Magistrates only.

Action entirely discretionary.—The taking of any action on an application under S. 124 Cr. P. C. is a matter entirely within the discretion of the Magistrate. (91) A. N. 181. See S. O. C. 245.

Proceedings of a Magistrate not empowered is void, See S. 530 Cl. (e) infra.

- 125. The Chief Presidency or District Magistrate may at any time, for sufficient reasons to be recorded in writing, cancel any bond for keeping the peace or for good behaviour executed under this Chapter by order of any Court in his district not superior to his Court.

Power of District Magistrate to cancel any bond for keeping the peace or good behaviour.

Notes

- 1. Nature of proceedings under S. 125 Cr. P. C.—Proceedings under S. 125 Cr. P. C. are not judicial proceedings within the meaning of S. 476 Cr. P. C. [37 C 72]. A Magistrate acting under the section does not exercise either appellate or revisional jurisdiction [32 C 919, 20 Cr. 221 (Pat), 20 Cr. 489 (A)] See also 35 A 103, 27 A 623, 1 O J 541]

- 2. Meaning of the term "at any time"—The words are new and are not to be found in the corresponding section 500 of the Code of 1872; they mean "however early or however late"—37 M. 125 (F.B.)

- 3. Magistrate competent to deal with the application on the merits.—A District Magistrate acting under S. 125 Cr. P. C. is not restricted to ground which may have arisen subsequently to the execution of the bond and which may render the continuance of the bond unnecessary. He may cancel the bond on the ground that it should never have been required.

34 C 1 (F.B.), 27 M. 125 (F.B.), 11 N. 98 (05), A N. 143, 12 P. W. 1908. See 37 C 72, Con. 32 C. 948 (0), 39 A. 466, 35 A. 103, 27 A. 623, 20 Cr. 489 (A), 1 O J 541

- N.B.—In 20 Cr. 489 (A), the proper course is laid down to be to report the case to the High Court for cancellation of the security and not to dispose of the case as if the Magistrate was sitting as a Court of appeal. See also 1 O J 541.

- 4. Application of the section.—The section applies only to cases, in which a bond has been taken and has been issued for S. 124 Cr. 103, 32 C. 919.

- (b) The addition of the words "or of good behaviour"—makes this section applicable to all orders made under S. 118 Cr. P. C. [11 N. 98]

5 Powers under the section

- (a) Under the section the District Magistrate has no power to remand the case to the subordinate Magistrate for further enquiry. S. 424 Cr. P. C. has no application to an order under S. 125 Cr. P. C.—20 Cr. 221 (Pat). See 33 C 8

- (b) A Magistrate cannot cancel the bond on account of insufficiency.—A District Magistrate acts absolutely without jurisdiction in cancelling a bond under this section on receiving a report from the police that the bond accepted by the subordinate Magistrate is insufficient and directing the imprisonment in default of the defendant for the remainder of the term [29 C 155; S. A. J. 655]. See 125 read with S. 124 and 126 does not empower a District Magistrate to cancel a bond accepted by the Subordinate Magistrate on the ground that such bond is insufficient. If he is dissatisfied with the Subordinate Magistrate's enquiry into the sufficiency, he should hold such enquiry as he thinks necessary after giving notice to the parties concerned and report the matter to the High Court. He cannot deal with the matter himself [8 O. C. 245, 2 L. B. 76, See 1 C. N. 394, 31 A. 624, 16 P. R. 1905, 7 O. C. 113]

- 6 Right of audience.—As a general practice either the applicant or his pleader should be heard before the application is rejected.—39 A. 160

- 7 High Court will decline to interfere

- 8 Ex parte order by default.—The Chief Court directed an application under S. 125 Cr. P. C. to be heard as it was dismissed for default when the Magistrate was on tour and the fact that the case would be heard in camera not intimated to the applicant.—33 P. L. 1914

- 9.

nate Magistrate of T.—held—that the District Magistrate of T. alone had jurisdiction to cancel the bond under S. 125 Cr. P. C.—20 Cr. 337 (C)

- 10. S. 125 Cr. P. C. does not limit powers under Ss. 435 and 438 Cr. P. C.—S. 125 Cr. P. C. does not limit the revisional jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge or the District Magistrate under Ss. 435 and 438 Cr. P. C.—3 Pat. J. 302

- 11. Effect of cancellation.—Cancellation of the bond by the District Magistrate under the section will discharge the accused and his surety from all liability.—(05) A. N. 143. The omission to provide expressly for the setting aside of the order was perhaps due to a desire for simplicity of language.—Per Beeson J. in 37 M. 125 (F. B.)

- 12. Cancellation by Magistrate not empowered is void.—S. 530 Cl. (f) Cr. P. C.

126. (1) Any surety for the peaceable conduct or good behaviour of another person may at any time apply to a Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class to cancel any bond executed under this Chapter within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

(2) On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his summons or warrant, as he thinks fit requiring the person for whom such surety is bound to appear or to be brought before him.

(3) When such person appears or is brought before the Magistrate, such Magistrate shall cancel the bond, and shall order such person to give, for the unexpired portion of the term of such bond, fresh security of the same description as the original security. Every such order shall, for the purposes of sections 121, 122, 123 and 124, be deemed to be an order made under section 106 or section 118, as the case may be.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section. The section deals with cases in which the surety has intimated his wish to withdraw and to have his bond cancelled and lays down the procedure to be adopted in the event of the surety being discharged owing to his withdrawal—S.O. C. 215.
2. When a bond for a term exceeding 1 year is cancelled.—Record being had to sub (3) the Magistrate should refer the case under 123 (3) to the Sessions Judge, if the effect of the discharge of the surety is to render the principal liable to suffer imprisonment for more than a year—S. 5 S. 87.
3. Analysis of the section.—The word "shall" in sube (1) shows that the Magistrate is bound to cancel the bond on an application being made under sube. (1). The section says nothing about any reason being given by the surety for his withdrawal. He is therefore evidently at liberty to do so at any time and without assigning any reason for his action. Sube (3) would render an order under this section in the case of a surety for good behaviour appealable under S. 406 Cr. P. C.

CHAPTER IX.

UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLIES.

Ss. 127 to 132.

principles laid down in the charge of Tindal C. J. to the Grand Jury of Bristol in 1832 as to the duty of soldiers in dispersing rioters. The rules carry the law somewhat farther than it has yet been carried in England, as they expressly indemnify all persons acting in good faith in compliance with the requisitions under Ss. 128 and 130 and forbid prosecutions of Magistrates, soldiers and Police officers except with the sanction of the Governor General in Council—Stoke's Anglo-Indian Codes Vol II. Introduction p 11.

2. Distinction between unlawful assemblies under chapter IX Cr. P. C. and as defined by the Penal Code—

The Penal Code [See S. 141 I. P. C.] does not contain a definition of an assembly likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace'. In Reg. V. Vincent [9 C. and P. 91] Alderson B. stated the law as follows: "Any meeting assembled under such circumstances, as according to the opinion of rational and firm men, is likely to held, the hour at which they met and the language as would frighten any foolish or timid person, but must be such as would alarm persons of reasonable firmness"—See Mayne's Criminal Law p. 518.

3. For definition of the term "unlawful assembly" See S. 141 I. P. C. and for punishment—Ss. S. 145 and 161 I. P. C.

4 Duty of Magistrates under the English Law—In R v. Lumley 3 State Trials (U.S.) 11 it was laid down that the general rules of law require of Magistrates that at the time of riots they should keep the peace, restrain the rioters and pursue and take them; and to enable them to do so they may call on all the king's subjects to assist them which they are bound to do upon reasonable warning, and in point of law, a Magistrate may be justified in giving fire-arms to those who thus came to assist him, but it would be imprudent in him to give them to those who might not know their use and who might be under no control, and who not being used to act together, might be cut off from the rest of the Police and the arms by those means get into the hands of the rioters. It is no part of the duty of a Magistrate to go out and head the constables or to march and arrange them; nor to keep a body of men as a reserve to act as occasion may require. Nor is a Magistrate bound to ride with the military; if he gives the military officers orders to act, that is all that is required of him.—Russell 131-9

127. (1) Any Magistrate or officer in charge of a police-station may command any unlawful Assembly to disperse on command of Magistrate or police officer a disturbance of the public peace, to disperse; and it shall thereupon be the duty of the members of such assembly to disperse accordingly.

(2) This section applies also to the police in the town of Calcutta.

Notes.

1 The chapter does not apply to the City of Bombay—The whole of this chapter, so far as it applies to the City of Bombay, is repealed by the City of Bombay Police Act 1902 (Bomb. Act IV of 1902)—See S. 2(1) and schedule.

2 Obligation of Magistrates to assist the Police—In all cases of an unlawful assembly, a riot or a disturbance of the peace having occurred or being apprehended, the Police will take the initiative, but if they find themselves not strong enough for the occasion, immediate application is to be made to the nearest Magistrate, which under the terms of Act V of 1861, means all persons within the Police District exercising all or any of the powers of a Magistrate, and therefore includes the Tashildars who are bound on requisition from the Police Inspector to appoint from the residents of the neighbourhood as many Police officers as the said Inspector may deem necessary. All revenue Chapris, and messengers of all kinds, may legally be appointed special Police officers. Thus the whole resources of the Civil Government are at once on a special occasion brought to the assistance of the Police for the purpose of restoring public order.—Punj. Pol. Cir. Chap. XXVIII p. 318—See Punj. Cir. 320

3. Police officers who may act—The term "officers" exclude Deputy superior station, directing the dispersal of an assembly of five or more persons likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace is an order by a lawful authority within the meaning of S. 127 Cr. P. C.—7 B 42 [See also S. 551 Cr. P. C.]

4 Disobedience punishable under S. 151 I. P. C.—If an unlawful assembly refuses to disperse being lawfully commanded to do so, every member of the assembly would be liable to be convicted under S. 151 I. P. C.—7 B 42.

5 Opinion of Policemen as to the necessity of action—Whether a disturbance of the public peace is likely to be caused, must of necessity be very much a matter of opinion and the Police officer, to whose discretion the law leaves the duties of dispersing assemblies, must of course act upon his own opinion one way or the other; it is his opinion is relevant, the grounds upon which it is based are also relevant.—7 B 42

6. Lawful assembly may be commanded to disperse—S. 151 I. P. C. clearly contemplates lawful assemblies, as the explanation shows, and a perfectly innocent and lawful assembly may be lawfully commanded to disperse by a Magistrate, if in his opinion, it is likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace. [22 P. R. 1857] So religious processions or meetings of the Salvation Army may come under the purview of S. 127 Cr. P. C. [7 B 42]

7 Onus in prosecution under S. 151 I. P. C. It is necessary, for the purposes of establishing a charge under S. 151 I. P. C., to prove to the satisfaction of the Court that the assembly was in fact likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace.—Per Plowden J. in 22 P. R. 1857

128. If, upon being so commanded any such assembly does not disperse, or if without being so Use of civil force to disperse commanded, it conducts itself in such a manner as to show a determination not to disperse, any magistrate or officer in charge of a police-station, whether within or without the presidency-towns, may proceed to disperse such assembly by force, and may require the assistance of any male person, not being an officer or soldier in Her Majesty's Army or a volunteer enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, and acting as such, for the purpose of dispersing such assembly, and if necessary, arresting and confining the persons who form part of it, in order to disperse such assembly or that they may be punished according to law.

Notes

1. Procedure to be adopted in dispersing unlawful assemblies.

(1) On being requisitioned a squad of Police properly armed and accoutred and carrying ten rounds of bullet ammunition per man in command of a responsible officer will proceed with all despatch to the scene. The Magistrate or superior Police Officer or other subordinate Officer as circumstances may permit supported by a file (who will duly come to the charge on being halted) will proceed to within speaking distance of the mob and command it to disperse and distinctly warn it that the fire will be effective and that Blank cartridge will not be used. If the mob shows itself aggressive and determined not to disperse the officer and file in force will fall back, and the squad will on due command to that effect, load, after which another warning to the rioters to disperse will be given and if not obeyed within a reasonable time fire will be opened on distinct word of command by the officer in charge of the squad, either by specified number of files or by ranks of subsections or sections or he may order a volley according to the requirements of the situation. See C P Pol Man p 16.

(2) Firing shall cease the instant it is no longer necessary. Care should be taken not to fire upon persons separated from the crowd, nor to fire over the heads of the crowds, as thereby innocent persons may be injured. —Bomb Pol Man p 70

2 Blank cartridges—should never be served out to Police employed to suppress a riot. —See Bomb Pol Man p 70 Mad Pol Man

3 Degree of force to be employed must be proportioned to the circumstances of the case. The degree of force which may lawfully be used in suppression of an unlawful assembly depends on the nature of such assembly, for the force must always be moderated, and proportioned to the circumstances of the case and to the end to be obtained. The taking of life can be justified only by the necessity of protecting persons or property against various forms of violence or crime, or by the necessity of dispersing a riotous crowd which is dangerous unless dispersed. 21 M. 219

4 Special Police Officers —See Ss. 31 and 32 of the Police Act (V of 1861), S. 499 of the Madras Police Act (XXIV of 1859) and Ss. 27 and 28 of Bomb Act VII of 1867.

5 Good faith only entitles the officer to without public one of the crown men—that he was not acting in good faith and his act was not protected simply because he obeyed the orders of his superior officer. 21 M 219

129 If any such assembly cannot be otherwise dispersed, and if it is necessary for the public use of military force, security that it should be dispersed, the Magistrate of the highest rank who is present may cause it to be dispersed by military force.

Notes.

1 Justification of the use of military force

"The summary suppression of riotous assemblies by armed force and the use for that purpose of any amount of violence, extending even to the causing of death are justifiable on grounds of state necessity and can only be justified so far as that necessity exists. It may seem anomalous that an executive officer should be authorised at his own discretion to inflict capital punishment upon a rioter who could only after due trial and conviction be liable to three years' imprisonment. But experience shows that a riotous assembly is the first step in the contest between violence and law, and that if it is not checked at once all law is swept away and every species of crime is certain to follow. —Mayne Cr L p. 329

130. (1) When a Magistrate determines to disperse any such assembly by military force, he may require any commissioned or non-commissioned officer in command of any soldiers in Her Majesty's Army or of any volunteers enrolled under the Indian Volunteers Act, 1869, to disperse such assembly by military force, and to arrest and confine such persons forming part of it as the Magistrate may direct, or as it may be necessary to arrest and confine in order to disperse the assembly or to have them punished according to law.

Duty of officer commanding troops required by Magistrate to disperse assembly.

(2) Every such officer shall obey such requisition in such manner as he thinks fit, but in so doing he shall use as little force, and do as little injury to person and property, as may be consistent with dispersing the assembly and arresting and detaining such persons.

Notes

- 1 Volunteers—S. 24 of Act XX of 1869 (Indian Volunteers Act) empowers Volunteers to prevent disturbance of the public peace, disperse unlawful assemblies, and apprehend certain suspected persons.

131. When the public security is manifestly endangered by any such assembly, and when the Power of commissioned military Magistrate can be communicated with, any commissioned officer or officers to disperse assembly.

Her Majesty's Army may disperse such assembly by military force, and may arrest and confine any persons forming part of it, in order to disperse such assembly or that they may be punished according to law; but if while he is acting under this section, it becomes practicable for him to communicate with a Magistrate, he shall do so, and shall thereafter obey the instructions of the Magistrate as to whether he shall or shall not continue such action.

132. No prosecution against any person for any act purporting to be done under this Chapter shall be instituted in any Criminal Court, except with the sanction of the Governor General in Council; and—

- (a) no Magistrate or police-officer acting under this Chapter in good faith,
 - (b) no officer acting under section 131 in good faith,
 - (c) no person doing any act in good faith, in compliance with a requisition under section 125 or section 130, and
 - (d) no inferior officer, or soldier, or volunteer, doing any act in obedience to any order which he was bound to obey,
- shall be deemed to have thereby committed an offence.

Notes.

- 1 Meaning of good faith—Nothing is said to be done in good faith which is done without due care and attention—See Ss 52 and 76 I.P.C. and 3(20) of the General Clauses Act X of 1867. The question of good faith is one of fact. It must be considered with reference to the position of the accused and the circumstances under which he acted [12 B 377]. The want of due care and caution must in each case be considered with reference to the general circumstances and the capacity and the intelligence of the person whose conduct is in question [31 B 293 (29), 12 B 377. See also 21 M. 249. Under S. 125 Cr. P. C.
- 2 Application of cl (d) It should be noted that the words "under Military law" and "in good faith" in the corresponding Section of the previous Codes have been omitted. The effect is to make "obedience to any order which the person was bound to obey" a sufficient justification irrespective of the question of good faith. Cl (d) does not apply to Police Officers. A Police officer is not protected simply "because he obeyed the orders of his superior officer" [21 M. 249].

3. Sanction.—Want of sanction required for this section cannot be cured by S 537(b). 31 M 40. See also 29 M 119.
4. As for definition of Officer and soldier—See Act V, of 1869 (Indian Articles of War) and of Volunteer (The preamble to the Indian Volunteers Act XX of 1869).
5. Change of law.—The words "any person" have been substituted for the words "any Magistrate, Military Officer, Police Officer, soldier and Volunteer" in the earlier Codes. Special Constables included under Ss 31 and 32 of the Police Act V of 1861 are now protected. See cl. (c).

CHAPTER X

PUBLIC NUISANCES.

133 (1) Whenever a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate, or, when empowered by Conditional order for removal of the Local Government in this behalf, a Magistrate of the first nuisance class, considers, on receiving a police-report or other information, and on taking such evidence (if any) as he thinks fit, that any tank, well or excavation adjacent to any such way or public place should be fenced in such manner as to prevent danger arising to the public, or that any dangerous animal should be destroyed, confined or otherwise disposed of, such Magistrate may make a conditional order requiring the person causing such obstruction or nuisance, or carrying on such trade, or occupation, or keeping any such goods or merchandise, or owning, possessing or controlling such building, tent, structure, substance, tank, well or excavation, or owning or possessing such animal or tree, within a time to be fixed in the order, to remove such obstruction or nuisance; or to desist from carrying on, or to remove or regulate in such manner as may be directed, such trade or occupation or to remove such goods or merchandise, or to regulate the keeping thereof in such manner as may be directed, or to prevent or stop the erection of, or to remove, repair or support such building, tent or structure or to remove or support such tree, or to alter the disposal of such substance; or to fence such tank, well or excavation, as the case may be; or to destroy, confine or dispose of such dangerous animal in the manner pointed out in the said order; or if he objects as to do, to appear before himself or some other Magistrate of the first or second class at a time and place to be fixed by the order, and more to have the order set aside or modified in the manner hereinafter provided.

(2) No order duly made by a Magistrate under this section shall be called in question in any Civil Court.

Explanation A "public place" includes also property belonging to the State, camping grounds and grounds left unoccupied for sanitary and recreative purposes."

134 (1) The order shall, if practicable, be served on the person against whom it is made, in Service or notification of order manner herein provided for service of a summons.

I. CHANGE IN THE LAW.

Under the Code of 1861—S 308 corresponding to S 133 of the present Code, only the District Magistrate could act under S 133 Cr P C [See 15 W R 36 2 Ag 1] In 15 W R 41 it was held that a Joint Magistrate in charge of a Division of a District could originate proceedings but could not pass final order Under the present Code all District Magistrates and Sub-Divisional Magistrates are ex officio, competent to act under Chapter X, but first class Magistrates can act, only when specially empowered by the Local Government

II. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.(1) Object.

1. Urgency and imminent danger alone justify action. The exceptional powers given by Chapter X, should be used only when there is proof of urgency or imminent danger to the public. It is improper for a Magistrate to make use of those powers in regard to a matter which is already the subject of a Civil Suit 4 P R 1897 21 W R 86 42 C 159 15 C N 1056 Rat 81

2. Action to be taken purely in the public interest. It is certainly expedient that in all criminal proceedings initiated under S 133 Cr P C the Magistrate should bear in his mind that he is supposed to be acting purely in the interest of the public and should be on his guard against any tendency to use the section as a substitute for litigation in the Civil Courts, in order to obtain settlement of private disputes 37 A 26 26 C 569 23 C 499

3. Nuisance must be existing and not merely anticipatory. The nuisance must be an existing one and not one merely likely to occur in the future [21 W R 10 5 P R 1890] S 133 relates an existing state of affairs and not the possibility of future results [20 Cr 462 (P)] (01) A N 126]

4. Necessity for caution. Criminal Courts ought to be cautious in passing orders under S. 133 Cr P C since the order bars the jurisdiction of Civil Courts to question it 2 P R 1903 18 C N 1056

5. How to work the provisions. The provisions of Chapter X should not be so worked as to interfere with a free and full enjoyment by a person of his own property except on clear and absolute proof that such use of it by him is injurious to the health or physical comfort of the community 17 P R 1555

(2) Application.

6. Scope of the section S 133 Cr P C applies only to physical obstruction which must be actually in situ and capable of being removed. There are no words in the section prohibiting future obstruction [(01) A N 126]

7. Investigation into the rights of the parties. The procedure prescribed by S 133 and the following sections provide for the ascertainment of rights as well as for the actual removal of the obstruction 9 B R 30 28 A 98 10 C N 845 2 Pat J 67 2 Weir 64 7 Bur T 23

8. Powers not general but limited by S. 133. The Magistrate's powers are confined to the specific instances mentioned in the section. The section does not confer general powers upon a Magistrate to pass any order he may consider necessary for the protection of public health 22 W R 19 24 W R 6 25 W R 4 (100) A N 135 12 C N 70 Rat 516 2 Weir 64

9. Justice and equity should be the guiding principle. The exercise of the summary powers provided by Chap. X require both experience and discretion in a Magistrate. Justice and equity should form the rule of the Magistrate's conduct. 2 B R 384

67 5 C 875 See (11) Public and private. (159)

[Note—For exception—See (11) Public and private (157 to 159)]

11. Ss. 133 and 144 mutually exclusive.—Public nuisances specifically provided for in S 133 Cr P C are taken out of the general provisions of S 144 2 Weir 54-5 M H (19) 19; Rat 50; 8 W R 37 1 N P. 197 See 38 C. 876

Note—In other cases the procedure to be followed is that laid down in S 144 or S 141 2 Weir 61]

12. Proceedings once commenced under

Chap. X. must be concluded under that Chapter. A Magistrate having once commenced proceedings under S 133 Cr P C, is not at liberty to proceed otherwise than in conformity with the rule laid down in Chapter X—5 W. R. 37 2 W. R. 1, &c 2 M T A (115) 1 N P. 197 2 N. P. 152

13. Application for declaration of a place as a cremation ground. An application to have it declared that a certain place was one which could be used for cremation purposes would not come under any of the clauses of this section 24 W. R. 6

III. NATURE OF PROCEEDINGS UNDER THE CHAPTER.

14. (1) Judicial—The provision of the section which requires the Magistrate to issue a notice to the person concerned to show cause why the order should not be enforced, shows that an order under the section is one made in a judicial proceeding.—10 B H 169 2 B H 484 7 B L 119 Rat 59 Con 1 B H 150 (9) 2 P R 1880

15. (2) Criminal trials—Orders passed under Chapter X are orders passed in a criminal trial within the words of S 15 of the Letters Patent. No appeal lies therefore from an order passed under S 139 Cr P C by a single Judge of the High Court in revision of proceedings under that Chapter—[(15) M N 249]

16. (3) Civil rather than criminal—Proceedings under S 133 are more of the nature of civil than of criminal proceedings. There is nothing therefore to prevent a party to such a proceeding being examined on oath and being prosecuted for an offence under S 1911 P C—9 C N. 983 [D is (15) M. N. 249]

17. (4) Proceeding before the Jury—is not proceeding in a Criminal Court within the meaning of S 135 Cr. P. C—Est. 326

18. Limited character of the enquiry—The enquiry contemplated by S 133 Cr. P. C is an enquiry into the existence or non-existence of the nuisance complained of and not an enquiry into disputed questions of title, such questions are within the jurisdiction of Civil Courts—12 C. 13 (135) 18 C. S. 1118, 1 B R. 687 (585)

IV. MAGISTRATES HAVING JURISDICTION.

19. All first class Magistrates have been empowered to act under Chapter X

(1) in Bombay (except Honorary Magistrates) Bomb Gaz 1872 (p 1325) 1873 (p 16)

(2) in Madras—See Part St G Gaz 1873, P. 717.

(3) in the Panjab Panj Gaz 1878 Pt I (P 361) 1873 (P 75)

20. Presidency Magistrates—are not empowered to act under this section.

21. Municipal Boards—The Local Government may invest Municipal Boards in the N. W. P. and Oudh with the powers of a District Magistrate as described in S 133—See Act XV of 1883 S 57

22. Second class Magistrates—Although second class Magistrates have no power to initiate proceedings, they have jurisdiction to make absolute a conditional order passed by a Magistrate having jurisdiction and sent up to them under the penultimate paragraph of S 144 Cr. P. C 25 C. 274-9 M. 201 but see 20 Cr. 761 (M)

Note—After the reference has once been made it rests with the second class Magistrate to give final decision and issue thereon the consequential order under S 140 Cr. P. C. 9 M 201; 2 Weir 61

23. Meaning of the word Magistrate in S 133 cl (1) The words "the Magistrate" in S 133 cl (1) refer to the Magistrate to whom application has to be made under S 135 cl (b) to empanel a jury and who under S 138 Cr. P. C. does so and not the magistrate before whom the magistrate possessing the conditional order directs the counter petitioners to show cause under cl (1) of S 13 Cr. P. V. JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATES.

24. Conditions precedent to exercise of jurisdiction.

(1) The road, channel etc. must be a public one—Magistrate have jurisdiction to entertain a case for the removal of obstruction from a thoroughfare only if he finds that the road is a public one 15 W. R. 67-5 C 875 22 W R 19 25 W. R. 1 18 W. R. 41, 9 B L 117

(2) Only when there is proof of urgency or imminent danger to the public and immediate action is necessary in the interests of the public See 4 P. R 1897, 21 W R 86-Rat. 81 37 A 26

(3) There must be an existing nuisance capable of being removed and not one merely to be anticipated, i. e. likely to occur in the future 21 W R 10; 5 P R 1890 (01) A. N. 126, 20 Cr 462 (P).

25. Where a bonafide claim of right is established, the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to proceed further. See (12) Bonafide claim of right (161)
26. No jurisdiction to decide questions of note.—Where a bonafide question of note is raised, the Magistrate ought not to proceed under S 133 Cr. P. C. but should leave the matter to be directed by the Magistrate. 21 A 98 35 C 283 10 B R 563 2 P R 1103 1 P R 1897 6 P R 1887 12 C 137 12 C 696
27. Magistrate cannot go into the question of limitation.—A Magistrate acting under chapter X is not competent to decide whether the claim of right set up by a counter petitioner is barred by limitation—12 C N 207

28. Objection to jurisdiction must be taken before reference to jury.—An objection to the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to proceed under S 133 in the particular case must be taken before reference to jury and is to be decided at the trial—5 C N 173 but See 30 A 201
29. Third application after rejection of two previous ones.—Where two previous applications for the removal of an obstruction in a public thoroughfare have been rejected, and the party has been referred to the Civil Court, the Magistrate has power to entertain a third application after the Civil Court has declared the way to be a public thoroughfare—11 C 271

VII. PROCEDURE.

A. General Rules.

(1) Analysis of Chapter X.

60. When a conditional order is passed (S. 133) the person proceeded against may
 (a) Either show cause or apply for a jury (S. 135)
 (b) If he fails to do so then he is liable to be prosecuted under S. 138 I P C and the order may be made absolute (S. 136)
 (c) If he shows cause, the Magistrate is bound to proceed under S. 137 Cr P C
 (d) If he applies for a jury, the Magistrate must proceed under S. 138 Cr P. C—See 13 C N. 367 8 W. R. 37

(2) A person cannot both show cause and ask for the appointment of a jury.

61. The party against whom a conditional order under S. 133 Cr. P C is made cannot both show cause against the order and ask for the appointment of a jury. S. 135 Cr P C gives the person against whom the conditional order is made, the right to adopt either of the alternatives 13 C N 367.

(3) Provisions of Ss. 137 and 138 mandatory.

62. Both these Sections are imperative in their terms. The Magistrate has no discretion in the

65. See (8) Evidence (128, 129).

Order in which evidence is to be taken.

66. The party who has set the law in motion has to produce evidence, and the opposite party is not bound to do so until this has been done—11 A J. 685 31 A. 451

(4) Procedure as to the jury.

67. Magistrate bound to appoint jury.—If the person affected by the conditional order applies for the appointment of a jury the Magistrate is bound to do so—3 C.L. 599. 19 P.R. 1887

63. Procedure before appointment of jury. Prior to the appointment of the jury under S. 134 Cr. P. C., the Magistrate is bound under S. 137 Cr. P. C. to determine the question which is the most important question in proceedings under S. 133 and which alone gives the Magistrate jurisdiction—viz—whether the pathway or the channel etc., in which the obstruction is said to have been erected is in fact a public pathway etc., or not 3 C.J. 360
69. Magistrate bound to frame his order in accordance with the decision of the jury. 22 W.R. 46. See (70) Jury (111)

B. Notice. [S. 134].

73. S. 134 is directory. Omission to follow the terms of S. 134 Cr. P. C., though an irregularity does not invalidate the order. 16 C. 9. 2 P.R. 1900, but See 14 W.R. 17. 16 W.R. 63. 12 W.R. 40.
74. Failure to serve notice personally
(a) Is not fatal, when it appears that the parties did not take objection before the Magistrate and that they in fact admitted knowledge of the existence of the notice and sought to excuse their failure to obey it.—5 W.R. 1
(b) Is not fatal, when the order is communicated before it is made absolute and it is immaterial that the method of bringing the order to actual notice is not in strict accordance with the provisions of S. 134 Cr. P. C. 2 P.R. 1900
75. Mode of service
(a) Service may be made by fixing a copy of the order to the house of the person for whom it is meant. 12 M. 175.
(b) The notice is to be served on persons individually and cannot be addressed generally to the public at large by a proclamation—8 A. 99. 12 C.L. 231

(5) Magistrate's powers in the matter of procedure.

70. Magistrate may drop proceedings—When the Magistrate after enquiry finds there is no sufficient cause for proceedings, he is competent to let the matter drop. 1 C.L. 456. 8 C. 883
71. Cause shown after time fixed. See (70) Showing cause (90)
72. Case falling under both Sections 133 and 144 In a case which falls within both the Sections 133 and 144, the Magistrate must conform to the more particular directions of S. 133 Cr. P. See Bomb. Gaz. Pt 1 P. 886. Notification No. 6067 dated the 14th October 1887. C. Showing cause. [S. 137].

80. Opportunity to show cause must be given—A party against whom a conditional order has been issued is entitled to an opportunity to show cause against it. An omission to give this opportunity renders the whole proceedings void. 21 W.R. 66. 7 B.L. 449. 5 B.L. 81. 5 B.L. (ap) 82 (n). 10 W.R. 27. 2 W.R. 36.
81. Procedure when the party appears to show cause—When a party ordered to show cause, appears to show cause against the order, and offers to show cause, the Magistrate is bound to take evidence as in a summons case, i.e. the complainant has to start the proceedings by adducing evidence first and the party showing cause may produce his evidence if so advised. If the party called on to show cause

- 83 (1) is able to establish to the satisfaction of the Magistrate—that the conditional order in question is not reasonable or proper, no further proceedings shall be taken in the case. [See S. 137 (2)] See 2 B. II 344.
- 84 (2) sets up a claim of right—i.e. claims that the pathway, river or channel etc. is his private property, the magistrate has to decide whether the objection is a bona fide one or a mere subterfuge for the purpose of ousting his jurisdiction. If he finds that the claim is bonafide, he should abstain from further action until the public right of way is determined by a competent Court.

15 C. 561; 14 W. R. 11; 31 C. 979.

See—(12) Bonafide claim of right (160—161)

85. (3) is unable to satisfy the Magistrate—that the order is otherwise than reasonable and proper the order shall be made absolute [S. 137 (3)]

86. Objection regarding the applicability of the section. The question whether the matter with regard to which proceedings have been instituted was or was not one falling within the scope of S. 137 (1) P. C. is a matter for enquiry at the trial.

5 C. N. 173

87. Magistrate's obligation to follow procedure laid down in Chapter X. When a Magistrate has once commenced proceedings under S. 133 Cr. P. C. he is not at liberty to proceed otherwise than in conformity with the rules laid down in Chap. X.

8 W. R. 37; 21 W. R. 1; 1 N. P. 197; 2 N. P. 452; 2 M. J. A. (173).

88. The provisions of S. 137 Cr. P. C. are mandatory. S. 137 is imperative and mandatory. A magistrate is bound to record evidence, when the petitioners show cause. He cannot assume the role of an arbitrator, because both the parties agree to his being so. Consent of the parties or waiver cannot vest him with jurisdiction. 21 C. N. 231; 13 C. N. 207; 13 C. N. 242; 3 C. J. 269; 8 C. L. 131; 23 W. R. 7; 11 B. 375; 23 Cr. 217 (Pat.); 1 Pat. W. 292.

89. Procedure in cases of encroachment—

When the complaint was that the opposite party had built a house encroaching on a public way (Plot no. 1275 of the Cadastral Survey Map) and the person affected (by the conditional order) alleged that it had been rebuilt in situ on their own plot no. 1275. Held—that the extent of encroachment if any should have been ascertained by relaying the map on the ground and otherwise—and in the absence of a definite finding the order should not be upheld—21 C. J. 110.

90. Cause shown after the time fixed. Objections should be heard even if they are filed after the time fixed for their presentation, but before the case is taken up. 10 W. R. 27; 2 W. R. 56.

91. Procedure on non-appearance on the date of hearing. Where objections have been filed the Magistrate is bound to take evidence before making the order absolute whether the objector appears or not on the date fixed for hearing. (600) A. N. 201. When the person against whom notice is issued appears and shows cause, any subsequent failure of his to produce evidence does not justify an order absolute unless the Magistrate is satisfied that there is a nuisance as contemplated by S. 137 Cr. P. C. [2 B. R. 814].

D. Jury. [S. 138 Cr. P. C.].

(1) Right to claim a jury

92. In a proceeding under S. 134 Cr. P. C., the person called upon to show cause has a right to claim a jury. The Magistrate on being asked to appoint a jury is bound to do so. If he refuses, he acts without jurisdiction. [2 Weir 63; 19 P. R. 1847; 2 C. L. 509; 9 R. R. 30]. But if he shows cause, he loses his right. He cannot both show cause and claim a jury. [8 C. S. 135; 13 C. N. 367].

(2) Procedure before reference to Jury.

93. Prior to appointing a Jury, the Magistrate should himself determine the question whether the pathway in which the obstruction is caused is in fact a public pathway or not. [3 C. J. 360]. The question whether the way etc. in question is public or private must be decided by the Magistrate himself. It is not open to him to leave the decision of the question to the Jury appointed under S. 138 Cr. P. C. [5 C. 875; 3 C. N. 345; 5 C. N. 173; 10 C. N. 845; 14 C. N. 511; 18 C. N. 1148; 31 C. 979; 9 B. R. 30; 2 Weir 64; 2 Pat. J. 67; 7 Bur. T. 23. Con. 30 A. 361; 18 A. 158].

(3) Nomination of the Jury.

94. Duty cannot be delegated—A Magistrate to whom an application to appoint a Jury is made cannot delegate that duty to another Magistrate. [Rat. 460.]

95. Magistrate should use his independent discretion.—A Magistrate should use his own independent discretion in the nomination of the foreman and one half of the remaining members of the jury. [20 C. 869; 21 C. 109; 21 W. R. 43; 18 W. R. 21]. If the foreman of the jury alone is appointed the jury is not properly constituted. [7 B. L. (sup.) 57 (5). Con. 14 W. R. 69].

96. Appointment to be made in the presence of the parties.—The appointment or cancellation of the appointment of a juror should be made in the presence of the parties and not be made in vacuo.—5 C. 875.

97. Magistrate's veto.—A Magistrate cannot veto the appointment as a juror of a person nominated by the applicant. [4 P. R. 1897].

(4) Composition of the Jury.

98. Friends and supporters of the applicant.—It is highly improper on the part of a Magistrate to appoint to serve on a jury the friends and supporters of the person at whose instance the proceedings under Chapter X are being taken. 37 A. 26; 4 P. R. 1897. See 23 C. 199; 21 W. R. 43; 16 W. R. 23.

[Note—But where no objection was taken by the opposite party and there has been no failure of justice, the irregularity will be condoned.—37 A. 26.]

99. Nominees of the applicant. Although it is not illegal on the part of a Magistrate to enquire from the applicant the names of respectable persons living in the neighbourhood, who would be willing to serve on the jury, it is highly improper to accept the nominees of the applicant [26 C 869, 23 C 491, 21 W R 13]. A jury consisting of the complainant and his wife &c. is not a proper tribunal and an order on the footing of their decision is not valid [22 W R 47 (18), 1 P R 1807].

(5) The foreman of the jury.

100. Cannot appoint a substitute. The foreman of a jury cannot appoint a substitute for a juror who falls ill during the hearing without the permission of the Magistrate. An order based on the report of such a jury is illegal [10 C 1, 193].
101. Delay of Foreman in making the report. Where the jury had given their opinion to the foreman to report to the Magistrate in time but the foreman made delay in making the report, the Magistrate could not appoint a second jury. He ought to act upon the report of the first jury [21 W R 51].

(6) Functions of the Jury.

102. Each juror must exercise his own judgment.—The finding of the jury should be arrived at after each juror exercises his own discretion in the matter. A verdict given by jurors some of whom blindly follow the opinion of others is not a proper one [25 W R 4].
103. The question whether there is a public right of way or not cannot be referred to the jury.—3 C N 845, 31 C 979, 10 C N 845, See 26 C 869, Con—20 A 364. Also see above No 93.
104. The question of the bonafides of a claim of right when the way etc. is claimed to be a private one cannot be determined by the jury. It must be decided by the Magistrate himself. 14 C N 544, 10 C N 845, 31 C 979, 4 C N 596, 26 C 869, 3 C J 360, 18 C N 1118, 2 Weir 64. Con—30 A 361, 18 A 158.
105. Subject of enquiry.—The jury are simply to decide in an informal way whether the objection is or is not a reasonable one. They cannot decide whether a pathway is public or private—10 C N 845.

(7) Proceedings before the Jury.

106. No special procedure for Jury.—There is no special procedure laid down by the Code to be adopted by jury in coming to a finding on the questions submitted to them [30 A 361]. The proceedings before the jury are informal [10 C N, 845 (94), Rat 330].
107. Magistrate's duty. Magistrate should give instructions to the jury as to what they should do [2 B, H 384]. If the jury require evidence, it should be produced before them—[18 A 158].
108. Verdict based on a mere inspection is illegal.—A verdict given on mere local inspection and without taking evidence is illegal.

The jury are bound to hear the parties and such witnesses as they may desire to bring forward [26 C 849, 6 C N 886].

109. Award delivered after time.—When the jury deliver their award long after the time appointed for filing the same, it is illegal and can not be acted on—7 B L (np) 57, 14 W R 69, 13 C N, 367, Con 2 B H, 384.

[Note. The time run, on good cause being shown, be extended under the present Code—See S 138 (2), but the power to extend can not be delegated by the Magistrate to the foreman of the Jury—23 A 159].

(8) When some members are absent or refuse to act.

110. Where one out of five jurors declines to act as such the Magistrate can not act on the verdict of the remaining members. He should order a fresh jury to be summoned [11 C 84, 13 C 275]. Where one out of 5 jurors fell ill and the remaining four dealt with the case—held that their verdict was illegal and could not be acted on. A fresh jury must be appointed [11 Cr 402(5), 21 Cr 448(C)]. The jury should hear and try the matter together: a decision by 3 out of 5, in the absence of the other two, is invalid [23 A 159 (162)].

(9) The verdict.

111. Magistrate bound to base his order on the finding of the jury.—[1 Shome 11, 25 W R 31, 22 W R 86, 12 W R 28]. A Magistrate can not decline to act on the findings of the jury or a majority of them under S 139 Cr P C on the ground that it involved an inconsistency. If the finding is that the order of the Magistrate is reasonable and proper, the Magistrate is bound to make the order absolute [10 Cr 210 (C), 18 A 158].
112. Reference by agreement of the question, whether pathway is public or private, to jury. Where on the application of the party concerned, whether a pathway is a thoroughfare or not has been referred to the jury, the Magistrate is bound to frame his order in accordance with their finding [22 W R 86, 18 A 158, 30 A 364]. But See 25 W R 72.
113. Verdict binding on the applicant. The person at whose instance the jury was appointed is bound by their verdict and can not turn round and set up a bonafide claim of right [22 A 267, 30 A 364].
114. Objection to the verdict. When a party objects to a verdict, he must satisfy the Magistrate that there are prima facie grounds for the opinion that either the jury did not in fact apply a judicial discretion to the case or that the verdict was such as the jury could not have arrived at by a proper exercise of their discretion upon the materials before them [21 W R 15].
- (10) Procedure on Jury failing to return their verdict.
115. Fresh Jury to be appointed.—Where a jury appointed under S 138 Cr. P C. fails to return their verdict and the petitioner prays for a fresh jury, the Magistrate ought to appoint a fresh jury instead of following the strict provisions of S. 141 [12 C N 1047, 13 C N 307]. When the defect in the proceedings of the Jury has not been caused by the petitioner or his nominee, the Magistrate ought not to make the order absolute when the petitioner shows sufficient reasons why it should not be made [2 B H 384].

116. When fresh Jury need not be appointed. A Magistrate is justified in making the

118. No need to wait till the order is made absolute. Where the person against whom an order under S. 131 Cr. P. 119. Object of S. 136 Cr. P. C. The provisions of S. 136 Cr. P. C. are stringent, because it is intended to create facilities for conditional orders and to avoid needless delay in carrying them into effect—12 M 475.
120. Only the person called upon to show cause can be punished. Where the owner of a hat has been forbidden to hold the hat on a particular day, tres can not be proceeded for exposing goods for sale at the hat on the particular day. 16 C B.

order absolute under S. 141 Cr. P. C. without taking evidence under S. 137 Cr. P. C. if the petitioner takes no action, after the jury had failed to perform their duty, to move the Magistrate to take evidence—13 C N 307.

(11) Miscellaneous.

117. Revision by High Court. The decision of a jury under S. 138 Cr. P. C. is not a judicial proceeding and so can not be the subject of revision under Ss. 135 and 139 Cr. P. C. Rat 336.

S. 136 Cr. P. C.

121. Disobedience of verbal orders. A verbal order directing a party to remove an obstruct has not the effect of an order under S. 137 Cr. P. C. It is not an order duly made and lawfully promulgated. A person disobeying it can not be convicted under S. 188 I. P. C. 16 C 21 (C) 2 A 1.
122. Disobedience of illegal orders. When the conditional order is illegal a person can not be punished under S. 188 I. P. C. for disobeying it [Rat 312, 12 C L 231; 1 Bur. S. R. 363, See Rat 50. Compare—14 B 165]. When the order is passed by a Magistrate not empowered to act under Chap. X it is no offence to disobey it [S. C. L. 231; S. (14) A. N. 231, 1 A. J. 615]. A Magistrate can not convict a person for disobeying his order when the legality of the order is if it is under the consideration of an appellate Court [2 B H 46 (11)].

VIII. EVIDENCE.

(1) Magistrate's obligation to take evidence.

123. Magistrate is bound to take evidence as in a summons case.—A Magistrate is bound under S. 137 Cr. P. C. to take evidence in the case, in the manner provided for summons cases. He cannot pass a final order without taking any evidence.—42 C 702, 20 Cr 752 (C), 21 C 395, 21 C N 926, 10 C J 482, 31 A 453, 11 A. J. 931, 2 Weir 62, 17 M. T. 112, 18 Cr. 818 (M), 11 B 375, 20 Cr 217 (Pat.), 1 Pat. W. 50, 1 Pat. W. 292, 32 P. R. 1917, 147 P. L. 1991, 32 P. R. 1917.

Consent of parties or waiver no excuse.

124. S. 137 is imperative and mandatory. A Magistrate is bound to record evidence when the petitioner shows cause. He cannot assume the role of an arbitrator, because both the parties agree to his being so. Consent of parties or waiver cannot vest him with jurisdiction.—21 O N 926, 13 C N 367, 13 O N 243, 18 C L 431, 2 C L 509, 10 C J 482, 3 C J. 360, 26 W. R. 7, 17 M. T. 142, 2 Weir 62, 11 B 375, 1 Pat. W. 292, 20 Cr. 217 (Pat.), 19 P. R. 1887.

Meaning of the words "shall take evidence" in S. 137 Cr. P. C.

125. The words "shall take evidence" in S. 137 Cr. P. C. mean "shall take evidence upon the matter of the complainant and not merely the evidence which the opposite party might offer"—21 C. 395, 32 P. R. 1917; 557 P. L. 1901.

The order in which evidence is to be recorded.

126. See 7 C.—Showing cause (No 61).
127. In ex parte cases

(1) Non-appearance of the objector, on the date of hearing, provided he has filed objection, does not absolve a Magistrate from the duty of recording evidence before making the order absolute [100]. A. N. 204, 2 B R 819]. But where no cause has been shown and the party has taken no action to vacate the order, the ex parte information on which the conditional order is based becomes conclusive evidence.—[12 M 475, See S. 136]

(2) Magistrate can act only on legal evidence.

128. Result of local enquiry.—A Magistrate acts without jurisdiction in basing his order absolute on the information collected at a local enquiry (even if the parties agree to such a course). 21 C N 926, 10 C J 482, 3 C. J. 360, 2 C L 509, 20 Cr. 217 (Pat.), 1 Pat. W. 292, 17 M. T. 142, 2 Weir 62, 19 P. R. 1887.

Note.—A Magistrate acts without jurisdiction in deciding the case not on the evidence adduced by the parties but entirely upon the result of his own local enquiry and on the basis of the plan he has himself made—20 Cr 322(C), 32 P R 1917

129. Report of a Subordinate Magistrate.—A Magistrate acting under S 137 Cr P C is bound to take evidence. He cannot act upon the report of a subordinate Magistrate and his personal inspection—2 Weir 62, 15 B R 57, 10 C J 482, 20 Cr 217 (Pat). See 17 M T 142

130. Previous conviction on same facts. A Magistrate passing an order under S 139 Cr P C cannot rely merely upon a previous conviction of the person under S 243 I P C in respect of the same matter. He is bound to take evidence and to follow the procedure laid down in Chapter X—3 C J 360

IX. INJUNCTION PENDING ENQUIRY (S. 142).

135. Application of S. 142 Cr. P. C.—When immediate measures are necessary to prevent imminent danger or injury to the public, an order of injunction may be passed pending enquiry by a jury.—21 W R 56
136. Jurisdiction ceases on danger passing away.—There is no jurisdiction to pass an order under S 142, when no jury has been appointed and the danger has passed away [1 W R 5]

X. ORDER ABSOLUTE.

(Ss 136, 137, 139, 141)

(1) Analysis—An order absolute can be made in four ways.

138. (1) Ex parte—when the person called upon to show cause does not perform the act he is directed to perform in the conditional order, and does not appear and show cause or apply for the appointment of a jury as required by S 135 Cr P C [See S 136 Cr P C]
139. (2) If the party appears and shows cause but is unable to satisfy the Magistrate that the order is not reasonable and proper [S 137 (3)]
140. (3) If the jury appointed under S 138 Cr. P. C find that the order of the Magistrate is reasonable and proper.—[S 139 (1) Cr P. C]
141. (4) If the applicant by neglect or otherwise prevents the appointment of the jury or if from any cause, the jury appointed do not return their verdict within the time fixed—[S 141]

(2) Who is to make the order absolute.

142. The words "the Magistrate" in S 139 cl (1) refer to the Magistrate to whom application has to be made under S 135 cl (b) to empanel a jury and who under S 134 Cr. P. C does so, and not to the Magistrate before whom the Magistrate passing the order directs the defendant to ant.—In a proceeding under S 133 Cr P C, it is necessary to establish first that the act complained of is a nuisance or an obstruction, and secondly that it was committed in a public place which may lawfully be used by the public—20 Cr 554 (Pat), 25 W. R. 72

132. Evidence of motive.—The motive with which a public highway is obstructed is absolutely irrelevant.—23 A 159.
133. Magistrate cannot arbitrarily disregard evidence.—It is not open to the Magistrate to select for his decision certain evidence and to disregard other evidence because he is of opinion "that even if taken by him he would not believe it"—15 B R 57
134. Magistrate cannot pass orders on the basis of his own opinion.—See (10) Order absolute (115).

Where therefore a magistrate after making an emergent order under the section, subsequently directs further enquiry to be made, it was held that it must be taken that the Magistrate had abandoned his proceedings under this section and in the circumstances was bound to proceed under S 137 Cr P C [21 W R 86]

137. For Form of Injunction.—See Sch V No 19 post

show cause under cl (1) of S 133 Cr P C—Per Kumaraswami Sastri 20 Cr 761 (M), Con 9 M 201 and 25 C 276

[Note.—A second class Magistrate may make absolute a conditional order, passed by subordinate Magistrate, who sends the case up to him—25 C 278]

(3) Order must be based on legal evidence taken by the Magistrate.

143. See (S) Evidence (125)
144. Magistrate cannot decide the case on local inspection.—The procedure of a magistrate, who referred the objection to a subordinate magistrate for report and who on receiving the report and after making a personal inspection of the spot, made the order absolute without taking any evidence whatever, was illegal [2 Weir 62, 10 C J 482, 20 Cr 217 (Pat), 17 M T 142]. The consent of the parties to have the case decided upon the local inspection does not dispense with the necessity of holding a regular trial under S 137 Cr P. C. and deciding the case on legal evidence.—[10 C J 482, 20 Cr. 217 (Pat)]
145. Magistrate cannot base the order solely on his own opinion.—An order passed by a Magistrate for the removal of a nuisance without taking any evidence and acting solely on his own opinion that the structure was a nuisance was illegal and ultra vires—11 B 375; 31 A 173, 17 M T 112

(4) When the order may be made without evidence.

146. A Magistrate is justified in making the order absolute without taking evidence under S 137 Cr P C, the petitioners not having taken any action, on the failure of a Jury to return their verdict, to move the Magistrate to take evidence on their behalf [13 C N 367, 12 W R 21] Where no cause has been shown and the defendant has taken no steps to vacate the order, the ex parte information on which the conditional order was passed becomes conclusive evidence—12 M 175, S 136 Cr P C]

(5) When the order is illegal.

147. (1) If it is made without following the procedure laid down in S 133 Cr P C and the subsequent sections of Chap X 3 C 1, 360
148. (2) If it is made without taking any evidence as required by S 137 Cr P C See Evidence
149. (3) If it is made without giving the defendant an opportunity of showing cause—21 W R 46 See Showing cause
150. (4) If it is a verbal order. A verbal order directing a party to remove an obstruction has not the effect of an order under S 137 Cr P C It is not an order duly made and lawfully promulgated. A person discharging it is not guilty under S 188 I P C—16 Cr 21(C) 2 Ag 1

XI. PUBLIC AND PRIVATE.

(1) Meaning of public place.

158. A public place is one where the public go no matter whether they have a right or not [Welland R 14 Q B, D 64] A public road includes a fair wherein which is used for various purposes in connection with that road [7 C L 272] It is not necessary in order to give jurisdiction to the Magistrate under S 133 Cr P C that the way should be one which is generally used by the public. All that the section requires is that the way should be one which is or may be lawfully used by the public [10 Cr 210(C) See Harris R L R J O C, 282]

(2) When a private road may be considered public.

157. Where the road although a private one is open to the public the section had way and the right of the person proceeded against of obstructing the stream by erecting a bund has been lost by long desuetude, a Magistrate is competent to pass an order for the removal of the bund, on the ground that it was public nuisance [32 C 890] But the mere fact that the residents of a village had a right to take their cattle across a private

151. (5) If the order absolute is issued on a conditional order which is illegal—Rat 516, Rat 50

152. (6) If the order is based upon the report of an irregularly constituted jury—10 C L 193 (189)

(6) Order must follow the finding of the Jury.

153. A Magistrate cannot decline to act on the findings of the jury or a majority of them on the ground that it involves an inconsistency. If the finding is that the order of the Magistrate is reasonable and proper, the Magistrate must make the order absolute—10 Cr, 210(C)

(7) Power to set aside ex parte order.

154. Power to set aside ex parte order made under S. 136 Cr P C. A Magistrate may set aside an order passed by him under S. 136 Cr P C ex parte, on application being made by the opposite party and restore the case to the pending file. If he does so, he must proceed to record evidence, and comply with the provisions of S 137 Cr P C before he passes his final order in the case—4 Pat W 50

(8) Procedure on order being made absolute (S. 140).

155. Notice as directed by S 140 issued after the order is made absolute under S 136, should be personally served [12 M 175]. For form—See Sch V, Form No 18. A general notice by advertisement is not sufficient—[1 J J, 59, 2 B H 381] field, was not sufficient to constitute a public right of way [1906] A N 190]

(9) When the exercise of private rights may lead to a public nuisance.

158. Although as a general principle, S. 131 Cr P C does not apply to an alleged use by a person of his own private property, so as to cause injury to the property of another [See Rat 516, Rat 50, 26 A 213], such use may give rise to a public nuisance within the meaning of the section—e.g.—when a proprietor of a private cremation ground allows cremation of corpses to be carried on in a manner, causing annoyance or danger to the life and property of the people in the vicinity [25 C 425] Where a private party is allowed to remain in such a condition as to be a nuisance to persons, proceedings to cause the nuisance to be abated can be instituted under the section [4 B R 882] A previous sanction to the establishment of a trade does not entitle the proprietors to continue the business after it had become a nuisance to the neighbourhood [16 W. R 6 See 7 B L 516]

(10) Magistrate's jurisdiction depends on the right infringed being a public right.

159. Before a Magistrate proceeds further with the case of obstruction of a thoroughfare he must enquire first whether the road is public or private. He has jurisdiction only if he finds that the way, etc. is a public road [5 C 875; 15 W. R. 67; 18 W. R. 41; 2 C. N. 554; 22 B 1988; 26 A 213; 12 A J

1224; 2 P. R 1903]. A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to order the removal of an obstruction to a private drain [5 W. R. 58; 1 W. R. 324 (Cr)] or obstruction caused to a private path [2 W. R. 36]

XII. BONA FIDE CLAIM OF RIGHT.

- 160 (1). General Rule.—When a person against whom a conditional order is made, raises the question of title, the Magistrate has to find in the first place whether the obstruction complained of is situated in a public way etc. or not, and if he finds in the affirmative, whether the dispute as to title is a bonafide dispute or not. 2 C N 554 15 C 561

(2) Magistrate's procedure as to investigation of the bonafides of a claim of title.

161. A Magistrate proceeding under Chapter X, ought not, when a bonafide claim of title is set up, to proceed to make an order, but should allow the party setting up such claim, an opportunity of substantiating it, if he can do so by civil proceedings. The claim of title must however, in order that it may be allowed to prevail, be bonafide and not a mere pretence to oust jurisdiction and it is for the Magistrate to say whether the claim is bonafide or a mere subterfuge. If he decides against its bonafides, he must state his reasons for such decision. If he decides in its favour, he should abstain from further action until the public right of way is determined by a competent Court. The plea however, must be raised at or before the hearing and cannot be allowed to be raised afterwards.

party who has made the encroachment—6 C N 856 28 C J 211

163. The question of bonafides must be decided by the Magistrate himself: it cannot be referred to the Jury. The question as to the bonafides of a claim of right must be decided by the Magistrate himself. It is not open to him to leave the decision of the question to the jury appointed under R 138 Cr P C. 5 C 875 26 C 569, 31 C 979, 3 C N 345, 4 C N 566, 5 C N 173, 10 C N 845, 14 C N 544; 18 C N.

164. Plea must be taken at the first opportunity. The objection based on a bonafide claim of right, in order to prevail, must be raised at or before the first hearing. It cannot be allowed to be raised afterwards—15 C 364 23 C 499 7 C N 117 1 C J 434 22 A 267 7 Bur, T 23

165. The Magistrate cannot refer the parties to the Civil Court without coming to any finding as to the bonafides—2 C N 554 (556)

166. Mode of Investigation.—A Magistrate is entitled to hear the case sufficiently to enable him to make up his mind whether the claim of right set up is a bogus or bonafide one. [28 A 98 23 C 284 15 B R 57] s 133 provides for the ascertainment of rights as also for the removal of nuisances [9 B R 30]. The question of bonafides of a claim is a question of fact which has to be enquired into like any other question of fact [1 C J 434 20 Cr 576 (Pat)] A Magistrate acts without jurisdiction, if he decides the question of bonafides without taking any evidence [20 Cr 752 (C)] When the Magistrate decides against the plea he must state his reasons for doing so [15 C 561]

(3) The procedure on deciding in favour of the claim.

167. The parties can be referred to Civil Court only

Court"]

He is merely to abstain from taking any further action until the claim has been determined by a competent Court and should allow the parties sufficient opportunity of substantiating it [12 C 158 15 C 564 17 C 562 21 Cr 87(C) 2 C N 554]. A conditional order that "unless the party seek to establish his right in the Civil Court within 6 months his bonafides will again be questioned by this Court" is bad in form [20 Cr, 752 (C)] Where the Magistrate found that the claim "could not be dismissed summarily as malafide" and taking the judgment as a whole, the conclusion was irresistible that the Magistrate had really found that the claim was based on substantial grounds—the High Court set aside his order directing the counter-petitioner to go to the Civil Court within 6 months [21 Cr 87(C) See—15 C 264 8 C N 143]. If the party within a reasonable time does not have recourse to Civil Court, the Magistrate may then proceed to make the order absolute [42 C 158].

(4) Miscellaneous.

166. Test of a bonafide claim.—The mere fact that the land over which a right of way is claimed belongs to a particular person does not necessarily make the latter's contention a bonafide one. (1 C. J. 131) Neither does the fact that the residents of a particular village had a right to take their cattle across the field of the objector, was sufficient to constitute a public right of way [(100) A. N. 190] The claim must be enquired into like any other question of fact [1 C. J. 134 - 9 H. R. 30]
169. Bonafide dispute between private individual and Government.—As to the right to the ground on which an encroachment is alleged to have been made by a private individual by building a wall, a Magistrate should not proceed under this section, until the dispute is settled by the Civil Court—Rat. 378; See 2 B. R. 518

170. Revision by High Court.—The High Court will set aside an order when the record shows ample materials for coming to an express finding on the question of bonafide, but the Magistrate has failed to do so—3 C. N. 245.

XIII. PUBLIC NUISANCE.

A.—Unlawful obstruction to way, river or channel.

(1) Meaning.

- 171.—Meaning of obstruction.—The word implies not only that the way, river or channel must be one of public use but that the obstruction must be of that public use 22 B. 988
- 172.—Obstruction is nuisance, irrespective of inconveniences and motive.—An obstruction on a public road is a nuisance, whether in point of fact, it causes practical inconvenience or not [21 A. 159 (01) A. N. 25] The motive with which a public highway is obstructed is absolutely irrelevant [23 A. 159]

It must be a physical obstacle capable of removal.

173. An obstruction to come within the purview of S. 133 Cr. P. C., must be a physical obstacle, capable of being removed [(1901) A. N. 129] A Magistrate can deal under S. 133 Cr. P. C. only with existing obstructions. He cannot direct what is to be done in the case of any future obstruction [21 W. R. 10]

The question of questions.

174. The first question to be considered is "Is the thoroughfare etc. public or private?" If the Magistrate finds in the affirmative, he can proceed; otherwise he cannot 5 C. 875 2 C. N. 551. 15 W. R. 67 18 W. R. 41 5 W. R. 58; 2 W. R. 36. 1 W. R. 324 (Civil). 22 B. 988 36 A. 213. 12 A. J. 1224 2 T. R. 1903. See also 22 W. R. 19. 25 W. R. 4 9 B. L. 417. 10 Cr. 210 (C).

(2) Nature of the enquiry to be made.

175. (1) The enquiry should be limited to the existence or non-existence of the obstruction complained of—12 C. 137
176. (2) Limitation.—The Magistrate can only decide as to the question whether the claim that the way etc. is private is a bonafide one. He cannot go into the question as to whether the claim is barred by limitation or not—35 C. 283
177. (3) Bonafide claim of title.—See (12) Bonafide claim of right (160 170)

(3) Obstruction in thoroughfares or paths.

178. Private road may come within S. 133 Cr. P. C.—Where the road although a private one is open to the use of a certain class of persons the section may apply—19 W. R. 33; 10 Cr. 210 (C); 1 C. J. 131

179. Permissive user cannot give a right of way.—The fact that the residents of a particular village had a right to take their cattle across a field was not sufficient to constitute a public right of way—(46) A. N. 185.

180. Encroachments.—When there is a bonafide dispute as to the right to the ground on which the alleged encroachment has taken place, the Magistrate should not proceed merely because the Government happens to be the complainant—Rat. 378; 2 B. R. 518

181. Public processions.—The right to conduct a religious procession in the public streets is a right inherent in every person, provided he does not thereby invade the rights of property enjoyed by others or cause a public nuisance or interfere with the ordinary use of the streets by the public [36 M. 372 (182) 6 M. 203 (F. B.) 26 M. 551 2 Weir 89]

Note.—Such obstructions generally fall within the purview of S. 144 Cr. P. C. post.

182. Right of way across a fordable stream.—Where the public had been continuously exercising such right for over 20 years and the right of the person proceeded against, if any, of obstructing the stream by erecting a bund had been lost by long desuetude, the Magistrate is competent to pass an order for the removal of such obstruction on the ground that it was a public nuisance—32 C. 930

183. As to procedure in the case of encroachments.—See 21 C. J. 116

(4) Obstruction of drains, channels and rivers.

184. — — — — — into which premises fell, 308 Cr. P. C. R. 324 (Cir.)]

A Magistrate acting under S. 183 is not authorised to order the construction of new drains in a particular manner [(00) A. N. 128]

185. Channels.—An obstruction set up to prevent a flow of water across its natural channel, causing

- injury to a large area of cultivated land and a considerable body of persons is a public nuisance which cannot be excused because it is a source of some convenience or advantage to one party [34 A 345.]
186. Disputes as to digging up and clearing a water-course.—A dispute between two villages in respect of the rights of one to dig and clear a water-course for irrigation purposes denied by the other is a dispute to which S. 133 Cr P C is applicable to avoid a breach of the peace—25 P. W. 1912 See 2 P. R. 1903
187. Where the obstruction is merely a tortious act.—Where the owner of a low level field erected a band on the north of his field and raised its level with a view to prevent surplus water of the neighbouring fields flowing across it to a neighbouring tank and thereby caused injury to those fields—held that the obstruction not being of a channel which is or may be lawfully used by the public, S. 133 Cr P C could not apply—36 A 213
188. Rivers.—Dams constructed by riparian owners.—An order directing the removal of a dam newly constructed across a public river and causing unlawful obstruction of the river and damage to the lower riparian owners is justified under S. 133 Cr P C, [21 Cr 55(0)] But under this section [2 P. R. 1903 See also 22 B. 958].

(5) Miscellaneous.

189. Removal of obstructions to be made under this section.—Order for removal of obstructions should be made under S. 133 Cr P C and not S. 144 or 147 Cr P C—See (16) Allied Sections (221 to 225)
190. Magistrate's order under Chap. X is prima facie proof that the locus in quo is a thoroughfare or public place.—S. C. L. 390

B—Injurious trade or occupation.

(1) Application of the Section.

191. S. 133 Cr P C deals only with occupations and trades which are in themselves injurious to the health and physical comfort of the community

17 P. R. 1888

Injury must be considerable.

192. It is necessary to take all the circumstances into account and to see that the interference with public comfort by the trade in question is considerable and a considerable section of the public is injuriously affected before any action is taken under Chap. X—117 P. L. 1911 See 17 P. R. 1888 47 P. R. 1888 106 P. R. 1888

(2) No length of enjoyment can legalise a public nuisance.

193. A previous sanction to the establishment of a trade does not enable the proprietors to carry on their business after it has become a public nuisance. No length of enjoyment can legalise a public nuisance involving danger to the health of the community. None has a right to corrupt the air of a particular locality, by the exercise of a noxious trade, simply because at the commencement, no person was in a position to be injured by it 16 W. R. G. 2 Weir 59 See (15) Long enjoyment post

(3) What is and what is not an injurious trade or occupation

A. What is not

194. (a) Cultivation.—The cultivation of maize, jouar or bayre within short distance from a town in a manner which may be in some respects objectionable is not an injurious occupation within S. 133 Cr P C—39 P. R. 1889

195. (b) Trade of a public nuisance.

simply because people in one market are sometimes dragged from it to the rival institution giving rise to mutual recriminations and abuse—14 M. J. 207 2 Weir 62

196. (c) Inoculation against small pox.—A person who inoculates children upon an outbreak of small pox cannot be said to be carrying on a trade or to be engaged in an occupation which is injurious to the health of the community within the meaning of S. 133 Cr P C—(13) U. R. 1 205
197. (d) Slaughtering of cattle.—The act complained of may be shocking to the sentiments of [Note.—But where the Magistrate has ordered the suppression of a slaughter house, the High Court will not interfere unless there is no evidence on record to warrant the Magistrate's findings 7 L. L. 516].

198. (e) Selling fish on the Roadside.—It is a public nuisance, unless it is shown that it has been caused to the public 1 P. R. 94
199. (f) Manufacture of bricks.—Where there is no evidence that the manufacture of bricks is itself injurious to the health of the community, the fact that the proprietors were so working at it at the time when one was being injured, no order under S. 133 Cr P C could be made—20 Cr 422 (1)
200. (g) Tanning.—A lawful trade is not a public nuisance, unless it is proved that it is so, by the fact that it is so, or physical comfort of the community is injured 1888.

of S 133 Cr. P. C. should be sparingly used because any order passed under the section cannot be questioned in any Court" do not carry as much further. Twomey J., in 7 Bur. T. 23 (following 6 C. 291) lays down that "the applicant will not apparently be estopped from bringing a Civil suit to establish any right he may claim to the exclusive enjoyment in the land", but only by way of an obiter dictum.

(2) The remedy of the party against whom the order has been made absolute.

220. The following rules may perhaps be constructed out of the rather confused mass of precedents.

(1) No Civil suit lies to rescind an order under this chapter—3 B. L. (sup.) 43, 3 B. L. 243, 2 B. L. 177, 14 C. 40, 4 B. L. 24 (F. B.) 12 M. 175.

(2) The question whether the order made by the Magistrate was reasonable and proper cannot be raised in Civil Courts—[12 W. R. 100, 6 B. L. 643, (46), 14 Cr. 395 (P. B.), 2 P. R. 1903, 24 P. L. 1900, 18 C. 1086]. No suit lies to rescind the Magistrate from carrying into effect an order passed under S. 130 [4 B. L. 24 (sup.) 12 M. 175].

(3) The decision of the question of title for an incidental purpose cannot have the effect of an estoppel in a suit brought in the proper form for obtaining an adjudication of a disputed right—Per. Fuld J. in 6 C. 291. See 7 C. L. 443, 8 B. H. 94 (46).

(4) The remedy of the party is to obtain a declaration by the Civil Court under S. 12 of the Specific Relief Act 1877 that the particular locus in quo is his private property subject only to his exclusive rights [15 C. 694 (F. B.) overruling 14 C. 60, 6 C. 291, 19 W. R. 436 (Ch.), 8 W. R. 299, 7 W. R. 93, 7 W. R. 48, 2 W. R. 287, 1 W. R. 277, 17 R. 293, 6 B. 670, 6 B. 672, 8 B. H. 94, 7 Bur. T. 23. See Con 6 B. L. 611].

[Note—The indirect result of the declaration would be to vacate the order 7 W. R. 93. In 6 R. L. 643—

it is laid down that no suit will be for a naked declaration of right without a prayer for any consequential relief.]

(5) The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to issue an order by way of a mandamus—e. g.—cannot order a road, declared by a Magistrate under S. 137 to be a public thoroughfare, to be closed—[See 4 B. L. 24 (F. B.), 12 M. 175, 3 B. L. (sup.) 43, 12 W. R. 169, 7 W. R. 11, Con—7 W. R. 93]. But where the order has been made without determining whether the applicant is a thoroughfare or not, the party can sue to have the pathway closed [19 W. R. 431 (Ch.), 7 W. R. 93, 1 W. R. 277; See 2 W. R. 287].

(6) No suit to question the verdict of the jury lies in a Civil Court.—19 W. R. 345.

(3) Frame of the suit.

221. The suit should as a rule, be instituted against the party who set the Court in motion. The Secretary of State is not a necessary party.—15 C. 420 (F. B.). In any case the Magistrate cannot be made a party. The Secretary of State in Council should if necessary be joined as a pro forma defendant.—[17 B. 291, 6 B. 670, 6 B. 672 (579)].

(4) Suit for damages.

222. S. 240 (3) Cr. P. C. refers only to a suit for damages. A Magistrate is not liable to be sued for damages in respect of any act done by him under S. 140 Cr. P. C., in good faith believing he had jurisdiction and acting in his judicial capacity, even if he had in fact no jurisdiction to pass an order under Chap. X and however careless and irregular his proceedings might be—5 M. H. 345, 16 W. R. 63. Con—1 B. H. 150, 4 B. L. (A. C.) 37 (49). See 2 B. H. 381.

223. Suit against complainant for damages. No suit lies against the party instituting the proceedings unless it can be shown that he was actuated by malicious motives or with intent to injure the opposite party.—[2 B. L. (S. N.) xx, 14 C. 60].

XVIII. APPEAL, REVISION, REVIEW ETC.

(1) Appeal.

224. No appeal lies from an order passed under Chap. X.—See S. 404 Cr. P. C.

225. Letters Patent appeal—No appeal lies from an order under S. 439 Cr. P. C. by a single Judge of the High Court in revision of proceedings under Chap. X.—(16) M. N. 210.

(2) Further enquiry.

226. S. 437 does not authorise a District Magistrate or a Sessions Judge to direct a further enquiry in a proceeding under S. 133 Cr. P. C. 24 C. 395, 17 C. P. 127 (128).

[Note—The proper course is to refer the matter to the High Court—25 C. 425 See 21 W. R. 86, 14 C. N. iv.]

(3) Revival of proceedings once dropped.

227. There is no bar in law to a revival of proceedings under S. 133 Cr. P. C. which had previously been dropped provided there are materials for a prima facie case—5 C. N. 173, 14 C. N. cxix.

(4) Review.

228. After an order under S. 133 has once been made absolute, the question of its validity cannot be re-opened at any subsequent stage.—24 P. L. 1900.

(5) Revision.

229. General Rule—The High Court cannot interfere in revision except where the Magistrate has committed an error in law or has clearly acted in excess of jurisdiction—9 B. L. 417.

spot had been in use for burning corpses by the people of the village from time immemorial—Held—that the act of the accused in defiance of an order of the District Magistrate prohibiting the use by the villagers of the spot as a burning ground was not a public nuisance, but would fall under the limited class of cases designated as nuisances “legalised.” Held also that the notification promulgated by the Magistrate was invalid and no offence had therefore been committed under S. 155 I. P. C. 19 M. 461. See 25 M. 115 (130).

6. Magistrate bound to record evidence.
A Magistrate acts without jurisdiction in ordering a person not to continue a public nuisance without taking any evidence as to its existence. 115 P. L. 1901.

7. Distinctions between Ss. 143 and 144.—S. 143 enables the Magistrate to prevent a nuisance if it is a public nuisance; while S. 144 enables him to prevent it for the first time.—19 M. 461.
8. Revision. Order passed under S. 143 Cr. P. C. cannot be revised by the High Court.—(92) 4 S. 102.
9. Proceedings of a Magistrate not empowered to act under the Section are void.—S. 52 S. 52 cl. (p) 1.

CHAPTER XI.

TEMPORARY ORDERS IN URGENT CASES OF NUISANCE OR ATTENDED DANGER

144. (1) In cases where, in the opinion of a District Magistrate, a Chief Presidency Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate, or of any other Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government or the Chief Presidency Magistrate or the District Magistrate to act under this section, immediate prevention or speedy remedy is desirable,

Power to issue order absolute at once in urgent cases of nuisance or apprehended danger such Magistrate may by a written order stating the material facts of the case and served in manner provided by section 134, direct any person to abstain from a certain act or to take certain order with certain property in his possession or under his management, if such Magistrate considers that such direction is likely to prevent, or tends to prevent, obstruction, annoyance or injury, or risk of obstruction, annoyance or injury, to any person lawfully employed, or danger to human life, health or safety or a disturbance of the public tranquillity, or a riot, or an affray.

(2) An order under this section may, in cases of emergency or in cases where the circumstances thereof, or of the serving in due time of a notice upon the person against whom the order is directed, be passed ex parte.

(3) An order under this section may be directed to a particular individual, or to the public generally when frequenting or visiting a particular place.

(4) Any Magistrate may rescind or alter any order made under this section by himself or any Magistrate subordinate to him, or by his predecessor in office.

(5) No order under this section shall remain in force for more than two months from the making thereof, unless, in cases of danger to human life, health or safety, or a likelihood of a riot or an affray, the Local Government, by notification in the official Gazette, otherwise directs.

Proposed amendments to the section—(1) of section 144 of the said Code, after the words “or of any other Magistrate” the words and signs “(not being a Magistrate of the third class)” shall be inserted.

Arrangement of Notes.

S. 144=S. 518 (1872)=S. 62 (1861-6)

I. Object and application of the Section.

II. Jurisdiction of Magistrates.

- (1) Magistrates specially empowered to act
- (2) Conditions precedent to jurisdiction
- (3) Ad interim orders pending rule issued by the High Court

- (4) A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to
- (5) Miscellaneous

III. The order.

- (1) Conditions of a valid order.
- (2) Illegal orders
- (3) Prohibition of public meetings
- (4) As to enquiry, evidence and procedure.

5. Magistrate should not interfere with legal rights—An injunction cannot be issued under S 144 Cr P C to a person restraining him from doing a lawful act on his own property. Therefore an order directing a man not to use his property in lawful manner—e.g.—not to establish a hat on his own land does not come within the purview of the section.

6. Order with a view to prevent pecuniary loss is outside the scope—S 144 Cr P.C. cannot apply to a case where the object of the order is merely to prevent pecuniary loss to the opposite party. The proper remedy for the aggrieved party lies in the Civil Court. [13 C N 158 8 C N 373 9 C 103 5 B L 131 : 11 C N. cvn] An order cannot be made merely to protect private rights where no case of urgency or nuisance is made out [See 19 W. R. 6. 21 W. R 26]

7. Magistrate acting under S. 144 cannot usurp the functions of the Civil Court—A Magistrate has no power to issue an irreversible order under the section [32 C 151 27 C 918. 5 B L (ap) 131 13 W R 72] A District Magistrate has no power to prohibit altogether a display, exhibition or assemblage but only to issue orders to regulate the conduct of the persons concerned in it [18 S 120]. An order having the effect of depriving the person against whom the order is made, of the lands to which he is entitled under a decree of a Civil Court is illegal [6 C N 466].

8. Question of possession or title beyond the purview of the section—It is not the business of the magistrate to adjudicate upon nor has he any jurisdiction under S 144 Cr. P. C. to adjudicate upon any question of title or possession [11 M J 122 11 C N. 271. 8 C N. 376 6 C N 166 : 3 U. R (1917) 17. 19 Cr. 1602 (Pat). 19 Cr. 712 (Pat) 1 Pat T. 44. 21 Cr 241 (Pat)] Where the case is not one of bonafide claim to possession and the party creating the disturbance has in fact no pretensions to any right or title, S. 144 Cr P. C. may be applied instead of S. 145 or S. 147 [3 Pat J. 213. 3 Pat J. 353. 25 A. 537. 28 A. 160. 17 C N. 205]

9. Magistrate can act only when he himself is of opinion that action is necessary—A sub-magistrate, while he ought to give due and very great respect to the advice of a District Magistrate, ought to use his own judicial mind and on the sub-Inspector of Police's report to come to his own conclusion. The general "instructions" of the District Magistrate are not legally binding on the sub-magistrate in particular cases—[38 M. 149]. A District Magistrate has no authority to direct a subordinate magistrate, who had rejected an application under S 144 as frivolous or vexatious to take action under the section [1 Pat W. 258. See 24 C 301]

10. Imminent danger within the meaning of the Section—An imminent danger within the section is a danger affecting the public peace or public health etc. A danger of the houses of a few Railway menials being flooded if there is a rainfall of one inch in an hour, owing to the obstruction to a culvert through which the drainage of the menial quarters flows into the petitioner's tank is not an "apprehended danger" within chap. XI.—23 C. N. 145

II. JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATES.

(1) Magistrates specially empowered to act.

- 11 (a) In the Punjab—All first class and second class Magistrates have been empowered to act under the section—Punjab Gaz 1883 Pt I 52
- 12 (b) In Upper Burma—All first and second class Magistrates
- 13 (c) In Bombay—Assistant Superintendents of Police have been empowered to act under S 144—See Bomb Gaz 1883 Pt I II 396
- 14 (d) The term 'Magistrate' includes an Assistant Magistrate—1 Ag. 23
- 15 (e) As to the meaning of "District Magistrate" so far as S 144 Madras, See 5 ment Act (M)

(2) Conditions precedent to Jurisdiction

- 16 (a) Property in dispute must be within jurisdiction.—No order can be made under S 144 Cr. P. C. by a Magistrate when the property in dispute is situate outside the local limits of his jurisdiction—2 C N 572
- 17 (b) Existence of emergency.—A Magistrate's jurisdiction under S 144 Cr P. C. is confined to cases where there has been annoyance or injury to any person lawfully employed, or danger to human life, health or safety or where there is a probability of a riot or affray. An order under the section can be passed only under special and emergent circumstances calling for immediate action. The act complained of must be likely to cause a riot or affray and its prohibition would pre-

(3) Ad interim orders pending rule issued by the High Court.

19. A Magistrate cannot pass ad interim orders after the High Court has issued a rule By issuing a rule the High Court claims full review of the proceedings and it is for that Court to pass a certiorari order if it thinks fit to do so. The Magistrate has no jurisdiction to do so after the rule has been issued.—11 C N 79.

(4) A Magistrate has no jurisdiction.

- 20 (4) To adjudicate on questions of title or possession in proceeding under S. 144.—2 Weir 93 8 C N 376

- 21 (1) To take the property in dispute into custody after directing a list to be prepared and to direct that the same should remain in Court custody for 2 months or until decision of a Civil suit regarding the same.—12 C N 1044

(5) Miscellaneous.

22. Order without jurisdiction cannot be cured by subsequent events.—No subse.

quent correspondence or explanation would make an order by a Magistrate, passed without jurisdiction, valid.—5 C 132; 6 W R 40; 13 C N 188

23. Order passed by a Magistrate not empowered is void.—See S. 530 (i) Cr P C

24. Nature of jurisdiction exercised under the Section.—A Magistrate making an enquiry before issue of an order under S. 144 is acting in a stage of judicial proceeding and has therefore jurisdiction to take action under S. 476 Cr. P. C. if he is of opinion that false evidence has been given [19 M 18 See O B H 160 7 B L 119] Order passed by a Magistrate under S. 144 Cr. P. C. is a judicial order. [21 M T 396]

Note—Proceedings under Chapter XI were held not to be judicial under the old Codes.—See 2 C. 203 (F. B.). 6 B L 74 (F. B.). 20 W R 53; 18 W R 22 3 M 334 6 N P 16 8 C 580; 2 P R 1880 17 P R 1875 These rulings are now obsolete

III. THE ORDER.

(1) Conditions of a valid order.

- 25 (1) It should be in writing 36 P R 1905 17 W R 57 Rat 30

- 26 (2) It should contain a clear statement of material facts.—Where an order itself does not set forth the material facts of the case as required by law and no urgency is indicated, the order is without jurisdiction.—[12 C 135 (13) M N 1093. 25 M J 370 10 W R 53] A mere statement by the Magistrate that he considers the case to be urgent is not sufficient to give him jurisdiction, if the facts set out by him show that in reality there is no urgent necessity for action [23 C N 145]

- 27 (3) Section Cr P. C. should be indicated.—A Magistrate acts most irregularly in not indicating under what section of the Cr P C he passed his order. It should not be left for speculation as to whether the order was passed under S. 144 or Chap XII [18 Cr 295 (M)]

- 28 (4) It should be addressed to the person complained against.—Under the old Codes, the direction contained in the preliminary order had to be addressed to a particular person or persons and could not be addressed to the public generally [8 M 11 (1p) 9 12 W R 36 Rat 30] It can now if necessary be directed to the public generally when frequenting or visiting the public generally when frequenting or visiting a particular place [See sub cl (3) 8 A 99 14 B 165 10 C 127 Cf 14 B 160] But the latter portion of Cl (3) applies when unascertained members of the public are concerned and not where a particular section of the community are to be addressed and their names are known. See 8 A 194.]

- 29 (5) It should be served in the manner provided by S. 134 Cr. P. C.—16 C. 9. 8 A 69

- 30 (6) The period (not exceeding 2 months) during which it shall be in force should be definitely stated 11 C N 223 11 C N 79.

(2) Illegal orders.

- 31 (1) Order which is by its very nature irrevocable—See (1) Object etc (7)

- 32 (2) Orders in the nature of a perpetual injunction—See (15) Effect and Duration of the Order (117)

- 33 (3) General prohibitory orders.—6 W R 10 14 B 165 Rat 30 16 B R 64

- 34 (4) Vague and indefinite orders.—An order under S. 144 directing the petitioners not to commit any act that may likely induce a breach of the peace and not to take forcible possession of the village not in their possession is indefinite and not in accordance with the terms of the section [11 C N 121 See 11 C N 79 11 C N 223 2 C N 122]

- 35 (5) Order made merely for the protection of property 9 C 103 21 W R 26 See 19 W R 6

- 36 (6) Orders made solely with the object of preventing pecuniary loss to the opposite party.—13 C N 188 5 B L 131 11 C N en See (1) Object etc (6)

- 37 (7) Successive orders with a view to extend the period of the operation of an order made under the section

See (15) Effect and duration of Order (116)

- 38 (8) Order prohibiting not a definite act but a course of conduct or an occupation involving a series of acts done at certain intervals and spread over a period of time.—2 Weir 67

[See also chapters 6 to 12]

(3) Prohibition of public meetings.

39. (4) If owing to the prevalence of ill-feeling between certain persons likely to attend a public meeting or for any other cause, a breach of the peace is to be expected, a magistrate has power under S. 144 Cr P C to prohibit such meeting or to otherwise secure that peace is not broken.—2 U R. (1916) 157

(4) As to Enquiry Evidence and Procedure.

40. See chapter 13 infra

IV. ORDERS AFFECTING THE PUBLIC.

(1) Scope of S. 144 (3).

41. There is no warrant for reading the word "public" into the provisions of S. 144 (3) so as to make the provision run "or to the public generally when frequenting or visiting a particular public place." The proper interpretation of S. 144 (3) is that the order may be directed to a particular individual and that where because of the number of particular individuals it is impracticable that the magistrate could issue notice to each one of them individually he can issue a general order to the whole number of such particular individuals here designated as the public generally "[16 O C 70]."

(2) Object of the words "frequenting or visiting a particular place."

42. The intention of the Legislature in using the words "frequenting or visiting a particular place" is not to confine the section to casual or frequent visitors only, but to extend rather than limit the scope of the order so as to include therein even casual or frequent visitors from outside the limits of the particular locality within which the order is to have application [18 O C 70].

(3) General orders beyond the scope of S. 144 (3).

43. (a) Order addressed to the inhabitants of a city and within five miles of the City. An order directing all persons (in Surat City and within 5 miles of the City) to abstain from removing or causing to be removed, or promoting and/or abetting directly or indirectly in any way the removal of any dogs either in cart or otherwise and from preventing or trying to prevent or obstruct directly or indirectly the poisoning of such dogs in any way or from taking possession of or confining such dogs was held to be in contravention of subs. (3) and therefore illegal [16 B B 184].

44. (b) Notification prohibiting caste-dinners. The District Magistrate of Buncha, owing to the prevalence of cholera, issued a notification in the form of a proclamation under S. 144 Cr P C forbidding the public in general to give caste-dinners in that city—held that the order was illegal as being beyond the powers conferred by S. 144—14 B B 185 S & 14 B 189.
45. (c) Order directing the public generally not to let their cattle loose within certain limits laid down in it—9 B L (sup) 26.

(4) Meaning of the term "public generally."

46. The term "public generally" means "the people in general" and not people confined to any particular section or class of the general community [8 A 99]. A Magistrate acting under S. 144 passed the following order: "I direct the following persons—shroddharis, pujaris and the public generally to abstain from interfering with the Bulke in the performance of the daily puja of the God Vitthala at Pandharpur—held—that the Magistrate had jurisdiction to pass the order—[1 B B 542]."

V. EXPARTE ORDERS.

47. When an ex parte order may be passed.—An ex parte order under S. 144 Cr P C can only be passed, in cases of emergency or when there is no time to serve notice.

R M T 160 25 M J 370 2 O N 747 27 C 785
(sup) 4

48. Magistrate bound to set out in ex parte orders circumstances showing emergency.—In the case of ex parte orders under S. 144 Cr P C, the record of the Magistrate should disclose the existence of emergency which called for such ex parte order or that there was not sufficient time to serve notice on the party affected thereby—Per Sarabhai Aiyar J (Phillips J diss).—22 M. T 323 See also 2 C N 747 (749).

49. Party affected should ordinarily have a hearing.—Although the law permits the issue of an order ex parte, it intends that ordinarily this course should not be pursued so that each party may have a hearing—6 M 203 19 M. 14.

50. Power to act otherwise than on legal evidence.—A Magistrate in cases of special urgency can act on information received or on his own knowledge, i.e. upon what is not legal evidence—19 M 16.

51. Applications for setting aside ex parte orders.—Applications for rescinding or modifying ex parte orders under S. 144 subs. (2) should be made as soon as possible after the time the order is made. The Magistrate should have heard the applicant [2 C N. 572]. Duration.—An ex parte order will be only of temporary operation. It remains in force only for two months—27 C 785.

VI. PUBLIC PROCESSIONS.

52. Right to conduct processions.—The right to conduct a religious procession in the public streets is a right inherent in every person provided he does not thereby invade the rights of property enjoyed by others or cause a public nuisance or interfere with the ordinary use of the streets by the public and subject to such directions or prohibitions as may be issued by the Magistrate.

to prevent obstructions to the thoroughfare or breach of the public peace—5 M 314, 23 M 376 (184) ~ 6 M 231 (F. B.) 2 M 141; 24 M. 551 (F. B.) 38 M 183; 23 M J 379, 2 Weir 74; 18 R. G. 1 (Civ)

53. Religious intolerance should not be encouraged.—No person has a right to obstruct others making lawful use of a public street and instructions to the contrary founded on religious intolerance cannot be recognised—2 Weir 81
54. Processions passing before places of congregational worship—If persons passing in procession, attended by music, pass a place in which others are assembled and engaged in public worship, which the music would tend to disturb, it is the duty of the persons composing the procession to refrain from such disturbance, but assemblies for purposes of worship are not held in any place at all hours of the day, and a Magistrate is not competent to direct that persons should not at any time pass along a high road, in the neighbourhood of a recognised place of worship attended by music—2 M 110
55. [Note.—(1) The law recognising the right to undisturbed performance of public worship has not extended it to mere private worship (2) It may fairly be required of such congregations that they should inform the authorities of the hours at which they customarily assemble in order that the rights of other persons may not be curtailed—6 M. 231 (F. B.)]

56. Sufficient ground for prohibiting a procession—It is not a sufficient ground for an order that the procession is in the nature of a luxury and not a necessity [15 Cr. 30 (M)]. But the fact that the procession cannot be allowed without grave danger of a breach of the peace, with the force at the Magistrate's disposal, is a good ground for passing an order under S. 141 Cr. P. C. [15 Cr. 30 (M) Rst 704 (703)] As a rule however when rights, such as rights of procession, are threatened, the persons entitled to them should receive the fullest protection the law affords them and circumstances admit of [6 M 203 (F. B.)]
57. Duration of prohibitory order.—An order directing certain persons to take the procession of their idol at a particular hour in a particular direction has only a temporary effect (10 A. 115). Anything in the nature of a perpetual injunction, extending the period of operation beyond the statutory period of 2 months is absolutely illegal. (See 5 C 7 (F. B.) 7 C N 140, 11 C. N 79 (82))
58. Civil Suit against an order prohibiting procession.—See (20) Miscellaneous (149)
59. High Court cannot revise an executive order laying down the route to be taken See—(10) Revision (112)

VII. RIVAL HATS.

60. General Rule.—Although a Magistrate acting under S. 141 Cr P C is empowered to make an order prohibiting a person from holding a hat on certain specified days of the week [See 31 C 90; 23 C- 113 (C) 16 C 9 10 B. L 434 (F. B.) 22 W R 21 23 W R 53 18 W R 22; 5 B L (ap) 82 1 Shorne 23 Con 5 C 7 (F. B.) 8 C 543], he fails to exercise a reasonable discretion, if he does not satisfy himself before issuing the order that it is absolutely required for any of the purposes mentioned in S. 141—e. g. that there is grave danger of annoyance or injury being caused to any person lawfully employed or danger to human life, health or safety or that there is a probability of a riot or affray—[6 N P 104 (97) A N 59 31 C 990 32 C 793 (795) 23 C 31 21 W R 26 21 W R 22 10 C 127]

[Note.—In 18 W R 22, the markets were half a mile and in 20 W R 53, a mile apart]

61. What a Magistrate should ordinarily do.—An order directing a man not to use his property in a lawful manner for instance, not to establish a hat on his own land, does not come within the purview of S. 141 Cr P C. What the Magistrate ought to have ordered the parties to do was not to obstruct, or allow their servants to obstruct, any person from attending the other market if he wished to do so—See 10 C N 218, 1 W R 12 6 N. P 104—See also 23 A. 710 (717).

62. S. 107 Cr P. C the more appropriate Section.—The most appropriate Section of the Code to deal with cases of rival hats which may cause a breach of the peace is 107 Cr P C—11 C N 79 11 C N 223
63. Order for removal of hats is ultra viros.—An order for the removal of one of the two rival hats to such a distance elsewhere as to render it of no use to the owner is an order in excess of jurisdiction—4 C L 110 See 5 C 7 (F B)

64. Order must be definite.—Where an order does not mention any limit of time and there is nothing in the order to indicate whether the petitioner would be entitled to hold any market at any time See (17) that the the party days that held (11 C 990), it is bad as being vague and indefinite

VIII. TEMPLES, MOSQUES AND RELIGIOUS CEREMONIES.

65. Possession of temple. A Magistrate can not make an order under S. 141 Cr P C in respect of a dispute between persons appointed as trustees of a temple in the place of the dismissed trustees and the latter, regarding the possession of the temple, being of opinion that a breach of the peace was imminent [4 M 402; See however 32 C 966, 1 S 50].

66. Interference with management of temples. An order under S 144 Cr P C so far as it directed a person not to interfere with the management of a certain 'Kovil' (temple) was held to be ultra vires [24 M 17]. So also an order directing a person not to interfere with the management of a certain maul and the property appertaining thereto [3 M 351].
67. Order of entry into a mosque. An order in a dispute between the members of the Hindus and the Shi'as about the use of a certain mosque addressed to the members of both the sects and prescribing the order which was to be observed in regard to the entry of the mosque by the members of the rival sects was held to be within jurisdiction [24 M 262].

Interference with religious ceremonies.

68. A Magistrate acting under S 144 Cr P C passed the following order: "I direct the magistrate pay res and the public generally to abstain from interfering with the Hindus in the performance of the daily Puja of the God Vishnu at Planbajr and direct the Hindus alone to perform the Puja-Hall that the Magistrate had jurisdiction to pass the order [4 B R 522]. An order made by a Magistrate under S 144 Cr P C forbidding a person, who claims an interest in certain property, from collecting any rent from the ryots on the property does not fall within S 144 Cr P C [14 C 127, 9 C N 392, 8 C L 231, 14 W R 3]. A Magistrate cannot pass an order under S 144 Cr P C calling on a person to enter into a recognisance not to collect certain cesses [14 W R 3. See 2 C N 572]. (4) Orders of indefinite character.

73. An order purporting to have been made under S 144 forbidding a minor to go to a certain village or to allow his servants, relations or friends to do so is an order of the most indefinite character and is ultra vires [2 C N 422]. 79. (c) Prostitutes An order cannot be passed directing a reminder to remove boats used out to prostitutes to the other side of the Railway line on the ground that the persons visiting these prostitutes would have to cross the railway line and endanger their lives thereby—2 C N 70

XIII. ENQUIRY, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) Nature of proceedings under ch. XI.

99. See (2) Jurisdiction of Magistrates (24)

(2) Full and sufficient enquiry must be made before passing the order.

100. A magistrate should, before passing an order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. always hold an enquiry and determine which party has the legal right contended for by both the parties and then protect the party he finds entitled to the exercise of that right. 5 C. 112 17 W. R. 37 13 W. R. 19. 3 B. L. (1 C.) 4 3 B. L. (ap) 13. R. 1967 4 M. II (ap) 67. See 38 C. 576 19 M. 18. 1 B. L. (ap) 20. 5 B. L. 131 14 W. R. 17

(3) Obligation to take evidence.

101. A magistrate cannot pass an order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. without first calling upon the defendant to show cause why the order should not be passed and taking any evidence which the defendant may adduce.—[5 B. L. (ap) 81 5 B. L. (ap) 82 N. 16 W. R. 63 21 W. R. 26] There is nothing in the section to justify making an order on the mere report of a police constable, and before making such order he ought to take evidence for the defendant and if necessary on both sides [3 B. L. (1 C.) 4 3 B. L. (ap) 13]. A magistrate cannot act on the basis only of a petition by the complainant. He is bound to take evidence and make a record of the material facts of the case. [20 C. N. 991]

(4) Nature of evidence to be taken.

102. Evidence to prove a likelihood of a breach of the peace and urgency and necessity for immediate action must be recorded [38 C. 576]. A summary order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. cannot be made in the absence of evidence showing that a breach of the peace is likely to occur. 1st be would from taking place [See (2) Jurisdiction of Mag. An order passed simply upon the foundation of a police report without giving the petitioner an opportunity of being heard is illegal [21 W. R. 19 14 W. R. 16]

(5) Scope of the Enquiry.

103. A magistrate under S. 144 Cr. P. C. is to make an order with the object of preventing a breach of peace, if he considered a breach of peace imminent. It is not his business to act upon nor has he any jurisdiction to act upon any question of title or possession. 122 2 Weir 91 8 C. N. 376

(6) Procedure.

104. Form of order.—See S. 4 V No 21. A Re. 1 is chargeable for a written order legal. (See Cal. Gaz. 1879, 20) and in Assam. (See Gaz. 1879; 596)
105. Service of notice.—Notice is to be served in the manner provided for by S. 134 Cr. P. C. terms of that section are directory and are to be followed [16 C. 9]
106. Proceedings under S. 144 on dismissal of a complaint under S. 133 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate dismissed a complaint under S. 133 Cr. P. C., it was held that he was competent to pass an order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. same case, provided he called on the defendant to show cause why an order under the latter should not be made.—5 B. L. (ap) 82 N. R. 40; 14 W. R. 17.
107. Procedure in ex parte cases.—See Ex parte orders (47-51)
108. Ad-interim orders.—Ad-interim order contemplated by Subs. (1) cannot be passed if the original order is in legal operation.—11 W. R. 79; 26 M. J. 370.

XIV. RENEWAL, REVIVAL, RESCISSION AND ALTERATION ORDERS

109. Renewal.—See (15) Effect and Duration of Order (116).
110. Revival.—After having quashed an order under S. 518 (= 144), and struck the case off the file, a Magistrate cannot revive it, without a fresh proceeding.—3 C. 580.

111. Rescission and alteration.—A Magistrate has jurisdiction to recall his order, when on taking evidence, he finds that his first order was made without taking any evidence, which was passed without jurisdiction. 13 W. R. 72 J. 249 19 M. 18.

112. Rescission after reversion of the Magistrate—“The order under S 144 Cr P C was passed by Mr. J. as District Magistrate. A petition for its rescission under Cl. (1) of the same section was presented to his successor, after Mr. J. had handed over charge of the office of District Magistrate and reverted as Joint Magistrate. In such circumstances, the power of rescinding or altering lay only with Mr. J.’s successor and the latter was wrong in transferring the petition to Mr. J. for disposal”—tying J. 16 Cr. 71 (M)
113. Substitution—A District Magistrate has no power under Cl. (1) to set aside an order by a Magistrate against one party and to substitute therefor a similar order against the other party—3 Pat J. 247; 11 C N 271.
114. Ad interim orders—Ad interim orders not contemplated by Subs. (1) cannot be passed while the original order is in legal operation—11 C N 79 25 M J 370 See also 12 C N 899
115. Petition to District Magistrate lies under Subs. (1) against an order made by a Subordinate Magistrate—Rat 510
- 116.—Successive orders to extend period of operation is illegal—A Magistrate cannot by passing successive orders under S 144 Cr P C extend the operation of an order indirectly beyond the limit of time fixed by Subs. (3) of the section. The arm of the law is long enough to prevent an evasion of the Code by arbitrary and successive renewals of orders under S 144 and the powers given to the High Court under Cl. 15 of the Charter Act are sufficient to prevent such evasion—5 C 7 (F. B.) 25 C 852 20 C N 758. 13 C N 185 11 C N 79 7 C N 110 38 M 459 25 M J 370 16 Cr 502 (M) 3 Pat J. 130. 8 N 107
117. An order under the Section must be limited in time.—It cannot be in the nature of a perpetual injunction—5 C 7 (F. B.) 8 C
- 550 11 C N 224; 7 C N 140 10 A 115 (17) A N 59 24 M 15 25 M J. 370 (14) M N. 169 3 Pat J 130; 8 N 107.
118. Change in the Law—In the Code of 1872 (S. 518 Cr P C) no limit was laid to the period of operation of the order. “The Magistrate was not empowered to pass an order under S. 518 of the Code of 1872, which would have more than a temporary operation and the grant of what would, in effect, be an order for perpetual injunction was beyond such Magisterial jurisdiction. The Code of 1882 has recognised the principle and the omission to limit the duration of an order under S 518 of 1872 has been supplied by S. 144 of the Code of 1882 which limits it to two months” 10 A 115
119. Computation of the period—Time begins to run from the date of the preliminary order and not from the date of confirmation on a subsequent day on which cause being shown, the Magistrate refused to withdraw the order.—13 C N 195
120. Effect to omission of mention period of duration in the order—Where no time is specified in the order as to its duration, the reasonable presumption is that the Court intended to pass an order which it was competent to pass and which would operate only for 2 months—34 C 807 (401) [F. B.] 20 Cr 755 (M.) Con. 11 C N 223
121. Proper procedure on order proving insufficient
- (a) When an order under S 144 Cr. P C proves insufficient, the obviously right course to adopt is to proceed under S 107 Cr P C—20 C, N. 758 19 Cr 367 (C) 3 Pat J 130
- (b) or in the alternative an application may be made to the Local Government to exercise its powers under Subs. (5)—See Subs. (5). (13) M N, 1003

XVI. PUNISHMENT FOR DISOBEDIENCE.

122. Magistrates who made the order cannot try a person for disobedience of the same—He is bound to take action under S 193 or S 476 Cr P C—24 M. 262 20 C N 978 10 B II 424 See 4 C N 226 31 C 990 Rat 50
123. Procedure as to sanction—A sanction is necessary under S 193(1) (v) Cr P C for prosecution under S 188 I P C. The two sections should be read together [1 Ag. 23] The sanction may be given on a police report [41 C 14] But a Magistrate should not sanction a prosecution unless he thinks that all the elements necessary for a conviction are present [14 C N 234]
124. Magistrate granting sanction acts as a Court—He is not a Court when he grants sanction for prosecution—him under the mean M. T
- Sessions Judge cannot set aside a sanction granted by a Magistrate for prosecution for disobedience of an order under S 144 Cr P C on the ground that the order is ultra vires and inoperative [See 20 Cr 113 (C)]
125. What must be proved before a conviction under S. 188 I P C can be made
- (1) The order disobeyed must be in writing [36 P. R 1905 17 W R 57 Rat 30]
- (2) Actual knowledge of the order of the accused must be established. Before a conviction can be made it must be proved that the accused knowing that an order has been promulgated by an authority having jurisdiction to do so, has disobeyed it—1 B R 524 16 C 9 See 13 C 175
- (3) The order must be duly promulgated—It must be proved that due publication was made of the order [36 P R 1905 17 W R 57-14 B 165] Where the order was directed against a particular person or persons it must be proved that it was personally served in the manner provided by S. 134 Cr P C. [14 B 165 Rat 50, Fee.

- 13 A. 577 12 M. 475 16 C. 9] If the person issuing the order is not lawfully empowered to do so, the conviction cannot stand [3 A. 201; (101) A. N. 273; Rat 50]
- (9) It must be shown that the order clearly and unequivocally prohibits the thing which the accused is said to have done [16 C. 9] But it is enough to show that there has been a disobedience of the order in the substance though the exact terms of it might not have been violated [16 B. R. 1047]
- (10) That the order was directed against that accused—The terms cannot be stretched so as to include a person to whom it was not addressed—see 16 C. 9
- (11) That the order disobeyed falls, within the scope of S. 144 Cr. P. C. If the order is illegal or ultra vires, no conviction can be had [9 C. N. 492 22 C. N. 799 8 C. L. 231 See (101) A. N. 221 1 A. C. 615 Rat 51 Rat 50]
- (12) That the order was in force on the date it was alleged to have been disobeyed—

An order disobeyed after it had expired by efflux of time, cannot be the basis of a valid conviction—10 A. 115 40 A. 28

- (13) That the accused had an opportunity of obeying the order—A prosecution instituted only 2 days after the issue of an order at the instance of the complainant is held to be void—2 C. N. 981.
- (14) It must be shown that (1) either the difference was likely to cause a breach of the [31 C. 999 32 C. 709 (795) 1 C. N. 226 236, 14 C. N. 234]; or that it has resulted in destruction, annoyance or injury—[14 C. N. 2 B. L. (up) 149 (81) A. N. 273; Rat 133, 10 421 4 M. H. (up) 5 1 M. H. (up) 6]
126. Validity of order may be questioned in appeal—Although an order under S. 144 P. C. is not appealable, the validity of the proceedings may be enquired into in an appeal if conviction for disobedience of the order—see 37 6 C. 88 2 W. R. 32 Rat 81 Rat 50.

XVII. ALLIED SECTION.

(2) Ss. 107 and 144.

128. See S. 107 Cr. P. C. (15) Allied sections (214)

(3) Ss. 144 and 145.

(4) Ss. 144 and 147.

130. A right to a flow of water or a right to use a pathway across the land of another are rights of use of land and water within the meaning of S. 147 Cr. P. C. and cannot be adjudicated upon under

S. 144 by a Magistrate with subordinate powers [2 W. R. 65, See 5 M. H. (up) 23]

(5) Distinction between Chapter XI. & Chapter XII.

131. Chapter XI of the Criminal Procedure Code which S. 144 appears, relates to interference dealing of some kind with the land itself or something created or standing upon it; an action is directed to the prevention or redress by prompt order of some definite act on the part of an individual so that injury or nuisance may be caused. Ss. 145 and 146, which are in the next chapter deal with the possession of property and are sections which may be appropriate referred to where it is desired to prevent interference by one party with the collection of by another and matters of similar kind [C. 127.

XVIII. IRREGULARITIES.

(1) Which vitiate.

132. (a) Order on petition alone without taking any evidence and without the necessary record of material facts—20 C. N. 981 20 C. N. 978. (13) M. N. 1033
133. (b) Order by a Magistrate not empowered.—See S. 530 (1) Cr. P. C.
134. (c) Successive orders to extend period of operation—See (15) Effect and Duration of order

(2) Which do not vitiate.

135. (a) An omission to serve the order in accordance with the terms of S. 134 Cr. P. C. is a fatal irregularity, if the order is duly made

136. (b) An omission to state the material facts in the order is not fatal, where on the report by the police and accepted by the Magistrate he was fully justified in passing the urgent order.—18 Cr. 802 (C); See also 30 M. 5
137. (c) Omission to state the period of operation of the order.—See (15) Effect and Duration of order (124)

XIX. REVISION ETC.

(1) General Rule of Practice.

138. The High Court will not interfere where no question of jurisdiction is involved and there has not been any gross miscarriage of justice—26 208 20 C. N. 755 (M) 36 M. 275 (286).

(2) Historical Review.

- 139 The High Courts had no power of revision under the old Codes—See 2 C 234 (T. B.); 6 B L 74 (F. B.); 21 W R 53, 18 W R 22, 3 M 314, 6 N 116, 2 P R 188, 31 P R 1878, 17 P R 1875. But the power to revise under the charter was first recognised in S C 58. [See also 17 W R 37.] It has since been held in a long current of decisions that the High Court can interfere under the charter when the order passes without jurisdiction—i.e. illegal or ultra vires—See 16 C 80, 19 C 127, 25 C 852, 26 C 188, 7 C N 343, 11 C N 73. See also 5 C 7 (F. B.), 1 C L 58, 1 C L 110, 22 W R 24, 22 W R 78, 21 W R 34, 24 W R 73, 24 B 527 (32) A N 174, 25 M 3, 370. See (2) A N 113, 20 C N 758, 21 C N 981, 23 C N 115, 13 C N 105, 12 C N 1011. Con. 2 Weir 91, 26 A 111.

(3) S. 435 (3) as a bar to revision.

- 140 When the order merely purports to be one under S 144 Cr. P. C. but is not in fact or substance so and is upon the face of the record, illegal—the High Court can interfere under S 149 Cr. P. C. [19 C 127, 16 C 80, 25 C 852, 23 C 188, 2 C N 572 (83) A N 25, 50 C 1.] But where the order passed is within the scope of the section the High Court cannot interfere on merits [8 C N 373, 4 B R 582, 5 M T 217, 18 M 402, 30 M 518, Cr. R 73 of 1907, 1 L B 75].

(4) Revision of time-expired orders.

141. As a general rule of practice, High Court will not set aside an order which has expired by the efflux of time, however illegal it might be—[1 C L 58, 2 C 201 (T. B.), 19 C 127, 25 C 852, 26 C 188 (192) Rat 607, 16 C 272 (M).]

XX. MISCELLANEOUS.

147. Court fees.—A Court fee of Rupee one is chargeable for a written order issued under S 144.
(a) in Bengal—See Cat. Gaz. 1879 30(a)
(b) in Assam—See Ass. Gaz. 1879 596
148. Civil Suit to vacate the order.—There is nothing to prevent a party from bringing a Civil Suit for special damage caused by an obstruction in a public thoroughfare, notwithstanding an order under S 144 Cr. P. C.—See 3 C 20 (F. B.)

But where a prosecution for disobedience of the order under S 188 Cr. P. C. has been instituted the High Court will interfere—See 20 C N 758, 20 C N 981, 23 C N 115, 13 C N 195]

CHAPTER XII.

DISPUTES AS TO IMMOVABLE PROPERTY.

145. (1) Whenever a District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class is satisfied from a police-report or other information that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning any land or water or the boundaries thereof, within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he shall make an order in writing, stating the grounds of his being so satisfied, and requiring the parties concerned in such dispute to attend his Court in person or by pleader, within a time to be fixed by such Magistrate, and to put in written statements of their respective claims as respects the fact of actual possession of the subject of dispute.
- Procedure where dispute concerning land, etc., is likely to cause breach of peace.

(2) For the purposes of this section the expression "land or water" includes buildings, markets, fisheries, crops or other produce of land, and the rents or profits of any such property

(3) A copy of the order shall be served in manner provided by this Code for the service of a summons upon such person or persons as the Magistrate may direct, and at least one copy shall be published by being affixed to some conspicuous place at or near the subject of dispute.

(4) The Magistrate shall then, without reference to the merits of the claims of any of such parties to a right to possess the subject of dispute, peruse the statements so put in, hear the parties, receive the evidence produced by them respectively, consider the effect of such evidence, take such further evidence (if any) as he thinks necessary, and, if possible, decide whether any and which of the parties was at the date of the order before mentioned in such possession of the said subject:

Provided that, if it appears to the Magistrate that any party has within two months next before the date of such order been forcibly and wrongfully dispossessed, he may treat the party so dispossessed as if he has been in possession at such date:

Provided also, that, if the Magistrate considers the case one of emergency, he may at any time attach the subject of dispute, pending his decision under this section.

(5) Nothing in this section shall preclude any party so required to attend, or any other person interested, from showing that no such dispute as aforesaid exists or has existed; and in such case the Magistrate shall cancel his said order, and all further proceedings thereon shall be stayed, but, subject to such cancellation, the order of the Magistrate under sub-section (1) shall be final.

(6) If the Magistrate decides that one of the parties was in such possession of the said subject, he shall issue an order declaring such party to be entitled to possession thereof until evicted therefrom in due course of law, and forbidding all disturbance of such possession until such eviction

(7) Proceedings under this section shall not abate by reason only of the death of any of the parties thereto

Proposed amendments to the section—In section 145 of the said Code—

(1) In sub-section (1), after the words "District Magistrate" the words "Presidency Magistrate" shall be inserted

(ii) In sub-section (6), after the word "was" the words "or should be treated as being" shall be inserted, and the following shall be added after the words "such eviction," namely —

"and when he proceeds under the first proviso to sub-section (4), may restore to possession the party forcibly and wrongfully dispossessed"

(iii) For sub-section (7), the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely —

"(7) When any party to any such proceeding dies, the Magistrate may cause the legal representative of the deceased party to be made a party to the proceeding, and shall thereupon continue the inquiry, and if any question arises as to who the legal representative of a deceased party for the purpose of such proceeding is, all persons claiming to be representatives of the deceased party shall be made parties thereto."

I. CHANGE IN THE LAW.

1. Effect of introduction of "land and water" — 26 C. 189. S. 145 corresponds to Sec. 318 of the Cr. P. C. of 1861 and S. 530 of Cr. P. Code of 1872.

The word "tangible" used in Code of 1882 excluded incorporeal rights — Cl. 2 was enacted on the basis of the following rulings: 11 C. 413, 15 C. 527, 16 C. 513, 12 M. 88.

Subs (2) having defined what is meant by "land or water" — has given effect to the interpretation of "tangible immovable property" of the old Code (1882) in 2 Weir, 108; 15 A. 394, 11 C. 413, 15 C. 527, 16 C. 513; 12 M. 88; 2 Weir 100 and Overruled 5 A. N. 291. Subs (1) has rendered obsolete the following rulings — 6 W. R. 61; 8 W. R. 83; 24 W. R. 16.

II. OBJECT AND SCOPE.(1) Scope and object.

1. ~~maintaining~~ ... to prevent ... led on ac- ... session of ... by main- ... taining in possession the party found to be in actual possession until he is evicted in due course of law and forbidding all disturbance until such eviction — 30 C. 112, 21 C. 29, 6 C. N. 101, 18 Cr. 23 (M) 30 A. 41; 1 A. 23, 1 A. 33, 40 P. R. 1917, 23 P. R. 1902.
2. The purpose the legislature had in view was the prevention of a breach of the peace. If that object is not attained by an order purporting to be made under S. 145 it must be taken to have been without jurisdiction. — 24 C. 446.

3. An order under S. 145 is merely a police order made to prevent a breach of the peace. It decides no question of title and the person maintained in possession by such an order can only be evicted by a suit by a person who can prove a better right to the possession himself. — 29 C. 157 (P. C.) - 30 C. 155 (F. B.) - 7 C. N. 538, 6 B. R. 216, 3 U. B. 33.
4. Magistrates ought to be careful in acting under the section as the suggested apprehension of a breach of the peace is often little more than colourable, the real object of the parties being to obtain possession and thereby to secure no small advantage ground for subsequent litigation — 6 C. 837; 10 C. 78, 14 C. 371.

5. An order under the section is meant to be only a temporary or tentative order and is to be operative so long only as the rights of the parties are not decided by Civil Court. The Magistrate is not at liberty to go into the merits of the claim of the rival parties. He can decide only the fact of actual possession—21 C 208 25 B 179. 24 P R 1902; 7 C N 575.
6. The Section provides a speedy remedy for the prevention of a breach of the peace by summary procedure as opposed to elaborate and protracted investigations by Civil Courts. 32 C 1093 11 W. R. 36; 21 M. 561; O. S. 127.
7. The Section is strictly limited to prevent violent self-help even by the true owner—2 Pat. W. 94.
8. Permanent settlement of the differences of the parties not within the purview of the Section.—This section does not empower a Magistrate to make an order permanently settling the differences of the parties [Mad H. C. Pro. 23-1-83] See 17 W. R. 3-35 C. 785; 4 M. H. (Vp) 49.
9. The Section is preventive and not punitive.—25 B 179 See 30 C 155 (F. B.) at p. 190 12 A J 390.

(2) Terms Explained.

10. "Parties concerned in the dispute" mean all persons claiming to be in possession at the time of the initial order under Cl 1 30 C 155 (F. B.) See (1) Parties to Proceeding (134).
11. Eviction in due course of law.—The words "due course of law" do not necessarily mean a decree of the Civil Court; but an order evicting the successful party in a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. must either be an order of a Civil Court or of a Court acting under statutory authority.

In the latter case there must be a clear indication expressed or implied in the terms of the statute itself to show that the order has the effect of a decree—1 Pat W 642 [7 C J 51 R.]

So an order by a settlement officer substituting an entry in favour of the unsuccessful party has not the effect of evicting in due course of law a successful party in a proceeding under S 145 Cr P C [ibid]

(3) Nature of proceedings under S. 145 Cr. P. C.

12. In reality a Civil one. (1) The proceeding under S 145 is in reality a Civil one—31 C 65 (F. B.)
13. Quasi-executive.—(2) Though judicial enquiry and judicial discretion are no doubt required as essential to the exercise of the powers conferred by S 145 proceedings under that section constitute quasi-executive action having for its object and justification the prevention of a breach of the public peace—25 B 179.
14. Quasi-civil. (3) A proceeding under S 145 is not a criminal proceeding in the proper sense of the word. It is quasi-civil.—21 P R 1902. 68 P L 1914.
15. An enquiry as defined in S. 4(k).—A proceeding under Chapter XII is an enquiry within the meaning of S 4(k) Cr P C. Both Sections 528 and 192 Cr P C apply to such proceedings. 22 C 894. See 28 C 709 (Per Ghose J) 2 C J. 614 10 C N. 1095 13 C N 420.
16. Proceedings are "criminal cases" within the meaning of S 526 Cr P C—34 A 533. 26 M. 188. 11 O C. 61 28 C 709 (Per Ghose J) contra 25 B 179 18 C N 393 8 S 215.
17. But not "criminal trials" within the meaning of S 13 of the Letters Patent. See 17 M. J. 154 (F. B.) [See also 29 C 286 (F. B.) S. 401] 27 M 510 [S 107] 12 M J 109 [S 195]
18. A Possessory proceeding under S 145 is not a sufficient notice to quit for the purpose of an ejectment suit. 43 C 39.
19. Police Proceedings and not a trial.—Proceedings under S 145 Cr P C do not constitute a trial and are not in the nature of a trial. They are in the nature of Police proceedings in order to prevent the commission of offence S 403 Cr P C therefore does not apply. 3 U B 33 See 29 C 187 (P. C.)

III. POLICE REPORT.

20. Police report should contain not merely an expression of opinion but a statement of facts actually ascertained by the police law that the parties are actually assembling men or doing other specified overt acts. 33 C 33 [Disc. 25 W R 2 22 W R 79] See 20 C 513.
21. In a case under S. 145 it is not necessary that the police report should definitely state that there was likelihood of a breach of the peace.—It is sufficient if the report taken as a whole shows that there was a likelihood of a breach of the peace—33 C 68 (F. B.)
22. If the report does not show that there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace it cannot be acted on.—11 C N 199 11 C. N 835 See also 20 C 513.
23. Police Report showing possibility of a breach of the peace is sufficient to justify the issue of a warrant.
24. Proceedings before the Police.
25. Order cannot be based upon the mere fact that the Police report showed that the 2nd party had admitted possession of the 1st party. 6 M. T. 91

26. Report by Police officer of another district may be used on in respect of the portion of the disputed land lying within the district—29 C 855, 1 C 1, 329.
27. Reference to police report which contains sufficient grounds upon which the Magistrate is satisfied that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists is a sufficient compliance with law—Per 34 C 352 (F B) 7 C 96 13 C 175, 20 C 513, 41 C 33 (05) A N 299, 18 Cr 21 (M) 6 C 845, 27 C 981, 28 C 416, 32 C 771, 25 A 147, 27 A 246.
28. The order in writing if it refers to the police report should state that he (the Magistrate) is satisfied on the grounds stated in that report. When however he says merely that the report will show that the dispute is not likely to subside until an order is made, he has not made an order complying with Section 145 (1)—15 A 1, 270.
29. Defective police report cannot be acted on by amalgamating it with a previous defective report—Where a proceeding was dropped because the police report did not contain the boundaries of the disputed land and fresh proceedings were started on another police report which did not state that there was any breach of the peace—Id.—that this fundamental defect in the latter report which was the basis of the fresh proceedings, could not be remedied by a reference to the previous report.—6 C N 310.

30. Magistrate's inquiry must be limited to the particular dispute mentioned in the police report—Where the police report mentions the dispute to be one regarding actual possession and it forms the basis of the proceedings, a succeeding Magistrate cannot alter the character of the dispute by changing the dispute into one relating to collection of rent—27 C, 892.
31. A Magistrate's discretion—A Magistrate ought not to take action upon a mere expression of opinion by the police. He must form his own independent judgment as to the sufficiency of materials disclosed by the police report. If he is not bound to act on all that is stated in the report—31 C 33. See 27 C 981.

IV. OTHER INFORMATION.

32. Magistrate is not in any way limited as to the materials on which he may take action—No kind and fast rule can be laid down specifying the sufficiency of the materials upon which he takes action—19 W R 10, 34 C 33.
33. What is not information within the meaning of the section.
- (1) A mere statement—22 B 914 (199)
 - (2) A mere statement by an officer in the employ of one of the interested parties—23 M 561.
 - (3) The statement of a witness in the course of a dispute.
- (1) Materials on which a previous proceeding was drawn up but subsequently dropped [New materials necessary if proceedings are to be renewed]—23 C 867, 6 C N 923.
- (2) More statement on oath of one of the parties—30 C 78.
- (3) A petition complaining about dispossession and of the commission of various offences none of which necessarily involved a breach of the peace—4 C N 57.

34. Rectification of defect—When the information on which the proceeding was initiated was insufficient, but evidence taken during the trial proved that a breach of the peace was likely at the date of the initial order, the order of the Magistrate would be a valid one—31 C 33. Contra 23 C 557.
35. Omission to record source of—not fatal—7 C N 591. See (10) Irregularities which do not vitiate (439) and (8) Proceeding (No 94).
36. Information collected during a local enquiry held by the Magistrate prior to drawing up a proceeding—See—(8) Proceeding (7).
37. Sufficiency of information—It is now well settled that the sufficiency of the information on which the Magistrate acts is entirely a matter for the Magistrate. The law does not require it to be furnished to him in any particular form—1 Pat. J 336 (F B).

V. DISPUTE.

(1) Defined.

38. The term 'dispute' means a reasonable dispute, a bona fide dispute between parties who have each some semblance of right or supposed right—3 C 835, 3 Pat J 287.
39. Magistrate has to reach a distinct finding that there is a dispute and that the dispute in question is likely to cause a breach of the peace—2 Wen 117, Bat 39. See 28 C 416, 21 B 37 (07) A N, 19 6 C P 21, 4 M H 419, 42 P L 1915.

(2) Procedure on receipt of a single report concerning several disputes.

40. General Rule—When disputes are independent and relate to distinct parcels of land, they ought to be dealt with in separate proceedings. When on the other hand, the dispute is one, the fact that it embraces several parcels of land, is not in my opinion sufficient to necessitate an independent proceeding in respect of each.—Per Hall J 90 C 155 (F. B.) 29 M 561. See 18 27.

41. Joint proceeding when desirable.—A Magistrate exercises sound discretion in inclining in one proceeding disputes concerning several plots when they are covered by the same set of circumstances.—10 C L 521 [D1—15 C 31]
42. Joint proceeding when undesirable. A joint proceeding in respect of several disputes in which a very large number of persons are involved is undesirable as it would render necessary the calling as defendants in the Civil Suit a multitude of persons.—15 C 31 16 C 513 21 M 561
43. Strict rules of Civil Procedure inapplicable to S 145 proceeding. Although it is desirable to deal with each separate dispute in a separate proceeding it is impossible to do so in S 145 cases, the strict rule of procedure of judicial civil actions.—6 C N 206
44. Joint trial not necessarily illegal. A joint trial of several disputes, where a separate proceeding in respect of each was desirable, would not vitiate proceedings in the absence of prejudice.—5 C N 544 5 C N 710 14 C N cxxviii 18 25
- Joint enquiry into several disputes in some of which only a portion of the entire disputed land is claimed is illegal.—30 C 155 (F.B.): C of A 1 S 25
45. Trial of separate cases even with the consent of the parties is illegal. Where parties in the several cases are not the same, the Magistrate is not competent to try all the cases together even with the consent of the parties.—4 C N 748 See S W R 61 Contra 14 C N cxxviii
- (3) Disputes not within the purview of the section.
46. When one party's possession is admitted by the other.—If one of the parties by bringing a suit for the recovery of possession admits that the other party is in possession there is no question to decide in a proceeding under S 145 Cr P C.—7 C N 558
47. Dispute regarding lands not covered by the proceeding.—Cannot be enquired into and determined by the Magistrate.—7 C N 558
48. Dispute with regard to moveables. A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to institute proceedings under S 145 in respect of moveables.—4 L B 75 21 Cr 73 (M) 23 P R 1902 See below
49. Cases. See Rat 691 [Salt in Salt pan] 25 A

39 C 357 [offering to an idol in a temple] sandal wood paste removed from an idol (4 B R 438) goods and business of a shop (23 P R 1902) Trees severed from the land (22 P W 1917) Live-stock—g—elephant ([12] M N 540) Mineral products excavated and removed (2 Pat J 37)

50. Dispute with regard to live-stock.—Live-stock by themselves, do not come within the purview of S 145. But when they form part of the immovable property in dispute e.g.—elephant not removed from forest ([12] M N 540) or cattle belonging to and found within the mouth in dispute (1 Pat J 356) they come under S 145 Cr P C

51. Dispute about public property.—Where the dispute is among members of the public regarding the possession of a public property, a Magistrate cannot make an order under S 145, as the possession to be declared must necessarily be joint possession which is outside the scope of the section.—17 C N 205
52. Disputes not within the purview of S. 145. Cl. P. C.
- (1) (i) Dispute over burial ground.—25 W R 24
- (b) Dispute between co-partners, one of them claiming exclusive possession of partnership property as manager.—32 C 240
- (c) Dispute simply as to the collections made by one of parties and as to what he is entitled to under a decree does not come under S 145 Cr P C. (25 W R 2)
- (d) Dispute relating to the right to use a public highway.—2 W R 117
- (e) Dispute regarding voluntary payments by dealers in a market (such as chandhuan dues) 36 A 143
- (f) Dispute regarding the goods and business of a shop.—23 P R 1902

(4) Dispute within the purview of the section.

53. Dispute regarding the right to collect rent.—There is a long curious curia, bearing on the questions (1) Is a dispute regarding collection of rents within the purview of S 145? (2) Assuming that it is has the section application, when the dispute is as to the collection of a share of rent between persons having joint rights over the disputed property? The first question was for the first time distinctly raised and decided in 11 C 413, which had down that a proceeding under S 145 Cr P C is not limited to disputes about immediate possession but is applicable also to intermediate possession by receipt of rents from tenants in actual possession. This view which was also adopted in 15 C 527 16 C 513 and 12 M 88 was accepted by the Legislature and enacted as subs (2) by act V of 1904. (See also 9 B L 229 18 Cr 156 (M) 16 Cr 284 (M) 5 A N 513 12 C N 3 17 M T 225 5 M J 95 2 Pat W 67 contra 10 C 89. It has been held that a dispute with regard to the right to make collections or to appropriate the crops or produce of a village or shares of a village comes within the purview of S 145. [2 Pat W 67 Fg.—11 C 413 16 C 513.] The section applies even when the fractional shares of the disputing co-owners are not definitely ascertained. [17 M T 225 27 C 259 27 C 261 (Note) 1 C N 420 4 C N 421 (Note) 23 C 80 7 C N 462.] The second question is however more or less res integra, as the conflict of opinion on the point has not yet been set at rest by a Full Bench decision of any of the High Courts. The leading case for the affirmative is 27 C 259, which has found support in a number of recent cases—17 M. T. 225, 16 Cr. 284 (31), 16 Cr. 219 (M), 31 M. 318, 10 C. 959, S. I. C. 153 (L. R.). See also 19 C. 982 (in which a distinction is drawn between constructive and actual joint possession.) The leading case for the negative is 23 C. 80, the view in which has been adopted in a long series of decisions by the Calcutta High Court—32 C. 241, 11 C. N. 512, 10 C. N. 1088, 9 C. N. 392, 4 C. N. 885, 7 C. N. 102, 6 C. N. 883, 10 C. N. 123, 11 C. J. 412. See also 36 C. 986 and 19 Cr. 977 (M), 17 Cr. 76 (M); 14 Cr. 195 (A), 23 P. R. 1902. So it has been held that where the dispute is between parties claiming to hold joint possession and neither contests such right or when one of the parties claims joint possession while the other claims exclusive possession, founded on a joint right and title, S. 145 does not apply [See (15) possession and dispossession (219)]. A dispute regarding the right to collect rent between a co-sharer of an undivided property and the lessee of another co-sharer falls outside the scope of S. 145 [5 A. 607].

54 Dispute regarding fisheries.—By enacting Subv. (2), the Legislature has now definitely included fisheries within the purview of the section and overruled 11 C. 113, 12 C. 339, 13 C. 179, 23 W. R. 45, 5 A. N. 290 [See 35 C. 117]. But where the dispute is with regard to the possession of a share in a fishery and the two parties are found to have joint right in the same. See 145 has no application [11 C. J. 412, 11 C. N. 512, but see above]. When however the dispute relates to a definite share in the profits of the fishery, it may be dealt with under S. 145 [11 C. J. 412, but See 36 C. 986].

55 Disputes regarding possession.

(1) It may be taken as settled that where the dispute is between parties each of whom claims the right to hold joint possession and neither contests such right, the section does not apply. The section contemplates a dispute between parties each of whom asserts the right to hold actual possession to the exclusion of the other 7 C. N. 118, 1 C. N. 426, 11 C. N. 512, 17 C. N. 205, 36 C. 986, 10 C. N. 1088, 16 Cr. 52 (M), 2 Weir 109, 11 A. J. 696, 23 P. R. 1902, so, where, the joint possession is not merely constructive but actual, S. 145 does not apply. But if it is found that one co-sharer is in actual possession and the other is not, the Magistrate may make an order under S. 145 [40 C. 982].

Dispute regarding crops.—An attempt has made to draw a hue of distinction between (1) standing crops (2) crops severed from the disputed land but still lying within it (3) crops cut and stored.

(1) As to standing crops.—Subv. (2) is a sufficient guide See also 15 A. 304.

(2) As to crops severed from the disputed land but still lying within it.—This view is in direct conflict with that expressed in 2 Weir 108

(3) Crops cut and stored.—It has been held in 30 C. 110 that the word "crops" in subv. (2) means crops attached to the land and not crops which have been severed [See also 25 A. 266; 7 C. J. 394, C. R. 31 of 18.4.01].

(3) Right to reap crops.—A dispute about the right to reap crops is not within the terms of S. 145 Cr. P. C.—14 P. R. 1917 [7 C. J. 399 F.].

57. Dispute regarding temples and other places of worship and the proceeds thereof.

That debutter property being by nature impartible and inalienable, the possession of such places is necessarily joint and as such beyond the scope of S. 145 Cr. P. C.

Right to perform puja.—Dispute regarding the right to perform puja in a temple is covered by S. 145 Cr. P. C. [Pro 2 Weir 112, 24 B. 527, Con—37 C. 578, 17 Cr. 235 (M)]. Where however the dispute, is in effect, for the possession of the temple and the right to perform puja therein is only a portion of the larger relief a Magistrate can deal with it under S. 145 [17 Cr. 235 (M)] See 2 Pat W. 91.]

Note.—In 11 M. 223, 20 M. 247, 27 M. J. 587, 3 B. R. 416 it has been laid down that S. 147 Cr. P. C. and not S. 145 applies to such cases.

User of a mosque.—A dispute as to the right to user of a mosque by persons claiming to be entitled to officiate as lazzis thereon is a dispute coming within S. 147 Cr. P. C. and not S. 145 Cr. P. C.—Pro, 11 M. 323, 20 M. 237, 27 M. J. 587, Con. 17 Cr. 235 (M).

Right to take sandalwood paste.—After removal from an idol is not within S. 145, as it did not in any way emanate from the temple buildings or come within the description of "profits of immovable property".—4 B. R. 138.

Muth.—Dispute arising out of a right of succession to a muth is not within the purview of S. 145 11 W. R. 23.

58. Disputes within the purview of Section 145 Cr. P. C.

(a) Dispute between a rival claimant and the tenants of another rival claimant 18 Cr. 156 (M).

(b) Dispute regarding management where the word "management" is used merely to describe acts of possession. 2 Pat W. 91.

(c) Dispute regarding a ferry 26 C. 188 But See 3 C. N. 148.

(d) Dispute regarding forest land where the possession was exercised by cutting timber from time to time on a certain price being paid. 16 C. 291.

[Note.—But not when the rival disputant is a mere trespasser who without any right has cut a few trees from a portion only of a large area of forest land 32 C. 287. See (15) possession and dispossession.]

(c) Dispute regarding the exclusive right to collect the entire toll from one partitioned half of a market. 30 C 503

(f) Dispute about mining rights 20 Cr. 109 (Pat.) [11 C. 413 12 C 539 R]

(g) Dispute as to the right to tap a tree. 3 Pat. J. 316

VI. LIKELIHOOD.

(1) Legal foundation of jurisdiction.

59. The legal foundation of a Magistrate's jurisdiction under the section is a police report or other information containing clear and rational grounds for believing that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace concerning certain lands etc exists [19 W R 10]

60. Magistrate's jurisdiction depends solely on likelihood—A finding to the effect that there exists a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace, is a condition precedent to the Magistrate's taking action under S. 145 Cr P C and until he does so find, he has no jurisdiction to act under the section—24 C 55 (F. B.). 23 C 557 20 C 523 6 C 435 4 C 650 15 C N 271 6 C N 340- 5 C N 400 1 C N 57 24 B 527 14 Cr 495 (A) 11 A J 305 2 A J 272 6 M J 193 2 Weir 117 3 Pat W 386 2 Pat W 25 22 P. W 1917 6 P R 1885 See 5 W R 11 9 W. R 61

61. The Magistrate must satisfy himself by the exercise of his own independent judgment and come to a finding that the grounds on which it was stated that there was a likelihood of a breach of the peace were reasonable e g he cannot act merely because the judge has directed him to proceed under the section [4 C N 799] 24 C 55 (F. B.). 20 C 513 20 C 520 15 A J 270 36 A. 19 13 Cr 296 (A) 19 Cr 444 (N) 4 M H. (np) 49 6 M J 194 6 P R 1885 6 P L 1913 92 P L 1915 5 W R 11

62. The exact meaning of the word likelihood has been the subject of several conflicting decisions. Does the word 'likely' mean 'imminent', 'immediate', 'probable' or 'present' or merely possible? The leading case on the point is 23 C 33 [Fd in 1 S 50 (F. B.)] in which it has been held that the High Court ought not to adopt a construction which would have the effect of substituting for the word 'likelihood', the term 'probability' or 'imminence' or any similar expression. Their Lordships held that there must be a present danger of breach of peace (not, be it noticed, a danger of an immediate or imminent breach of peace) [Eg 7 C L 352]. In the opinion of Millet J in 7 C 585, for the Magistrate to take action, it is sufficient if there is a reasonable apprehension that disturbance of the peace is likely to occur. But it is not enough if it is merely probable that a breach may occur if proceedings be not taken. This view is opposed to that taken in 23 C 557. 20 C 513 20 C 867 15 C N 271 4 C L 343 2 Pat W 25 (where the meaning is held to be imminent). In 8 C N 590 the term is said to signify immediate [See also 4 C 630]

63. Note.—In 11 C N 835 and 198 their Lordships lay down that a mere possibility of a breach of the peace will not justify action under S. 145 [See also 2 Pat W 25]

64. The commission of overt acts of violence not necessary to constitute likelihood.—

The section does not primarily contemplate cases in which there have already been overt acts of violence. All the disputants may be persons of peaceable disposition but if the dispute is, in its nature, of such a kind that it is likely, having

65. Findings of likelihood must be based on legal evidence—A Subordinate Magistrate while on tour was informed by the village headman and certain other persons that a number of persons had erected platforms in front of their houses and that in consequence there was a danger of a breach of the peace—Held that the information together with the oral testimony of a single witness who objected to the platforms did not constitute any evidence of a likelihood of a breach of the peace within the meaning of S. 145—6 P L 1913 enquiry and without taking any evidence hold that there was no likelihood of a breach of the peace 16 Cr 789 (M) [39 M 561 18 C N 91 18 C. N 700 R]

68. Where it is found that there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace, the Magistrate is not bound to continue proceedings. 867 30 C 11.

69. Complaint passed by offences not necessarily involving breach of peace—The mere fact that a person complains of being dispossessed of his land is no reason for the institution of proceedings, if the petition refers only to the commission of various offences none of which necessarily involves a breach of the peace—4 C N 57

70. Magistrate may stay proceedings at any stage if the likelihood has ceased to exist before the proceedings has terminated.

30 C 112 28 C 416 21 C 29 20 C 867, 6 C 635 4 C 650 17 Cr. 138 (M) (14) M. N. 37; See also 20 C N 974 21 C 557 21 Cr 131 (C); Contra 20 Cr 464 (Pat)

71. [Note—But he can do so only after enquiry and after taking evidence.—16 Cr. 789 (M) [39 M. 561, 18 C. N. 91, 18 C. N. 700 R.]
72. Once the proceeding has been dropped it cannot be revived without new materials. Where a proceeding under S 145 has once been cancelled a fresh proceeding can be instituted only when the Magistrate on further materials, either on the report of the police, or any other information is satisfied that there is a likelihood of a breach of the peace.—2 Pat. W. 25, 29 C. 57, 6 C. N. 923

73. A subsequent order reviving the proceedings on the ground that the police report showed that there was still an apprehension of a breach of the peace is illegal.—2 Pat. W. 25
74. Magistrate called on to take proceedings is the sole judge of the necessity of taking action.—See (s) Proceeding (85 b)

VII. LAND AND WATER.

(1) Meaning.

75. Change in the Law.—The term "tangible property" in the former Codes has been replaced by the words "land or water or the boundaries thereof" and by adding an explanation of these words in Subs (2) the Legislature has considerably extended the application of the Section.—See 26 C. 155
76. Properties corporeal and incorporeal included within the expression or falling outside its scope.—See (s) (Disputes) C (40, 72) D (53, 57)
77. Inclusion in the proceeding of only a portion of the disputed land.—The purpose of a proceeding under S 145 is merely to prevent a breach of the peace and if the Magistrate finds it sufficient for the purpose of preventing a breach of the peace to include in his proceeding only a portion of the land which is the subject of the police report, there is nothing to prevent him from doing so.—15 Cr. 692 (Pat).
78. As to possession of land subject to diluvion.—See 20 C. N. 1014 (and (15) Possession etc (283))
79. Jurisdiction does not depend on the area of the disputed plot.—The operation of the section cannot be limited by any rule which would depend upon the area of the property in dispute.—16 C. 513

(2) Boundaries.

80. Subject-matter to dispute must be capable of being accurately defined.—To bring a case under S 145 Cr. P. C. the property which is the subject-matter of dispute must be capable of being accurately defined. The whole scope and object of the section points to the same conclusion.—23 C. 80, 7 C. N. 462 See 4 C. N. 126, 11 C. N. 198, 7 C. N. 118
81. Boundaries must be specified in the preliminary order.—Where a proceeding purporting to be passed under S 145 gave no information as to the subject of the dispute and it left the persons to whom the notice was issued, guess as to the dark as to the property in regard to which they were called upon to set forth their respective claims. Held—that the order was wholly incomplete and failed to comply with the requirements of the law.—27 A. 201

[But where both sides are fully cognizant of the matter in dispute the High Court will not interfere.—32 A. 132]

82. Before a proceeding is drawn up under S. 145 the subject matter of the dispute must be clearly ascertained and determined.—11 C. N. 198, 7 C. N. 599, 5 C. N. 553
A failure to do so renders the whole proceedings void.—Wyn. S. Cr. 1.
83. Where boundaries are found to be uncertain, Magistrate should proceed under S 146.—Where the dispute is regarding a certain alluvial land and the question is whether it belonged to Monza G. which was in joint possession or to Monza A. to which one of them had exclusive possession and the Magistrate is unable to come to a clear finding, he ought to attach the lands under S 146 Cr. P. C.—5 C. N. 105; See 7 C. N. 462
84. Property must be specified by metes and bounds in the final order.—A final order under S 145 must specify by metes and bounds the exact portion of the disputed property of which the successful party is entitled to possession.—2 Weir. 107.
85. Joint possession and joint finding—Where a joint finding subsequent to a Court's decree, the boundaries given in that decree should be followed. A Magistrate is not at liberty to attempt an explanation of boundaries given in the decree.—6 C. N. 161

VIII. PROCEEDING.

(1) Who may set the law in motion.

86. The section enables the Magistrate in his sole and absolute discretion to take proceedings under it, when he thinks that such proceedings are necessary to enable him to discharge the duty which the law places on his shoulders of preserving the peace in the District under his care. (But the High Court can interfere, after the institution of the proceedings, if the Magistrate refuses to exercise jurisdiction without sufficient cause.—See (23) Jurisdiction—473) 38 C. 24, 4 C. N. 799.

87. Private Person.—No private person has any right whatever to cause proceedings under S 145 to be taken. If a Magistrate cancels an order under S. 145 or refuses to make an order at all, no private person has any status to contest the propriety of his refusal to make an enquiry into the question of possession.

38 C. 24. 30 C. 112. See 30 A. II.

37. District Magistrate—Although a District Magistrate can himself take action on a police report where a subordinate magistrate has already refused to do so [20 C. 212] He has no authority to direct a subordinate Magistrate to take proceedings under the section [21 C. 391] [1 Pat W 275]—Nor can he remand a case for "proper enquiry" after the subordinate Magistrate has struck off the proceedings as unnecessary [20 C. 729]. But where a District Magistrate on being satisfied that there exists a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace, refers the case to magistrate for enquiry he is bound to enquire into it [3 B R 416].

38. Sessions Judge—A Sessions Judge is not competent to order a magistrate to take action under S. 145, 20 C. 320. 15 W R 1. See 4 C N 794.

39. High Court—The High Court cannot direct a Subordinate Magistrate to take action under S. 145 [3 C N 297. 21 W R. 54] or order further enquiry to be made [30 C. 112]. See also 35 C. 117. 2 S. 18. It cannot direct initiation or revival of a proceeding [23 W R 51]. But where the magistrate after making an emergent order under S. 145 (1) refused to proceed further, the High Court ordered the magistrate to make an enquiry into the fact of possession as required by sub. (3) [01 A. N. 154. See also (23) Jurisdiction (473)].

(2) The preliminary order.

91. Magistrate bound to record a proceeding—To enable a magistrate to make an order relating to disputes about immovable property, he must in accordance with S. 145 (1), first make an order in writing, stating the grounds of his being satisfied that a dispute exists which is likely to cause a breach of the peace.

(3) Contents of the Preliminary order.

93. (1) The grounds on which the Magistrate is satisfied that there is a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace must be set forth in the order. S. 145. No 91 above. See also (5) Dispute (19).

94. Note—There is now a fair consensus of opinion among the High Courts etc., that in the absence of prejudice (amounting to a denial of justice) the omission to set forth such grounds in the preliminary order is not a fatal defect vitiating the Magistrate's jurisdiction.

(4) Grounds of satisfaction may be set forth by implication.

95. (1) A reference in the proceeding to a police report which gives the necessary grounds, is a sufficient compliance with the provisions of S. 145 (1) Cr. P. C. The order need not be self-contained. 33 C. 352 (F. B.). See (1) Police Report (27).

96. (2) Similarly a statement in the proceeding to the effect that upon information received and on

10 M J 185

Note—Where however, the petition refers to the commission of offences none of which necessarily involves a breach of the peace, the statement will not be sufficient. 1 C N. 57.

98. (3) The grounds of belief need not be set out verbatim in the notice issued to the parties under the section. It is enough if the Magistrate states in his order that he believes the statement of the petitioner which contains such grounds. 18 Cr. 156 (M). See (67) A. N. 50.

97. (4) Reference to local enquiry held by the Magistrate prior to the proceeding in the presence of the parties in order to satisfy himself as to the likelihood of a breach of the peace is sufficient [Pro. 7 C N 599 (670) 30 A 41, 32 A 152, 16 C 221 (A) 26 P W, 1917 (Con 35 C, 771)]. Provided that the results of the enquiry has been set down in writing and placed on the record—32 C, 771
98. (2) The order must specify the property in dispute.—27 A 266 See 27 C 981
- [Note.—But where both sides are fully cognizant of the subject-matter of dispute, an omission to do so will not be fatal—32 A 132]
99. (3) The order should be correct and complete in its terms 27 C 981.
100. (1) The order should specify the place of enquiry.—A Magistrate cannot hold the enquiry while on tour without timely notice to the parties 7 C N 705
101. (3) The Magistrate should call for written statements of the claims of the parties to the proceeding 25 A 537 35 C 774
102. Printed forms should not be used.—The use of printed forms containing the statement that the Magistrate is satisfied as to the likelihood of a breach of the peace is likely to prevent the Magistrate from applying his mind to a consideration of the sufficiency of the materials and is therefore to be condemned 9 C N 4
- (5) How far the Magistrate's discretion is fettered by the contents of the police report.
- 103 (1) He may include only a portion of of the disputed property in his proceeding.—The purpose of a proceeding under S. 115 Cr. P. C. is merely to prevent a breach of the peace and if the Magistrate thinks that it is sufficient to prevent a breach of the peace to include in his proceeding only a portion of the land which is the subject of the police report there is nothing to prevent him from doing so 18 Cr 692 (Pat)
- 104 (2) He cannot alter the character of the dispute.—Where a Magistrate took action under the section on the basis of a police report in which it was stated that the dispute was concerning the actual possession of the land, a succeeding Magistrate cannot revise the proceeding and alter the dispute into one relating to collection of rent 27 C 832
- (3) Magistrate not bound to take action on a mere expression of opinion by the police.—He must form his own opinion on a statement of facts and is not bound to proceed unless he is himself satisfied as to the necessity or otherwise for the institution of proceedings under the Section 31 C. 33 See 27 C 892
- (6) Section contemplates one proceeding against all the parties concerned in the dispute.
105. The section contemplates one proceeding against all the parties known to be concerned in the dispute so as to conclude the matter definitely and finally so far as the Criminal Courts are concerned 24 C. 55 (F. B); 27 C 892 111 R 377 See 21 C 291; 28 C. 446; 40 C N. 753, 50 N. 900, 6 C N. 101, 24 B 527, 18 M. 51, 18 C 11 (M); 7 P. R. 1107. But See 30 C. 155 (F. B)

(7) Object and scope of the preliminary order.

106. (1) The object of drawing up a proceeding can only be to inform the parties of the grounds or the information which has satisfied the Magistrate that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists 32 C. 771 7 C. N. 599.

106A. (2) Scope of the proceeding.—It is the proceeding and not the written statements of the parties which settles the issues between the parties. (10) Written Statement (No 127) his order under S. 115 Cr. P. C. should not be set aside, it is highly improper for a Subordinate Magistrate to institute fresh proceeding with reference to the matter in dispute—1 C J. 415.

(8) Renewal or revival of proceeding.

103. Previous order under Cl. (5)—Made on the basis of a compromis petition to the effect that the lands do remain in possession of both sides stated in the petition is no bar to fresh proceedings in respect of the same lands—15 C. N. 568

103A. Once the proceedings have been dropped it cannot be revived without fresh materials.—20 C. 847 See (6) Likelihood (72)

(9) Power to cancel proceeding.

108. (1) A Magistrate has jurisdiction to cancel the proceeding taken by him at any stage Pro. C 116 (14) M. N. 37, 17 Cr. 134 (M) (Con 20 C 461 (Pat) See (6) Likelihood (70).

110. (2) He can do so even when the proceedings are taken by his predecessor—2 Weir 108.

111. (3) A District Magistrate may withdraw the case to his own file and quash the proceedings when he is satisfied on taking evidence that no dispute exists or has ever existed—1 J. C. N. 125

112. (4) The power to cancel proceedings is a limited mercy to the information given to him by parties or persons interested under subs. (3)—C 112

113. (5) Absence or neglect of parties need not justify cancellation of proceedings See (Enquiry and Procedure (200)

[Note.—For powers of magistrate to deal with the disputed property after cancelling proceeding—See (17) Final Order (388 to 393)

114 The doctrine of autrefois acquit does not apply to proceedings under S. 14 Cr. P. C.—The fact that one of the parties was previously prosecuted under S. 147, I. P. C. is trespass on the disputed property and was acquitted, is no bar to a subsequent institution of proceedings under S 145 in respect of the very same property.—3 U R 33.

IX. SERVICE OF PROCEEDING.

(1) The object and scope of sub cl. (3).

115. (a) Cl. (3) was intended—to be supplementary to cl (1). The intention of the Legislature was probably to guard against collusive proceedings as well as to give any one interested in the disputed property who may, through oversight or otherwise, not have received a summons or an opportunity of coming in with his claim. 30 C 155 (F B) 33 C 68 (F. B.)

116. (b) Not intended to be a general citation.—The section indicates that the notice shall be to known individuals and not in the form of a general citation or public proclamation [4 C 650]. The object is not to enlarge the scope of the enquiry but merely to notify generally to all persons in the locality that a proceeding under S 115 has been set on foot. But the general invitation was not intended any more than the power given to the magistrate of summoning additional parties to have the effect of altering the character of the enquiry.—30 C 155 (F. B.)

117. Provisions of cl. 3 are merely directory.—The provisions as to the publication of the order mentioned in cl (3) is directory and a matter of procedure only. An omission to comply with it does not deprive the magistrate of his jurisdiction. The High Court will interfere only if a party intended has been materially prejudiced thereby. 33 C 68 (F. B.) 30 C 155 (F. B.) 33 C 33 33 C 1093 30 A 41 30 M 548 64 P L 1914 7 O C 334 12 O C 100. Contra—8 C N 76 8 C N 590 9 O N 909 [O.] 20 C 520 28 C 416 35 C 774 24 B 527 7 P R 1907 16 P L 1915 5 Pat W 231 4 Pat W 183

(2) Procedure.

118. The notice is to be accompanied by a copy of the preliminary order (proceeding) drawn up in accordance with cl (1)—115 Cr P C

As to what the proceeding should contain See (8) Proceeding Nos 93—101

119. Mode of service.—A copy of the order must be served personally on the parties and a copy affixed to some conspicuous place at or near the subject of dispute. The law for the service of notices in such cases is on the same lines as the rules for the service of a summons in a Civil Case.—20 Cr 816 (N) [2 N 3 Fd] 7 P R 1907.

120. On whom to be served.—The notice need be served on the parties concerned in the dispute only [8 W R 51]. Service on a mofussil and instead of the Zemindar is insufficient. [17 W R 9]

121. Proof of service.—Where the parties were aware of the nature and scope of the proceeding and had had their cases fully heard, failure to serve notice is not fatal [33 C 68 (F. B.) 14 C N xviii 30 A 41 32 A 132 16 Cr 221 (A) 1 Pat. W 234 10 M 548 26 P W 1917 169 P L 1915 68 P L 1914 12 O C 490]. But where a party to the proceeding had no opportunity of appearing and putting in his written statement owing to non-service the proceedings are without jurisdiction. [20 Cr 775 (N) 20 Cr 816 (N)]

123. The notice served must be a notice under the section.—See (8) Proceeding (92)

124. Order under S. 145 Cr. P. C. on notice under S. 147 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate gave notice under S 147 On objection being taken, without issuing a fresh notice under S 145, Held that the Magistrate under the latter section—Held that the Magistrate acted without jurisdiction 19 M J, 15. See (5) Proceeding No (96 A.)

(3) Miscellaneous.

125. Order against a party on whom no notice has been served, is illegal.—A final order under S 145 (6) Cr P C made against a person without serving any notice upon him at all is entirely without jurisdiction. 5 Pat. W 254 (17) Pat 200

126. Proceeding under S 144 Cr P C converted into one under S 145 Cr P C without fresh notice when legal.—Where in a proceeding purporting to be under S 144, notices were issued to the parties stating that there was a dispute between them regarding land, and the boundaries of the land were given, and the parties were given an opportunity of making a statement on a date fixed, and in response to the notices the parties appeared and filed written statements and documentary evidence precisely in the manner indicated by S. 145 (1)—Held that the Magistrate had issued an order which was really effective under S 145 (1) and the Magistrate was directed to proceed to complete the proceedings under S 145—4 Pat 234

X. WRITTEN STATEMENT.

127. The proceeding and not the written statements determines the issues.—The written statements of the parties are merely materials to assist the Magistrate in ascertaining the grounds on which they claim possession, the fact that the written statement of one party is not required to be served on the other, conclusively shows that its contents neither bound nor limit the Magistrate's jurisdiction. The proceedings under S 145 are initiated by the Magistrate in the interests of public order and tranquility and it is his preliminary order which defines the issues to be determined and fixes the materials to be determined at which the parties are entitled.—14 Cr 523 (3)

128. Magistrate is bound to call for written statement 25 A 547 25 C 771
129. He cannot refuse to proceed because the parties have failed to file written statements on the date fixed—11 W, R 9
130. Order passed by a Magistrate merely on a consideration of the written statements of the parties and without taking evidence is illegal 31 C 840; 30 C 918 12 C N 771 8 C N 632 5 C N 71; See 17 M J 535 17 B R 352
- Note. But where the possession of the opposite party is expressly admitted, there is no obligation on the Magistrate to take evidence 7 C N 351 9 M T 91 (14 M N 795)
131. Magistrate's discretion to refuse time to file written statement When the parties did not file written statements although more than 2 months had elapsed from the date on which the proceeding was drawn up, but applied for time to file written statement,

Held,—that the Magistrate was justified in refusing to grant time. 14 C N, 80; See also 8 C N, 642 11 Cr, 302 (C).

132. But where sufficient opportunity to file written statement has not been given, a Magistrate fails to exercise jurisdiction properly, in refusing to grant an adjournment. 19 Cr 773 (C). 12 C N, 806; 30 C, 918; 1 Pat, W, 55
133. When neither party files written statement or adduces evidence though they are given time and opportunity for the latter purpose, a Magistrate will be justified in making an order for attachment under S. 146 Cr. P. C. 11 C N 80; [Dist. in 20 Cr 117 (N)]

XI. PARTIES TO PROCEEDING.

(1) Parties concerned and Magistrate's duty to ascertain them.

inoperative and therefore would tend inevitably to a renewal of the dispute. 1 C N, 733 (755)

134. Meaning of the expression "parties concerned in such dispute."

(a) The words "parties concerned in such dispute" in S. 145 are intended to indicate all persons claiming to be in actual possession at the time of the initial order under cl (1) and not all persons interested in or claiming a right to the property in dispute 30 C 155 (F. B.) [O—21 C 20, 25 C 416 1 C N 754 6 C N 101 27 C 892] Pro—21 C 404 123 P L 1911 10 C N, 1095 (1099); 18 W R 54 Contra—24 B 527 18 M 51 18 C 44 (M) 35 C 889 21 C 915 5 C N 900

(2) Distinction between the status of parties concerned and parties 'interested'.

139. The person 'interested' who is empowered under cl 5 to show that no dispute exists or has existed, does not of course come in for the purpose of joining in the proceeding [unlike persons concerned] but for the purpose of bringing it to an end—Id J, 30 C 155 (F. B.) See 3 C N 329 5 C N, 900.

[Note the change of law—since 1 C 620 and 21 C 404]

140. Scope of cl. (5)—Any person claiming to be interested, if he makes a claim in order to show that there has been a breach of the law, is a party to the proceeding. 3 C N, 329. 1 Pat W, 373 (4) See also 5 C N, 900. Contra—20 C 520

[(*) In the Patna ruling the contention was that neither of the original parties to the proceeding had ever been in possession of the disputed land]

141. If persons not actually involved in a dispute under S. 145 Cr. P. C. are made parties to a proceeding, they have a right to adduce evidence in support of their claim and to have such evidence considered by the Court 20 C 520.

But a final order under Subs (6) cannot be made in their favour—19 Cr, 673 (C).

(3) Addition of parties.

142. The stage at which parties may be added to the proceedings.—There is a conflict of views on the point—'at what stage, if at all, can parties be added to the proceeding?' The opinions expressed in the various decisions may be grouped under two main classes—

(1) A Magistrate has not the power after recording the proceeding to add in the course of the investigation any new parties 'concerned' in the dispute.

135. Note (b) In order to entitle persons to become parties to the proceeding it is not necessary that there should be any likelihood of their being involved in any breach of the peace. Persons who claim to be in actual possession may be assumed to be concerned in the dispute (even though they may be away from the scene of likely disturbance) 20 C N 978
136. All persons who may be concerned in the dispute should be dealt with in one proceeding.—See (8) Proceeding (90).
137. The Magistrate's duty to ascertain who are the parties concerned in the dispute. A Magistrate ought before entering on an enquiry under cl 1 of the section to satisfy himself to the best of his ability on the materials before him, as to who are the persons claiming to be in present possession of the subject of the dispute (but he is not bound to ascertain what persons have or claim to have a mere right to possession). Nor is he to make an elaborate enquiry 30 C, 155 (F. B.) [D 24 C 55 (F. B.)] 24 B 527 See 1 C N, 753 (755) 6 C N 101 7 P, R 1907.
138. Why parties concerned should be ascertained.—An order declaring the possession of one of the parties to the proceedings would either operate mischievously to an absent party or from the fact that such order has been passed behind the back of such party, it would be

If a party is so added, there must be a fresh proceeding. The leading case is 24 C 55 (F. B.), which is followed in 27 C 892, 5 C N 900, 6 C N 101, 4 C N 748 and approved in 24 B 327].

(2) Parties may be added up to the time of the beginning of the enquiry without the necessity for drawing up a fresh proceeding. Even if they are added after the enquiry has begun, it would not be necessary to initiate a fresh proceeding to validate the proceedings. The new parties, if they so require, may have the witnesses already discharged, re-called and examined afresh. [30 C 155 (F. B.)—is the leading case. See also 20 C N 978.] In 10 C N 1095—the Magistrate issued fresh copies of original proceedings.

[Note—3 C N 329, 4 C N 745, 4 C N 83 (Note), 5 C N 67, 5 C N 900, 24 C 55 (F. B.), 27 C 892, 6 C N 101, 24 B 327, 4 C 650 must, in view of the Full Bench decision in 30 C 155 (F. B.), be regarded as obsolete—so far as this point is concerned.]

143. Magistrate may add parties of his own motion.—The Magistrate may alter or add to the array of parties either of his own motion or on the application of any one claiming to be concerned in the dispute in the sense that he claims to be in actual possession.—Per Hill J 30 C 155 (F. B.)

(4) Failure to add a necessary party does not affect jurisdiction.

144. The failure to add a necessary party as a party to the proceeding does not involve an absence of jurisdiction in the Magistrate to hear the parties and arrive at a determination as to which of the parties are entitled to possession of the land in dispute.—30 C 155 (F. B.), 1 Pat W 214, 18 Cr 692 (694) [Pat J], 21 Cr 25 (C) [Per Neubold J].

145. Misjoinder and non-joinder.—Questions of misjoinder and non-joinder of parties in proceedings under S 145 do not ordinarily go to the merits of the case.

procedure by which in my opinion the jurisdiction of the Magistrate is not affected.—Per Hill J 30 C 155 (F. B.) (Ov) 28 C 446

146. Right of audience.—Cl (i) throws upon the Magistrate the obligation to hear the parties. No Magistrate has any right to debar a subject from exercising his right of audience given to him by statute.—1 Pat W 214.

147. Magistrate cannot compel the attendance of a party.—Warrant to compel the attendance of a party is illegal, as it is entirely optional with the party to attend or not. 5 C N 71.

(5). The position of persons claiming or holding possession on behalf of or through another.

148. Manager.—Whether the possession of a person interested in the disputed property merely as a manager for the actual proprietor. Is such possession as is contemplated by S 145? The leading case on the point is 31 C 48 (F. B.) [See also 32 C 287] which by answering the question in the affirmative has finally overruled the opposite view taken in a series of decisions.—See 21 C 915, 21 C 916 (N), 25 C 423, 7 C N 208, 24 B 527 is disapproved.

149. The guardian of a minor.—A guardian's right to be made a party to the proceedings as a claimant to actual possession on behalf of his ward has been recognised in 1 Pat W 373 and 1 Pat W 214.

150. Servant.—The position of an ordinary servant is different from that of a manager. He cannot be treated as a person in actual possession either in his own right or on behalf of another. If he is dismissed from service, the order passed could not be treated as binding on his master. 5 L W 118, 6 C L 193. See also 31 C 48 (F. B.): 10 C N 1058.

151. Karpardaz.—Is not a party concerned.—21 C 916 (Note).

152. Agent.—Possession of an agent or servant is permissive and cannot give a party to a proceeding a locus standi against his principal or master. 10 C N 1088, 3 C L 94, 36 C 986. See (14) M N 795, 24 A 443.

(b) Where however the master or principal is absent, possession of the servant or agent is possession of the master or the principal as against a third party. 31 C 48 (F. B.). See 3 C L 94, [overrules—21 C 915, 916, 25 C 423, 7 C N 208, 3 C N 670, 24 B 27 is no longer good law.]

(c) But a Magistrate cannot decline to exercise the jurisdiction vested in him by law to determine the question of actual possession, merely on the ground that the dispute was between the principal and the agent.
indicated by

153. Managing co-shebat.—His possession being merely that of an agent on behalf of other co-shebat is not a fit subject for a proceeding under S 145.—10 C N 1088.

154. Manager of a Joint Hindu Family is entitled to be protected in his possession by proceedings under S 145 Cr P C as against any other member of the family. [10 C N 1088 D.] 31 M 318.

155. Receiver.—The possession of a receiver is to be sharply distinguished from that of an agent, manager or trustee. He is an officer of the Court and manager of the property on behalf of the Court. His possession is the possession of the Court. He can be made a party to a proceeding only with the permission of the Court. 30 C 761: 30 C 593.

A Receiver not in actual possession is not a necessary party. 3 M T 502.

156. Co-partner.—Where there are several partners, the claim of one of them to exclusive possession of the partnership property as manager is a question outside the purview of S 145 Cr P C. 32 C 249.

157. Reverser oner—A person claiming merely a reversionary interest in the property in dispute is not a necessary party.—21 A 113 (117)

(6) Who are to be regarded as parties to the proceeding?

158. Are all persons who have notice of the proceedings bound by the final order—or only the persons who are actually summoned to appear and to file written statements of their respective claims?

The High Courts of Calcutta and Madras hold the view that a final order made under the section binds only persons who are actual parties to the proceedings [3 B. L. (A) 1 3 C N 329 See also—7 C L 201 and 1 C 650 2 M J, 277, 18 M 51 2 Weir 106]. The Bombay High Court has held however that not only the actual parties but all parties who have notice of the proceedings that are bound by the order [11 B R 377—a view taken also by Rampart J in 21 C 104 and by the Patna High Court in 1 Pat W 136]

159. Witnesses The fact of a person being examined as a witness in the case does not make him a party bound by the order.—18 M 51

160. Heirs and assigns—An order under S 115 affects not only all persons bound by or parties to the order but also other persons who may claim the disputed property through any such persons under a title derived subsequent to the order. 23 C 731 (738); see 13 C 175

(7) Necessary parties.

161. Owners as well as occupiers—The section contemplates disputes between owners as well as occupiers of lands. When a Zemindar has let his lands, or a portion of them in farm, he, his farmers and the occupying raiats are all in their degree, concerned in any dispute as to possession which may arise and ought respectively to be maintained in possession of their interest which they severally enjoy. 5 C L 287 4 C N 753 25 W R 18

162. Master a necessary party when servants dispute on his behalf—If it is shown that servants concerned in the dispute are acting in the interests and for the benefit of their master, the master is a party concerned and as such a necessary party to the proceedings.—36 A 143, 6 C L 193 5 L W 118

163. Zemindars.

(1) A Zemindar who has set up tenants to dispute on his behalf, and who himself remains in the background should be made a party. 15 C 889 See 1 C N 748; 6 C R 287-27 C 802; See also 1 C N 753

(2) Zemindars not necessary parties, when they do not move in the dispute between tenants and keep themselves aloof from it. 6 C N 206. But see 25 C 146

164. Tenants.—Where the dispute is between certain zemindars and their tenants on one side and certain other zemindars and their tenants on the other, the presence of the tenants is necessary for the proper and effectual decision of a case under S 115 and an omission to join them as parties is bad. 27 C 802, 15 C J, 184, 3 Bar T, 74, 38 C 880. See 6 C N, 101; 25 C 441.

Where the dispute is between a purchaser at a public sale and the lakherajdars as to what tenants are in possession of certain plots, the tenants are necessary parties. 10 C N 959

165. Undivided members of the joint family. Persons who are found from the police report to be concerned in a dispute regarding lands and who are brothers of the original party, living in joint mess and belonging to a joint undivided family, ought to be made parties to proceedings under S 115 C P C. 3 C N 329

166. Owners not in actual possession may be a necessary party.—A proceeding under S 145 Cr. P. C. is not limited to disputes between parties in immediate possession, but applies where the disputed possession consists of receipts of rents from tenants in actual possession. 16 C 513 See 5 C R 287 4 C N 748 1 C N 753

167. Receiver not in actual possession.—In an enquiry under S 115 Cr. P. C. in a dispute between the old tenants and the new tenants to whom the Receiver has granted leases, the Receiver who is not in actual possession is not a necessary party. 9 M T, 502.

168. Order cannot bind a person who was not a party to the proceeding.—2 Weir 106. But see 11 B R 377.

(8) Substitution of parties.

169. By introducing the proviso contained in subs. (7)—the Legislature has provided for the substitution of a representative of the party who dies in the course of the proceedings. The ruling in 21 C 404 (where it was held that a son could not be made a party in the place of his deceased father) is obsolete.

(9) Miscellaneous.

170. If parties are absent.—Magistrate may proceed ex parte after taking due proof of service of notice on the absent parties. See 4 C N 753

171. Party disclaiming interest.—Order cannot be made in favour of a person, who is made a party to the proceeding but disclaims all interest. 6 C N 104.

XII. ATTACHMENT UNDER SUBS. 145(4).

(1) Powers of the Magistrate under Cl. (4).

172. Receivers.—(1) Under S 145 Cr. P. C. as amended, a Magistrate has in cases of emergency the power to direct an attachment of the disputed property, but has no power at that stage to appoint a Receiver. 4 Pat 359 8 M T, 314. But see 13 Cr 295 (M). 21 Cr 73 (M).

- (2) In 13 Cr 295 (M.) Nair J. held that there was nothing to prevent or prohibit the appointment of a Receiver. But a Receiver so appointed cannot exercise all the functions of a Receiver appointed under S 146. He must be treated only as an agent or servant of the Magistrate whose order is only an administrative one.
173. (3) Custody of attached property. (3) In 4 Pat 379, Juala P.J. held that the Magistrate may take proper steps for the care and custody of the property (e.g. crops) and prevent its removal by any of the rival claimants or strangers.
174. (4) After cancelling the proceedings. The Magistrate cannot direct that the property attached under cl (4) be delivered to a particular party. 1 L W 1032

(2) The nature of the attachment under Subs. (4).

- 175.—The order of attachment which the law empowers the Magistrate to make has no greater force than any civil court attachment the effect of which is generally to restrain alienations. 4 Pat W. 359

(3) What may be attached.

176. Crops and rents.—It is competent to a Magistrate to order the attachment not only of the land but also the crops harvested and the rents received since the beginning of the disturbances. 13 Cr 295 (M.)
177. Elephant.—When a forest has been attached under S 145 (4), and the elephant was not removed from it at the time of the attachment the attaching officer will be entitled to take possession of the animal. (12) M N 540
178. Cattle.—Where a math had been attached, held the attaching officer was competent to attach the cattle found therein [(12) M N. 540 P.J.] 1 Pat J 376

What may not be attached.

Crops.—Although crops may be attached (See Dispute) crops on the land belonging to tenants cannot be attached in a dispute between rival landlords. 5 C N 107

(4) The period during which the order is effective.

179. (1) The attaching order subsists till the final order.—S 8, 207
- (2) Where a magistrate after issuing an order of attachment under subs (4) postponed the proceedings sine die—Held that the postponement did not operate as a withdrawal of the order which continued till the disposal of the case. 13 C N. 601
180. On the termination of the proceedings.—A magistrate cannot order that if any fruits had been gathered on any of the said lands since the attachment, the proceeds of the same minus expenses should be handed over to one of the parties. 7 C J 369 See also No 174 above
181. Magistrate after making an order for attachment is bound to carry the proceedings to conclusion.—He cannot rest content with making the emergent order only. He is bound to follow the procedure provided in subs (5) and (6).—(01) A N 151.
182. Order for restitution.—A magistrate has jurisdiction to order for the restitution of the property placed after attachment in the hands of the receiver on cancelling proceedings. 2 Weir 109
183. Illegal order to police to take charge of crops.—Although it may not be strictly legal to direct the police to take charge of and guard the crops on the disputed land an owner cannot exercise his right of private defence against the enforcement of the order. 9 C N 125

XIII. ENQUIRY AND PROCEDURE.

(1) Magistrate to ascertain who are the parties claiming to be in possession before commencing enquiry.

184. A Magistrate ought before entering on an enquiry under cl 4 of the section to satisfy himself to the best of his ability on the information before him as to who are the persons claiming to be in present possession of the subject of dispute. 30 155 (F. B.)

(2) Scope of the enquiry.

185. The scope of an enquiry under S. 145 is confined strictly to the fact of actual possession irrespective of the merits of the claim of the parties concerned. A claim therefore merely to a right to possession as distinguished from a claim to be in possession would be outside the scope of the enquiry. 30 C 155 (F. B.) 7 C 46 27 C 918 30 C 112 32 C 602 32 C 1093 36 C 795 40 C 982 6 C J 182 7 C J 369 16 C J 786 31 C 416 2 Weir 98 16 Cr. 736 (M); 25 B 179; 6 B H 30 4 Pat W 120 21 Cr 136 (Pat) 6 P

L 1913 40 P R 1917 3 N. P. 171. But see 12 O C 400.

186. In a proceeding under the section the Court practically says "I cannot look at your title—possession is now the only question, and therefore if your title is not clothed with possession you must go to another Court to establish that title." See 5 M I A 413 also 7 M I A 253
- 187-88. Nature of the proceedings under S 145 Cr. P. C.—See (2) object (12-19)

(3) The enquiry is not to be treated as a civil suit.

189. (1) A party to a proceeding under S 145 Cr. P. C. is not in the position of a plaintiff in a civil suit who has set the Court in motion and has a right to require a decision upon question raised by him. 20 C 112
190. (2) A Magistrate should not treat a proceeding under S 145 as if it were a civil suit. The framing of numerous issues and an elaborate discussion of each issue is outside the scope of an enquiry under S 145 Cr. P. C.—35 C 795, 32 C 1093, 11 W. R. 36, 19 P. R. 1917, O S 127. See 18 Cr. 692 (Pat).

191. (3) It is no business of the Magistrate to enter upon an elaborate investigation into the merits of the claim of the parties.

Where the dispute is among Mahomedans and the Magistrate is really called upon to determine the rights under the Mahomedan Law, he should leave such questions to the Civil Court and if necessary bind them all over to keep the peace under S 107 Cr. P. C. 27 C, 918, 32 C 1093.

192. (5) A Magistrate acting under S 145 is not bound to come to a conclusion as to the fact of possession as in Civil Suits. Where it is difficult for him to do so, the wise and proper course to be adopted is to pass an order under S 146 Cr. P. C. 11 C 361. See 5 C N 900, 14 C N 80.

193. An enquiry under S. 145 Cr. P. C. is an enquiry within the meaning of S. 4 (K.) Cr. P. C.—22 C 898, 13 C N 420.

194. S. 350 applies to proceedings under S. 145.—Where in the course of a proceeding under S. 145 the Magistrate is transferred, his successor is competent to deal with the case under S. 350. 13 C N 420, 22 C 898.

(4) Procedure.

195. Procedure as in summons cases.—Although it is nowhere declared in the Code as to whether the procedure for an enquiry under S. 145 should be that of a summons case or a warrant case, it is clear from the nature of the enquiry that the procedure should be regarded on all points as that prescribed for a summons case. 11 C 762, 21 C 29, 5 Pat W 103. But see—30 C 508, 32 C 1093.

196. Which party is to take the evidence.

197. Quick disposal.—Sub sec. (4) contemplates that on the date originally fixed the Magistrate should take all the evidence that is produced before him and unless he considers it necessary for good reasons to require further evidence should decide then and there if he can, which of the parties is in actual possession [Calcutta H. C. Gen. L. no 3 of 1909 on page 10 Vol. I of General Rules and Circular Orders referred to]. 17 C N 144.

Where however the land in dispute is under attachment a Magistrate should not refuse a reasonable prayer for adjournment. 19 Cr. 799 (C).

198. Magistrate bound to come to a finding as to the date of dispossession with regard to each plot (15) Possession etc. (310).

199. Adherence to the evidence.

- (2) A Magistrate cannot refuse to proceed with the case merely because the parties have neglected to file written statements on the day fixed for the purpose especially when there is some evidence on record.—11 W. R. 9.

- 199A. Magistrate bound to come to a finding as to the date of dispossession with regard to each plot.—(15) Possession and Dispossession (110).

200. Petition of non-prosecution by one of the parties.—Where a party after examining 3 witnesses filed the following petition "I shall not prosecute the case under that (S. 145) section. I shall conduct the case in the Civil Court and I shall not enter upon the land until the matter shall have been settled by the Civil Court. If, that under the circumstances, the Magistrate was justified in making an order in favour of opposite party without taking any evidence." 22 C N 342.

201. Adjournments.—Where the parties have had no reasonable opportunity of filing written statement and to produce evidence in support of the same, an adjournment ought to be granted. 1 Pat W. 55; 39 C 918, 19 Cr. 799 (C); 12 C N 604.

Where the parties apply for time to file written statement it is within the discretion of the Court to grant the application or not. 14 Cr. 302 (C); 14 C N 90, 5 C N 612.

[Where the land is under attachment under sub (1) an adjournment ought to be allowed.—19 Cr. 799 (C).]

202. Magistrate should take recognizance from witnesses present in Court on adjournment. 60 P. L. 1912. See (14) Evidence and witnesses (No 292).

203. Mode of recording evidence.

(1) Evidence should be recorded in extenso.—[19 C N 124] A mere memorandum of the evidence taken is not sufficient. (12 C 381).

(2) Evidence must be recorded even in Ex parte Cases.—6 C N. 925; 8 C N. 642, 12 C N 771, 9 W. R. 64.

For a detailed treatment of the matter see (14) Evidence and witnesses.

(3) Magistrates in cases in which they proceed suo moto are bound to take oral evidence see (14) Evidence and witnesses (222).

(4) Evidence recorded by predecessor see (14) Evidence etc. (226).

204. As to the powers of the Magistrate to recall and re-examine discharged witnesses. See 540 Cr. P. C. [See 12 A. J. 15, also 18 W. R. 64].

205. S. 350 applies to proceedings under S. 145.—(See No 194 above).

206. Proceedings under S. 145 shall not abate by the death of a party.—See Subsec. (7) which follows 2 C L 264 [Subs. (7) has been rendered 21 C 404 obsolete].

207. There is no hard and fast rule of law that a Magistrate is bound to hold a local investigation in every case under S. 145 Cr. P. C. 20 Cr. 17 (C) [12 C N. 596 D].

208. Magistrate bound to hear the arguments of the parties.—A Magistrate's refusal to hear the arguments addressed to him on behalf of the parties vitiates the final order. 11 Cr. 762; 1 Pat W. 214, 5 Pat W. 103.

221—(3) Evidence of title should not be arbitrarily refused.—In a proceeding under S. 115 G. P. C. a Magistrate commits an error in the exercise of jurisdiction in refusing to admit documents of title as they are often of great assistance in arriving at a right conclusion on the question of possession. 10 Cr. 781 (Pat). 22 C N 191 (Per Tennyson J). 21 C 1079.

222—(4) Magistrates in cases in which they proceed suo moto, are bound to take oral evidence.—When the Magistrate acts suo moto, it is most important that he should not be content to rely upon documentary evidence. He is bound to take oral evidence to show that the anterior possession, which the documents prove has continued up to the date of the proceeding. 15 C N 700.

223. Proof of the existence of a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace.—As the very essence of a Magistrate's jurisdiction consists in there being a dispute of the description mentioned in the Subs (1) and which is likely to cause a breach of the peace, the Magistrate is bound to call for and record evidence of such likelihood. If the parties fail to show that there is such a dispute, the Magistrate should hold his hand and proceed no further. 6 C 835. 4 C 550 (R 3 B L 76). 6 P R 1855. See 4 C N 57. 5 C N 900. 20 C 520. 5 W R 11. 9 W R 64. 6 M J 193.

224. Previous act of possession over forest land.—The fact that a party in possession felled timber in the forest land on an occasion immediately before the dispute arose, is relevant. 16 C. 281.

(2) Evidence recorded by another Magistrate etc.

225—(1) A Magistrate can not act on evidence recorded by a Subordinate Magistrate deputed for the purpose.—A Magistrate is bound to record and consider the evidence himself. He cannot delegate the task to a Subordinate Magistrate and base his decision merely on the evidence recorded by the latter. 31 M 82. 3 C L 134. 2 Wen 118. 10 A J 165. 2 Weir 97. See 30 M J 589. 20 Cr 107 (N).

But where the parties do not tender evidence although they are called on to do so, the Magistrate may act thereon (17 C N xxxv). 14 Cr 302(O).

226—(2) Evidence recorded by the Magistrate's predecessor may be acted on. But he should take any additional evidence which may be necessary.

Pro—22 C. 898. 13 C. N. 420. See 10 C N 1095. Con—23 W R 62. 4 M H (Ap) XX. 2 Weir 97.

227—(3) Procedure on receiving a case by transfer.—When a case is transferred under S. 524 Cr P. C., the Magistrate is bound to follow the procedure laid down in S. 350 Cr P. C. 22 C 898; See 2 C J. 614. 10 C N 420. 13 C N 420.

Reports by Police officers etc.

228—(1) Reports of a Zaildar.—A Magistrate must himself enquire into the question whether a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning land etc., and must record a judicial decision thereon. He can not invoke the report of a Zaildar as a basis of his final order. 115 P L 1917.

229—(2) Kanango's report admissible under Sec 157 Evidence Act. Sec 148 Cr. P. C. is an enabling section and the deputation of a Kanango to make an enquiry under that section is not bad. If the Kanango is examined, his report will be admissible under S. 157 of the Evidence Act. 12 Cr. 400(O).

230. Admission before police.—An order cannot be based upon the mere fact that at the police report showed that the second party had admitted possession of the first party. 6 M T 91.

(3) Evidence recorded by the Magistrate in another proceeding.

231.—A Magistrate ought not to refer to other proceedings before him in coming to a decision under S. 145.—17 Cr. 117(M).

(4) Right of the Parties to adduce evidence.

232. A Magistrate is bound to give the parties to the proceedings an opportunity of adducing evidence in support of their claim. He cannot refuse to do so on the ground that the evidence even if taken can not be relied on.

21 C. N. 928; 28 C. 416; 31 C. 685. 34 C 840. 35 C 774. 4 C N. 779; 2 C J. 246; 29 M. 561. 1 Pat W 214; 23 P R. 1902; 7 P R 1907. 17 B R 382. 18 Cr 296(A); 20 Cr. 107(N). 20 C. 110(N). 20 Cr. 117(N).

233.—A Magistrate bound to record evidence.—A Magistrate taking action under S. 145 is bound to record all the evidence produced by a party to the proceedings. An order passed without recording such evidence is without jurisdiction.

31 C. 840. 31 C. 685; 4 C. N. 779. 17 C. N. 144. 21 C N. 928; 2 C J. 246. 9 W R. 64. 29 M 561. 15 M J 535. 6 M. H. (ap) 4. 17 Cr 217(M). 11 A. J. 586. 11 Cr 17(A). 7 P R. 1907. 4 P R 1916; 22 P. R. 1916.

234. Magistrate's discretion in examining witnesses. A Magistrate acting under the section is not bound to examine all the witnesses in attendance, but may limit the number for good and sufficient reasons. 3 C J. 478. 16 C. 513; 26 C 625. 32 C 1093. 24 A 315; 1 Pat J 336 (F.B.). But see 31 C 685. 34 C 840. 17 Cr 217 (M).

But he should always be chary of taking on himself the duty of deciding on behalf of the parties which witnesses should be examined.—23 M J. 134.

(5) Is the Magistrate bound to assist the parties to produce witnesses by summoning them?

235.—This point is by no means free from doubt. A direct negative is given in 32 C 1093 [Fd in 33 C 24 and 11 Cr 530 (C); 17 M. T. 225]. In 18 C N 94 on the other hand an order refusing to summon an important witness was held to be illegal. In

17 C N, 144 it has been held that "Even if the Magistrate goes out of his way to issue process for the attendance of witnesses after the date on which the case should have been disposed of, he is not bound to exhaust the processes of the Court in order to enforce the attendance of such witnesses as do not appear."

But in 21 C. 29 the Magistrate is held to be bound to summon such witnesses as the parties desire to call "unless he shows good reasons to the contrary." In 32 C 508 [See also 32 C 508 Foot-note] a via media is struck between the two extreme points of view. A refusal to summon witnesses would be a fatal irregularity amounting to a denial of justice when it is shown that the parties have been deprived thereby of a hearing on the question of possession, and an application ought not to be rejected simply because a large number of witnesses are mentioned therein [11 C 762]

(6) Who may adduce evidence.

236. Persons not actually involved in dispute when made parties have a right to adduce evidence in support of their claim and to have such evidence considered—20 C 520

237. Any person interested in the dispute properly though not a party to the proceedings may offer evidence to show that no dispute exists and a Magistrate is bound to receive such evidence. See C1 (5) 29 M 561 1 Pat W 373 See 24 W. II, 40

[In 1 Pat W 373—A third party was allowed to appear and adduce evidence even after an order under S 145 Cr P C had been passed]

(7) Sufficiency of Evidence.

238. Although the High Court will not ordinarily interfere merely because it differs from the Magistrate.

See 6 M. T 91 (order based on police report containing a so-called admission by one of the parties) Orders based on mere written statement of one of the parties [See—8 C N 612, 12 C N 771, 14 C N cxxii] or on the result of a local enquiry [10 C N 18] or on the materials contained in the petition by an officer employed by one of the parties [29 M 561] See [20] Reference etc (152)

(8) As to mode of recording evidence.

See—13 Enquiry (No 204)

(9) Magistrate's obligation to take legal evidence.

239. A Magistrate is bound to take evidence in a case under S 145 Cr P C. An order without taking any evidence whatever is an order made without jurisdiction. 16 C 1074, 31 C 810, 31 C. 685, 30 C 918, 4 C N 779, 5 C N 711,

6 C N 925, 8 C N 612, 10 C N 181, 12 C N, 771, 17 C N 144, 9 W R 64, 16 W R 13, 17 M J 535, 17 B R 382, 20 C 107 (N), 20 Cr. 110 (N), 20 Cr 117 (N)

240. After local enquiry.

(1) A Magistrate cannot base his order on the result of a local enquiry by himself without recording any evidence. 4 C N 779, 10 C N, 181, 16 W R 13, 16 C 1056, 21 Cr 46 (M).

241. Where a recent Civil Court decree is produced.

(2) A Magistrate acts improperly in refusing to receive the oral evidence offered by a party to disprove possession on the basis of a decree claimed by his opponent. 8 C N 719. See (16) Civil Court (332)

242. Ex parte cases.

(3) A Magistrate is bound to take evidence even in ex parte cases. 8 C N 612, 6 O N 925, 12 C N 771, 9 W R 64

243. Exception

Procedure on admission by a party.

(4) A Magistrate is not bound to take evidence when the person against whom the order is made has admitted the possession of his opponent. 9 M. T 91. See (14) M N 795, 7 C N 351

But the admission must be clear and unequivocal [30 C 918]. An admission by a party's legal practitioner is sufficient for the purpose [7 O N, 351]. But an admission contained in a letter addressed to the Magistrate is not sufficient for quashing the proceedings [13 C N 125]. Nor does a police report showing that one party had admitted the possession of the other justify a summary finding without taking any evidence. [6 M T 91]

(5) Where a party qua bringing civil suit has admitted the possession of the other party. See (15) Possession and Dispossession (114)

(10) Documentary Evidence as proof of possession.

244. General Principles. As documents of title are often of great assistance in arriving at a right conclusion upon the question of possession a Magistrate commits an error in the exercise of his jurisdiction in refusing to admit documents of title. 10 C 764 (Pat.) See 21 C N 910

(11) Witnesses.

258. A witness is not bound by the final order in the case. 18 M 51

259. Statement of a witness as basis of the preliminary order. To impute a proceeding under the section it is not sufficient that it should appear from the statement of a witness examined in the course of a trial that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning certain lands—20 C 720
260. Witness not called by any party Order based on the evidence of witness not called by party is illegal—8 C N 719 1 P R 1916
261. Refusal to examine witnesses tendered by party is allowed. If a Magistrate refuses to examine, except on the ground of vexatious delay, the witness tendered by the parties, he fails to exercise jurisdiction vested in him by law and the High Court will be justified in interfering in exercise—17 Cr 217 (M) See 29 M 561 31 C 685 16 Cr 249 (M) 26 M J 28 31 C 840
262. Duty of Magistrate to take cognizance from witnesses on adjournment. Where the Magistrate is able to record the evidence of the witness produced by the party, on the adjourned date it is his duty to direct the witnesses in attendance to appear in the adjourned hearing. The parties should not be required to repeatedly summon the witnesses on payment of fresh process—60 P L 1912

267. Disturbed possession.—Possession means undisturbed possession and implies that the struggle for it has ceased. If the struggle be still going on, an order of attachment under S 146 should be made.—Per Chatterji J 5 P R 1897 22 C 227

(2A) Limited or interrupted possession.—

Possession of a portion of disputed property

- 268 (1) Possession in only one portion of a large area in dispute is not sufficient—23 W R 15
- 269 (2) Where A is in K his possession of a large area in forest land, the mere cutting of a few trees by B in a small portion of the area is not possession under S 115 C. P. C 32 C 287. See—L 13 A C 793 (799)

270. Possession for a limited period only. Possession to be determined is absolute continuous possession. Right of possession for one day the year or any such limited period is in the nature of an easement, and is not possession properly called—17 C N 205 See 22 W. R 15

271. Possession which can be exercised certain periods only. Possession to be determined must depend on the nature of the property. Where the possession can be exercised only certain periods during the year, the party who had undisturbed possession on the occasion immediately preceding the date of initiation of proceedings should be confirmed in his possession—16 C 241.

[Note The mere fact that the Magistrate does not in his finding about possession refer to the date of the preliminary order would not be a material irregularity if the parties are contending for possession not only on the date of order, but some time previous, and also subsequent to it.—5 L. W. 465.]

286. Possession at the time of a previous proceeding. A Magistrate cannot treat a subsequent proceeding as a continuation of a previous one and determine possession with reference to the date of the earlier proceeding.

1 C. N. 430 (303).

286A. Where possession has been interrupted by an order of injunction under S. 144. See (10) Dispossession (No. 307) Post 287. Possession subsequent to the proceeding. Possession obtained subsequently to the institution of the proceeding is of no avail.

27 C 253 12 C 549 15 C 527.

288. Possession 3 months anterior to proceeding admitted. The payment of rent by the tenants in possession to the opposite party, 3 months anterior to the date of preliminary order was admitted.—Held that possession 3 months ago was no evidence of possession at the date of the proceeding.

16 C 513 See 16 C 239 (N)

289. Change of law. In 4 C 417 (1878)—it was held that the Magistrate is to go back to the time when the dispute originated. In C. L. 136 a similar proposition is laid down. In 15 B 152 (1890), the time was fixed to be the time when the Magistrate decides the question of possession. In 2 Weir 98 ('at the time of the enquiry') These are now obsolete. Under the 1872 Code the date with reference to which the possession was to be determined was the date of the institution of the proceedings and not the date of the preliminary order. See 11 C 365 12 C 521 12 C 539 20 W. R. 51 24 W. R. 73 13 A 362. 18 M. 41 15 M. 513

290. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to the exact point of time to which an enquiry under S. 145 must be directed. The Magistrate must decide the time at which possession of the disputing parties should be taken into consideration, according to the facts of each case. [1894]

[N.B.—This ruling must be held at a discount in view of subs (4).]

(7) Possession not recognised in S. 145 proceedings.

297. (7) Possession of the manager of a coal company.—21 C. 915; 25 C. 423.

298. (8) Possession obtained under a decree for foreclosure as against a person not a party to the suit.—1 C. J. 562. See 31 M. 116

299. (9) Possession obtained by trespass in the face of a prohibitory order.—5 M. T. 291

(8) Possession which is recognised in S. 145 proceedings.

300. (1) Possession of a lambardar. Where it appeared that none of the parties were in actual possession, but one of them was lambardar of the villages (collecting rents and paying revenue) Held—that the latter was in possession within the meaning of S. 145.—(40) A. N. 178

301. (2) Possession of a Receiver. The possession of the Receiver may for the purposes of S. 145 be regarded as possession, on behalf of the party who should ultimately be found by the Magistrate to be in possession.—10 M. T. 573.

302. (3) Possession by receipt of rent. Receipt of rent up to date of dispute is evidence of possession although the tenant may have attorned to the opposite party after the date of the dispute. 15 C 527.

(9) Powers of the Magistrate.

303. Magistrate cannot determine the method or agency by which possession is to be exercised by the parties 36 C. 950 See (17) Final order (371).

304. Magistrate may maintain possession of both parties. Magistrate may maintain possession of both the parties. A Magistrate can maintain both the parties in possession, if he finds that one party has possession of a definite portion of the disputed property, and the other is in possession of the rest. 11 C. N. 743. 5 C. N. 70 2 Weir 108, 7 C. N. 462. Contra 22 C 297.

(10) Dispossession.

305. Wrongful dispossession within subs. (4). Where more than two months have elapsed from the date of death of the last person in possession, there is no force to dispossess him within 2 months as defined in S. 145—17 M. T. 225

306. Presumption in subs. (4) not exhaustive. The jurisdiction of a Magistrate to initiate proceedings under S. 145 is not determined by the date of dispossession of one of the parties claiming the land. Forcible dispossession within two months previous to the date of the preliminary order constitutes only one of the many possible circumstances under which presumption may be made in favour of the party dispossessed. The Magistrate's discretion is not confined to this circumstance alone.—11 A. J. 305
307. Dispossession as a result of an order of injunction under S. 144 Cr. P. C. Where owing to an order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. prohibiting the parties from exercising acts of possession, they are unable to show possession within the period mentioned in subs. (1) the Magistrate may find possession as it obtained immediately before his intervention [27 C. 785 See 10 M. T. 571]. But where the 2nd party took possession and the 1st party were dispossessed on the 5th April, and on the 8th April an order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. was passed by the S. D. O. prohibiting the 1st party from entering upon the land and on the 23rd June the preliminary order under subs. (1) was made. Held—that the 1st party could not be said to have been forcibly and wrongfully dispossessed within the meaning of subs. (4) and in any case the dispossession having taken place 2 months and 15 days before the order under subs. (1) the case did not fall within the first proviso to subs. (4) [18 C. 301 (C)]. But where the prohibitory order was passed against landlords only in a proceeding under S. 144 Cr. P. C. to which the tenants were not parties, a subsequent finding in a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. that the landlords were in possession through their tenants at a date when the prohibitory order was still in force was held not to be bad in law—36 C. 370.
308. What may amount to wrongful dispossession. Where within 2 months from the commencement of the proceeding, the 1st party obtained sanction from the municipality and proceeded to dig a tank on the land in dispute to the exclusion of the party who was then found to be in possession. Held—that this amounted to wrongful and forcible dispossession within the meaning of S. 145 (1) Cr. P. C.—20 C. N. 978
309. Complainant's admission that he has been more than 2 months out of possession will not prevent the Magistrate initiating the proceeding
19 Cr. 444 (N)
310. Magistrate bound to come to a finding as to the date of dispossession with regard to each plot. The date of forcible dispossession must be determined, and unless there is a finding that it occurred in the case of all the fields at the same time, the Magistrate is bound to find the date of such dispossession with regard to each field separately. 40 P. R. 1917

(11) Magistrate's option to attach the disputed property.

311. A Magistrate has an option to proceed under S. 146. It cannot be said that he is bound to come in any circumstances to a finding about possession. 14 C. 361 5 C. N. 900
312. Procedure when Magistrate finds possession on his with a person who does not claim to be in possession. Where the dispute was about a property of which the first party claimed to be in possession by virtue of an usufructuary mortgage and the second party by virtue of a deed of gift executed by the proprietress and the Magistrate found that neither party was in possession but the possession lay with the proprietress who was not a contending party so far as the property in question was concerned; [having supported the mortgagee] he had no authority to declare the proprietress to be in possession but the proper course for him was to attach the property under Sec. 146 Cr. P. C. 20 Cr. 215 (Pat.). See 22 C. 297 14 C. 361
- When possession of one party is admitted
313. Magistrate has no jurisdiction to proceed under S. 145. He may proceed under S. 107 against the party admittedly out of possession—11 A. J. 305.
314. Where one of the parties has, by bringing a Civil suit for possession against the other, admitted the other party to be in possession, the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to proceed under S. 145. He may if necessary proceed under S. 107 Cr. P. C. or S. 144 Cr. P. C. 7 C. N. 555 See however 36 C. 670 (11) M. N. 96 (1)

(12) Possession declared under subs. (6) entitles the successful party to a right of private defence of property.

315. He cannot be convicted of rioting. A Magistrate is bound to protect the party in possession. 10 W. R. 64.

338. For Recent Possession found by a Revenue Court. See (25) Misc (512)

(6) Effect of pendency of Civil Proceedings.

339. Proceedings not to be taken during pendency of Civil Suit. If one of the parties by bringing a suit for the recovery of possession, obtains the possession of the other party, a Magistrate should not proceed under S. 145, but, if necessary, under S 107 and S 141 7 C N 558 But see 30 C 370 (below)
340. Pendency of a partition-suit Where the Civil Court in which a suit for partition is pending, had declared certain properties to be joint, and ordered partition to be effected, a Criminal Court is precluded from taking proceedings under S 145 in respect of such properties as the properties have been declared to be in joint possession. See 8 C N 483; 23 P R 1902 (See however S I C 423 [L. B.]) For orders by Revenue Courts which the Magistrate ought to respect, See (27) Miscellaneous (512 to 517)

(7) Civil Court's jurisdiction under S. 9 Specific Relief Act, is not ousted by order in S. 145 proceedings.

341. (1) Civil Court may entertain a suit under S 9 of the Specific Relief Act in spite of a pending proceeding under S 145 Cr P C 30 A 331 But See 7 C J 547 20 W. R 12 43 I. C 153

XVII. FINAL ORDER.

(1) Nature of the order made under Cl. (6).

350. (1) The order decides no question of title—It merely maintains the successful party in possession who can be evicted only by a suit by a person who is able to establish a better right to possession. 23 I A 187 (P.C.) See 25 B 179 30 C 112
- (2) It is not the province of the Magistrate to give the title to the property. The Magistrate cannot terminate possession declared under S (6) by his own order. It can be determined only by due course of law 1 C L 136

342. (2) The power of a Civil Court to appoint a Receiver is no way affected by an order of a Magistrate under S. 145 Cr. P. C. 22 A. 214

343. Civil Court may issue an injunction against the Magistrate's order.

regarding the subject-matter of the suit, the civil court has jurisdiction to issue an order of injunction which would have the effect of staying such proceedings 21 C 206 (C)

(8) Limitation of Civil Suits.

344. (1) A Civil suit to recover property affected by an order under S. 145 Cr P C must be brought within 3 years from the date of the order under cl (6) Art 47 Limitation Act See 23 C 731 19 C 616 6 C L 91 9 M T 91
345. Note—The period will be computed from the date of the final order, and not from the date on which the High Court Rule was determined [12 C N 840 6 C 709] nor from the date of attachment [28 C 656]
346. (2) The limitation will apply even when the order is illegal 38 M 432 But see 9 M T 91
347. (3) The limitation applies to suits by the unsuccessful party [6 C L 24] but not to the successful party [10 W R 24], nor to suits for partition [5 B 25]
348. (4) Art 47 of the Limitation Act governs suits for recovering property under S 145 Cr P. C. even when the plaintiff was not a party to the proceedings (if he had notice of the proceedings) See 19 C 646
349. (5) Where a party to the proceedings filed a petition praying that he might be allowed to withdraw from the proceedings and the Magistrate thereupon recorded an order declaring the other party to be in possession, Held—that a suit brought more than three years after the date of the Magistrate's order was barred, under Art 47 Lim Act 22 C N 312 See 9 M T 91

351. Order tentative pending determination by Civil Court—The order is valid only until the person to whose favour the possession is declared, is ousted by due course of law [i. e. until the actual right of one of the parties has been determined by any competent Court] 2 C L 62; 26 C 625 29 C 208 35 C 795 17 W R 3.

352. In case of settlement of property, the order of the Magistrate is not binding on the Civil Court.

(2) Orders which may be made.

353. The order is a judicial order which must be based on evidence placed on the record.—See 17 B R 352 20 Cr. 644 (C)

354. Order can only be made in favour of a party to the proceeding.—[See Note No. 315.]

(3) Order cannot be made when.

355. It cannot be made on a mere consideration of the written statement. See (9) Written statement (No. 180)

356. It cannot be based on a Police report alleging that one of the parties had admitted possession of the other party. G M T 91.

357. It cannot be passed on the result of a local enquiry by the Magistrate himself. 10 C N. 181; 3 C. L. 134. See also 4 C N 779; 16 W. R. 13

358. Or on the statement of a witness not cited by either party. 8 C N 719

359. An order made without taking any evidence is illegal.—See (14) Evidence and witnesses (No. 239) See also Nos. 225 to 231.

(3A) The effect of the order.

[Note.—But an order may be based on admission alone when it is clear and unambiguous. See 7 C N. 351. J M T. 91.

360. Order though erroneous is binding till reversed by a competent Court. 81 A. 123; 11 I. A. 37. See 29 C 187 (P. C.)

361. The effect of the order is to entitle the successful party to take possession. See 7 C J. 547

(4) Orders in the nature of execution are beyond the scope of the Section.

362. Note.—A Magistrate cannot however oust a person and place another person in possession under the Section. 37 A. 654; 27 A. 300; 11 C. 365; 3 N P. 172; 22 C. 237.] There is no specific provision in the Code authorising a Magistrate to take proceedings corresponding to execution proceedings of the Civil Courts. 14 C. If he is resisted, the persons resisting are liable to prosecution under Sec. 188 I P. C. [See 14 C. N. 78; 13 C. N. 175] This is the only way, albeit round-about, of enforcing the order. The Magistrate cannot restore the party wrongfully dispossessed within the meaning of Sec. 188.

the instance of the unsuccessful party. The proper course for the Magistrate in such a case is to take proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C. against the unsuccessful party.—Per Mullik J. [1 Pat. W. 612]

A Magistrate should not supplement his order by binding down under S. 107 Cr. P. C. the unsuccessful party. 17 Cr. 527 (A). But See 1 Pat. W. 612 [11 C. 365].

(5) The order is merely declaratory. The Magistrate cannot order specific acts to be performed by way of consequential relief. [See 27 A. 300; 17 C. N. 295]

The following orders have therefore been held to be illegal:—

364. Order directing that two pathways in the disputed land should remain intact and the party found to be in possession of it should remain in possession of the "remainder of the disputed plot" 17 C. N. 793

393. The order should embody a clear finding as to who was in possession at the date of the preliminary order under Sub. (1) 9 Cr. 505 (M). 16 Cr 239 (M)

394. The final order should be in the form prescribed in form no 22 (Sch. V)—See 14 C N 78—But printed form is deprecated [ibid] The forms in the Schedule are not obligatory Richardson J. [22 C N 312] A Magistrate cannot "bind down" a party under clause (b) S 145—30 C. 443

395. Should specify the boundaries of the land in dispute.—4 C. N. xviii.

396. Property to be specified by metes and bounds—A final order under S 145 must specify by metes and bounds the exact portion of the disputed property of which the successful party is entitled to possession.—2 Weir 107.

397. The Section under which the order is made should not be left for speculation by a Court of revision.—18 Cr 295 (M)

398. Order must be in terms of sub-sec (6).—27 A 300. 17 C N 205. Any direction as to delivery of possession is illegal.—14 C N 78

400. Where the disputed land has been surveyed and measured—and found not to include certain plots alleged to be included by one of the parties, a Magistrate acts without legal authority in passing an order under sec. 145 in respect of those plots.—17 Cr 246 (Pat)

401. The Magistrate should sign his name in full in a judicial order under S. 145 and, should also note his official position.—12 C N. 771

402. An order, addressed to persons who were not parties to the proceedings is illegal 2 Weir 126.

(12) Order partly under Sec 145 and partly under Sec. 146, Cr. P. C.

403. The subject matter referred to in Sec. 145 and 146 may be read as referring to the whole or to any component part or parts thereof. If that component part is distinct and separate from the rest, it cannot be rightly held that because the Magistrate cannot find possession of one of the component parts with either party, he is bound to attach the whole. An order partly under S 145 and partly under S 146 is not under the circumstances without jurisdiction [3 C N. 710]. In the case of a palkar extending over 6 miles it was held that even "if on the evidence the Magistrate was unable to satisfy himself as to the possession of the whole of the six miles in question, that did not relieve him from the duty of proceeding further and ascertaining in so far as he could, the possession of some portion or portions thereof. As to the portion of which he was able to say 'so and so is in possession' he should have proceeded under S 145 Cr P C and only as to the remainder should he have proceeded under S 146 Cr. P. C—20 Cr 17 (C)
404. Procedure when Magistrate fails to find possession.—An order under Sec. 149 can only be made when the Magistrate is unable to decide which party is in possession. Where it is possible for him to do so, an attachment will amount to a refusal to exercise jurisdiction. It is not sufficient that it is "very difficult" for him to come to a decision, it must be "impossible" for him to do so—20 Cr 17 (C). The order will be valid only if made after considering the evidence fairly and judicially [23 C N 910].
405. In a proceeding under S 145 Cr P C the parties appeared on the day of hearing but did not file any written statements or produce any evidence. They prayed for time which the Magistrate did not grant. He then heard the parties and being unable to satisfy himself as to which of them was in possession attached the subject of dispute under S 146 Cr P C. Held that the Magistrate ought to have granted time to allow regular proceedings to be followed, or he might have informed himself of the facts of the case either by local enquiry or in other ways. As he did neither, his order was bad in law. C. N. 846 (Fid. in 10 C. N. 1052) Central 180; 11 Cr. 90 (C)

(13) Final order will not necessarily justify a prosecution for trespass

406. (1) Where the party prohibited from acts of possession on the disputed land is to be on the date of alleged trespass possession, a conviction for criminal cannot be sustained—8 M. T. 289. See 64

In S 8 207 it has been held that where the proceedings are in intention, in form and in fact, proceedings under S 145 and the order is passed by a Magistrate duly empowered to act under S 145, the Judicial Commissioners Court can not interfere.

- 417C Central Provinces—"It is settled law that the Court (Judicial Commissioners) can interfere when the Subordinate Court has acted without jurisdiction"—g—when it has passed an order without giving a party an opportunity of adducing evidence [20 Cr 107 (N); 20 Cr 110 (N)].

The principle is that when an order is passed without jurisdiction it is really not an order under Chapter XII hence S 435(1) does not apply. [20 Cr 117(N)] 20 Cr 124 (N). 20 Cr 176 (N); 20 Cr 445 (N) 20 Cr 775 (N); 20 Cr. 810 (N); 17 O P 133 must be regarded as overruled.

- 417D Oudh—The Judicial Commissioners have in the recent cases steadily veered to the view that they have no power to set aside in revisions orders purporting to be made under Chapter XII. [See Pro—18 O C 60 12 O C 400; 1 O C. 80—Con 5 O C 1] In 19 O C 136 however it has been held "when the proceedings are absolutely without jurisdiction—viz—(1) Where the Magistrate is not empowered to act under the Section or (2) when there was no information that a dispute existed likely to cause a breach of the peace, concerning any land etc the Court will have power to interfere."

- 417E Upper Burma—When proceedings are only in name and not in fact proceedings under S. 145, S 435(1) is no bar to interference. [3 U. B. 33; 3 U. B. 35]

(7) High Courts have interfered with proceedings under S 145 on the following grounds:

418. Disregard of Civil Court decrees. 29 O 208. 26 C. 625 5 C N. 673; 2 A. J 274; 6 B R 246 23 P R 1902 But See 33 C. 33 See (16) Civil Court. (290 302)

(9) Powers of the High Court in revision.

442. Can the High Court consider the whole evidence in revision?—(1) The preponderance of opinion is on the side of a direct negative. [See 33 C 64 (F.B.); 15 W. R. 34, (14) M. N. 735; 41 C. 876; 36 M. 275; 17 Cr. 349 (M); 1 Pat. J. 336 (F.B.); 39 A. 612; 42 A. 361 See also A. J. 10-39 A. 41; 25 R. 178]

443. (2) Sufficiency of evidence.—In criminal revision proceedings re-orders under S. 115, the High Court will see whether there is evidence on which the Magistrate could come to the conclusion he has arrived at, and not whether that evidence is sufficient or insufficient.—14 C. 161 See 22 C. 918 (1001) 19 C. N. 121; 18 Cr. 301 (C) C. 22 C. N. 493 (Per Chitty J.).

444. (3) Rejection of material evidence is a ground for interference.—19 Cr. 529 (Pat). 22 C. N. 493 (Per Trunton J.)

Notes. [In this view it must be held that the decision to the contrary in 14 C. 361; 22 C. 297 is obsolete].

445. Alteration and variation of the order.—In the case reported in 14 C. 361 the High Court substituted an order under S. 146 for one under S. 145 Cr. P. C. The High Court has power not only to set aside an order but has also the power itself to pass the proper order upon the facts proved at the enquiry.—22 C. 297; 20 C. N. 1014.

446. Order partly bad and partly good.—The High Court may set aside the portion of the order which is bad in law and maintain the portion which is good.—2 Pat. J. 637.

447. Remand.—In (01) A. N. 154 the High Court remanded the case for enquiry as required by Subs. (5) and (6) of S. 145 Cr. P. C. Where a Magistrate passed an order under the section without taking evidence, the High Court directed that the case be tried according to law [5 C. N. 71.] Where the enquiry was confined to 172 bighas but the Magistrate made a declaration in respect of 237 bighas originally in dispute, the High Court remanded the case for rectification of the error, [18 Cr. 995 (C)] See also 23 C. N. 910

448. Subs. (7) does not apply to proceedings in revision.—Where the respondent against whom an order was passed died after presenting the Charter allowed to R. 1919. See 6 P. R. 1893.

449. Order for costs.—The High Court cannot make an order for costs in revision [O S 227] nor interfere with an award of costs by the Magistrate. 17 Cr. 348 (Pat); 9 C. N. 887.

450. Further enquiry.—S. 437 has no application to proceedings under Chapter XII [See 20 C. 729] The High Court has no power to direct initiation or revival of proceedings [See (4) Proceeding (No. 8492)] See 30 C. 112; 35 C. 117 3 C. N. 297-23 W. R. 54

Magistrate's finding as to possession whether right or wrong cannot be questioned in revision by the High Court—12 O. C. 400.

451. Where there is no final order under subs (6) High Court will not interfere.—In a proceeding under Sec 145 the Magistrate did not issue any order as required by Subs. (6) but merely said "I refrain from taking proceedings either under S. 145 or 107 Cr. P. C."

(10) Reference.

452. Proceedings under Chapter XII are not proceedings with which a Sessions Judge has any power of revision or reference. There is no provision of law which gives the Sessions Judge the power to call for the record in such proceedings [28 C. 416: See also 4 C. N. 779.] In 14 A. J. 146 the High Court held that the Sessions Judge had no power to refer a case under S. 145 but the reference having been made was accepted [See also 20 A. 144 15 W. R. 1] The ruling in 5 C. N. 71 that Sessions Judges should refer cases in which they find that the Magistrate's proceedings are ultra vires under S. 438 Cr. P. C., is the solitary instance in which the power to refer is recognised.

459. Omission to state the necessary grounds in the initial order. The omission to state the grounds (on which the Magistrate has satisfied himself as to the existence of a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace) does not amount to an illegality which vitiates the whole proceedings, but such omission is an irregularity for which the High Court may set aside the proceedings if it is shown that it has operated to the prejudice of any of the parties 33 C 152 (F. B.) 7 C N 594 See (8) Proceeding (No. 91)
 460. Omission to serve notice prescribed by Cl. 3 is not an illegality which deprives the Magistrate of his jurisdiction and will not be regarded as material unless it is shown that some one interested has been materially prejudiced by it 33 C 63 (F. B.) See (9) Service of Proceeding (117).

XXI. ALLIED SECTIONS.

469. (1) Ss. 107 and 145 Cr. P. C.—The mere fact that there is a dispute concerning land, which is likely to cause a breach of the peace does not deprive a Magistrate of jurisdiction to act under S 107 Cr P C [39 C 150 (F. B.) See 7 C N. 746. 6 C 835 7 M 460. 34 A 143 5 N 94

Note.—But where the party trying to oust the other has a bonafide claim to the property, the Magistrate should proceed under S 145 and not 107 Cr. P. C 5 C. J. 147 See 3 C. N 297.

471. Where a suit is pending between parties.—Where the Magistrate, owing to being a joint title of the disputants, is to hold that one of them is in possession exclusion of the other and a suit is between the parties in the Civil Court Civil Court has passed orders for the continuing management of the property pending Magistrate should take action under S P. C. not S. 115. 36 A 19; 27 C. 918. 1 C. J. 632.
 472. But when one of the parties claims exclusive possession, while the other claims joint possession, the proper proceeding to proceed under S 145 and not 107 C. J. 632.

473. ... to cause ... if ... equal ... regard to sandal wood ... 1 f ... idol], a Magistrate should proceed under Cr. P. C. and not S 145—4 B. R. 433

474. When a competent Court has given a decision on the rights of the parties, the Magistrate should proceed under S 107 Cr. P. C. and not under Chapter XII. 6 C 835; 21 W. R. 17; 16 W. R. 24; Pat 422; But see 27 C 33.

475. Parties exercising right of private defence of property.—Where the parties opposing the performance of lastu paga on a waste land are found to be acting properly and within their rights, and a Magistrate finds that a breach of the peace is likely, he ought to institute proceedings under S. 145 Cr. P. C. and not to proceed under S 107 Cr. P. C.—3 C N 463.

476. Bonafide dispute.—When there is a bonafide as to the right to the possession of land giving rise to likelihood of a breach of the peace it is unfair to bind down the only party who happens to be in possession. The proper course will be either to bind down both the parties or take action under S. 145 12 C. N. 606 See 36 A 11—Central S 207.

477. Proceedings taken under S. 107 Cr. P. C. does not preclude action under S. 145 Cr. P. C.—There is nothing either in S 107 or S 145 leading to the conclusion that proceedings taken under S 107 preclude a Magistrate from taking action under S 145 Cr. P. C. [9 A. J. 961 See 20 C. N. 169] But whether after proceeding under S 107 Cr. P. C. it will be proper for the Magistrate to act, under S. 145 of the said Code, depends on the circumstances of each case [39 C. 150 (F. B.) See 36 M. 315 2 Weir 50]

478. It cannot be laid down as a general rule, that simply because members of one party have been bound down under S 107, no order of attachment can be made under S 145 Cr. P. C.—39 C 469

(2) Ss. 144 and 145 Cr. P. C.

482. Where there is a dispute regarding land and there is a bonafide dispute regarding actual possession action should be taken under S. 145 Cr. P. C. and not under S. 144. Cr. P. C. [11 C. N. 271; 27 C. 918, 3 U. B. 17] A Court acts illegally if it resorts to S. 144 Cr. P. C. in order to avoid the labour of taking oral evidence under S. 145 Cr. P. C. [3 Pat. J 243]

483. S. 144 should be preferred to S. 145 when the dispute is not a bonafide one.—The use of S 144 Cr. P. C. in suitable method of avoiding a breach of the peace if it is clear upon reading the police report that the claim of party creating the disturbance is not a claim made in good faith—25 A. 537 28 A 406 See 39 C. 150 (F. 484. S. 144 instead of S. 145 should be resorted to, when prompt action is necessary.—Where the procedure in S 145 (1) viz attachment in the case of emergency will not give the necessary relief in a case where—e.g.—unless crops are promptly reaped they would be ruined, action ought to be taken under S 144 if one of the parties is found to be in possession—3 U B 17 26 M 471 32 C 966 See 27 C 918 19 Cr 1002 (Pat) But See 27 C 785

XXIII. JURISDICTION.

(1) Meaning of the word "Jurisdiction".

2. The term jurisdiction may be defined to be the power of a Court to hear and determine a cause, to adjudicate or exercise any judicial power in relation to it. Such jurisdiction naturally divides itself into three broad heads—namely, with reference to (1) the subject-matter of the dispute (2) the parties (3) the particular question which calls for decision. 5 C J 611.

99 Jurisdiction depends on there being a likelihood of a breach of the peace. See (6) Likelihood (88)

The subject-matter of the dispute.

10. As to the properties which come and do not come within the purview of the section.—See (7) Dispute 47, 49 to 51.

(2) Local Jurisdiction.

12. General Rule.—Under S 145 Cr P C a Magistrate has jurisdiction to institute proceedings only in respect of property situate within the local limits of his jurisdiction.—17 W R 33 1 C J 329 29 C 885.

13. Cases.

(1) Property partly within and partly outside local limits.—Where a Magistrate has passed a final order in respect of a property a part of which lies outside the local limits of his jurisdiction, the portion of the order relating to that part will be without jurisdiction.—1 C J 329

(2) Report of a police officer of another District.—A Magistrate may act on the report of a police officer of another district in respect of that part of the property in dispute which is within the local limits.—29 C 885.

(3) Exceptions to the rule.

514. (1) Proceedings of a Magistrate not having local jurisdiction will not be void, when the case was initiated by a Magistrate exercising local jurisdiction before being transferred to his file.—5 C N 686

515. (2) Situation uncertain.—Where the situation of the property is uncertain—i.e., it is doubtful in which of the two areas it is situate, a Magistrate exercising jurisdiction over any one of such areas is competent to act.—12 O C 400

516. (3) Char-lands.—Where a Char was situate in a river forming the boundary between two Districts and a Magistrate of the First Class in one of the Districts took action, under S 145 Cr P C and found after taking evidence, and local inspection that the Char really formed a part of his District, the Magistrate of the other District was not competent to take action on the allegation.

Parties to the proceeding.

517. Proceedings are not without jurisdiction:

(a) because some of the parties are concerned only with possession of portions of the land in dispute. 30 C 155 (F.B.)

18. (b) because some persons claiming to have possession in some way, of the lands or of a portion of the land in dispute, has not been made a party (when such person is not concerned in the actual dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace) 30 C 155 (F.B.) See (10) Parties to Proceedings (111)

519. Third parties.—A Magistrate cannot declare possession of a third party See (17) Final order (383)

520. The particular question which calls for decision. See (15) Possession and Disposition (236 237)

(4) Excess of jurisdiction.

521. The distinction should not be neglected between things done wholly without jurisdiction and things done within jurisdiction though erroneously done [Per Baron Parker in 2 M L A 293] Before want of jurisdiction can be predicated, a vice must clearly be established which infects the whole proceedings. There must be an illegality as opposed to an error.

(5) Refusal to exercise jurisdiction.

529. Meaning—Any violation of the law which deprives a party to the proceedings from placing the necessary materials before the Court enabling it to arrive at a correct conclusion on two vital points—viz. (1) apprehension of a breach of the peace (2) possession at the date of the preliminary order, would amount to a refusal to exercise jurisdiction by the Magistrate—17 Cr. 217 (M).

- (5) Costs and other matters

1. OBJECT SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) S. 146 Corollary to S. 145.

- 1 S. 146 Cr P C is a sort of corollary to S. 145 and the legality of an order under it depends on its having been preceded by legal proceedings under S. 145 Cr P C and on the holding of an enquiry as to the fact of possession under S. 145 (1) ending in the Magistrate's finding either that none of the contending parties was in possession at the date of the preliminary order or that it was not possible for him to satisfy himself as to which party was in possession on that date 40 C. 165-34 C. 840-14 C. (2) Condition precedent to jurisdiction.

2. It is only, when, after making a full enquiry into the factum of actual possession the Magistrate finds that it is not possible for him to find who is in possession of the subject-matter of dispute, that he has jurisdiction to proceed under S. 146 Cr P C. An order under S. 146 Cr. P C would be ultra vires, unless the Magistrate records a finding that he is unable to find which party is in actual possession under Section 145 Cr. P C [40 C. 105-9 C. N. 887. 27 C. 785; 22 C. 237, 14 C. 361 1 C. L. 86, 18 W. R. 4; 17 B. R. 352 7 B. R. 18-6 B. R. 723; 16 Cr. 239 (M). 16 M. T. 52-2 Weir 110. M. H. Pro 28-11-70-20 Cr. 829 (Pat). 1 O. J. 242. 20 Cr. 117 (N)]

(3) Meaning of "unable to satisfy himself."

3. Question of title.—A Magistrate cannot take action under this section merely because he is unable to satisfy himself as to which of the parties is entitled to possession or has a right to the property. Inability to decide the question of a right to the property in dispute will not justify the attachment of the property under S. 146: [6 B R 723, 7 B R 18. See 10 O. C 89]
4. Property in possession of a person other than disputing parties.—Where the land was claimed by one party as usufructuary mortgagor of one S. and by the other party as donee of the same S., and the Magistrate on enquiry found that the property was in fact in possession of S. but she did not claim to be in possession and was not a party to the dispute held that the Magistrate ought, under such circumstances, to attach the property under S. 146—20 Cr. 215 (Pat)
5. When one of the parties has been put in possession by Civil Court.—Where the petitioner was put in possession of the disputed property in execution of a decree obtained by him in the Civil Court, it does not lie with the Magistrate to say that he is unable to satisfy himself as to who is in possession. He should find possession in accordance with the decree and is not competent to attach the property under S. 146.—32 C 796. See 7 C N 118, 6 C N. 541; 14 C N 261. But see 1 C. L. 273.
6. When none of the parties have complete control over the subject of dispute.—It is only when the Magistrate finds that the struggle for possession is going on and none of the parties are able to prove a complete control over the subject-matter of dispute that the order under S. 146 Cr. P. C. can be made [5 P R 1897]. But where each party is found to be in possession of different parts of the disputed land, a Magistrate cannot pass an order for attachment under S. 146 Cr. P. C.—[9 C. N 887]
7. Land subject to diluvion.—Land which owing to its remaining under water, cannot be considered to be in the possession of any of the parties, should be attached under S. 146 Cr. P. C. in the case of a dispute within the meaning of S. 145 (1)—20 C. N 1014
8. Enquiry into possession pending before a Revenue Court. S. 146 does not give a Magistrate jurisdiction to pass an order of attachment in a dispute between parties whose rights would have to be determined by Revenue Court.—13 A. 394
9. When the parties are unable to give written statements.—S. 145 requires that the parties should give written statements within two months had expired from the date on which the proceeding was drawn up, but applied for time to file written statements, held, that the Magistrate did not act without jurisdiction in refusing to grant time and in attaching the disputed land under S. 146 Cr. P. C.—[11 C. N. 80. See 11 Cr. 97 (G). Con—12 C. N. 82] But when the absence of evidence is due to the refusal of the Magistrate to grant a reasonable prayer for adjournment, an order of attachment is invalid [1 Pat W. 55]

(4) Magistrate's jurisdiction is ousted if it is possible to decide the question of possession.

10. Where, in an enquiry as to possession the parties put in claims based on different titles, one claiming under a Will, another under a partition, settlement and Will and the Magistrate holding that he was unable to decide as to the question of possession, ordered that the property do remain under Court attachment till the parties had settled their differences in Court. Held that the Magistrate acted without jurisdiction and should have decided the question of possession.—S. M. T. 447. 2 Weir 40; M. Cr. Rev. 11 of '06; 19 of '04; 119 of '04
- (5) S. 146 Cr. P. C. does not relieve the Magistrate from his duty to decide on merits.
11. S. 146 does not enable a Magistrate to make a short cut across a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C. on the plea that the claims put forward by the parties are conflicting and require a decision on the questions of title. He is bound, if it is possible to come to a finding as regards the question of possession notwithstanding the difficulty. The special provision contained in S. 146 is not meant to relieve the Magistrate from the duty of deciding on the merits [S. M. T. 447, 2 t. J. 149; 2 Weir 110—See 43 C. 105 W. R. (S. N) 28]. An order made after arbitrarily rejecting every piece of evidence that might have led the Magistrate to a correct conclusion is bad [21 C. N. 1039].
- (6) If the contending parties are found to be in joint possession.
12. A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to pass an order under S. 106 on his finding that the contending parties are in joint possession of the disputed property. Neither S. 145 nor S. 146 Cr. P. C. applies to cases of joint possession. [10 C. N. 1088 11 C. N. 512; 17 C. N. 203; 9 C. N. 887. 27 M J 109; 2 Weir 108]. Where the rival parties although jointly entitled to the disputed property are found to be in possession of different portions of it, the section will not apply [9 C. N. 887; 11 C. N. 743. 24 W. R. 73] where the possession is by turns, jurisdiction is ousted [See M. Cr. Rev. 10—99 and 101 of '04] A Magistrate cannot after finding joint possession direct that the rooms in dispute should not be opened except in the presence of certain public officers [2 Weir 105]
- (7) Jurisdiction not ousted because parties are already under security.
13. A Magistrate is not ousted of his jurisdiction to proceed under S. 145 Cr. P. C. and ultimately to to pass an order under S 146 on finding that neither party is in actual possession, merely because he had passed previously an order under S 107 Cr. P. C. against both the parties—18 Cr 123 (C); See 39 C 150 (F. B.)

(8) Action under S. 146 cannot be taken before enquiry is completed.

14. No action can be taken under S 146 before completing the enquiry under S 145 as required by S 145 (4). An order appointing a Receiver under S 146 (2) before completing such enquiry is ultra vires—13 Cr 536 (M) See 1 O. J 212 11 Cr 90 (C). 12 C. N. 806

(9) Magistrate's obligation to take evidence before passing order.

15. Under S. 117 Cr. P. C. the Magistrate has got no jurisdiction to issue any order for the attachment of the disputed property unless and until he has made the enquiry which is contemplated by S 145 Cr. P. C. that is to say until he has received and considered the evidence which the parties put before him—1 O. J 212. 20 Cr 117 (N) 40 C. 105 12 C. N. 806 1 C. L. 86 18 W. R. 4 34 C. 810 11 Cr. 90 (C) 2 Weir. 110 2 A. J 149 See 14 C. N. 80. 14 C. N. vci 12 C. L. 221 1 S. 33: 6 M. H. (ap) 4

16. A Magistrate cannot proceed to attach the land because the possession claimed is without the "colour of law." If actual possession is established, a Magistrate cannot refuse to recognise it, because in his opinion the right to possess is doubtful [24 W. R. 40] Where a person is in possession, he is entitled to be declared to be in possession, irrespective of the fact that his possession is only that of an agent [3 C. L. 91] Possession of tenants is possession of the landlord within the meaning of S 145 and ousts jurisdiction under S 146 [15 W. R. 1 9 C. N. 887]. See also Madras Cr. R. P. 99 and 149 of 1904 11 of 1906

(11) Documentary evidence cannot be disregarded.

17. Where a Magistrate in proceeding under S 145 writes a very brief judgment and without specifically referring to important materials placed before him (e.g.—Record of Rights)—held that the order under S 146 could not be supported [case remanded] 23 C. N. 910.

(12) Magistrate cannot "strike off" proceedings.

18. Where proceedings under S 145. Cr. P. C. has once been started, the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to strike them off. He must pass an order under S 145 or under S 146—20 Cr 461 (Pat). 11 W. R. 9.

(13) Magistrate not bound to make local enquiry before passing the order.

19. There is no hard and fast rule of law that a Magistrate is bound in every case to order a local investigation under S. 148 Cr. P. C. before he can proceed to attach the disputed property under S 146 Cr. P. C.—20 Cr 17 (C.).

(14) Nature of attachment under S. 146 Cr. P. C.

20. An attachment under S. 146 Cr. P. C. connotes more than a Civil Court attachment and implies the taking and keeping possession of the property attached by the Magistrate [21 Cr 73 (M) : Con. 3 Pat J 117] The possession of the Magistrate after attachment is on behalf of particular party who may be able to establish a right to possession in the Civil Court [32 C. 856 26 M. 410 10 M. T 573 See 29 C 86] The Magistrate is not entitled after the final decision of the Civil Court to retain in his hand the profits derived from the property during attachment [—(13) A N° 100] A Magistrate cannot treat the profits as derelict and hold that they had lapsed to Government because the parties had taken no steps to obtain the decision of the Civil Court within a reasonable time [123 P. L. 1911]

(15) Fresh attachment after release

21. Where the property attached was released on the (16) Boundary disputes.

22. Where the dispute is as to possession of point of possession—4 W. R. 20

(17) Property must be capable of being defined.

23. Before a property can be attached, the subject-matter of the dispute must be clearly determined.—11 C. N. 198

(18) Properties which may not be attached.

What cannot be attached.—

24. (a)

cannot be attached in a dispute between the rival landlords [5 C. N. 107]

25. (b) Cattle—Moveable property such as cattle cannot be attached under S 146. But where the possession of the cattle is a necessary concomitant of the property in dispute an order may be passed—1 Pat J. 356 (12) M. N. 540

26. (c) Moveable property—S 146 does not confer on a Magistrate the same power as to attachment of moveables as of immovable property—Pat 691.

- 27 (d) Mosque—an order under S 146 Cr. P. C. attaching a mosque is without jurisdiction—145 P. L. 1903. But See 2Weir 110; 2 Weir 112

(19) When subject matter is divisible

28. The subject-matter referred to in Ss 145 and 146 may be read as referring to the whole or to any component part thereof. If that component part is distinct and separable from the rest, it cannot rightly be held that because the Magistrate cannot find possession of one of the component parts he is bound to attach the whole—5 C. N. 710 24 W. R. 73 11 C. N. 198
- 29 (2) Where in a dispute concerning certain colonies, the Magistrate found that the first party were in possession of the office building and all cashbooks and business papers but that the second party had only about 2 weeks prior to the commencement of the proceedings, had in a high-handed and unwarrantable manner, succeeded in obtaining possession of the p.c., wharves, tramways etc, and the Magistrate considering himself bound to consider who was in actual possession, declared possession in favour of the second party—441, that the order was laid as putting the second party in possession also of the portion of the property in possession of the first party; and that the proper order under the circumstances was an attachment under S. 146 Cr. P. C.—22 C. 257.

(20) Procedure.

30. For Procedure. See S. 145 Cr. P. C.

II. RECEIVER AND ADMINISTRATION AND DISPOSAL OF PROFITS.

(1) Receivers.

31. Receiver cannot be appointed in anticipation.—A receiver cannot be appointed under S 146 (2) Cr P C before the completion of the enquiry under S 145 Cr P. C.—13 Cr. 536 (W.). 6 M. T. 314
32. The Status of a Receiver.—A receiver appointed by the Court is not an 'owner' of the property he holds as a receiver; if he receives rents profits etc he does not do so on his own account, or as agent or trustee for any person but as an officer of the Court and as manager of the property on its behalf, [20 C. 721: 14 C. N. 651] A distinction should be drawn between a receiver appointed under S. 145 (1) and one appointed under this section. The former has not and cannot exercise all the functions of the latter. He is only an agent or servant of the Magistrate [13 Cr. 295 (M)] The possession of the receiver may for the purposes of S. 145, be regarded as possession on behalf of the party, who should ultimately be found by the Magistrate to be in possession, as for the purposes of limitation the possession of the receiver is held to be that of the party entitled to possession [10 M. T. 573; See. 27 C. 785; 26 M. 410]
33. Powers of the receiver.—A receiver who has been appointed under S 146 Cr. P. C. in respect of any property in dispute, is entitled, unless some special circumstance is established, not only to the subject-matter of the proceeding under S. 145, but also to the accreted land, and to give a good title to a tenant under him—such title will prevail against a trespasser but not against a person who establishes a title to the accreted land, acquired prior to the vesting of the lands in the Receiver [14 C. N. 681; See 10 C.J. 55]. See also, Civil Procedure Code, Order, XI.
- (2) Administration.
34. Power to lease out the property.—A Magistrate may lease out property attached under S. 146 [17 W. R. 24] He does not act without jurisdiction in cancelling a lease for a term of years on the application of the lessee and making another arrangement [39 C. 382]

35. Administration of temples.—Where the property attached is a temple, the rights of the general community must be preserved. The Magistrate has no jurisdiction to close the temple but may make the best arrangement possible for public worship—2 Weir. 110; 2 Weir 112.
36. Perishable property.—If the property is perishable or difficult to keep in custody, the Magistrate may sell it and keep the proceeds in deposit pending an adjudication by a competent Court.—1 L. W. 1032
37. Live stock.—If a forest is attached, the Magistrate is entitled to the elephants found within it [12 M. N. 540] Similarly if a mesh is attached and cattle is found within it, as part and parcel of the property attached, they may be taken into possession [1 Pat J. 356]
38. Nature of Proceedings in administration.—The proceedings of a Sub-deputy Magistrate, deputed to settle lands attached under S 146 Cr. P. C. by auction are not judicial proceedings within S. 476 Cr. P. C.—29 Cr. 247 (Pat).
39. Status of Lessee.—The lessee of a property attached under S 146 Cr. P. C. may be bound down under S. 107 Cr. P. C. if so necessary in the interests of public peace—18 Cr. 1007 (Pat)
40. Duty of Magistrate on appointing Receiver.—The Magistrate should on appointing a Receiver give him proper instructions with regard to the management of the property attached.—18 C. N. 1245.

(3) Magistrate's power of disposal of profits etc.

41. Magistrate cannot deliver any profits or the property, before adjudication by Civil Court, to any of the parties.—A Magistrate cannot direct the property attached to be delivered to any party even after cancelling the proceeding in the ground that there was no immediate danger of a breach of the peace, until one or the other has obtained an order of a Civil Court in his favour [1 L. W. 1032]. He is entitled to refuse to hand over the profits to any party pending that event [123 P. L. 1911]. But he cannot treat the profits as derelict and property of government, even if the parties take no steps within a reasonable time to obtain a decision of the Civil Court—[124 P. L. 1911]

(4) Withdrawal of attachment.

12. Where a third party comes forward after the attachment and offers to and is able to prove that none of the contending parties had ever been in possession of the disputed property or had any interest in the land and that he was in possession of the same, the Magistrate ought to withdraw the attachment—[24 W. R. 40 1 Pat W. 373] A withdrawal of attachment has the effect of vacating the proceedings. If the property has to be attached again, fresh proceedings must be taken under S. 145—[25 W. R. 68]

(5) Magistrate bound to release property on adjudication by competent Court.

13. Once the Civil Court has determined the rights of the parties, the Magistrate ceases to have any authority to retain control of the attached property. A Magistrate acts ultra vires in refusing to give possession in pursuance of the determination by the Civil Court on the ground that the other party was going to appeal to the Civil Court—[7 Bur. T. 231 See 14 C. N. xc] A Magistrate cannot refuse to abide by the order of a Civil Court because the appellate Court in an appeal from the Civil Court decree has remarked that the "defendant's evidence of enjoyment is equally weak"—[17 M. T. 392] It is not necessary that there should be a decree in favour of all the parties to enable the Magistrate to withdraw the attachment. If there is an adjudication by a Civil Court in favour of some of the parties, that is sufficient for the purpose of enabling the Magistrate to walk out of the property. [20 M. T. 217]

44. Decision of Revenue Court.—A person who after the attachment has obtained the order of a Collector under S. 41 of the Bengal Survey Act 1873 in his favor, is entitled to have the attachment released—[37 C. 331]

III. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Revision.—See Notes under S. 145. Cr. P. C.

15. The High Court has power to alter an order under S. 145 (6) into an order under S. 146 Cr. P. C. in revision [See 14 C. 361 22 C. 297 31 C. 840 18 M. 41] The High Court may after setting aside an order under S. 146 direct proceedings under S. 145 to continue [14 C. N. xc] But the High Court cannot interfere with the order of the Magistrate as to the details of administration of the attached property—[24 C. 352 18 C. N. 1245] A Sessions Judge has no power to revise an order of attachment under S. 146 [15 W. R. 1]

(2) Order binds only actual parties to the proceedings.

16. The word "parties" in S. 146 Cr. P. C. means "parties concerned in the dispute"—[123 P. L. 1811] An order under this Section will not bind persons who did not participate in the proceedings, though notice was issued upon them to file written statements—[3 C. N. 329] Tenants of the actual disputants will not be bound by the order unless they are made parties to the proceedings—[5 C. N. 105 2 Weir 106]—See Notes under S. 145 Cr. P. C. Parties newly added in the course of proceedings are not bound by the order—[1 C. N. lxxiii]

(3) Civil Suits consequent upon the order.

17. Suit for damages.—No suit lies for the recovery of damages by reason of the land being kept under attachment under S. 146 Cr. P. C. against the party who had caused proceedings under S. 145 to be started—See 14 C. N. 96 10 C. J. 226 12 Cr. 11 (C) 6 M. 426

18. Suit for recovery of possession.—A suit for recovery of possession of property attached under S. 146 is governed by Arts. 142 or 144 and not Arts. 47 or 120 of the Limitation Act [20 A. 120 4 N. P. 65 1 M. 309 26 M. 410 28 C. 861. See 32 C. 856] Such a suit must be brought within 6 years from the date on which the Magistrate takes possession [26 M. 410 20 M. T. 217] The title of the true owner cannot be extinguished by the operation of S. 28 of the Limitation Act 1877, however long such attachment may continue [26 M. 410] The fact that neither set of tenants brought any suit to establish their title to the lands or paid any rent for them to the landlord for nine years cannot be said to constitute an abandonment of rights by the rightful tenants [32 C. 856] A jalkar was attached under S. 146 Cr. P. C. The plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of the jalkar and proved undisturbed and peaceable possession for eleven years before the attachment and the defendant was proved not trated

he true

(4) Effect of violation of the order.

49. Dis-obedience of an order under this Section is not an offence punishable under S. 188 I. P. C. [6 M. J. 253] But the person who commits a trespass upon and cultivates the attached property, commits the offence of criminal trespass punishable under S. 147 I. P. C. [111] A person cannot however be convicted of criminal trespass because he asserts a grazing right which has never been declared against him and which he thought he was entitled to [18 C. N. 1215]. The Magistrate who acts in violation of this Section cannot himself try the accused for disobedience—[13 C. N. cxxiii See Rat 904]

(5) Costs and other matters.

50. Form of warrant of attachment.—See Sch. V No 23 post.

51. Costs.—See Notes under S. 118 Cr P. C. An order for costs can only be made by the Magistrate who passed orders under S 116 Cr. P. C. [13 O C 60 29 M 373 10 G. N 1010] But the amount may be assessed by the successor. [13 O C. 60; 22 C 384; 23 C. 37 Con 21 C 40, 21 C 757] If assessed subsequently the assessment must be made in the presence of both the parties [21 C. 757; 20 M. 373].

52. Omission to sign the order.—Omission to sign and merely initialling the order is not a fatal irregularity.—12 C. L. 221.

147. Whenever any such Magistrate is satisfied as aforesaid that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning the right of use of any land or water (including any right of way or other easement over the same) within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he may inquire into the matter in manner provided by section 115, and may, if it appears to him that such right exists, make an order permitting such thing to be done, or directing that such thing shall not be done, as the case may be, until the person objecting to such thing being done, or claiming that such thing may be done, obtains the decision of a competent Court adjudging him to be entitled to prevent the doing of, or to do, such thing, as the case may be :

Provided that no order shall be passed under this section permitting the doing of anything where the right to do such thing is exercisable at all times of the year, unless such right has been exercised within three months next before the institution of the inquiry; or, where the right is exercisable only at particular seasons or on particular occasions, unless the right has been exercised during the last of such seasons or occasions before such institution.

Proposed amendments to the section.—For section 147 of the said Code, the following section shall be substituted, namely:—

"117 (1) Whenever any District Magistrate, Presidency Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class is satisfied, from a police report or other information, that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists regarding any alleged right of use of any land or water as explained in section 115 (4) (whether such right be claimed as an easement or otherwise), within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he may inquire into the matter in the manner provided in section 115

(2) If it appears to such Magistrate that such right exists, he may make an order prohibiting any interference with the exercise of such right

Provided that no such order shall be made where the right is exercisable at all times of the year, unless such right has been exercised within three months next before the institution of the inquiry, or, where the right is exercisable only at particular seasons or on particular occasions, unless the right has been exercised during the last of such seasons or on the last of such occasions before such institution.

(3) If it appears to such Magistrate that such right does not exist, he may make an order prohibiting any exercise of the alleged right

(4) An order under this section shall be subject to any subsequent decision of a Civil Court of competent jurisdiction"

I. CHANGE IN THE LAW.

1. The words "To do or to prevent the doing of anything in or upon any tangible immovable property situate" in the Code of 1852 have been replaced in the Code of 1893 by the following words: "of use of any land or water (including any right of way or other easement over the same)". The alteration in language was made with the object of enlarging rather than restricting the scope of the section—[23 M. 97; 21 C. N. 479; 24 C. 734]
2. The word "easements" appeared only in the marginal note of the section in the Code of 1852.

3. The Codes of 1861—9, 1872, 1882, and 1898 compared.—The first essential condition for the jurisdiction of Magistrates is a likelihood of a breach of the peace [See Ss 147 of the Codes of 1852 and 1893 and 532 of 1872] under the Code of 1861—9 (S. 320), this was not necessary [See 2 W. R. 64]. In the Code of 1872, the section conferred authority on the Magistrate to exercise jurisdiction only when the subject of the dispute was open to the use of the public [4 M. 121; 5 W. R. 57; 11 W. R. 3]. No such limitation is imposed in the later Codes. The present Code gives Magistrates the power to refer parties to Civil Courts in case of such disputes as are mentioned in the section, if they think proper. [Note the word "may" in S. 147.] No such power existed under the Code of 1861—9 [See 14 W. R. 23; Cf. 24 W. R. 20].

120 (125)], now no longer therefore holds good.

II. OBJECT, SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) The first essential condition for the exercise of jurisdiction.

4. A Magistrate can take action under S. 147 Cr. P. C. only when he is satisfied that a real danger of a breach of the peace occurring, exists. If the danger is imminent, it is based on the fact that the danger is imminent. N. 271: 21 C. 557; 21 C. 727; 20 C. 520; 2 C. N. 670; 22 W. R. 49; 2 W. R. 61. See also 7 W. R. 45; 13 W. R. 51.

Note.—The word "dispute" means an actual dispute and not a mere discussion or verbal altercation between parties claiming rights of the kind described in the section—5 C. 194].

(2) Scope of the section.

5. S. 147 does not apply to cases where dispute as to the title or possession of the land itself is involved [16 O. C. 102; 4 C. N. 779]. The section does not enable a Magistrate to make a purely declaratory order. It enables him to prevent arbitrary interruption by any person of rights actually enjoyed which have been enjoyed by the public or a person or class of persons [5 C. 194; 6 W. R. 74; 14 W. R. 29; 24 W. R. 20]. A Magistrate should avoid a long and complicated enquiry into the rights of the parties where an order under S. 107 Cr. P. C. would serve his purpose.—[21 C. 727; 23 C. 557]

(3) Object of the words used in the section.

6. (1) The word "use".—There is a conflict of rulings as to the scope of this word. It has been held that the word "use" is wide enough to include "user by person in possession" [29 M. 97; 7 M. J. 460; 7 C. N. 776]. In 4 C. N. 770 the word is held—to refer to use by party other than a person in possession [4 C. N. 779].
7. (2) The word "person".—The 'person' spoken of in S. 147 must evidently be the person claiming a proprietary right in the tangible immovable property in question [2 C. N. 670 (572)]. It is sufficient if a person claims for himself the right in question, though it is derived from others—[23 C. 55].
8. (3) The expression "land".—In S. 147 does not necessarily include buildings [37 C. 574]. A privy is neither 'land' nor 'water' nor is the use of it an easement over the same [15 B. R. 329].
9. (4) The word "easement".—in the section includes profits a grande [23 C. 55; 21 C. N. 779]. Section 147 is not confined to mere [12 Cr. 319 (C)].

(2) Procedure.

18. In long enquiries.—The proper course for a Magistrate to follow in a case under S 147 Cr P C is to land down such of the persons as are likely to disturb the peace under S 107, if the case involves a long and complicated enquiry and the presence of a great number of people—23 C 557; 21 C 727.
19. Opportunity to show cause.—A Magistrate is bound to give the parties an opportunity to file written statements and to produce evidence—15 C N 667; 4 M 121, 20 Cr 107 (N); 20 Cr 110 (N); 105 P L 1099; 104 P L 1097.
20. Formal proceeding not compulsory.—S 147 does not require the Magistrate formally to record a proceeding that there is in his opinion, a danger of a breach of the peace—2 C N 670; 27 M J 567, Con 2 Weir 117.

[Note.—But an order cannot be passed in the absence of a complaint—5 W R 37.]

21. Notice.—An order should not be passed without complying with the procedure prescribed and without giving notice to party concerned to show cause why an order should not be passed—105 P L 1903; 7 P R 1937; 23 P R 1902.

Note.—Notice to servant is not notice to the master—21 C 727.

22. Ex parte order should not be passed.—A Magistrate does not act properly in passing an ex parte order in cases under S 147 Cr P C—4 M 121.

(3) Evidence.

23. Opportunity of calling evidence must be given.—An enquiry under S 147 has to be made in the manner provided by S 145 Cr P C and Magistrate conducting such enquiry is bound to record, the evidence adduced by the parties. Failure to give the parties the opportunity of calling evidence affects jurisdiction—[20 Cr 107 (N); 20 Cr 110 (N)].
24. Order must be based on evidence.—An order under S 147 cannot be based merely on the written statements of the parties or merely on the report submitted by a Subordinate Magistrate deputed to hold a local enquiry. Evidence of facts justifying the order must be recorded and legally brought on the record. A Magistrate is bound to take evidence which may be produced by the parties and any further evidence that he may find necessary under S 145 (4) before he can make an order under S 147 Cr P C—27 C 727; 30 C 918; 4 C N 779; 5 W R 57; 9 W R 64; 11 W R 3; 14 W R 28; 7 B L 379; 3 B R 416; 4 M 121; 29 M 237; 2 Weir 118; See 3 C L 134; 34 C 840; 33 M J 78.

25. Local enquiry.—The rule that in Criminal cases, Courts are only justified in holding a local inspection in order to explain the facts appearing in evidence, does not apply to cases under S 147 Cr P C; nor is there anything in the law to prevent the presiding Magistrate from making a local investigation himself, provided, he records what he saw, and does not act upon hearsay evidence—[12 C 319 (C)]. But although the report of a subordinate Magistrate deputed to hold a local enquiry under S 148 (1) may be read as evidence in the case, a Magistrate is bound to record evidence which may be produced by the parties and cannot base his order on that report alone—[33 M J 78; 4 C N 779; 34 C 840; 3 C L 134; 7 B L 329; 9 W R 64; 2 Weir 118; 3 B R 416]. But where there is nothing to show that the parties tendered any evidence which the Magistrates refused, an order based on such report and a consideration of the written statements of the parties was upheld—[17 C 748 (M)].

26. When evidence need not be recorded.—Evidence need not be gone into when the opposite parties' plea admits the claim of the petitioner—[7 C N 351]. But a Magistrate can act on an admission only when it is made in clear and express terms—[30 C 918].

27. Power to resummon witnesses after close of the case.—It is discretionary with the Magistrate after the petitioners had closed their case to allow witnesses to be resummoned upon a petition presented towards the end of the enquiry—17 M T 225.

28. Onus.—The burden of proving the existence of rights of the nature of easements lies on the person alleging them, such rights being different from the ordinary rights of owners of land—11 C 52; 11 W R 3.

- 28A. Evidence of title.—In a proceeding under S 147 the Magistrate may, if necessary, take and consider evidence of title to enable him to decide the question of actual possession, but such evidence should be used only to "supplement" the evidence of user—44 M 138.

(4) Parties to proceeding.

29. S 147 Cr P C contemplates an order to be order in favour of persons not parties to proceeding is illegal—[7 M 460]. It has been held that a Magistrate cannot add parties to a proceeding under S 147 [24 C 734 but see Notes under S 145 (1) Parties to Proceeding]. A manager or servant is not a proper party [See 21 C 727; 21 C 915; 2 C N 670 but See 31 C 49 (F. B.)]. In a dispute between locum proprietors are not necessary parties—[23 C 77].

IV. ORDERS WHICH MAY OR MAY NOT BE PASSED.

(1) Orders which may be passed.

30. Removal of obstructions.—A Magistrate is competent under S 147 to direct the removal of a boundary, the erection of which has obstructed the flow of water, for the purpose of irrigation from a certain channel—[5 C N 67; 5 C N 273; 15 C J 267; 13 W R 51; 6 W R 6]; and the removal of an obstruction to a right of way

V. ALLIED SECTIONS.

(1) Ss. 147 and 133.

61. An order under S. 147 cannot be made after proceeding under S. 133 Cr. P. C. without taking a fresh proceeding [15 C N 667]. The fact that S. 133 Cr. P. C. expressly provides for an order by the Magistrate directing the removal of an obstruction to pathways does not necessarily imply that a similar order cannot be passed in a proceeding taken under S. 147 Cr. P. C. [26 M. J. 223. Con 4 M. 121. 1 Weir 143. 5 W. R. 5] where the dispute is concerning the right to use water which the other party had obstructed by putting up an embankment, a Magistrate should proceed under S. 147 and not S. 133—[13 W. R. 51]

(2) Ss. 144 and 147.

62. The special jurisdiction under S. 147 Cr. P. C. bars the general powers given by S. 62 (=S. 144 Cr. P. C.) [3 M. H. (sp) 23]. A Magistrate is legally competent to pass an order under S. 147 Cr. P. C. within a week of passing an order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. if the likelihood of a breach of the peace still existed—[26 M. J. 223]

(3) Ss. 146 and 147.

63. A Magistrate after passing an order under Ss. 14 Cr. P. C. cannot, on the report of the Teshildar observing that an attachment of the property was impracticable, cancel the order and substitute an order under S. 147 Cr. P. C. instead—S. 367 does not apply. He could not pass an order under the latter section without taking fresh proceedings.—16 O. C. 182

(4) Ss. 147, 145 and 107 Cr. P. C.

64. A Magistrate has a discretion to proceed either under S. 107 or S. 147 or S. 145 Cr. P. C.—[7 M. 460. 29 M. 97] where the dispute is regarding matters not cognisable by Civil Court, a Magistrate should proceed under Chapter VIII instead of S. 147, if he apprehends a breach of the peace [14 B. 25]. A Magistrate is not legally competent to pass an order under S. 145 after proceeding under S. 147 without drawing up a fresh proceeding [19 M. J. 18 (19)]

VI. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Reversion.

65. The High Court has no jurisdiction to interfere if the proceeding is in intention and in fact a proceeding under S. 147 [13 Cr. 405 (A) 31 A. 150]. But it will interfere if the order is without jurisdiction or obviously unreasonable and unjust—[16 Cr. 797 (M) 36 M. 275. But See 7 M. 460. 29 M. 97]. See Notes under S. 145 Cr. P. C. Supra

(2) Effect of the order in Subsequent Civil Suits.

66. The fact that a Magistrate has declared a right of way in favour of a party claiming the right in a proceeding under S. 147 Cr. P. C. does not relieve that party from the onus of proving the claim in a subsequent Civil Suit brought to establish the right.—2 C. L. 555 (556) [F. B.]—Overruling 21 W. R. 110

(3) Punishment for disobedience of the order.

67. An order which declares that as between the contending parties, certain land in dispute does not belong to the public, is not one, the contravention of which is punishable under S. 188 I. P. C.—24 W. R. 20

(4) Definition of 'Easement'

68. See S. 4 of the Easement Act (V of 1882)

148. (1) Whenever a local inquiry is necessary for the purposes of this Chapter, any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may depute any Magistrate subordinate to him to make the inquiry, and may furnish him with such written instructions as may seem necessary for his guidance, and may declare by whom the whole or any part of the necessary expenses of the inquiry shall be paid

(2) The report of the person so deputed may be read as evidence in the case

(3) When any costs have been incurred by the party to a proceeding under this Chapter for witnesses, or pleaders' fees, or both, the Magistrate passing a decision under section 145, section 146 or section 147 may direct by whom such costs shall be paid, whether by such party or by any other party to the proceeding, and whether in whole or in part or proportion. All costs so directed to be paid may be recovered as if they were fines.

Proposed amendments to the section.—(i) In sub-section (1) of section 148 of the said Code, after the words "District Magistrate" the words "Chief Presidency Magistrate" shall be inserted.

PART V.

INFORMATION TO THE POLICE AND THEIR POWERS TO INVESTIGATE.

CHAPTER XIV.

154. Every information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence if given orally to an officer in charge of a police-station, shall be reduced to writing by him or under his direction and be read over to the informant; and every such information, whether given in writing or reduced to writing as aforesaid, shall be signed by the person giving it, and the substance thereof shall be entered in a book to be kept by such officer in such form as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf.

Notes.

1. Meaning of the word "Information"—The word "Information" is not defined in the Code. To inform against somebody is to communicate facts by way of accusation against him. The word has been deliberately substituted for the word "complaint", used in the Code of 1872 to avoid confusion with the same word as defined in S 4 (1) (h) supra and dealt with in Chapter XVI of the Code.

2. Applicability of the Chapter to the Police in Calcutta and Bombay.

(1) Chapter XIV of the Code except S 155 infra does not apply to the Police in the town of Calcutta—15 C 595 (T. B.)

(2) The application of the Chapter to the Police in the town of Bombay was formerly confined to S. 155 only [21 B 495] It has now no application [S. 2 (1) and Schedule of the Bombay Police Act (IV of 1902)]

(3) What is meant by First Information.

The law does not contemplate that when in the course of investigation, something has been elicited, which shows that an offence has been committed, a first information can be recorded. In every trial, it is important that it should be known to the Judicial Officer what are the facts given out immediately after the occurrence and reported to the Police and the object of the first information is to render him so acquainted—[7 C N. 345—See 21 Cr 457 (N) (11) M N. 373] The object of a first information being to show what was the manner in which the occurrence was related when the case was first stated, it should always be carefully and accurately recorded [16 C N 145] The first information is the first step in the proceeding—Per Santaran Nair J. [32 M 258 (F.B.)] The information First information is really given as a matter of information which the police may select and record as the First information—7 C N. 345; 8 C. N. 218; 6 C N 921]

(2) "What is not First Information." were of H. to an officer in charge of a Police Station, and it was recorded, held—that the statements recorded were inadmissible in evidence as a first information under S. 153(3) of the Evidence Act—8 C. N. 218(220)

(3) Information given to a village Magistrate and transmitted to the Police—when a person gives information or makes his complaint to the village Magistrate, and the latter forwards it to the Station House Officer, that person is not the first informant but the village Magistrate is. The statement taken down by the village Magistrate cannot be regarded as legally made under S. 154 Cr. P. C. but one really made under Ss. 161 and 162 Cr. P. C.—Per Nair J. [Benim and Munro J. J. Contai] in 32 M. 279 (F. B.): 31 M. 506. Con—25 M. 555.

6. Duty of Commissioner of Police.—The Commissioner will see to the maintenance of cordial and intelligent co-operation between the Police in different districts and between the Police and the Magistracy, the organisation of security proceedings under the Cr. P. C., the surveillance of bad characters and the measures of the control of crime on the borders of British territory and Native States.—Punjab Pol. Cr. p. 214

6. Co-operation of Mukkadams.—It is most important that the Police should secure the hearty co-operation of the landed proprietors and especially of village headmen or Mukkadams. These functionaries can do as much as they are able to thwart the Police, that it must always be ascertained that they are on the side of Cr. P. C. P. M. p. 26

150. Every police-officer receiving information of a design to commit any cognizable offence shall communicate such information to the police-officer to whom he is subordinate, and to any other officer whose duty it is to prevent or take cognizance of the commission of any such offence.

151. A police-officer knowing of a design to commit any cognizable offence may arrest without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, the person so designing, if it appears to such officer that the commission of the offence cannot be otherwise prevented.

152. A police-officer may of his own authority interpose to prevent any injury attempted to be committed in his view to any public property, moveable or immovable, or the removal or injury of any public landmark or buoy or other mark used for navigation.

153. (1) Any officer in charge of a police-station may, without a warrant, enter any place within the limits of such station for the purpose of inspecting or searching for any weights or measures or instruments for weighing, used or kept therein, whenever he has reason to believe that there are in such place any weights, measures or instruments for weighing which are false.

(2) If he finds in such place any weights, measures or instruments for weighing which are false, he may seize the same, and shall forthwith give information of such seizure to a Magistrate having jurisdiction.

Notes.

1. The section does not apply to Presidency towns.—The section does not apply to the Police in the towns of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras. For similar powers in Calcutta [See Ss 55 and 56 of the Calcutta Police Act IV of 1846] in Bombay [See S. 4 of Act IV of 1882 and Bombay Act IV of 1902, Act XLVIII of 1860] in Madras [by Madras Act III of 1859, S. 32]
2. False weights and measures.—See (1) Act XXXI of 1871 (Indian Weights and Measures of Capacity Act and the rules framed under S. 11 of that Act) (2) Chapter XIII I. P. C. which deals with offences relating to weights and measures.

3. Powers confined to the officer in charge of a Police Station.—S. 153 Cr. P. C. expressly authorises an inspection of the weights and measures by an officer-in-charge of a Police Station. In comparing weights used in the bazar, some reasonable allowance should be made for wear and tear, and for the rough and ready methods of bazar shop-keepers.—20 P. R. 1913.

(3) What is meant by First Information.

The law does not contemplate that when in the course of investigation, something has been elicited, which shows that an offence has been committed, a first information can be recorded. In every trial, it is important that it should be known to the Judicial Officer what are the facts given out immediately after the occurrence and reported to the Police and the object of the first information is to render him so acquainted—[7 C N 345. See 21 Cr 457 (N) (11) M N 373]. The object of a first information being to show what was the manner in which the occurrence was related when the case was first stated, it should always be carefully and accurately recorded [16 C N 145]. The first information is the first step in the proceeding—Per Sankaran Nair J [32 M 255 (F.B.)]. The information which is to be treated as the first information in a case, is the information that is really given to the Police first in point of time (no matter who the informant is) and not the information which the police may select and record

as the First information—7 C N 345 8 C N 218; 6 C N 921]

(4) What is not First Information.

(1) — there recorded a statement made by him, and had the writing containing the statement so recorded, attested by the witness, it cannot be regarded as evidence. The statement may be proved only in the ordinary way by one who heard it, with recourse to the writing to refresh the memory, if necessary.—6 C N 921.

The statement taken down by the village Magistrate cannot be regarded as legally made under S 154 Cr. P. C. but one really made under Ss. 161 and 162 Cr. P. C.—Per Nair J [12 M N and Munro J J. (4) Information recorded after commencement of investigation—A. finding his brother M. to be missing, gave information to the Sub. Inspector of Police but the latter did not record it under S 154 Cr. P. C. Nevertheless he commenced investigation, and after four days, is in practice always and very rightly produced and proved in criminal trials, is not a piece of substantive evidence, and it can be used only as a previous statement admissible to corroborate or contradict the author of it [17 C. N. 1213. See 14 P. W. 1909] A report of the commission of an offence made at a thana may be used to corroborate or cross-examine a witness at the trial, but such a report is no evidence of the facts therein mentioned [(97) A. N. 47] The diary in which the F. I. is recorded is admissible in evidence as also any memorandum by the Police Officer of what the informant said, to acquaint the trying court with the facts as stated immediately after the occurrence to the police [7 C. N. 345]

(3) Evidentiary value in a different case. The first information in a different case can not be put in evidence as evidence of the facts stated therein, but it may be used to cross-examine a witness.—See (97) A. N. 47

7. Duty of police officer to make a truthful record.—A police officer is bound to enter truthfully in the general diary all reports of cognizable or non-cognizable cases made to him at the thana. If he makes a false report, he is liable to be punished under S 177 I P C.—20 A 151

8. Prosecution for giving false information to the Police.

(1) No sanction under S. 195 (1) (b) is necessary when the false charge made to the Police have not followed up by a judicial investigation thereof by a court.—43 C. 1152 14 C 707 (F.B.) 33 C 1 5 C 184 24 W R 41. 11 B R 1160 3 A 222 10 M 232 7 M 292 12 P R 1905 5 Bar T 129

(3) The mere fact that the false charge has not been reduced to writing in accordance with S 154 Cr P C will not prevent the statement from being a false charge—27 M 127

(1) Legal proof of the F. I.—Having regard to the provisions of S 154 Cr P C. and S 91 of the Evidence Act, the only legal proof of the contents of a first information to the police is the written record of the same except where secondary evidence is legally admissible—1 Bar S. 572; (72-92) L. B. I. 572.

9. Compensation for false information leading up to a trial.—See Notes under S 250, Cr P C infra

10. Effect of omission in the F. I.—The initial report of an offence to the Police is always of great importance, in every criminal case, when it has been made a considerable time after the occurrence, and by a person who is in a position to know the facts and the persons concerned, no person should be convicted whose name is not mentioned therein as one of the offenders, particularly when there is no likelihood of his name being omitted.—14 P W 1909 See 7 P R 1889

12. Record of information, a public document—Information relating to the commission of a cognizable offence given orally to an officer in charge of a Police Station is a public document within the meaning of S 74 Evidence Act, and its contents may be proved by a certified copy under S 77 Evidence Act.—See (92-96) U B. I. 24(25)

13. Copies of first information.—No document present or official paper of any kind or any copy

14. Court-fee Information to the Police is not a complaint within the meaning of S 4(1) (b), and is not chargeable with any Court fee See S. 19 Cr P C of the Court Fees Act

155. (1) When information is given to an officer in charge of a police-station of the commission within the limits of such station of a non-cognizable offence, he shall enter in a book to be kept as above-said the substance of such information and refer the informant to the Magistrate

(2) No police-officer shall investigate a non-cognizable case without the order of a Magistrate of the first or second class having power to try such cases or commit the same for trial, or of a Presidency Magistrate.

Investigation into non-cognizable cases.

Information in non-cognizable cases.

(3) Any police-officer receiving such order may exercise the same powers in respect of the investigation (except the power to arrest without warrant) as an officer in charge of a police station may exercise in a cognizable case.

Notes.

1. Subs (2) is mandatory. A police-officer has no power to enter upon the investigation of a non-cognizable case without the order of a Magistrate as required by subs (2)—21 C. 691, 26 B. 150 (156) [F. B.]; Rat 188, 16 P. R. 1918.

2. Report unless made in accordance with subs (2) is a complaint.

Where a police-officer of his own motion, as where he had seen the alleged offence committed, makes a formal report or complaint he should be treated as an ordinary complainant within the meaning of S 250 Cr. P. C.—26 B. 150 (F. B.). Rat 8 See Note below.

[Note.—It has been held in (14) U. B. 2—q. 10 (1906) U. B. 125, that the police-officer in such a case can not be treated as a mere complainant and examined on oath. His report should be treated as a police report within the meaning of S 190(1) (b) Cr. P. C.]

3. Powers of a Magistrate under subs (2)—It has been held that the Section is an enabling section conferring powers on the police-officer, but it confers no power or authority on a Magistrate to direct a local investigation by the police or call for a police report. Such power can only be exercised in accordance with S. 272 infra. [12 B. 161 (163) See 20 M. 387 (702) A. N. 195] on the other hand, it has been held that such power can be exercised under Sub Cl (2) even before the examination of the complainant (8 B. R. 589. (14) U. B. 2—q. 19 See 16 C. N. 1019, 4 L. R. 137; 2 B. L. (S. N.) vi. S. W. R. 12, also G. M. T. 239, 11 A. J. 331.

4. Report submitted by a police-officer. The term is limited to a report made by a police-officer who investigated a non-cognizable case under S. 153 Cr. P. C. under the orders of a Magistrate having power to do such a case [11 A. J. 331 See (14) U. B. 2—q. 19].

5. Prosecution before police report declaring information to be false.—"It is contrary to the method and the spirit, contrary to the whole system of our criminal procedure, that the Police should be allowed to prosecute" and S 211 I. P. C., the informant of a non-cognizable offence, after obtaining permission of the Magistrate and Investigator, but without submitting the report and before the case has been disposed of by the Magistrate.—17 B. R. 63.

6. Delegation of duty.—It is questionable whether a Police Inspector or a Magistrate to investigate a non-cognizable offence can legally delegate the duty of making an investigation to a Civil Constable.—Rat 48.

7. No power to arrest without warrant.—The power to arrest without warrant is exercised by this section from the police, in the course of the investigation of a non-cognizable offence.—(1906) U. B. 1, 31 (33).

8. Magistrates empowered to act under sub cl. (2).—See Sch. III. cl. 2 infra. But the power is erroneously exercised, the irregularity will be cured by S. 520 (1) Cr. P. C.

9. Liability for false entry.—See Note No. under S. 154 Supra.

10. Powers of Magistrates when to be exercised.—See Cal. H. C. Cir. dated 20.7.71.

11. Duty to keep a diary.—It is incumbent on a Police-officer, who investigates a non-cognizable case under the orders of a Magistrate, to keep the diary for which provision is made in S. 17 Cr. P. C. and the omission to keep such diary deprives the Court of the very valuable assistance which such diaries give, if legitimately used.—16 P. R. 1918. See 19 A. 300 (F. B.) [Per Ely C. J.]

156. (1) Any officer in charge of a police-station may, without the order of a Magistrate

Investigation into cognizable cases investigate any cognizable case which a Court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of such station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter XV. relating to the place of inquiry or trial.

(2) No proceeding of a police-officer in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one which such officer was not empowered under this section to investigate.

(3) Any Magistrate empowered under section 190 may order such an investigation as above-mentioned.

Notes.

1. Change in the Law.—cl. (3) of the section is new. There was no provision of a similar kind in the former Codes.
2. Scope of clause (3).—When a petition filed before a Magistrate empowered to act under S. 190 Cr. P. C. contains allegations which lead to the suspicion of the commission of some offence, the Magistrate may under S. 156 (3) direct the Police to investigate, and upon the submission of the Police report, may hold a judicial enquiry himself under S. 159 Cr. P. C. without proceeding under Chapter XVI. Cr. P. C.—8 B. R. 589 30 C 223. Con. 10 M. T. 120

[Note.—In 10 M. T. 120 it has been held that on presentation of criminal complaint, a Magistrate is bound to take cognizance of the same and proceed in the manner prescribed by Ch. XVI. and has no option to refer it to the Police under S. 156 (3)]

3. Refusal to entertain complaint because case was cognizable by the Police.—A Magistrate cannot refuse, when properly called upon to do so, to exercise jurisdiction merely on the ground that the complainant might reasonably have had recourse to the Police instead of the Magistrate See Punj. Cir. Vol II, p 163 et Seq. and 4 B 489. 7 C. 157.

4. Sessions Judges cannot act under the Section.—S 156 Cr. P. C. only gives power to a Magistrate empowered under S 190 Cr. P. C. to direct an investigation by the Police into a cognizable case. So a Court of Session has no power to order such an enquiry, and such order, if made, is ultra vires—11 P. R. 1910

5. C. I. D. Officer can exercise powers under the Section.—See 35 M 397 (F.B.) [Abdur Rahim J. and Sundara Aiyar J.—Contra] Con. 35 M. 247 (F.B.)

6. Delay in investigation.—If there is delay in investigating by the Police it is the duty of the Committing Magistrate and of the Sessions Judge to inquire fully into the circumstances of the delay and to consider its bearing on the prosecution story—2 B R 1092.

157. (1) If, from information received or otherwise, an officer in charge of a police-station has reason to suspect the commission of an offence which he is empowered under section 156 to investigate, he shall forthwith send a report of the same to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of such offence upon a police-report, and shall proceed in person, or shall depute one of his subordinate officers to proceed to the spot, to investigate the facts and circumstances of the case, and to take such measures as may be necessary for the discovery and arrest of the offender:

Provided as follows:—

(a) when any information as to the commission of any such offence is given against any person by name and the case is not of a serious nature, the officer in charge of a police station need not proceed in person or depute a subordinate officer to make an investigation on the spot,

(b) if it appear to the officer in charge of police-station that there is no sufficient ground for entering on an investigation, he shall not investigate the case.

(2) In each of the cases mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of the proviso to sub-section (1), the officer in charge of the police-station shall state in his said report his reasons for not fully complying with the requirements of that sub-section.

Proposed amendments to the Section—In section 157 of the said Code—

(i) In sub-section (1) after the words "one of his subordinate officers" the words "not being below the rank of sub-inspector" shall be inserted, and for the words "and to take such measures as may be necessary," the words "and if necessary to take measures" shall be substituted

(ii) In sub-section (2), after the words "that sub-section," the words "and in the case mentioned in clause (b) such officer shall also forthwith notify to the informant, in such manner as may be prescribed by the Local Government, the fact that he will not investigate the case or cause it to be investigated" shall be added.

Notes.

1. "Information received."—S 157 Cr. P. C. empowers a Police Officer to take action when he has reason to suspect the commission of a cognizable offence, "from information received or otherwise." The phrase "information received" undoubtedly refers to information furnished under S 154 Cr P C. A telegram informing him that an offence has been committed is not such an information—15 Cr 222 (M); 14 C. N. 331

2. S. 154 and S. 157 compared.—Whereas every information covered by the former section must be reduced to writing as provided in the section, it is only information in which raises a reasonable suspicion of the commission of a cognisable offence within the jurisdiction of the Police Officer to whom it is given, which compels action under the latter section, although of course a report would be sent to the Magistrate—Punj. Cir. Ch. XIV p. 171

3. Village gossip is not information.—When a police officer hears of an alleged offence from less reliable sources than information to be recorded under S. 151 Cr. P. C.—e.g.—village gossip or a telegram and holds a preliminary and informal enquiry to verify it, his action does not amount to an investigation under S. 157 Cr. P. C.—15 Cr. 622 (M)

4. Police officers entitled to investigate.—Ss. 157 to 167 Cr. P. C. leaves no doubt that the Police Officers entitled to investigate an offence are the Police Officers referred to in the Criminal Procedure Code, i.e., the Station House Officer or his Superior Officer within the limits of the local area of his jurisdiction. There is an exception of the C. I. D. officers, none of such officers is not legally competent to investigate and as his evidence is not admissible under S. 156 Evidence Act—35 M. 247 (F.B.) also 35 M. 397 (F.B.) [Per. Al. for Lal. and Sandan. Ayer JJ.]

5. An "occurrence report" must be sent.—The sending up of an occurrence Report to the Magistrate is an essential preliminary under S. 157 to the commencement of an investigation—[15 Cr. 622 (M) & 38.] The report required by this Section is the best report of an offence, which an officer in charge of a Police Station is required to make to a Magistrate as soon as he receives information of an offence, and before entering upon its investigation [See Bomb. Pol. Man. p. 91] Failure to send the report is a serious neglect of duty. Such conduct on the part of the Police would lead to a grave suspicion that the Police were concealing false evidence [18, 38].

6. Object of the Report.—The object of this provision is obvious, and it involves more than a mere technical compliance with the law. The Magistrate is primarily responsible for the condition of the District as regards repressible crime, and he is not at liberty to direct himself of that responsibility or to relax that supervision over crime which the law intends that he should exercise. It is his duty to know and consider each cognizable case, as soon after its occurrence as possible—Smyth p. 62

7. Procedure.—In Burma, the report must be submitted through the District Superintendent of Police or failing him, through the Assistant Superintendent. It cannot be sent direct [See Bar. Gaz. 1870 Pt. II p. 189] In Bombay the report "is to be made direct to the Magistrate in order that he may have an early information and direction to act, if necessary under S. 159 [See Bomb. Pol. Man. p. 91.]

8. The report is not a public document. An occurrence report under S. 157 Cr. P. C. is a public document within the meaning of Evidence Act and the accused is entitled to a copy of such report before trial—50 M. 187 [See Simons v. Ayer J. dissenting]

9. Magistrates powers on receiving report.

(a) Enquiry under S. 160 Cr. P. C.—Report submitted under S. 157 Cr. P. C. can under S. 173 Cr. P. C.—entirely treat it as proved under S. 159 Cr. P. C. 1152, 160 N. 351.]

(b) A police report under this Section was jurisdiction to a Magistrate to enter an enquiry. But the Magistrate is not bound upon an enquiry in all cases. He may if as he thinks expedient, to take no fact or to take action on the report under S. 173—2 Wier 119—11, R. 197.

10. The report is not a complaint.—submitted in the usual way under S. 173 is not intended to be and cannot be as a complaint within the meaning of Cr. P. C. [60 C. 1].

11. Power to act in the jurisdiction another Police Station.—In S. 157 there is no provision preventing the Police Station from acting under the jurisdiction of another Police Station—12 P. R. 1915

12. Power to lock up the door of suspect's house in another Police Station.—See Notes under S. 145 Cr. P. C. infra.

13. Investigation into petty cases.—Investigation should ordinarily be made of a petty nature, e.g. when the report to the station is less than Rs. 50 or of such a nature as not to be easily obtainable or where the case is so trivial that best for all parties to leave it alone.—Pol. Code pp. 371 and 375; Pol. Man. 2 and 404; See X. p. 139; Mirza v. Vol. I. p. 311.

14. Investigation should be conducted at the spot whenever possible.—See Pol. Man. p. 10.

15. Investigation by another officer no sufficient ground exists.—When a sufficient ground for investigation has been for an officer in charge of a police station, the officer is competent to make such investigation unless he is authorised by a Magistrate to do—Cal. H. C. Cir. O. dated 20-7-71.

158. (1) Every report sent to a Magistrate under section 157 shall, if the Local Government so directs, be submitted through such superior of police as the Local Government, by general or special appoints in that behalf

(2) Such superior officer may give such instructions to the officer in charge of the police-station as he thinks fit, and shall, after recording such instructions on such report, transmit the same without delay to the Magistrate.

159. Such Magistrate, on receiving such report, may direct an investigation or, if he thinks fit, at once proceed, or depute any Magistrate subordinate to him to proceed, to hold a preliminary inquiry into, or otherwise to dispose of, the case in manner provided in this Code.

Notes.

1. Stage of the case at which Magistrate may act under S. 159 Cr. P. C.—An enquiry can be made under S. 159 only on a report submitted under S. 157 (1) Cr. P. C., on a report made before and not after the police investigation or enquiry into the case has been completed. The former is the preliminary report and the latter is the final report (generally called the khatma)—[4 C. N. 351 32 A 30 30 C 927 ('99) A. N. 87. See also 43 C 1152 4 L B 197]

2. Cases.—So where the information referred to the offence of criminal trespass, into a house with intent to have improper intercourse with one of the female inmates, but the police reported that they did not believe the object of trespass but were not disinclined to believe the charge of trespass—held—the report was not within the terms of S. 157 Cr. P. C. and the Magistrate could not therefore act under S. 159 [4 C. N. 351] A Magisterial enquiry held by a Deputy Magistrate.

3. Nature of the enquiry.—The enquiry authorised by S. 159 is a preliminary enquiry and not a supplementary or further enquiry subsequent to the receipt of a report by the police after full investigation into the truth of the information lodged under S. 154 Cr. P. C.—[('99) A. N. 87; 32 A 30. 17 C N 824] Once a police report declaring a charge of a cognisable offence to be false is accepted by the Magistrate, he cannot direct the police to send up a charge sheet for the offence, if there is nothing in the report or in the materials before the Magistrate to support a charge of that offence [11 C. N. 832]

4. Magistrate acting under S. 159 Cr. P. C. should not try the case.—If a Magistrate takes an active part in the arrest of persons charged with having committed an offence and tries them himself on that charge, he is bound to state to the accused, so far as he can, what are the facts he himself has observed and to which he can bear testimony; and the prisoner in such a situation has a right, if he thinks desirable, to cross-examine the Judge whose evidence should be recorded and should form part of the case. The better course, however, for the Magistrate would be to decline to try the case, and ask that it should be tried by some other Judge.—20 W R. 76 (Cr) See 20 C. 857.

5. The section does not apply when a complaint is made direct to the Magistrate. The proper procedure in such a case is to proceed under Chapter VI Cr. P. C.—See 30 C 923; 10 M T 220.

160. Any police-officer making an investigation under this Chapter may, by order in writing, require the attendance before himself of any person being within the limits of his own or any adjoining station who, from the information given or otherwise, appears to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case; and such person shall attend as so required.

Notes.

1. Order in writing.—The order must be in writing, no person is bound in law to attend. Where a Police Inspector sent a Constable to bring two persons without an order in writing, and a person induced them not to accompany the constable and give evidence, held—no conviction would lie under Ss. 186 and 189 I. P. C. [11st 850] A Police Constable who proceeds without an order in writing to bring a person to the Thana is not acting as a public servant acting in the discharge of his duty. It is therefore not an offence under S. 353 I. P. C. to assault him [20 Cr 48 (N)] Where the order is not in writing, disobedience of the order is not punishable under S. 174 I. P. C. [2 Weir 123]

3. Disobedience punishable under S. 174 I. P. C.—Provided the order is in writing and issued by a police-officer authorised to issue it, disobedience of the order would be punishable under S. 174 I. P. C.—24 C. 329.

4. The term "any person" does not include an accused person.—The section applies only to the cases of witnesses and possible witnesses only, an order cannot be made requiring the attendance of an accused person. [7 M. 274 (F. B.) 2 Weir 121 4 B R 614 (615); (20 '60) L R 317.] It appears to have become the practice of Police Officers in the mafil to hold a regular investigation of a quasi-judicial character in the presence of the accused and their agents but this is not contemplated by the law which lays down that the Police Officer may examine orally any person supposed to be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case [31 C. 1021.]

5. Powers of Police Officers under the Section.—

- (1) A police officer has no power to arrest or detain for even a single moment any person whose evidence may be required for the purposes of an investigation.—7 W. R. 3 (5)
- (2) He cannot in any case compel a witness by force to attend before him.—7 W. R. 3; See Rat 870. Also Beng. Pol. Man. 2nd Ed. p. 374
- (3) He cannot require the attendance of an accused person and on the latter failing to attend, to take him into custody. If he takes an accused person into custody in such circumstances, he would be guilty of wrongful confinement.—2 Weir 121.

161. (1) Any police-officer making an investigation under this Chapter may examine orally

Examination of witnesses by police, any person supposed to be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of the case.

(2) Such person shall be bound to answer all questions relating to such case put to him by such officer, other than questions the answers to which would have a tendency to expose him to a criminal charge or to a penalty or forfeiture.

Proposed amendments to the Section—In sub-section (1) of section 161 of the said Code, after the word "Chapter," the words "or any police-officer not below such rank as may be prescribed by the Local Government, acting on the requisition of such officer" shall be inserted.

Notes.

1. Amendment of the word "truly" after the word "answer" in the Code of 1882 rendered a person answering falsely liable to prosecution for perjury [See 10 C. 405.] The word "truly" was deliberately omitted in the Code of 1898 for the following reasons—"We have amended this clause by reverting to the law as it stood under the Codes of 1861 and 1872. . . . It seems to us unfair that a man should be liable to be convicted of giving false evidence, on the strength or by the aid of a statement supposed to have been given to a Police Officer but which is not given on oath, which he has not signed and which he has had no opportunity of verifying. Such statements may be hurriedly taken down as rough notes; the Police Officer is not trained in taking evidence and the

(1) He cannot take a security bond for the production of any person before the Police. Such a bond is at best void, and the Magistrate has no power to alter it and impose fresh conditions thereunder.—11 C. 77.

(2) He cannot require a surety to attend a Police station to be examined and to give information as to the persons for whom he stands surety.—(7) A. N. 49

6. A Magistrate cannot direct witnesses to attend a police investigation.—A Magistrate has no power to issue a warrant for the arrest and production of a person in order that such person may give evidence before the police during an investigation under Chap. XIV Cr. P. C. [21 C. 320; Rat 173.] The Magistrate of a District cannot interfere (except by way of suggestion and advice) with the exercise of the discretion given to a Police Officer by this section [Rat. 173.]

7. Procedure in the case of female witnesses.—It is an unusual course for the police to take a number of women away from their homes to the Police Station on the pretext that they wished to examine them. The examination would be properly conducted at the women's own houses.—0 C. N. 119.

Are statements made under S. 161 privileged?—There is a divergence of judicial opinion on the point. It has been held in 20 C. 642 that "S. 161 of the Code provides for the taking down of statements of witnesses by the Police. Such statements are not privileged and S. 172 is not intended to include such statements. The mere fact that such statements are inserted in the Special Diary would not make them privileged"—See also (196) A. N. 193 9 C. P. 33 19 A. 390 (F.B.) Incriminating questions.—Although under the Code of 1882, a witness was bound to answer truly, the rule did not apply when the answers would have a tendency to expose the deponent to a criminal charge [See (89) Rat 458. (90) Rat 518: Cf Rat 674 See also the present Code S. 161 (4)]

Mode of recording statements.

(1) Not necessary to record in the form of question and answer.—It is not necessary that the statements of witnesses recorded under this Section, should be elicited and recorded, in the form of question and answer—[7 P. R. 1896]. It is sufficient if the answers recorded are substantially correct. Ss 161 and 361 Cr. P. C. do not apply to an examination under S. 161 Cr. P. C. [15 A. 11]

(2) Witnesses cannot be put on oath or solemn affirmation.—15 A. 11

(3) Such statements should not be entered in the special diary.—Kept under S. 172 infra—33 C. 1023: See 20 C. 642 (96) A. N. 193 9 C. P. 33 Con 19 A. 390 (F.B.) So far as Burma is concerned the Executive Government have forbidden the incorporation in

Special Diaries of witness' statements in extenso [Bur. Pol. Man.—para 613] 18 Cr. 1022 (L. B.)

(4) Attestation.—It is not illegal, though unnecessary for a Police Officer, recording a statement under S. 161 Cr. P. C. to obtain the signature of a witness to it.—15 A. 11,

8. Notes of statements under S. 161 may be taken by any person.—There is no prohibition against any person present at the time when depositions are being taken or confessions made, to take down in writing what either a prisoner or a witness says. A pleader who uses such notes for his client's benefit will not be guilty of any misconduct, professional or otherwise.—10 C. 256, 9 Police Officer not bound to reduce Statements into writing.—It is not obligatory on the Station House Officer to reduce to writing any statement made to him during an investigation [11 B. H. 120] S. 162 Cr. P. C. does not control S. 157 of the Evidence Act. Oral evidence may be given of the statement made to the Police by a witness in order to corroborate the witness at the trial [36 C. 281] or to impeach the credit of a witness who made such a statement, under S. 155 of the Evidence Act [11 B. H. 120].—See also 35 M. 247 (F.B.): 35 M. 397 (F.B.).

10. Record of statement of accused preliminary to arrest.—Where a Police Officer is already in possession of evidence sufficient to justify the arrest of a person, he should not preliminary to such arrest, examine and obtain from that person a statement under this Section [27 C. 295]. Such statement if taken down, may be proved if it does not amount to a confession [See 3 N. 51 6 N. 160. 6 C. 530; 171 P. L. 1913 But see (93-00) L. B. 42 (45) 11 P. R. 1905 6 C. L. 47]

11. For other matters.—See Notes under the next Section (S. 162 Cr. P. C.)

12. Provisions of section when to be utilised.—The provisions of this section should not be utilised in any but "heinous cases". Heinous cases include cases triable exclusively by a Court of Sessions and those cases in which

162. (1) No statement made by any person to a police-officer in the course of an investigation under this Chapter shall, if taken down in writing, be signed by the person making it, nor shall such writing be used as evidence. Provided that, when any witness is called for the prosecution whose statement has been taken down in writing as aforesaid, the Court shall, on the request of the accused, refer to such writing, and may then, if the Court thinks it expedient in the interests of justice, direct that the accused be furnished with a copy thereof and such statement may be used to impeach the credit of such witness in manner provided by the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

6. The term "inducement"—The inducement must be with reference to any charge against the accused [1 A. 90; 5 M. J. 26;] S. 24 of the Evidence Act leaves it entirely to the Court to form its own opinion, as to whether the inducement threat or promise was sufficient to lead the prisoner to suppose that he would derive some benefit or avoid some evil of a temporal nature [9 B. H. 354 (F. B.); See Taylor's Ev. 10th Ed. p. 613.] An inducement promise or threat need not be express but may be implied from the conduct of the person in authority, the declaration of the prisoner or the circumstances of the case [Phil. Ev. 4th Ed. p. 244; Amir Ali and Woodroffe's Evidence Act 5th Ed. p. 254.] The age, the experience, intelligence and character of the accused must be taken into consideration in appreciating the influence of inducements which will invalidate a confession [(97/01) U. B. 147 (149)]

R. 404.] Promise of secrecy or fear alone without threats [Phil. Ev. 4th Ed. 244], do not fall within the terms "inducement, threat or promise". A confession obtained by practice of deception was held to be admissible under S. 29 of the Evidence Act [20 W. R. 33]

9. Use of oppression and trickery several punishable in Madras.—All oppression and trickery in regard to obtaining confessions are to be avoided by the Police under pain of the severe penalties, and the practice of employing private individuals to worm out confessions from accused persons is strictly prohibited—Mad. I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION.

1. Application of the Section.—The section distinguishes between statements which are confessions and statements which are not, and not between persons by whom statements of either character are made; and it is made for the purpose of prescribing different modes of record. Magistrates are not to be instruments of the police, recording statements at the desire of the police, irrespective of the desire of persons produced for making statements. He has a discretion to refuse to do so, although the statement is not a confession.—2 P. R. 1891. 29 C. 153.
2. Statement of a person not accused of an offence.—S. 146 Or P. C. authorises a Magistrate to record the statement of any person not accused of any offence as well as the confession of a person accused of an offence.—2 B. 613. 5 S. 74.
3. The word "confession" defined.—A confession is an admission made at any time by a person charged with a crime, stating or suggesting the inference that he committed the crime. Not only statements which amount to a direct acknowledgment of guilt are confessions, but also inculpatory statements which, although they fall short of a direct admission of guilt, yet lead to an inference of guilt.—5 L. B. 131.

4. Witnesses.

4 C. N. 49

- 5 When witnesses are likely to be gained over—A police officer having reason to believe delay.—2 C. 400.

6. Statements of witnesses recorded under the section to be taken with caution.—The statements of witnesses recorded under the section though admissible in evidence, are to be accepted with great caution. It the fact that it leads to an inference of guilt.—5 L. B. 131.

whether there was any occasion for pinning down witnesses to statements at a time when they were considerably under police influence.—7 C. J. 249

7. When witnesses appears of his free accord.—A Magistrate not having jurisdiction can record the statement of a witness under this section if the witness appears voluntarily before him.

29 C. 183.

8. Presidency Magistrates.—S. 161 (and as a necessary consequence S. 361 and S. 513 Cr. P. C.) does not apply to statements or confessions made to a Presidency Magistrate 15 C. 595 (F. B.); 21 B. 195

9. Statement made to Magistrate making investigation under S. 159 Cr. P. C. by the accused.—Such statements cannot be said to be statements either under S. 161 or S. 361 Cr. P. C.—2 C. N. 702.

10. Confession within the scope of S. 164 Cr. P. C.—A confession to come within the scope of S. 164 Cr. P. C. must be made either (1) in the course of an investigation under Ch. XIV or (2) at any time afterwards and before the commencement of the enquiry. The condition requiring the confession to be prior to the commencement of the enquiry or trial is only imposed when the investigation has ceased, and not when it is made in the course of the investigation.—37 C. 467

11. The word "statement" in S. 164 means the statement of a witness as opposed to the confession of an accused. The method prescribed for recording such statement is strongly confirmatory of this view. [Per Maclean J.].—2 C. N. 702. See 20 M. T. 21.

13. Statement made by the accused to Magistrate deputed to make local enquiry. Where an accused person stated before the committing Magistrate that the deceased had fallen from a terrace, and his respiration stopped and that he had buried his ornaments under a tree, and another Magistrate deputed to verify these statements took the accused to the place of occurrence and was shown a place on the roof of his house from which he said the boy had fallen, and the place where he admitted he had buried the body of the boy—held—that the statements made to the latter Magistrate were not admissible in evidence.—4 C. N. 22. See 2 C. N. 702

14. Statements of accused persons other than confessions cannot be recorded under S. 161 Cr. P. C.—2 C. N. 702. Contra 2 P. R. 146

15. Statement of accused recorded during proceedings under S. 202 Cr. P. C.—A statement of a person against whom a complaint was made cannot be recorded by a Magistrate during an enquiry under S. 202. Under the provisions of S. 161, such a statement cannot be admitted in evidence against the accused, as proving itself.—32 C. 1055

16. Verification proceedings.—Verification proceedings are proceedings taken with the object of testing the truth of a confession, and of obtaining evidence either corroborating the confession or indicating its falsity. They are not illegal but in connection with such proceedings the main concern of the Courts is to ensure that evidence not strictly admissible is not admitted. Additional statements made by the accused in the course of such proceedings, when not recorded in the manner provided in S. 164 Cr. P. C. are inadmissible in evidence.—45 C. 557. See 2 C. N. 702. 7 C. N. 220; 8 C. N. 22.

17. Confessions must be recorded in writing "Under the Code of 1872, it was held by a Full Bench of this Court, and the view was followed in other cases, that a confession was a document required by law to be reduced to writing for the purposes of S. 91 of the Indian Evidence Act [10 B. II. 166; 11 B. 44; 1 B. 219; 6 B. 284] All that I feel concerned to point out is that a confession under S. 161 of the Codes of 1882 and 1898 requires no less to be in writing than one under (the corresponding Section 122 of) the Code of 1872.—Per Shah J. 21 Cr. 63 (B); 35 A. 200

II. MAGISTRATES.

18. Statement of a person not accused of an offence.—S. 161 Cr. P. C. authorises a Magistrate to record the statement of any person not accused of any offence.—2 B. 643

19. Power to administer oath.—A Magistrate acting under S. 164 Cr. P. C. has power to administer oath to the person (not being an accused person) making a statement before him, by reason of the powers given in S. 4 and 5 of the Oaths Act (X of 1873)—16 M. 421. 29 M. 189

20. Powers under the Section.—A Magistrate has power to ascertain whether the person brought up is "disposed to make a statement of his own free will." He is at liberty to bring to the notice of such person that he is not under obligation to make a statement and that any statement he makes may be used against him.

21. Confession recorded by a Magistrate who is also police officer.

In Burnah, a Magistrate exercising police powers and possessing the title of a police officer can record a confession, but a Magistrate so doing should be careful to record fully the circumstances under which he records the confession, both in order to show that the confession was voluntarily made, and also that he has, so far as possible, divested himself for the time being, of his police authority and of his police surroundings, and other signs of such authority before proceeding to record such confession.—7 Bur. 100.

22. Examination of the accused.—Magistrate is not entitled to examine an accused in respect of facts of the case. He can only record his voluntary statement.—5 C. N. 864. But see 20 O. C. 136.

23. Magistrates who cannot record confessions.

(1) Honorary Magistrate with third class powers—he is generally not empowered to do so (when acting on the bench).—21 C 453 C 453 Pat J 29 (F. B.)

(2) Village Magistrates—are also not empowered. (3) Under the Code of 1872, the Magistrate who was told off the enquiry or to try the case was precluded from receiving confessions. See 5 C 354 10 B 166 5 A 253. But these rulings are now obsolete. There is no such restriction under the present law. 37 C 467 5 A 31

24. Magistrates not having jurisdiction.—In the corresponding section in the Code of 1861 (S 149) any Magistrate and not merely the Magistrate having jurisdiction could record confession [7 B 11 56]. These principles were adopted in Cr. P. C 1872. See ss 22, 122 and 45 [10 B 11, 166]. The procedure was disapproved in Rat 254. In Rat 466 it has been held that "there is no provision in Cr. P. C empowering a police officer to require a witness to go to a Magistrate not having jurisdiction over the offence, to have his statement taken under s 161. Such a statement cannot be used as evidence at the trial. The point has however been definitely settled by the explanation added to the section. A Magistrate recording a confession need not now be one having jurisdiction in the case.—[3 Pat. J. 291 (F. B.)]

25. Magistrate having jurisdiction to deal with the offence.—If the confessions be made before a Magistrate who has jurisdiction to deal with the matter to which they relate, it is sufficient if the provisions of S 364 are complied with. 6 C L 249 5 C 954 5 A 253

[Note. These rulings are now obsolete. See 37 C 467]

26. Inducement to confess.—A Magistrate acts without due discretion when as a prosecutor, he holds out promises to prisoners as an inducement to confess. 1 W R 21.

27. Conflict of rulings under the former Codes

(a) There is a conflict of decisions as to whether the words "a Magistrate" in S 149 Cr. P. C, 1861 means "any Magistrate having jurisdiction". The former procedure seems to have been to have the confession recorded by a Magistrate not having jurisdiction to try the matter.—See 5 C. L. 278 7 B 11 56 23 W R 16.

(c) Confession recorded by the Magistrate who also enquires into or tries the case is not a confession as contemplated by S 122 Cr. P. C = S 161 Cr. P. C, 1898. 5 C 954. See 5 A 253.

[These rulings and the ruling in 10 B. II, 166 are obsolete.—See 37 C 467 at p 495]

28. Statements recorded by third class Magistrates.—See (13) Miscellaneous

III. WHO CAN RECORD CONFESSION.

29. Duty of Magistrates.—It is the duty of the Magistrate who directs a police investigation or who holds a preliminary enquiry to record statements under s 161. It is his duty to see that the accused confessed voluntarily and to record the confession truly.—5 S 31

30. Magistrates taking active part in the police investigation are precluded by S 575 Cr. P. C from trying the case.—See 23 C 324

Note.—It cannot be contended that a confession recorded by a Magistrate who afterwards conducts the enquiry is outside the provisions of S 161 Cr. P. C [3 C N 387 (391)].—A Magistrate is not debarred from recording the confession of an accused person by the circumstance that it may afterwards be his duty to hold a preliminary enquiry.—[Rat 121 5 S 31]

32. Subdivisional Magistrate.—can record confession of an accused person outside the limits of his subdivision, but within the limits of his district.—(97) U B 16

33. Record by Magistrate having jurisdiction.—See 2 Magistrates (25)

34. Confessions recorded by Magistrate not empowered.—Admissible in evidence. See 13 W R 69 [164 (1) as it stands at present empowers all Magistrates who are not police officers to record confessions.] See 1 C 207, 17 B 485

35. Private individuals.—A confession made to a private individual may be evidence against the prisoner, if proved by the person before whom such confession was made.—13 W R 69

36. Magistrate who took part in the police investigation.—The fact that the Magistrate took part in the police investigation does not disqualify him for performing these duties.—5 S 31.

37. Police officers holding Magisterial powers.—See (12) Police officer.

37A. Magistrates who can and who cannot record confession.—See (2) Magistrates.

IV. WHEN CAN CONFESSIONS BE RECORDED.

38. At commencement of the trial.—Confession may be made at the commencement of a trial or inquiry before a Magistrate who has jurisdiction to deal with the matter to which it relates, whether or not the case be still under the investigation of the police [60 L. 29] the confession may be made during or before the commencement of an investigation by the police—

5 C. L. 238

39. A confession to come within the scope of S. 164, Cr. P. C. must be made either (1) in the course of an investigation under Ch. XIV or (2) at any time afterwards before the commencement of the inquiry or trial—37 C. 407

40. Confession to be recorded only if voluntary.—The indiscriminate use of the provisions of S. 164 Cr. P. C. is to be deprecated. No statement should be recorded under that section unless the person making it is a free agent and voluntarily agrees to have his statement taken down.—16 P. R. 1918. 2 P. R. 190

V. PERSONS MAKING CONFESSION OR STATEMENT.

41. Person making statement under S. 164. before a magistrate is a witness within the meaning of S. 5 of the Oaths Act, and can be charged with perjury with respect to such statement
16 M. 121
42. Accused person making statement or confession under S. 164, commits no offence under S. 180 P. C. by refusing to sign it when required—4 B. 15 80. 3 L. B. 109

[Note.—The signature is unnecessary when the confession is made to a trying court—3 C. 756.]

43. Cannot be examined or cross-examined in respect of facts of the case.
5 C. N. 261; See 1 L. B. 312.

44. Statement of a person undergoing imprisonment respecting the offence for which he was convicted.—A statement made by a prisoner undergoing a sentence of imprisonment implicating another person in the commission of the offence for which he was convicted cannot be recorded under S. 164 Cr. P. C., and is inadmissible in evidence—21 Cr. 129 (1).

VI. PROCEDURE IN RECORDING CONFESSIONS.

45. Recording imperative.—Under S. 164 Cr. P. C. a confession, shall be recorded, and if not recorded, no evidence of it can be received,
2 L. B. 19 21 Cr. 63 (B) [Per Shah J.]
46. Procedure must be strictly followed.—The provisions of this section are imperative and S. 533, will not render a confession admissible where no attempt at all is made to conform to its provisions—9 M. 224 1 C. 606 5 C. L. 203 Contra—(83) A. N. 238.
47. Voluntary character.—The circumstance that a confessional statement is made voluntarily shall be ascertained before and not after recording the confession—2 Weir 136 1 B. R. 357.

Note.—But the fact that instead of asking the accused about the voluntary nature of the confessional statement, the Magistrate asked him at the end, is merely a defect of form, that does not alter the character of the confession—40 C. 873.

48. Difference in procedure in respect of statements of witnesses and confession of the accused.—Under S. 164, the statement of witnesses as well as the confession of an accused person can be recorded—[2 B. 64] The difference of procedure however is as follows—
- (1) The statements of witnesses are recorded on oath. But as the accused cannot be put on oath, no oath can be administered to him—See 29 M. 89 Cr. R. 8 of 10 206.
 - (2) The statement of witnesses can be taken down in the narrative form. But in the case of confessions it must be taken in the form of question and answer—[S. 364] See 5 S. 174 20 M. T. 21 23 B. 613
49. Record of all questions put to accused not absolutely necessary.—It is not absolutely necessary for a Magistrate recording the confession of an accused person to put down all the questions put by him to the accused, if such questions are merely formal.—9 C. J. 55

50. Record only of the substance of the confession.—Where the confession is not recorded in the manner prescribed by S. 164 and 361, but is only a summary record of what the accused said as to their defence after pleading not guilty, and where moreover it is subsequently retracted, it cannot be admitted in evidence—(9) U. B. 1—q. 3

51. Confession under times under when he records the confession is both in order to show that the confession is voluntarily made and also that he has as far as possible divested himself of his police authority and surroundings—7 Bur 100

52. Magistrate standing by while police recording confession.—The mere fact that the Magistrate stood by while the confession was being made to the police is not sufficient—12 W. R. 62.

53. The word "record"—meaning.—The word "record" in S. 164 Cl. (3) Cr. P. C. must necessarily mean "making a part of judicial record" and not merely writing out—8 B. R. 950.

54. Proceeding is judicial.—A proceeding under S. 164 Cr. P. C. is a judicial proceeding and an oath can be administered—29 M. 89

55. Form of the record.—A confession is not rendered inadmissible if the accused has not been prejudiced, merely because it is taken down in the narrative form—9 C. J. 55; 14 C. 539; 8 C. 616 1 C. L. 1 (F. B.); 12 C. L. 121;

 Crim.—10 B R 497; 10 B R 166; See (1902)
 U. B. I. (1) 3.

Note—The terms of the law require that the record should be signed not only by the person who makes the confession or statement but also by the Magistrate, and that in addition thereto, there should be a certificate in the terms prescribed. Such a confession or statement to be admissible in evidence must strictly comply with the terms of the law.—3 C N. 387

56. Confessions during trial (i) Need not be recorded as Magistrate is competent to convict on the admission of the prisoner. 3 C 756; 2 O. L. 317.

(ii) Need not be attested. {H. I.}

57. Signature of the accused. No obligation is cast by S. 164 and S. 764 Cr. P. C. on the accused to sign the record [3 C 756]. But where the accused can write and only his thumb impression is taken the confession is invalid [See 3 (2) General clauses Act] 32 C 570. See also 10 B. H. 166.

Note—It is not absolutely illegal to take the signature of the accused to the confession immediately after it is recorded.—9 C J. 55

58. Object of the Signature. The signature of the accused to the confession recorded by the Magistrate, is taken as a voucher of the authenticity of the statement and not as an admission of its contents.—9 C J. 55 (68). The signature is strong test whether the confession was free and voluntary and is intended to afford the confessor a locus penitentiae before the completion of the record.—10 B. H. 166.

59. Duration of police custody Magistrates when recording confessions, should always record whether the accused has been brought from police custody or the jail (1 C P. 115). He should ascertain and record (in the case of a person who has been in police custody), the period during which the accused was in custody in order to satisfy himself whether the confession was voluntary or not (25 B 543). A person does not cease to be in police custody merely because at the time of recording the confession there is no police officer in the room (Rit 855 B H C Cr R. 29-5 1896). But a confession duly recorded does not become invalid by reason of the omission to state that the accused was not in police custody at the time. Rit 531. See also 5 C 959; 6 C L. 333.

60. Power of the Magistrate to question the accused—The law does not contemplate or authorise inquisitorial procedure by a Magistrate who is called upon to record a confession under S. 164 Cr. P. C., but it cannot be argued that a Magistrate is forbidden to ask questions, for in the first place, he must satisfy himself that the statement proposed to be made is voluntary, and he can only do so by addressing questions to the person who is to make the statement. In the next place we do not see why a Magistrate should not ask questions for the purpose of making clear and intelligible any particular passage of the statement made to him. At the same time it is not permissible for a Magistrate to question an accused person as to facts which had previously come to the Magistrate's knowledge for the purpose of extracting statements to be afterwards used as evidence.—Per Lindsay J. C. and Kanhaiya Lal A. J. C. 20, O. C. 136 See 37 C 167; 17 W. R. 71

61. Procedure as laid down in Circular orders etc.—The following rules may be taken as well established and ought to be followed by all Magistrates recording confessions. They have been constructed out of the Provincial Government Circulars and General Letters of the High Courts as well as the decisions of the various High and Chief Courts in India.

62. Rule No 1.—Police officers must first be rigorously excluded before the Magistrate even warns the accused. [Mad G. O. No 2883 J. of 17-12-'87, as amended by G. O. No 1181 J. dated 1st Nov 1909 See also Bomb. H. C. Cr. Cir. p. 2 17 B R 893; 11 C J. 273.]

Note—That this has been done should be recorded 1 C P. 113. See 7 Bur 100

63. Rule No 1A.—An accused person should ordinarily be warned that he was before a Magistrate. But the warning would be unnecessary if the accused is already cognisant of the fact.—9 C J. 55.

64. Rule No. 2.—He should be asked with what object he was confessing. [1 B R 377 18 Cr 721 (Pat)] He should be asked some such question as—"Why are you confessing? Are you sorry for your crime? Or is it that some one has told you that you will gain something by a confession?" [18 Cr 721 (Pat) See also 5 C P. 13]

65. Rule No. 3.—He should then be told that whatever he might say will be used against him. [Mad G. O. above and Cal. H. C. Gen. L. No 1 of 30-1-17] See also 15 Cr 633 (O). But See M. H. (ap) xi 10 C 775

Note—The Magistrate should state how the accused was warned. 14 W. R. 81

68. Rule No. 6.—The confessing prisoner should be told that after the confession has been recorded he will not have to go back to police custody.—15 Cr. 33 (O)

83. Procedure as laid down by the Calcutta High Court by its General Letter No 1; Dated the 30th July, 1917, superseding the High Court's Circular, Memorandum No 7 dated the 30th July 1873 and Circular Order No 3, dated the 24th March 1880 (embodied in Rules 23 and 21, chapter I, page 8. Vol I. of the General Rules and Circular orders, Criminal):—

- (1) Where at any place or station there are present more Magistrates than one, confessions should in general be recorded by the Magistrate specially selected for this purpose by the District Magistrate or failing such selection by the Magistrate senior in rank or class.
 - (2) Confessions should ordinarily be recorded in open Court and during Court hours.
 - (3) During the examination of the accused and the record of his statement, unless in the opinion of the Magistrate the safe custody of the prisoner cannot otherwise be secured, police officers should not be present. In particular, the police officers concerned in the investigation of the case or in the arrest or production of the accused should be excluded.
 - (4) When the accused is produced the Magistrate should ascertain when and where the alleged offence was committed and by questioning the accused should further ascertain, when and where the accused was first placed under police observation, control or arrest.
 - (5) The Magistrate should next question the accused in order to ascertain whether he is about to speak voluntarily. It should be made clear to the prisoner that he is free to speak or to refrain from speaking as he pleases and he should be warned that if he chooses to speak, anything he says will be used in evidence against him.
 - (6) When upon questioning the prisoner and from observation of the demeanour, the Magistrate has reason to believe that the prisoner is speaking or is about to speak voluntarily the Magistrate should then proceed to record his statement. While carefully avoiding anything in the nature of cross-examination the Magistrate should endeavour to record his statement in the fullest detail and to this end may properly put such questions, not being leading questions, as may be necessary to enable the prisoner to state all that he desires to state and to enable the Magistrate clearly to understand his meaning.
2. The form in use for the record of confessions under S. 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Form No (M) 64) reproduced at page 135 Vol II. of the High Court's General Rules and Circular Orders (Criminal) is cancelled and in lieu thereof the following form shall be used by the Court.
3. The High Court at the same time desire to draw the attention of the Magistrate to the provisions of S 167 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and to the importance of exercising a sound judicial discretion in the matter of granting or refusing remands thereunder.
- (1) Orders, under the section, it is to be observed should be made in the presence of the prisoner, and after hearing any objection he may have to make to the proposed order.

- (2) When further detention is considered necessary, the remand should be for the shortest possible period.
- (3) Application for remand to police custody should be carefully scrutinised and in general should be granted only when it is shown that the presence of the accused with police is necessary for the identification of persons, the discovery or identification of property, or the like special reason.

(4) In particular the Court is of opinion, that applications, if ever made for the remand to police custody of a prisoner who has failed to make an expected confession or statement, should not be granted.

- 83.1 Prisoner fresh from police custody.—A Magistrate recording a confession of a prisoner fresh from the hands of the police would exercise a sound discretion, if before recording the confession he takes the evidence of the witnesses for prosecution.—(82) A N 166.

VII. LANGUAGE IN WHICH CONFESSION IS TO BE RECORDED.

84. Language in which the confession is made, unless impracticable.—It is clear from S 164 and 364 Cr P C that the confession is to be recorded in the language in which it was made or if that is not practicable, in the language of the Court or English. It would be for the prosecution to establish the impracticability, if any existed. 17 C 562 (270) See 15 C 549. 10 O C 112 (10300) L B 70 2 L B 19 (103) U. B 13.
85. English record of confession made in Bengali.—Where the Magistrate recorded in English, a confession given in Bengali, and it was stated in evidence that the Magistrate could not write Bengali well and there was no Mohuriz with him at the time, held—that the provisions of S. 364 had been sufficiently complied with. 32 C 817.
86. Hindustani confession recorded in Bengali.—Where a Mahomedan Magistrate recorded a confession given in Hindustani in the language of the Court (Bengalee) Held—in the absence of the evidence to the contrary that the Magistrate adopted of necessity the alternative of having the confession recorded in the Court language and it was admissible.—18 C 549.
87. 87. Where a statement made in one language is recorded in a different language, it is highly doubtful, whether the defect can be cured by S. 533 Cr. P. C. 15 C 695 See (92) A N 60.

88. The General Rule.—A confession should be recorded in the language in which it is made.—1 N P 16.
89. Confession made in Hindi recorded in English.—Confession recorded in English, though made in Hindi, which the Sub-Deputy Magistrate understood and could write is inadmissible in evidence.—17 C 862.
90. Statement in Marathi recorded in English.—Where in spite of the fact, that an interpreter was present and subordinate officials who could have recorded the statement in Marathi were at hand, the Magistrate recorded, the statement made in Marathi in English, held—the irregularity not having injured the accused in his defence on the merits, the case was covered by S 533 Cr P C.—21 D 495. 4 B R 785. See O S 277.
91. Confession made in foreign language.—A confession made by an accused person in a foreign language need not be recorded in that language. It should be recorded in the language in which the statement is interpreted to the Court. 5 C 826.
92. Admissibility of confession not recorded in the language in which it was made.—Evidence should be taken that the statement recorded is that of the person who made it, and when this is proved, the confession is admissible in evidence, provided, the error has not in any way injured the accused. 10 O C 122. 2 M 5 18 C 549 21 B 495. 23 B 221.

VIII. VOLUNTARY—MEANING AND CASES.

93. No form of questions is prescribed by S. 164 (3) Cr. P. C.—from which a Magistrate recording a confession must satisfy himself that he believes the confession was made voluntarily.—3 Pat J 291 (F. B.).
94. Statement in which a Police Officer interfered.—A statement cannot be said to be properly recorded under S 164 Cr P C, if a Police Officer is present at the time it is made and is allowed to put questions to the deponent. 21 Cr 418 (F).
95. Distinction between 'voluntary' and 'spontaneous'.—A statement may be voluntary, though it is not spontaneous to the extent that the idea of making it has been suggested by some other person, as for instance by a Police officer.—Per Plowden J, in 2 P. R. 1803.

96. Confession elicited by questions.—Confessional statements elicited by improper questions on the part of a Magistrate is inadmissible, on the ground that it was impossible to treat the statements so elicited as voluntarily made.—2 Weir 137 See 1 L B 342 Con 37 C 467.
97. What amounts to illegal inducement. A confession caused by illegal inducement or by illegal detention of the accused's relatives is irrelevant and the question of its truth is immaterial. (79) U B I (Ev) 3 2 L B. 168. (92-96) U B I 83.
98. Promise of pardon, highly improper.—The inducement that in case the accused made a further confession, he would be made an approver is most improper.—2 Weir 137.
99. Confession made some days after arrest, even if true, is not voluntary and is in almost every instance, extorted by maltreatment or induced by promise of pardon—9 A. 524 (566)

100. Circumstances justifying inference that confession is not voluntary.—"The unjustifiable violence used to the accused before arrest, his illegal detention in police custody for more than 24 hours after arrest, and the marks of violence on his person, unexplained, are sufficient to vitiate the voluntary character of the confession and to make it inadmissible in evidence"—1 B. R. 357

Enquiry into the voluntary character or otherwise.

101. When to be made.—The circumstance that a confessional statement is voluntarily made should be ascertained by a Magistrate before and not after recording it. 2 W. R. 136. 5 A. 253. 3 C. N. 111. 1 B. R. 357. 2 L. R. 213. 3 L. B. 1. Con. 40 C. 87.
102. Enquiry not merely a matter of form.—The questioning of the accused before recording a confession is a matter of substance and not of mere form and if it has been omitted, the omission cannot be cured by any evidence under S. 533 Cr. P. C.—3 L. B. 173
103. Magistrate must be affirmatively satisfied.—Magistrates acting under this Section, must be affirmatively satisfied of the voluntariness of the confession, and in case of doubt, they ought not to record or give the certificate. 25 B. 164. 5 S. 31. Cr. R. 5 of 26-3-07
104. Precautions to be taken in recording confessions.—Great care and circumspection are necessary in recording a confession under S. 164 Cr. P. C. It is necessary to record the ensue if he falsely implicates himself, in the hope of release, and to ask him whether the Police or any other person has subjected him to any ill treatment. A Magistrate ought by putting questions which occur to him, to make himself conscientiously satisfied that the man is a free agent and the confession is voluntary and has not been procured by threats or inducements—1 O. J. 407. See 8 B. H. 126

105. Duty of the Magistrate.—A Magistrate, in order to ascertain whether a confession is voluntary, should try to find out the object of it. He should not be content with a few formal questions. The section contemplates that the Magistrate shall hear the confession first, without making any record, and shall then put questions to ascertain whether the confession is voluntary, and then if he has reason to believe it to be voluntary, he may record the confession, writing out in full, every question put by him and every answer given by the accused and following the provisions of S. 364 Cr. P. C.—3 L. B. 173

106. Steps to be taken.

Magistrate shall record any such confession, unless upon questioning the person making it, he has reason to believe that it was made voluntarily. It is the invariable practice of the Deputy Magistrates in the Province to ignore entirely this provision of the Code. It is considered sufficient to make use of a stock phrase which in this instance runs: "I am a Magistrate; if you want to make any statement of your own accord, you may do so, do not make any statement which you have been tutored by others to make" and then follows the story of the crime without any answer whatever to the Magistrate's formula. To my mind, a Magistrate might just as well say to the accused "Aceu preua" or "abra ca di bra" Such phrases would be as much a compliance with the terms of S. 164(3) as any formula now in vogue. What is meant by the Code, is that the Magistrate should ask the accused some such question as "why are you confessing? Are you sorry for your crime or is that someone else has told you that you will gain something by a confession," and to refuse to proceed with the recording of the confession until he has had a satisfactory answer to his question. The attention of the Magistrates has been drawn several times to this defect in the procedure, but the comments of the Court have invariably been completely ignored. In my view, the Local Government should take steps to see that Magistrates understand the requirements of S. 164 (3) and that if Magistrates fail to observe them, they are severely reprimanded." Roe J. in S. R. 721 (Pat).

107. Motive of confession.—Under S. 164(3) a Magistrate is bound to question the accused closely as to his motive in making a confession and if he fails to do so, he has no jurisdiction to say that he is satisfied that the confession is voluntarily made—1 Pat. W. 388. 18 Cr. 721 (Pat)
108. How to lay a foundation for the belief that a confession is voluntary.—When a prisoner is brought before a Magistrate to make a confession, the Magistrate must question him with a view to discovering whether the prisoner confesses voluntarily, and this question must be made in pursuance of a real endeavour to find out the object of it, the requirements not being satisfied by a few formal questions. In fact the wording of the subsection contemplates that the Magistrate shall hear the confession first without making a record, that he shall then put questions made as to whether the confession is voluntary it is inadmissible in evidence and cannot be taken into consideration at all

3 L. B. 173

109. Omission to enquire into voluntary character, a fatal defect and why.—A Magistrate, before recording a confession is bound to carefully examine the accused and ascertain that he is not willing to make a statement owing to any inducement, threat or promise, but that his confession is purely voluntary. This is specially necessary in this country, where the police

XII. RETRACTED CONFESSIONS.

146. Reason for frequent retraction of confessions in India.—"My experience in this Court has conclusively satisfied my mind of two things—first, that in almost every case of serious gravity or difficulty, the primary object towards which the police direct their attention and energies is, if possible, to secure a confession, and secondly that such confessions, if subsequently retracted, is, as an item of judicial proof, unless corroborated by strong and independent evidence, positively worthless. Instead of working up to the confession they work down from it, with the result that we frequently find ourselves compelled to reverse convictions."

merely because the accused has stated in his subsequent examination that some of the statements in it are untrue, especially when these statements have no bearing on the guilt of the accused—2 O J 55.

149. When a retracted confession should not be acted on.

- (a) Confession made under police coercion but subsequently withdrawn is inadmissible in evidence.—6 C N 390—But See 11 B H 137
- (b) In capital cases, the Jury should refrain from convicting on retracted confessions—Rat 245; See 3 B R 441.

150. Where no coercion is proved.—In the absence of anything to show that the retracted confession was not made voluntarily or was made under coercion, it is evidence not only against the accused but may also be treated as evidence against his whole case.—2 Pat J 80

151. Judicial notice

... instance as represented. In this country the retraction follows almost invariably as a matter of course, and though I am well aware how this is sought to be explained by a suggestion of the influence brought to bear upon the confessor by other prisoners in hatalat, the fact remains—an endless source of anxiety and difficulty to those who have to see that justice is properly administered"—per Straight J. in 6 A 509 (F.B.) at p 542

147. Duty of the Court.—It is unsafe to act upon a retracted confession, unless on consideration of the whole evidence in the case, the Court comes to the unhesitating conclusion that it is true. It is very difficult, if not impossible, to come to such conclusion unless the confession is corroborated by credible independent evidence.—18 A 78 Cr R 5 of 25-3 '07 Con—19 B. 728 improperly induced. This is a question for the Court to answer in limine 8 B. R. 697 3 B R. 441 1 Bur S 423.

Note.—Retraction in part.—A confession does not become wholly inadmissible in evidence

152. The use of retracted confession is matter of procedure rather than of law.—A retracted confession, if proved to be voluntarily made, can be acted upon along with other evidence in the case. There is no rule of law that a retracted confession must be supported by independent reliable evidence, corroborating it, in material particulars. The use to be made of such a confession is a matter of procedure, rather than of law—19 B 728 23 B 316 Con Rat. 932 2 S 34

XIII. MEMORANDUM.

153. The making of a memorandum is a judicial or at least quasi-judicial act—6 B. 288

154. S. 364 para 3 does not apply.—The memorandum required by S. 364 para 3 is not necessary

170. Statements on oath by accused persons.—Where certain persons were called upon to make statements on oath, as to a matter in respect of which they occupied the position of accused persons, hold that the statements were not such as could have been recorded under S. 164 Cr. P. C. hence no prosecution lay even if such statements were false—7 S. 75

171. Onus of proving that confession is voluntary, is in England on the prosecution [See R. v. Thompson 2 Q. B. 12; R. v. Rose L. J. Q. R. 284; Russell on Crimes p. 457 Vol. 2 R. R. 157 (Journal)]. But in India a confession duly recorded, would be prima facie admissible as voluntary unless the contrary is established by the accused—23 B. 108; Con. 2 C. N. extra. Rat 052

172. Accused not entitled to get copies.—Neither under the Criminal Procedure Code nor under the general principles of common law, is an accused person under remand entitled to copies of statements recorded by a Magistrate under this Section. 30 M. 100.

173. Confession in a previous case.—A confession by an accused person in a previous proceeding is inadmissible in evidence without proof of the accused's identity. 11 C. 580; ('93-'00) L. B. 70.

165. (1) Whenever an officer in charge of a police-station, or a police-officer making an investigation, considers that the production of any document or thing is necessary to the conduct of an investigation into any offence which he is authorized to investigate, and there is reason to believe that a person to whom a summons or order under section 94 has been or might be issued will not or would not produce such document or thing according to the directions of the summons or order, or when such document or thing is not known to be in the possession of any person, such officer may search, or cause search to be made, for the same, in any place within the limits of the station of which he is in charge, or to which he is attached.

(2) Such officer shall, if practicable, conduct the search in person.

(3) If he is unable to conduct the search in person, and there is no other person competent to make the search present at the time, he may require any officer subordinate to him to make the search, and he shall deliver to such subordinate officer an order in writing, specifying the document or thing for which search is to be made, and the place to be searched, and such subordinate officer may thereupon search for such thing in such place.

(4) The provisions of this Code as to search-warrants shall, so far as may be, apply to a search made under this section.

Proposed amendments to the Section—In section 165 of the said Code—

(i) For sub-sections (1) and (2), the following sub-sections shall be substituted, namely —

(1) Whenever an officer in charge of police-station, or a police-officer making an investigation, has reasonable grounds for believing that anything necessary for the purposes of an investigation into any offence which he is authorized to investigate may be found in any place within the limits of the police-station of which he is in charge, or to which he is attached, and that such thing cannot in his opinion be otherwise obtained without undue delay, such officer may search, or cause search to be made, for the same in any place within the limits of such station.

(2) A police-officer proceeding under sub-section (1) shall, if practicable, conduct the search in person "

(ii) In sub-section (3), for the words "specifying the document or thing for which search is to be made and the place to be searched" the words "specifying the place to be searched and, so far as possible, the thing for which search is to be made" shall be substituted

(iii) In sub-section (4), after the words "search warrants," the words "and the general provisions as to searches contained in section 102 and section 103" shall be inserted

Notes.

1. Scheme of the Code as regards searches.—The scheme as regards searches under the Code of Criminal Procedure is as follows—(1) The Court can issue a search warrant under S. 100, or (2) in lieu of that the Magistrate may himself search under S. 103; and (3) S. 105 deals with searches by a Police officer and not by a Magistrate 36 C. 433

2. Searches outside the limits of the Police Station.—An officer in charge of a Police Station has no authority to search beyond the limits of his station. If he does so in company of a Police Constable belonging to the Police Station within the limits of his station, the search is valid.

3. Authority to look up the door of the suspect's house.—Reading S. 165 Cr. P. C. with S 157 Cr. P. C., it follows that the police have authority to lock up the doors of the house they intend to search and to keep guard over the house as part of their ordinary duties. 12 P. II, 1915
4. The powers under the Section extend to the search of an accused person's house.—41 C 261 See 16 C N. 1078.
5. Search must be for specific articles and not a general search.—The law does not empower a Police Officer to search an accused person's house for anything but the specific articles which have been or can be made the subject of summons or warrant to produce. A general search for stolen property is not authorised and the law cannot be got over by using such an expression as "stolen property relevant to the case," as the law requires the mention of specific things—16 C N 1078, 15 C 109; 41 C 261; 38 C 304, 12 C N 1016, 35 M J 127; See also 12 C N 973, 13 A J 979; C P. 7. Search for arms.—Without the order of a

Magistrate does not override S. 165 Cr. P. C. [114 P. L 1903] A search for arms, without the previous sanction required by S. 29 of the Act, and without a search warrant is improper as not being covered by the provisions of S. 25 of the Arms Act or S. 165 Cr. P. C. [27 C, 692]

8. Persons empowered to search.—Under S. 12 of Act V. of 1861 it has been declared that the Extra-Assistant Superintendents of Police attached to a detective department shall have the powers of officers in charge of police station for the purposes of searching houses in each District where they may be employed. The Extra-Assistants while exercising these powers, can, under the terms of this section, by written order in any particular case, direct the Head-constables in the detective department who are subordinate to them to make search in any house or place—*Beng. (1) Although house searches may be made at any time, as a general rule, where the search, can be delayed without danger to the chance of recovering the object of the search, it ought to be made between sunrise and sunset [See R. & O N W P. § 10 P. 273; Beng. Pol. Man 2nd Ed p 222 and 492. Mad. Pol. Man. Vol. I. p 114].

(2) Steps to be taken to prevent introduction of articles from outside.—Before entering the premises the exterior of the place to be search will be examined, and it will be ascertained whether there is easy access or opportunity of introducing articles without the knowledge of the inmates. Precautions will be taken to prevent this being done while the search is in progress.—C. P. Pol Man p 161.

(3) Search should be made in the presence of two or more respectable persons.—See. Mad. Pol. Man. Vol. I. 113; M. P. O. No 23 of 1900

(4) List to be prepared.—A List of all things seized in the course of a search and of the places in which they were found shall be prepared and

(6) Reasons for search to be recorded in the Station Register.—In every case in which an officer in charge of a Police Station exercises the powers vested in him under this section, he will record concisely but explicitly in the Station House Register his reasons for deciding to search or cause search to be made in any house. This should as a rule be done before the S. H. O. proceeds himself to search or issues his order in writing to his subordinates.—Mad. Pol. Man I 114

11. Search by constable without written order.—A constable making a search without the written order required by Cl. 3 does not lawfully exercise the power of a public servant. Resistance offered to him in the course of such search, by way of private defence will not be an offence under S.

166. (1) An officer in charge of a police-station may require an officer in charge of another police-station, whether in the same or a different district, to cause a search to be made in any place, in any case in which the former officer might cause such search to be made, within the limits of his own station.

(2) Such officer, on being so required, shall proceed according to the provisions of section 165, and shall forward the thing found if any, to the officer at whose request the search was made.

Proposed amendments to the section.—(3) In sub-section (1) of section 166 of the said Code, after the words "an officer in charge of a police-station" the words "or a police-officer making an investigation" shall be inserted,

(4) After sub-section (2) of the same section, the following sub-sections shall be added, namely:—

"(3) Whenever there is reason to believe that the delay occasioned by requiring an officer in charge of another police-station to cause a search to be made under sub-section (1) might result in evidence of the commission of an offence being concealed or destroyed, it shall be lawful for an officer in charge of a police-station or a police-officer making an investigation under this Chapter to search, or cause to be searched, any place in the limits of another police-station, in accordance with the provisions of section 165, as if such place were within the limits of his own station

"(4) Any officer conducting a search under sub-section (3) shall forthwith send notice of the search to the officer in charge of the police-station within the limits of which such place is situate, and shall also send with such notice a copy of the list (if any) prepared under section 103 "

Notes.—See Note No. 2 under S. 165 for procedure relating to searches outside police stations.

167. (1) Whenever it appears that any investigation under this Chapter cannot be completed within the period of twenty-four hours fixed by section 61, and there are grounds for believing that the accusation or information is well-founded, the officer in charge of the police-station shall forthwith transmit to the nearest Magistrate a copy of the entries in the diary hereinafter prescribed relating to the case, and shall at the same time forward the accused (if any) to such Magistrate.

(2) The Magistrate to whom an accused person is forwarded under this section may, whether he has or has not jurisdiction to try the case, from time to time authorize the detention of the accused in such custody as such Magistrate thinks fit, for a term not exceeding fifteen days in the whole. If he has not jurisdiction to try the case or commit it for trial, and considers further detention unnecessary, he may order the accused to be forwarded to a Magistrate having such jurisdiction.

(3) A Magistrate authorizing under this section detention in the custody of the police shall record his reasons for so doing.

(4) If such order is given by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, he shall forward a copy of his order, with his reasons for making it, to the Magistrate to whom he is immediately subordinate

Proposed amendments to the Section—In sub-section (1) of section 167 of the said Code—

(i) for the words "it appears that any" the words "any person is arrested and detained in custody and it appears that the" shall be substituted, and the words "under this Chapter" shall be omitted;

(iv) for the words "officer in charge of the police-station" the words "police-officer making the investigation" shall be substituted; and

(iii) the words and signs "(if any)" shall be omitted.

Notes.

1. Application of the Section.—Sec. 167 Cr. P. C. applies to proceedings under Chapter XIV. and not to those under S. 110 Cr. P. C. and therefore a Second Class Magistrate has no power to remand the accused to custody and to keep him in sub Jail as a prisoner with a view to proceedings being taken against him under S. 110 Cr. P. C.—39 M. 925; 5 B. R. 27 (28). See also S. O. N. 779 12 A. J. 365.

2. Scheme of the Code with regard to remands.—The power of remand under S. 167 is given to detain prisoners in custody while the Police make the investigation and in a proper case, to commence the inquiry. But the custody mentioned in S. 314 is quite different and is intended for under-trial prisoners. S. 167 gives the Magistrate discretion (recording his reasons) to remand, from time to time, but limits the period for the exercise of the discretion to fifteen days in all. S. 170 Cr. P. C. authorises the police officer, if there is evidence or reasonable ground for suspicion, to forward the accused to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of an offence on Police report. Then, under S. 314, an application might be made for cause shown as specified there to the proper Magistrate to postpone the commencement of the enquiry and remand the prisoner. The intention of the Legislature, having regard to Ss. 61 and 167 and to the requirements of . . . person should be competent to . . . as possible—

3. Maximum period of remand.—The period for which a Magistrate, can authorise under S. 167 Cr. P. C., the detention of an accused person in Police Custody is fifteen days on the whole. 23 B. 32 (34). 11 M. 95; 13 C. N. 51; 1 W. R. 5 19 W. R. 36 5 B. H. (C. C.) 31 24 P. R. 1902.

. application of the Police an accused not produced in Court [39 P. R. 1867]

5. Who can grant a remand.—If the detention of an accused person is necessary during investigation he should be taken to the nearest Magistrate who, whether he has or has not jurisdiction to try the case, can authorise detention of the accused in such custody as he thinks fit—12 Cr. 15 (A) 16 C. N. 145.

6. Distinction between 'detention' and 'remand.'—For the purpose of Police rules 'detention' means detention in police custody in a police lock up or otherwise, and 'remand' means remand to custody in a Magisterial lock up or to a Magistrate's camp guard or sub Jail or recognizance during a postponement or adjournment of an enquiry or trial.—R. & O. Panj. p. 387.

7. Only real necessity will justify a remand.—A remand to Police custody can only be granted in cases of real necessity, and when it is shown in the application that there is good reason to believe that the accused can point out property or otherwise assist the Police in elucidating the case.—[Panj. Cr. p. 176; See 23 B. 32; 11 C. N. 554 S. 3 W. P. 275]. Frequent remands should be avoided [Jud. Cr. No. 4 J. of 15.10.91 and No. 312 J. of 19.5.94]. As a rule, remands should be rarely ordered.—[Jud. Cr. No. 509 J. D. of 4.5.07 see Jud. Cr. No. 1114 of 8.11.05]. Records of every case remanded more than 3 times should be examined by the District Magistrate [Gort. Cr. of 5.8.91].

[Note.—That the accused will have to be taken to the place of occurrence for individual pointing out the places through which they passed in their way to commit a dacoity and also for their identification is not a sufficient reason for their remand.—[7 C. N. 457]. A person cannot be detained on a mere expectation that time would show his guilt [17 P. R. 1872]. A Magistrate would not be justified in ordering detention in order that the accused may be forced to give a clue to the stolen property [3 N. P. 275] or on account of the delay in preparing the diary or copy thereof [B. H. C. Cr. Cir. p. 2] or simply for the purpose of verifying confession of the accused [7 C. N. 220]. Recording of reasons for remand is compulsory. A Magistrate should not sanction the detention of an accused person without recording sufficient reasons as required by law 7 C. N. 457. 23 B. 32; 16 C. N. 145; See (85) A. N. 59.

8. Magistrate bound to consider the reasons.—Before a Magistrate orders the detention of the accused person, he should ascertain how long he had been under Police surveillance or influence, and in recording the reasons for detention, he should note all the information that he is able to obtain on the subject. [133] A. N. 59. See also C. P. Cr. Cir. Pt. II. No. 12]. The law contemplates that the Magistrate should consider, whether on the facts placed before him, there are good grounds for allowing such detention [12 C. N. 554].

9. Remand to be for a short period.—In ordering further detention of an accused person in Police custody, the Magistrate should invariably limit the terms as much as possible to what may be necessary, for the object in view.—11 C. N. 554.

11. Place of confinement.—As to the place of confinement, where a police-officer has arrested a person, the prisoner should not be kept in confinement in any place, which the subordinate officer might select, but should, if possible, be sent immediately to the Police and placed in custody of the officer in charge of the Station, who is the person entrusted by the Act to conduct the enquiry.—Per Mackay J. in 7 W.  Report of investigation by subordinate police-officer.

Notes.

1. Note—Accused not entitled to copy of report of investigation—Report made by a subordinate police officer under this section is not a public document within the meaning of S. 71 of the Evidence Act and an accused person is not entitled to a copy of such report before trial [20 M. 169 (F. 2. Release of accused is only provisional.
A Police officer's power to admit to bail under S. 169 Cr. P. C. is only provisional. There is a requirement that there is a charge against the accused and that the offence is forwarded to the Magistrate in custody.—Rat 121.

3. Police Officer cannot permit withdrawal of complaint.—This Section does not authorise withdrawal of the bond. The first is taken under

5. Prosecution for false complaints.—A Magistrate does not exercise proper discretion, in ordering forthwith the prosecution of the complainant under S. 211 I. P. C. upon receipt of a police report that the complaint is false. The complainant should be given a full opportunity to substantiate his case before sanction is accorded.—5 C. N. 100.

170. (1) If, upon an investigation under this Chapter, it appears to the officer in charge of the police-station that there is sufficient evidence or reasonable ground as aforesaid, such officer shall forward the accused under custody to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence upon a police-report and to try the accused or commit him for trial or, if the offence is bailable and the accused is able to give security, shall take security from him for his appearance before such Magistrate on a day fixed and for his attendance from day to day before such Magistrate until otherwise directed.

(2) When the officer in charge of a police station forwards an accused person to a Magistrate or takes security for his appearance before such Magistrate under this section, he shall send to such Magistrate any weapon or other article which it may be necessary to produce before him, and shall require the complaint (if any) and so many of the persons who appear to such officer to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case as he may think necessary, to execute a bond to appear before the Magistrate as thereby directed and prosecute or give evidence (as the case may be) in the matter of the charge against the accused.

(3) If the Court of the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate is mentioned in the bond, such Court shall be held to include any Court to which such Magistrate may refer the case for inquiry or trial, provided reasonable notice of such reference is given to such complainant or persons.

(4) The day fixed under this section shall be the day whereon the accused person is to appear, if security for his appearance has been taken, or the day on which he may be expected to arrive at the Court of the Magistrate, if he is to be forwarded in custody.

(5) The officer in whose presence the bond is executed shall deliver a copy thereof to one of the persons who executed it, and shall then send to the Magistrate the original with his report.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sections 169 and 170 of the said Code, after the words "B. upon" the words "the completion of" shall be inserted; and for the words "officer in charge of the police-station" wherever they occur, the words "police-officer making the investigation" shall be substituted.

Notes.

1. On a day fixed.—A recognizance taken from a prisoner and binding him to attend the Court should specify a particular day for his attendance. [11 W. R. 47] The police should not bind over witnesses to appear and give evidence long after the prisoner is brought before the Magistrate [6 W. R. 52] The day fixed for the attendance of witnesses should as a rule be the day on which the accused person is to appear, or the date on which he will probably reach the Magistrate's Court.—[('93-'00) L. B. 478 (479)]
2. Dilatory procedure.—A Police Officer should take action as soon as a prima facie case has been worked out. He should not wait till he has made it all complete.—See 5 W. R. 6
3. When bond should be taken from witnesses.—A bond under this section can only be taken from a witness when the accused has been arrested, and is either being forwarded to Magistrate or is released on security given for his appearance.—('93-'00) L. B. 478 (479).

4. Payment to witnesses.—For Rules in Bengal.—See Cal. Gaz. 1895 Pt. I. p. 621.

5. When a witness bond may be estreated. Recognizance, given by witnesses can be estreated only when they have failed without just excuse to attend and give evidence and only after an opportunity of justifying the default.—[11 W. R. 39]. A bond can be estreated only when it fails the requirements of the section [(('93-'00) L. B. 478.)]

6. Defence witnesses.—It is not the duty of the Police to bind over and produce before the Magistrate the witnesses for the defence. This aside the order of the Magistrate refusing a copy of the charge-sheet. The subordinate Magistrate is apt to extend the scope of this decision to all cases. It seems to us that the Police charge-sheet corresponds to the complaint of the private individual.

sheet. The fact that the charge-sheet may contain matters which are also in the diary is no argument in favour of refusing a copy. For as we have more than once pointed out S 161 places the result of the Police investigation on a footing entirely different from the diary under S. 172."

entitled to refuse to give the accused a copy of the police charge-sheet at the commencement of the trial, as each charge-sheet contains a good deal of information for the use of the Magistrate and extracts from, if not copies of the police diary (1931 M 14) In this connection the following remarks may be made by their Lordships in 63 F. J. 154 will be read with interest. "We think this decision (meaning 1931 M. 14) is likely to work considerable mischief. The learned Judges no doubt expressed themselves somewhat guardedly that at the stage of the proceedings, they would not in revision set-

Procedure when the complainant or accused is a soldier.—If the complainant or the accused person is a soldier, in His Majesty's Army, the officer in charge of the Police Station should, immediately after taking such bond, send a copy thereof to the Commanding Officer of the Regiment in which he is serving—Bom. Pol. Man v. 90.

171. No complainant or witness on his way to the court of the Magistrate shall be required to accompany a police-officer, or shall be subjected to unnecessary restraint or inconvenience, or required to give any security for his appearance other

Provided that, if any complainant or witness refuses to attend or to execute a bond as directed in section 170 the officer in charge of the police-station may forward him in custody to the Magistrate, who may be forwarded in custody.

may detain him in custody until he executes such bond, or until the hearing of the case is completed.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sections 171 of the said Code, for the words "officer in charge of the police-station," the words "police-officer making the investigation" shall be substituted.

1. Unnecessary restraint.—There is no warrant in law for the police to keep a witness under surveillance for 4 days. Statements obtained from the witness under such circumstances, cannot be regarded as voluntary.—4 C. N. 49 (54)
- 2 Change in the Law.—Under the Code of 1872, the Police Officers were forbidden to accompany the complainant and witnesses. The words "shall be required" leave an option to the complainant or the witness to avail himself of a police escort if he so desires.

172. (1) Every police-officer making an investigation under this Chapter shall day by day enter his proceedings in the investigation in a diary, setting forth the time at which the information reached him, the time at which he began and close his investigation, the place or places visited by him, and a statement of the circumstances ascertained through his investigation.

(2) Any Criminal Court may send for the police-diaries of a case under inquiry or trial in such Court, and may use such diaries, not as evidence in the case, but to aid it in such inquiry or trial. Neither the accused nor his agents shall be entitled to call for such diaries, nor shall he or they be entitled to see them merely because they are referred to by the Court; but if they are used by the police-officer who made them to refresh his memory, or if the Court uses them for the purpose of contradicting such police-officer, the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 161 or section 145, as the case may be, shall apply.

Notes.

1. Object of the special Diary.—"The early stages of investigation which follows on the commission of a crime must necessarily in the vast majority of cases be left to the Police and until the honesty, the capacity, the discretion and judgment of the police can thoroughly be trusted, it is necessary for the protection of the public against criminals, for the vindication of the law and for the protection of those who are charged with having committed a criminal offence, that the Magistrate or Judge before whom the case is for investigation or for trial, should have the means of ascertaining what was the information, true, false or misleading, which was obtained from day to day by the police-officer who was investigating the case and what were the lines of investigation upon which the police officer acted.—Per Edge C. J.—in 19 A 390 (F.B.). See 16 C. N. 145. 1 Leg Rem 26

2. Use of the diary by Courts.—It is inconsistent with the provisions of S. 172 Cr. P. O., to use the earlier statements of the witnesses made to the Police and entered in the Police Diary as evidence. These statements can be used only for the purpose of discrediting the witnesses, during their examination and not for the purpose of testing their credibility by a comparison of their statements before the Police and their statements as recorded by the trial Judge in the stage of appeal or on submission of sentences for confirmation under S. 374 Cr. P. C. To use the diary for such a purpose is to contravene the rule laid down in 19 A 390 (F.B.). Where a Full Court pointed out that such a diary may be used to assist the Court which tries the case by suggesting means of further elucidating points which need clearing up, and which are material for the purpose of doing justice between the Crown and the accused, but not as containing entries which can by themselves be taken to be evidence of any date, fact or statement contained in the diary. The Police Officer who made the entry may be confronted with it but not any other witness

3. Statements of witnesses should not be entered in the Special Diary.—Statements of witnesses for the prosecution recorded by the investigating Police Officer shall not be entered in the Special Police Diary but shall be separately recorded.—[Reg. and Ord. N. W. P. S. 10 p 268]. So far as Burma is concerned, the Executive Government, have forbidden the incorporation in special diaries of witnesses' statements in extenso [Bur. Pol. Man. p. 611—See 14 Cr 1022 (L.B.)]. No oral statement of witnesses made to Police Officers should be recorded in the Special Diary under S. 172 Cr. P. O.—[13 C. 1023]. It is not necessary to enter in the Diary the statements made by witnesses on an examination made by a Police Officer [19 A 390 (F.B.)]. See also 16 C. 610; 16 C. 612 (N); 20 C. 612; 10 C. [Note.—The provisions as to cross-examination of the Police Officers under Ss. 161 and 145 of the Evidence Act which refer to his own statements do not apply to the statements of witnesses entered in the Special diary. Such statements fall under S. 162 and are liable to be produced under the conditions laid down in that section and are admissible under that section only.—10 C. N. 70]

4. Entries cannot be treated as corroborative evidence.—A magistrate ought not to refer to an entry in the police diary (which has not been used to refresh his memory by the witness) as corroboration of prosecution evidence.—15 Cr 256 (U).

5. Diary in non-cognizable case.—It is incumbent on a Police officer who investigates a non-cognizable case under the orders of a Magistrate, to keep the diary for which provision is made in S. 172 Cr. P. C. and the omission to keep such diary deprives the Court of the very valuable assistance which such diaries can give, if legitimately used.—16 P. R. 1918.

5. S. 91 of the Evidence Act does not apply to entries in the diary.—S. 91 of the Evidence Act has no application to matters embodied in a special diary under S. 172 Cr. P. C. (for if it had, no proof at all could be given of such matter in as much as S. 172 forbids a special Diary being used as evidence except for certain limited purposes—18 Cr. 1022 (L. B.)

[Note.—The facts stated therein must be proved by examining the writer as a witness—2 Weir 143. 2 Weir 142; (83) A. N. 145; 15 C. N. 214.]

6. Rules for sending for diaries.—Although these diaries are not sent to the Magistrates, they are entitled to call for and inspect them whenever they may consider necessary. They should make it a uniform rule to do so in cases where the Police investigation has extended over several days, and the credibility of any of the witnesses, is doubtful, and their calling for them, occasionally at other times would have the best possible effect, in

see that each day's diary has been forwarded to and has regularly reached the District Superintendent in course of post; this being the only security against the contents being antedated.—Punj. Chief Court Cir. X. of 21-5-'09.

7. Sections of Evidence Act referred to in the Section.—Refreshing memory—See Ss 159, 160 and 161 of the Evidence Act. "contradicting such police officer"—vide S. 145 of the Evidence Act.

8. Sessions Court cannot pass general order for production of diary.—A Sessions Court has no power to make a general order for production of Police diaries in all criminal appeals before it, but has authority only to summon the diaries when and as required in each particular case—('94) A N. 181. See 19 A 390 (F. B.).

9. Access to the diary.—The accused cannot, as a matter of right look at or inspect any entry in the diary. Only when the Police officer does look at an entry in the diary for the purpose of refreshing his memory, that the provisions of his memory and thus obtain an access to the diary in an indirect manner. The privilege of using the diary to contradict the police officer belongs exclusively to the Court [5 C 154]. As Wilson J has remarked in 5 C 154. "I know of no authority for saying that a witness can be compelled to refresh his memory from any document, unless the document is either in the possession of the party who desires to put it to the witness or is at least such as we can insist on having produced" [See 13 O. G. 7]. The accused may look at the particular entry before or at the time the witness uses it to refresh his memory [8 C 739].

10. Notes of speeches in trials for sedition.—Notes of seditious speeches made by a Police Officer may be on being used for the purpose of refreshing his memory by the Police Officer, allowed to become a part of the record in a trial for an offence under S 124 I. P. C.: 32 M. 3 (13).

11. Jury cannot inspect diaries.—Police diaries cannot be placed before the jury, as provided by S 172, they are useful, not as evidence but to aid the Court in the trial, so as to enable it to make a thorough enquiry on all material points, and to elicit in the examination of the witnesses, and especially of Police witnesses the real facts of the case—27 C. 205.

12. Copies.—In no case is an accused person or his agent entitled to a copy of the special diary or any part of it. His right is limited to that of inspection in certain cases: [19 A 390 (F. B.)]. No document, precept or official paper of any kind or any copy of such paper, belonging to or in the custody of the Police, will be furnished to any private individual or other person, not authorised by law to require it, unless a precept of a competent Court, or order of a competent authority requiring him to give it, be presented to the Superintendent of Police—Mad Pol Man. Vol I p 118 See also ('93-'00) L B 42 (43): 16 A 207.

13. What the accused may do.—The proper procedure for the accused is, to ask the Court, at the time the witness whose statement is recorded in the special diary to refer to such writing and if necessary, to furnish the accused with copies. The police-officer may also be asked whether the witness made certain statements to him—33 C 1023

14. Prosecution for false entry.—A Police Officer making a false entry in the Special Diary to be kept under this Section and submitted to his official superior in pursuance of a departmental order is guilty of an offence under S 177 I. P. C.—See 4 M. 144.

173. (1) Every investigation under this Chapter shall be completed without unnecessary delay, and, as soon as it is completed, the officer in charge

Report of police-officer of the police-station shall forward to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence on a police-report a report in the form prescribed by the Local Government, setting forth the names of the parties, the nature of the information and the names of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case, and stating whether the accused person has been forwarded in custody, or has been released on his bond, and, if so, whether with or without sureties,

(2) Where a superior officer of police has been appointed under section 158, the report shall, in any cases in which the Local Government by general or special order so directs, be submitted through that officer, and he may pending the orders of the Magistrate, direct the officer in charge of the police-station to make further investigation

(3) Whenever it appears from a report forwarded under this section that the accused has been released on his bond, the Magistrate shall make such order for the discharge such bond or otherwise as he thinks fit.

Proposed amendments to the sections.—For sub-section (1) of sections 173 of the said Code, the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :—

"(1) Every investigation under this Chapter shall be completed without unnecessary delay, and as soon as it is completed, the police-officer making the investigation shall—

(a) forward to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence on a police report a report, in the form prescribed by the Local Government, setting forth the names of the parties, the nature of the information and names of the persons who appear to be acquainted with the circumstances of the case, and stating whether the accused (if arrested) has been forwarded in custody, or has been released on his bond, and, if so, whether with or without sureties, and

(b) communicate in such manner as may be prescribed by the Local Government, the action taken by him to the person by whom the information relating to the commission of the offence was first given."

Notes.

1. Contents of the report.—The police report under S 173 Cr. P. C. in order that it may be acted upon must set forth the nature of the information against the accused. Where no such information is forthcoming, a Magistrate cannot proceed under S 190 (b)—37 C. 19

2. Report to be made.

that is to say a report in the course of an investigation of a cognizable offence—21 Cr. 269 (Pat) See 40 C 851 26 B. 160. 6 S. 82; 6 S. 1.

Note.—The term Police report in S 190 is not limited to the report mentioned in S. 170 but includes the report submitted under S 173 by police-officers who have investigated a non-cognizable case under S. 153 Cr. P. C., under the orders of a Magistrate having power to try such a case: 11 A. J. 331.

3. Accused not entitled to copy of the report before trial.—The charge sheet referred to in S 173 Cr. P. C. is not a "public document" within the meaning of S 74 of the Evidence Act and an accused person is not entitled to a copy of the Charge Sheet before trial [20 M. 189 Shepherd and Subramania Ayyar J. J. dissenting].

4. Chapter XIV deals with three kinds of reports—viz.

(1) preliminary report under S. 157 Cr. P. C. from the S. H. O. to the Magistrate

(2) report under S. 168 Cr. P. C. by a Subordinate Police Officer to the Station House Officer [See 20 M. 189 (F. B.)].

(3) Final report or charge-sheet under S. 173 Cr. P. C. See Mad. Pol. Man I 84

Note.—The superior Police Officer making an investigation is the proper person to prepare and submit the Charge Sheet. Ibid p 83].

5. The words "or otherwise as he thinks fit."—Clearly show that the Magistrate may order the prosecution of the accused. His power to do so does not depend on the question whether the police have dealt with the case under S 16 Cr. P. C. and released the accused. If he is of opinion, that there is a prima facie case he may proceed under S 190 (b) notwithstanding that the Police Officer has reported that "there is no sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion to justify the issue of a warrant."—See 4 L B 137 (134).

6. Magistrate is bound to act on the report. He cannot act as if there was no report.—A Magistrate may either release the accused or take cognizance of the case on receipt of the Police report under S 190 (b). He cannot treat the report as a complaint and proceed to make over the case to a subordinate Magistrate for enquiry under S 202 Cr. P. C.—17 C. N. 1001

7. Order to strike off a case reported under S. 173, not a judicial order.—The order of a Magistrate to strike off a case reported to him under this section is not a judicial order corresponding to the dismissal of a complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C., and is therefore not subject to review by the Sessions Judge under S. 437 Cr. P. C.—Rat. 621 See also Rat 121 and 91.

8. Report cannot be used as evidence.—The report under S. 173 Cr. P. C. is not a judicial order and is therefore not admissible as evidence.

[Note.—Where the report has not been followed by a judicial investigation, (upon the complainant impugning the Police report and insisting on a judicial investigation, no sanction would be necessary.—43 C. 1152; 14 C. 707 (F. B.) 33

B. Further investigation after submission

Police to inquire and report on suicide, etc.

174. (1) The officer in charge of a police-station or some other police-officer specially empowered by the Local Government in that behalf, on receiving information that a person—

(a) has committed suicide, or

(b) has been killed by another, or by an animal, or by machinery, or by an accident, or

(c) has died under circumstances raising a reasonable suspicion that some other person has committed an offence, shall immediately give intimation thereof to the nearest Magistrate empowered to hold inquests, and, unless otherwise directed by any rule prescribed by the Local Government, or by any general or special order of the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate, shall proceed to the place where the body of such deceased person is, and there, in the presence of two or more respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood, shall make an investigation, and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds, fractures, bruises and other marks of injury as may be found on the body, and stating in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument (if any), such marks appear to have been inflicted.

(2) The report shall be signed by such police-officer and other persons, or by so many of them as concur therein, and shall be forthwith forwarded to the District Magistrate or the Sub-divisional Magistrate.

(3) When there is any doubt regarding the cause of death, or when for any other reason the police-officer considers it expedient so to do, he shall, subject to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, forward the body, with a view to its being examined to the nearest Civil Surgeon, or other qualified medical man appointed in this behalf by the Local Government, if the state of the weather and the distance admit of its being so forwarded without risk of such putrefaction on the road as would render such examination useless.

(4) In the Presidencies of Fort St. George and Bombay, investigations under this section may be made by the head of the village, who shall then report the result to the nearest Magistrate authorized to hold inquests.

(5) The following Magistrates are empowered to hold inquests, namely, any District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, and any Magistrate specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government or the District Magistrate.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (5) of section 174 of the said Code, for the words "or Sub-divisional Magistrate," the words "Sub divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class," shall be substituted.

Notes.

1. Section applies only when the corpus is available.—When the body cannot be found or has been buried, there can be no investigation under this Section. S 174 Cr. P. C. is intended to be applied in cases in which an inquest is necessary.—27 P. R. 1008

2. "Some other Police-officer."

patels are authorised to hold inquests.—See Bombay Village Police Act (VIII of 1867) S. 11 Rat 740.

- (b) Village Headmen.—An inquest may be held by Village headmen.—See S. 161 of the Code of 1861 S. 13 of Mad Reg. XI of 1816. The Village head acting under Ss 174 and 175 Cr. P. C. has only the powers of a Police officer specified in S. 175 Cr. P. C.—8 M. T. 109.

3. Magistrates empowered to hold inquests

(a) In the Punjab—all Magistrates of the first and second class have been specially empowered to hold inquests under this Section—See Punjab Gaz. 1893 p. 23 also p. 52.

(b) In Bombay—all Magistrates (except Honorary Magistrates), all District Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents of Police are empowered to act under S. 174 Cr. P. C.—See Bomb. Govt. Gaz. 1972 p. 1325, 1873 p. 10.

4. Duty of District Magistrate to inform Dist. Superintendents as to which Magistrates are empowered.

—The District Magistrate should inform District Superintendents of Police which of the Subordinate Magistrates have been authorized under S. 37 read with this Section to hold inquests—C. P. Cr. Cr. Pt. II. No. 10.

5. Courts of Coroners.—Inquests in Calcutta and Bombay are to be held under the Coroners' Act IV of 1871. (Ss 8-30) by Coroners. The office of the Coroner has been abolished in the Presidency town of Madras by Act V. of 1880. Ss 174 to 176 Cr. P. C. apply to the town in a modified form See Mad. Act V. of 1898.

6. Coroner's Courts are not open Courts—The Coroner's Court is not an open Court and the Coroner has a discretion as to admitting persons not interested or not closely connected with the enquiry Cases may occur in which privacy may be requisite for the sake of decency, others in which it may be due to the family of the deceased.—Garnett 6 B. & C. 611.

7. Powers of Coroners—A Coroner is bound in the interests of justice to hear witnesses on both sides for the purpose of arriving at the truth, though there is no express provision of the law requiring him to do so [2 Hale P. C. 60. R v. Ingham 5 B. & S. 257]. A Coroner's enquiry is similar to an inquiry by a Magistrate. He can examine witnesses on oath, record confessions (which will be considered as confessions made to a Magistrate), arrest the accused after the verdict of the jury and commit the accused for trial [vide S. 25 Act IV of 1871]—16 B 159 (100) But a Presidency Magistrate is not ousted of his jurisdiction to hold a preliminary enquiry into a charge, because the Coroner has already held an enquiry and committed the accused to the High Court [16 B 159 : 31 C. 1 : Rat. 540]

8. Procedure at the enquiry—

(a) Inquest to be held forthwith. The inquest must be held forthwith, so that all the circumstances of the murder, may be reported to the District Police—Rat. 740

(b) Evidence may be recorded.—Similarly the Coroner's inquest, evidence and circumstances justifying the accusation of the person denounced may be recorded—[Ibid See (11) M. N. 138] There is however no analogy between such an enquiry and a Coroner's inquest—Per. Markby J. in 3 C 742.

(c) Refusal to serve on an inquest—Refusal to serve on an inquest, when called on by a Police patel, specially empowered under S. 15 of the Bombay Village Police Act VIII of 1867, is not a refusal to obey a lawful order; punishable by the pater himself under that Section—Rat. 614

9. The Report.—

(a) Nature of the Report.—The report is what is known as Mahazar, and will differ from the final or complete report mentioned in S 173 Cr. P. C. Inquest reports must be written up and completed on the spot, where the inquest over corpse is being held. Immediately the inquest is closed, the report thereof will be put into a cover and handed over in the presence in the Panchayat to the constable about to take the corpse to the Medical Officer's station for examination—Mad. Pol. Man. I. p. 65

(b) Special diary not necessary in all cases.—The Lieutenant-Governor does not think that special diaries are intended or necessary in all cases of enquiry into unnatural deaths. The report described in S. 174 Cr. P. Code, is very much the same in character as the special diary of S. 177. If the Police officer investigating, see reason to suspect crime, the enquiry becomes one under S. 172 and special diaries become as a matter of course necessary, but in ordinary cases in which the enquiry is made and completed in a few hours, there seems to be no necessity of reporting the facts first in a special diary and then in the report prescribed by S. 174. When however the inquiry is prolonged or lasts for more than one day, the diary should be sent to inform, the District Superintendent and Magistrate of what is going on. Beng. Pol. Cr. 1872 p. 107.

(c) of the persons
Police
—as to cases, may be entered in the special diary—N. W. R. Mag. and Ord.—p. 275

10. Procedure with regard to the corpse.—He (the police officer) must proceed under sub (3) in all cases, evidence of the condition of the body, when first discovered and of the surrounding circumstances should be recorded—[Ord. Cr. Dig p. 9] But where there is no reason to doubt the cause of death, despatch of the body to the nearest Medical Officer—is uncalled for. [Mad. Pol. Man. I p. 85] Bodies for medical examination shall be sent to the nearest civil surgeon [See Fort St. G. Gaz. Not dated 11-12-74 p. 1834]

11. Steps to be taken for preserving the body.—In order that the body may be in as good a state of preservation as possible, when sent to Medical Officers, powdered charcoal must be thickly sprinkled over it—[Mad. Pol. Man. I p. 85] When it is necessary to keep a body for the purposes of identification, it shall be placed in the coolest room available, and the doors and windows shall be closed and watched, carbolic acid powder shall (if available) be freely used in such room [ibid]

12. Death in Jail.—As to the course to be pursued in the case of death of any prisoner in Jail, See Ss 15 and 17 of the Prison's Act IX of 1894.

176. (1) When any person dies while in the custody of the police, the nearest Magistrate empowered to hold inquests shall, and, in any other case mentioned in section 174, clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-section (1), any Magistrate so empowered may hold an inquiry into the cause of death either instead of, or in addition to, the investigation held by the police-officer, and, if he does so, he shall have all the powers in conducting it which he would have in holding an inquiry into an offence. The Magistrate holding such an inquiry shall record the evidence taken by him in connection therewith in any of the manners hereinafter prescribed according to the circumstances of the case.

I. PRINCIPLES AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

1. Analysis of the Chapter.—Section 188, conferred by Ss. 178 to 184 on Courts which according to the ordinary rule of S 177 would not have had jurisdiction. The proviso to Section 188 will come into operation only when the British Indian Court, cannot get jurisdiction under Ss 179 to 184 and has to depend on the first part of S 188 to get jurisdiction. Surely it could not have been intended to restrict the enlarged liberties and privileges as regards jurisdiction given to the Courts by the previous sections—26 M. J. 235.

2. "Crimes in their nature are local."—The rule enacted by S 177 is in accordance with the dictum of De Grey C J in Rafael 2 W. Blackstone p 1058. "Crimes in the nature are local, and the jurisdiction of crimes is local." "The jurisdiction over the crime belongs to the country where the crime is committed" [17 B 369. See Melod L. R. (91) A. C at p 458]. The accused is to be tried according to the law of the place in which the crime is committed and not according to his nationality [Sirdar Gurdial (94) A C 670]. On this principle, aliens are amenable to the English Criminal Law, in respect of crimes committed in England [Barronet's Case 1 E. & B 1. See 9 B. H. 356]. See Russell on Crimes Vol I, p. 19

- 3 Offence committed by foreigner beyond jurisdiction.—A British Magistrate has no jurisdiction to try a person who is a resident of a Native State for an offence committed in that state [2 B R 337. 16 C 667; 28 A. 372; 2 Weir 145 6 M H (ap) 3 3 M H 384 20 F. R. 1878; 16 P R 1880 37 P R 1881. 7 P R. 1891. 1 P. R 1901 See 29 P R 1867 5 B R 873]. Chapter XV cannot vary or abrogate the ordinary rule that no foreign subject can be tried in British India for an offence committed outside British India [see 28 A 372]. The principle is incontestable and is universally admitted and recognised by the general law of nations [See Franconia Case (76) 2 Ex D 63 Jamieson (96) 2 Q B 439]. The Sessions Court at Bellary has no try a resident of Mysore for criminal acts done in Mysore [6 M H. (ap) 3]. British Courts cannot try accused persons for dacoity committed in foreign territory although the accused had resided for 3 years in British territory but were actually natives of a Foreign State [37 P R. 1881]. Where a foreign subject enticing away a girl from the

4. Offence commenced outside but completed inside British territory.—P. employed in the Commissariat Department of the Bombay Army in Camp at Serroor within the territories of the Peshwa, forged a receipt upon the East India Company for charges incurred in the public service. The receipt was transmitted to and entered in the commissariat accounts at Bombay. Held—that the entering of the receipt was the completion of the offence and therefore the Recorder's Court at Bombay had jurisdiction [3 Knapp 348 (P. C.)]. The accused who lived at Cambay a Native State, conspired with his partner A at Cambay to get a valuable security forged by a professional forger at Umreth, a place within British territory. To facilitate forgery, the accused sent a khata-book with A, who proceeded to Umreth and had the document forged there. Held—that the British Court had jurisdiction, in as much as the offence was not wholly committed at Cambay but having been initiated there was continued and completed within the British territory. 30 B 524. See also 2 Weir 145.

5. Acts done within or without British India by British Indian Subjects.—General Rule.—A person, who is admittedly a subject of the British Government, is liable to be tried by the Court of this country for acts done by him whether wholly within or wholly without, and partly within and partly without the British territory in India provided that they amount together to an offence under the Penal Code.—2 W R 60

II. JURISDICTION OVER OFFENCES COMMITTED OUT OF BRITISH INDIA OR BY FOREIGN SUBJECTS.

9. Offences committed beyond British India by British subjects.—British Courts can under S 9 of Act XI of 1872 try native Indian subjects of Her Majesty for offences committed by them in any territory beyond British India [20 P. R 1878]. A native Indian subject of Her Majesty, being a soldier in Her Majesty's Indian army, who committed a murder in Cyprus, while on service in such army, can be tried by the Criminal Courts at Agra for such offence.—[2 A 218 (F. B.)] A conviction in British India for an offence outside its limits (Mayurbhanj) is good under S. 9 of Act XXI of 1879 [8 C 985 (F. B.) Mitter and Prinsep JJ. diss.] 9 C. 288. Con. 7 C 523.

10. [Note.—The Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act (See Act XI of 1872 - Act XXI of 1879) admits of proceedings being taken in British India, regarding offences committed in Foreign States only on condition (1) that the person charged is a native Indian subject and (2) that the Political Agent of the Foreign State has given his sanction to proceedings being taken in British territory.—5 M. 23 13 M. 423 (426). 2 Weir 148 24 B 267 16 C. 667 4 P. R 1902 (F. B.) 24 A 256. See also 17 B 369 : 5 S 266. 8 M. T 54. [The rulings in 1 M. 171 5 B. 338 - 6 C. 307 based on the Code of 1872 are now obsolete. See 26 M J 235]

11. Offence Committed by Foreign Subject in British territory.—Where there is a dishonest retention in British India of property stolen elsewhere, it is no defence by the accused,

6. [Note.—Who is a British subject.—The fact of a subject of Her Majesty choosing to reside beyond the limits of British India for ten or twelve years does not divest him of his allegiance to Her Majesty or take away his liability to be tried as a British subject in the Courts of British India.—2 J. G. 7.]

7. In cases of doubt.—In a case where it is doubtful whether the offence is committed in British or Foreign territory, the Magistrate should state the facts of the case.

8. The right to be tried by lex loci.—For committing the offence of theft in a foreign territory and bringing the property so stolen into British territory cannot be convicted in British Courts for theft, because the forum delicti does not lie in British India; nor can they be convicted either of receiving stolen property, for they are not both thieves and receivers; or of retaining the same, because the law to be applied in British Courts is the Indian Penal Code, which has no operation in foreign territory and against provisions of which, therefore no offence can have been committed.—2 Weir 145 : 20 P. R 16 7 C. 523 : 7 M. 354 : 5 B 338 (F. B.) : 19 B 524. See 19 B 72.

a foreign subject that he himself stole the property and that he was not liable to be tried, convicted, or punished by the British Court for theft.—[30 P. R. 1894]. A foreigner found in possession of stolen property in foreign territory but not shown to have committed the theft or have come into possession of that property in British territory cannot be convicted under 411 I. P. C. [20 P. R 1878 16 P. R 188]. British Criminal Courts cannot try a foreigner for an offence which may be regarded to have been committed in British territory if at the time it was committed, the foreigner was not personally present.—[35 P. R 1850]

12. Offences Committed at a spot in British India subsequently ceasing to be such.—Under S 177 Cr. P. C. every offence shall ordinarily be inquired into and tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction it was committed and ss 178 to 189 do not take the case out of that section. Hence, where at the time when the offence was committed by the accused, was a British Indian subject within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, it is no defence by the accused that the spot where the offence was committed had ceased to be British territory.—34 451 Cf. 33 A 578

13. Notifications of Government of India regarding Foreign territory.—The accused a subject of H. H. the Nizam of Hyderabad was arrested on the lands of the Hyderabad State Railway under a warrant issued by a British Magistrate for an offence committed within his jurisdiction. Held that the arrest was illegal in as much as the venue of arrest was situate within the Nizam's dominions and the notification of the Government of India could give authority only to the extent to which the Nizam permitted the British Government to make that notification—25 C 20 (P. C.)—Cf 33 I. A. 1. 23 M. 607 (819)

14. Criminal Jurisdiction ceded without cession of territory.—The applicant was charged with having imported dhung into the Presidency of Bombay, in as much as a parcel, containing dhung and bearing his name and address was received at a Railway Station in a Native State. It appeared that the criminal jurisdiction along the line of the Railway was ceded to the Government, but there had been no cession of territory—held—that no offence was committed unless the importation was into the Presidency of Bombay, that is, into territories which formed part of British India, and if the land upon which the offence was alleged to have been committed, had not actually been ceded, it could not form part of British India—6 B R 873

15. Abetment by Foreign Subject of offence committed therein.—held—that the abettor was not amenable to the jurisdiction of British Courts—10 B H 356

17. Abetment by British Subject of offence committed outside British India.—An abetment in British India by a British Subject of an offence committed in a foreign territory, may under the amended Section 108-A I. P. C. be tried in British India 24 B 237 (291) — Con 5 B 338 (F. B.). 19 B 105 30 P. R 1894

17. Foreign subjects found in Native State in possession of articles stolen in British India.—Where the accused persons, who were not proved to be British subjects were found in possession, in a Native State, of property the subject of dacoity in British India, and they were not shown to have participated in the dacoity, nor was there any evidence that they had dishonestly or otherwise received or retained in British India, any stolen property, held—that the British Courts had no jurisdiction over them—9 A 523 22 P R 1888 16 P R 1880; 126 P. L 1902

18. Violation of "ticket of leave" in India by a person convicted at Singapore.—The accused who was convicted of burglary by the Recorder's Court of Prince of Wales' Island, Singapore, and Malacca was sentenced by him to be transported beyond the seas to such place as a d A A J leave and permitted to reside at Karwar. At Karwar he committed theft before his sentence had expired, held—that the full-power Magistrate at Karwar had jurisdiction to try and convict him under S 277 I P C—9 B H 356

19. No jurisdiction to try outside British India.—A District Magistrate cannot legally dispose of a Criminal Case, arising out of an offence committed within his jurisdiction, at a place, not in British India Rtr 376

20. Offence committed by foreigner beyond jurisdiction.—See Note No 3, above

III. OFFENCES COMMITTED ON THE HIGH SEAS.

21. As to Jurisdiction of British Courts.—See 12 and 13 Viet C 96 as extended by 23 and 24 Viet C 88 and S 11 of 30 and 31 Viet C 124

22. The Law as to offences committed on the High Seas.—An offence committed on the high seas but within 3 miles from the British Indian Shores is one committed within British Indian territories (what may be called maritime territory) and the substantive law applicable is the Penal Code, and the procedure is also that laid down in the Cr P C. Though under Reg XII of 1827, the District Magistrate had no authority beyond the low water-mark adjoining his District, held—that the District Magistrate has jurisdiction in cases of offences committed on the high seas, if they had been committed within the jurisdiction—8 B H (C) C 63

23. Change of Law.—In Elmstone's Case [7 B H, (C. C.) 89 (F. B.)] It was laid down that English, not Indian law is applicable to offences committed on the high seas. This view was expressly dissented from in 14 B 237 which held that the law was altered by Statute 37 and 38

Viet C 27 and in 16 C 238 [See also 5 M 23] which laid down that an offence committed by a British seaman on board a British ship on the high seas must be tried by the Indian Courts according to their own procedure and that S 267, Merchant Shipping Act 1834, (17 & 18 Viet C 104) and S 21, Merchant Shipping Act 1867 (30 and 31 Vic C 12) are not intended to interfere with the course of procedure laid down in the General Act 23 and 24 Vic C 88

24. The law as laid down by Statutes 30 and 31 Viet C 124, S. 11.—“If any British subject commits any crime or offence on board any British ship, or on board any foreign ship to which he does not belong, any Court of Justice, in Her Majesty's dominions which would have had cognizance of such crime or offence, if committed on board a British ship within the limits of the ordinary jurisdiction of such court, shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine such case as if the said crime or offence had been committed as last aforesaid.”

Note.—The law has been extended so as to apply to an offence committed on the high seas beyond the territorial limits of three miles from the shore.—14 B 227 [cf. 8 B II. (C. C.) 63 above]

25. Sanction of the Local Government is unnecessary.—No sanction of the Local Government under S. 168 Crim. P. C. is necessary for the trial of a Native Indian subject in respect of an offence committed by him on the High Seas. The word "territory" in the first proviso to S. 168

Cr. P. C. is used in that proviso in reference to territories of any Native Prince or Chief of India. The word cannot include the High Seas since they are not part of the territory of any state. A British Court trying such an offence is bound to apply the provisions of the Indian Penal Code—5 L B 221 (F. B.).

IV. OFFENCES COMMITTED BY SOLDIERS.

26. S. 101 Mutiny Act does not bar jurisdiction.—S. 101 of the Mutiny Act does not deprive the civil (as distinguished from Military) Courts of the jurisdiction over British soldiers committing offences within the limits of those Courts, nor does it render the exercise of their jurisdiction dependent upon the Commander-in-Chief's sanction—5 C 124
27. Reg. XX of 1825 (Courts Martial and Military Courts of Requests).—Reg. XX of 1825 has no force in Hazaribagh. Under regulation, the Military authorities can require a Magistrate to hand over to them any prisoner who may be apprehended and brought before him for an offence committed at a place more than three miles from the Presidency town; but the regulations before a Magistrate, when taken at the request of and assented to, by the Military authorities, are not absolutely void and the command so made is not invalid.—13 B. L. 474

V. MISCELLANEOUS PROCEEDINGS.

28. Applications under S. 488 Cr. P. C.—(Maintenance).—The jurisdiction in cases of maintenance is to be exercised in the District in which the person, against whom any final order that may be passed in the proceedings is resident at the time of making the complaint—[9 B 40: 24 C 638 1 C N. 577: (91) A. N. 153: 7 C. P. 12 (13)] In 13 A 345 (350) [See also 9 P. R 1843] it has been held that the Court of the place, where the wife resided on being compelled to leave her husband had jurisdiction. The Punjab Chief Court has held however that an application for maintenance, not being a complaint for an offence did not come within the meaning of S. 177 Cr. P. C. [3 P R 1883: 13 P. R 1883]

Note.—Occasional visits of the husband to a wife who lives apart from him do not constitute residence within the meaning of S. 483 (3)-(4) U B. 18-10

29. Applications under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—S. 177 Cr. P. C. has no application to proceedings under S. 107 and the use of the word "ordinarily" in that section excludes trial of cases specified provided for in S. 107 Cr. P. C.—41 M. 24 C. N. 540: 31 C 350: 24 A. 151.

30. Proceedings under S. 110 Cr. P.—Proceedings under S. 110 Cr. P. C. must be within the district in which the person whom it is sought to take security is resident and not in any other district, such a proceeding therefore, cannot be transferred to any other district outside the district within which the accused is residing—16 A. 9: 30 A. 47. But see 13 C. O. C. 217. 2 Weir 63
31. Proceedings under S. 476 Cr. P.—S. 476 does not appear to restrict the jurisdiction of the Court to offences committed within its jurisdiction or even within the province in which it is situated [Per Chamier C.J.] It is clear that if an offence has been committed no matter where, and if in the course of a judicial proceeding brought to the notice of a court that such offence has been committed, that court has jurisdiction to proceed under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—Sharfud Din J. 1 Pat J. 298.

VI. EXCEPTION TO THE GENERAL RULES.

32. General Rule.—The jurisdiction conferred by the Cr. P. Code, does not affect any special jurisdiction conferred by any law in force at the time when the Code came into force—10 B. 181.
33. The term "ordinarily"—The use of the word "ordinarily" indicates that this rule is to be read subject to any special provisions of law which may modify it, and the rule is relaxed or modified in several of the succeeding sections of the Code, and it must be read subject to the special provisions of S. 197 cl (2). The power given in S. 197 (2) overrides the general rules contained in Section 177 Cr. P. C.—4 L B. 263.
34. For exceptions to the general rule as enacted by special Acts. See—Ss 47 and 48 of Native Passenger Ships Act (X. of 1887). S. 44 and 48 of Indian Marine Act (XIV of 1887). S. 134 of Railways Act (IX of 1890). S. 52 of Pilgrim Ships Act (XIV. of 1895). S. 60 of the Indian Ports Act (X of 1889). S. 72 of the Indian

Stamp Act (II. of 1889). S. 161 of the Labour and Emigration Act (VI. of 1901 C. 27):

35. Workmen's Breach of Contract (XIII. of 1859).
- (1) Where a person contracted in a foreign country to work for the complainant in British territory and was brought under arrest from the foreign territory for an offence under S. 2 of the Immigration Act—that the British Courts had no jurisdiction over him—7 M. 334.
- (2) Proceedings under the Act, can be instituted either in the Court of the Magistrate within the limits of whose jurisdiction, the defendant resides or in a Court within whose local limits, the refusal to perform the contract has taken place, not where the contract has been actually performed and money received—12 P. R 1910: 17 P. R. 10 M. 21. But see 25 C. 637: 24 M. 660: 23 C. 4 C. N. 253.

VII. EFFECT OF TRIAL BY WRONG COURT.

8. Scope of S. 531 Cr. P. C.—Where an offence is committed within the jurisdiction of a Magistrate in one district but is tried by a Magistrate in another district, the irregularity of the trial is cured by S. 531 Cr. P. C. The section is not limited to cases, where the offence is committed within the jurisdiction of the Court which tries it, finding, sentence or order, regularly passed by a Court, in respect of an offence committed outside its jurisdiction.

A. A. 1850 L. R. 1802.

- [Note.—The term "local area" in Ss 531 and 182 refer to the local area and Districts to which the Code applies and not those of a foreign territory—16 C 667]

7. Commitment by a Court not having jurisdiction.—S. 531 applies to a case where the Magistrate has authority to commit, but has no territorial jurisdiction in the place, where the offence is alleged to have been committed—17 M. 402 26 M. 640 36 M. 387 8 B 312 16 B. 200: 18 A. 350 (353). ('84) A. N. 31 2 B R. 394: (72-92) L. B. 263. Con 3 A 238 10 B 274.

38. Plea of want of jurisdiction.—As a rule, a plea of want of jurisdiction should be taken before the trial Court. But plea may be taken in the High Court, though not taken below. [16 W. R. 79 Con. 4 B H. 33] It was held that the objection might be raised at a subsequent trial on remand, though it was not taken in the original case either in the trial or the Court of appeal—[32 C 22]

39. Waiver.—An accused who has submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court must be regarded as having waived any illegality or irregularity affecting the manner in which he was brought before the Court.—16 C P. 9. Sec. 12 B 561 Con. 6 C 83

VIII. MISCELLANEOUS.

10. The term Sessions Court in S. 213 Cr. P. C.—means one having jurisdiction to try the case under S. 177 Cr. P. C.—10 M T 563

11. Jurisdiction over Bhatinda Ry. station.—In accordance with the Government of India Notifications No 515 I B and 516 I B of 17th March 1913, republished from the Gazette of India in the Punjab Gazette of 23th March 1913 pt II pp 99 to 103, the Courts of Hissar and Ferozpur Districts have concurrent jurisdiction in Bhatinda Ry station which is situated in the Native state of Patiala—7 P R 1914 and is not derived from the Penal Code or the Criminal Procedure Code but from the Common Law of England which was introduced at the time of the establishment of the Supreme Courts—10 C 109 (P. C.) 8 B. 380 (397). Rat 614 (615) See. 33 C 927 (940).

44. Instigation by means of letter sent by post.—A person who posts a letter to another inviting the latter therein to commit an offence, is guilty of abetting the offence, as soon as the letter is received by and the contents are known to the addressee and is triable at the place where the letter is received—16 A 389.

45. Jurisdiction when the accused is charged with several offences.—Where, two different offences are committed in the course of the same transaction, and the accused is tried by the Court which has jurisdiction to try both offences, the Court has jurisdiction to try both offences who has it would be offences—2 Weir power to order cases to be tried in different sessions divisions.

178. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 177, the Local Government may direct that any cases or class of cases committed for trial in any district may be tried in any sessions division: Provided that such direction is not repugnant to any direction previously issued by the High Court under section 15 of the Indian High Court Act. 1861, [or section 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915] or under this Code, section 526,

Notes.

1. The distinction between "Case" and "Criminal Case."—It is doubtful whether the High Court has power, under S. 520 to transfer cases which do not relate to matters which may strictly be described as "Criminal," i. e., as relating to crime or offences under the law. But that power exists under S 29, Letters Patent in the Letters Patent "Criminal Case" appears to be used without the distinction which apparently exists in the Code of Criminal Procedure, in respect of cases tried by Criminal Courts, as opposed to Civil Cases—Per Taylor J—25 C. 709.

2. Local Government's power to transfer cases in Burma.—The Local Government has no power under S 178 Cr. P. C. to transfer for trial to the Court of the Commissioner a criminal case duly committed for trial by the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon; but it has power to transfer a case from the District of Rangoon to the Sessions division of Pegu.

10 C. 613 : See (72-92) L. B. 263. See also the Lower Burma Courts Act VI. of 1900.

3. High Court's powers of transfer under the Letters Patent.—Under S. 15 of the Indian High Court's Act 1891 (24 and 25 Vict. C. 104)—Each of the High Courts established under the Act has power to direct the transfer of any subject or appeal from any such Court to any other court of equal or superior jurisdiction.

179. When a person is accused of the commission of any offence by reason of anything which has been done, and of any consequence which has ensued, such offence may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any such thing has been done, or any such consequence has ensued.

Illustration.

(a) A is wounded within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court X, and dies within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court Z. The offence of the culpable homicide of A may be inquired into or tried by X or Z.

(b) A is wounded within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court X, and is during ten days within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court Y, and during ten days more within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court Z, unable in the local limits of the jurisdiction of either Court Y or Court Z to follow his ordinary pursuits. The offence of causing grievous hurt to A may be inquired into or tried by X, Y or Z.

(c) A is put in fear of injury within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court X, and is thereby induced, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court Y, to deliver property to the person who put him in fear. The offence of extortion committed on A may be inquired into or tried either by X or Y.

(d) A is wounded in the Native State of Baroda, and dies of his wounds in Poona. The offence of causing A's death may be inquired into and tried in Poona.

Notes.

(1) Object and Scope of the Section.

1. Application of the Section—S 179 applies not only to cases in which the offence is completed by reason of a consequence ensuing within the local limits of another jurisdiction (as e.g. —the case of a man being wounded in one district and dying in another), but also to cases in which the fact of a consequence ensuing in another jurisdiction is the cause of the offender being accused of the offence [e.g. when a forged draft is presented and got cashed at a Branch office of a Bank, but the loss occurs or is detected at the place where the accounts of the Bank are made up—the Head Office (situated elsewhere)]—18 P. W. 1908.
2. The consequence must be a constituent element of the offence.—Sec. 179 Cr. P. C. can be applied only to cases in which the consequence necessary to constitute the offence ensues in some place other than that in which the accused's act is done [29 M. J. 178]. The 'consequence' referred to in S 179 Cr. P. C. must be one of the facts to be proved to establish the offence, and need not be only a consequence arising out of it—[25 P. R. 1916]. The word 'consequence' in S 179 Cr. P. C. means a consequence which forms a part and parcel of the offence. It does not mean a consequence which is not such a direct result of the act as to form a part of that

But loss to a person, though a normal result of the act of misappropriation by another, is not an essential ingredient of the offence of Criminal misappropriation. S. 179 does not in terms apply to the case of an offence which does not depend on the consequence which has ensued, but only on the act which has been done [44 C. 912]. The words "any consequence that has ensued" in S 179 Cr. P. C. mean some consequence modifying or completing the act or acts constituting the offence [7 P. R. 1910 - 67 P. L. 1901].

3. [Note—This is the generally accepted view—See—1 Pat J. 298; 13 A. J. 1067; 12 A. J. 1022; 5 A. J. 333; 17 B. R. 389; 8 B. R. 513; 15 M. T. 505; 5 L. B. 57; 4 O. C. 376; 7 P. R. 1900; 223 P. L. 1901.] The wider construction adopted in 26 M. J. 235; 35 A. 29; 32 A. 397; 19 A. 111; 26 C. 746; 2 P. R. 1904; 24 P. R. 1891 (F.B.)—namely—that the term "consequence" includes the direct effect of the offence, has been expressly dissented from several of the later rulings

9. Once the offence is complete within foreign territory, the maxim "all crimes are local" applies.—S 174, is inapplicable, where the offence is completed in a Foreign State and no consequence (in the sense, of an act constituting an incident element of the offence) misappropriated the proceeds of certain hundis entrusted to them by the complainants at Erode in the Madras Presidency. The hundis were received and cashed by the accused in Bombay and the sale proceeds retained and misappropriated there—held—the Courts of Erode had no jurisdiction. [ibid]. Complainant authorised the accused to withdraw certain money belonging to him at Rangoon and to transmit it to him at Maymyo—held—that inasmuch as the money had been received, retained and misappropriated at Rangoon, the Rangoon Courts alone had jurisdiction to try the case [21 Cr. 140 (U. B.)]. The accused as an agent of Messrs S. W. & Co. at Nandyal, (the head quarters of the firm being Madras City), when called upon to account by his employers, failed to account for the monies realised at Nandyal by sale of oil,—held—that a competent Magistrate having jurisdiction over Nandyal should try the case [20 M. J. 178]. So where the complainant despatched goods from Delhi to the accused at Calcutta for sale on commission and the latter misappropriated and converted the money raised by mortgaging the goods—held—the fact that the money should have been, and was not, sent to Delhi did not give the Delhi Court jurisdiction, the accused having put the money into his own pocket at Calcutta [7 F. R. 1910].

13. [Note—A contrary view is indicated in 41 C 305 19 A 111 32 A. 379 35 A. 29. 7 P. W 1903 2 P. R 1902 7 P. R 1900 The above view has been adopted in 4 O. C. 376; 22 P. R 1915 4 M. T. 481 67 P. R 1901 and is in consonance with R v Oliphant (05) 2 K. B. 67].

14. Exception to the above rule.—The accused as agent at Murshidabad of the complainant came to Burdwan after the alleged occurrence and was there asked to render his accounts but he declined to do so and was thereupon dismissed—held—that under the circumstances the Burdwan Court had jurisdiction to try the accused [19 Cr 679 (C)] See however 19 Cr. 897 (C).

- 14 A. American Law.—“If the crime charged consists in the failure to account the venue should be laid in the country where the defendant was under an obligation to account or declined to do so on proper demand.”—McLain. Criminal Law of the United States Vol I S. 650 at p 659

15. Cheating.—Where the allegation was that the complainant was induced by the accused to part with his money at Meerut on the false representation that a certain barrel contained a certain amount of spirits which on reaching Agra was found to contain a much lesser amount and it was found that the accused had used a wrong measure—held—that the case ought to be tried at Meerut. The discovery of the alleged fraud at Agra, after the goods were delivered could not be said to be a “consequence which has ensued” within the meaning of S 179 Cr. P. O. [13 A. J. 1087]. The accused, a trader of Salem, cheated the complainant, a trader of Dhulia, by leading the latter to believe that he was buying clean ground nut oil while he was in reality supplied with a mixture of that oil with rock oil—held—S. 179 applied and under the law the Courts at Dhulia had jurisdiction in the case [17 B. R. 399]. W. the complainant, a shop keeper of Moradabad, ordered a consignment of matches from a firm of Calcutta, (called A. M. Fambhoy) and received a consignment which was so seriously damaged as not to be marketable. The complainant had in the mean time handed over to the post office, at Moradabad, a registered cover containing currency notes addressed to the firm of A. M. Fambhoy at Calcutta—held—that the offence of cheating was in its entirety committed at Moradabad and was therefore triable there [12 A. J. 1022]. See also: 18 P. N. 1904 7 P. R. 1900; 5 A. J. 537 5 L. B. 57; 24 P. R. 1910 (F. B.) at p. 17; But See—26 C. 740 2 P. R. 1901.

16. Defamation.—In a charge of defamation, it appeared that the defamatory matter was contained in a petition signed by the accused and addressed to the Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab, which the accused stated was put by him in the L-G's petition-box at Lahore. The libel at the request of the petitioner was sent for enquiry to Amritsar and published there—held that the Courts at Amritsar had jurisdiction—Per Spitta J. in 44 P. R. 1885; 14 P. R. 1889 The English law is that when a libel is sent from the jurisdiction of one limit to the jurisdiction of another Court, the venue may be laid in either—R. v. Burdett, 4 B. and Ald. 95; R. v. Ellis (99) 1 B. 230; R. v. Watson 1 Camp 215 The American Law lays down the same rule [See N. Y. Cr. Pro Code S. 135]. See also 5 B. at p. 363 [Per West J.]

17. Criminal Conspiracy.—“Conspiracy may be agreed of the often of its ference deduced from the criminal acts of the accused persons which is done in pursuance of a common criminal purpose, and are often not confined to one place, a charge of conspiracy may consequently be laid in any country, where any of these criminal acts is committed.—Malsbury's Laws of England Vol IX p 283. Note—Where a person caused a letter to be posted in Calcutta to his agent at Gomkhpore, including a defamatory offence at the latter place, the offence of the letter being posted by him at Calcutta is complete.

18. Falsification of Accounts.—The section applies only where a person is accused of an offence by reason of anything which has been done, and of any consequence which has ensued. The offence under S. 477-A I. P. C. is complete when the accounts are falsified with intent to defraud, and a person accused of falsification of accounts made in one place, cannot be tried at any other place, by reason of any consequence (e.g. loss)

- which may have ensued.—4 M. T. 491 : See 18 M. T. 25
9. Bigamy.—Under the English Law, the offence of Bigamy may be tried in any county where the offender is apprehended or is in custody—S 57, 24 and 25 Vict. C. 100 S. 57.
10. [Note.—This rule applies to the offences of Forgery, Post office and Revenue offences].
11. Disposal of Minors for Prostitution.—A woman in District Moradabad, sold her minor daughter to a prostitute who took her to Benares —held, that the offence was completed at Moradabad, and Benares Courts could not try the case on the ground that the possession of the girl at Benares was a "consequence" within the meaning of S 179 Cr. P. C.—6 Ag. 46 1 Leg Rem 1.

22. Infringement of copy-right.—The offence of infringement of copy-right does not depend for its completion upon the ensuing of any consequence such as is contemplated by S 179 Cr. P. C. The court within whose jurisdiction the offence has been committed, is the only court, which has jurisdiction to try it within the meaning of S, 177 Cr. P. C.—23 P. R. 1916

180. When an act is an offence by reason of its relation to any other act which is also an offence or which would be an offence if the doer were capable of committing an offence, a charge of the first-mentioned offence may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction either act was done.

- (a) A charge of abetment may be inquired into or tried either by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the abetment was committed, or by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the offence abetted was committed.
- (b) A charge of receiving or retaining stolen goods may be inquired into or tried either by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the goods were stolen, or by any Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any of them were at any time dishonestly received or retained.
- (c) A charge of wrongfully concealing a person known to have been kidnapped may be inquired into or tried by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the wrongful concealing, or by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the kidnapping, took place

Notes.

1. S 180 is subject to the provisions of S 188 Cr. P. C.—A dacoity was committed in British territory and a Native Indian British Subject was found in a Native State in possession of the property alleged to have been stolen at the dacoity—held—that although, under S 160 Cr. P. C., the offence under S 412 Cr. P. C. could be tried either at the place where the property was retained or where the dacoity took place, a certificate of the Political agent was necessary under S 188 if the charge was to be tried in British India.—8 M. T. 54 But See 18 C. N. 1178
2. [Note.—This rule will not apply if the accused is a non-British Subject and if it is not proved that the accused took any part in the dacoity or received the stolen property in British India.—9 A. 523, 4 B. II (C. C.) 34: 16 P. R. 1850 22 P. R. 1858]
3. Retention in British India of property stolen in a Native State.—A subject of a Native State committed theft at Rajkot Civil Station (outside British India), and was found in possession of the stolen property in British territory.—held—that the British Court, had no jurisdiction to try him for theft but could try the accused under S 411 P. C. as the definition of stolen property, under S 410, includes property stolen outside British India.—10 B. 186 29 A. 872: See 1 B. 60: 6 C. 307.

4. [Note.—The decision in 1 M. 171 based on the Code X of 1872 has been superseded, by the amendment of S 410 P. C. (See Act VIII of 1882). The same remark applies to 5 B. 339 (F. B.)—20 M. J. 235 2 Weir 145 must also be regarded as obsolete]

5. English Law.—The Larceny Act 1893 (59 and 60 Vict. C. 32) S. 1, Sub sec 1, is as follows. "If any person without lawful excuse, receives or has in possession, any property stolen outside the United Kingdom, knowing such property to have been stolen, he may be indicted in any county or place in which he has, or has had, the property"

6. Illustration (a).—Illustration (a) refers to a case where both the abetment and the offence have been committed within British territory. The section (180) assumes that the offence, as well as the investigation has been committed within a local jurisdiction created by the Code. Where therefore a foreign subject resident in foreign territory instigated the commission of the offence of murder in British territory which was in consequence of the instigation committed therein, held that the instigator was not amenable to the jurisdiction of British Courts [10 B. II. 376; also 20 P. R. 1878 35 P. R. 1440]

[Note.—Illustration (f) to S. 179 which is new seems to militate against this view].

7. Abetment by post.—The principle is very neatly and succinctly laid down in R. v. Rogers (77) 3 Q B D 24.—“For the purpose of giving jurisdiction, a letter speaks continuously from the moment of its being posted until its receipt by the addressee.” A person sent a letter to another by post inviting him to commit a criminal offence—held he is guilty of the offence of abetment as soon as the letter is received by, and the contents become known to, the addressee, and is triable at the place where the letter is received—16 A. 349.
8. General rule as to abetment. Where a foreigner in foreign territory (Cambay), initiates an offence which is completed within the British territory, he is liable to be tried by the British Court within whose jurisdiction the offence was completed.—14 B. R. 147 See 1 Weir. 155; 7 M L A. 72.

9. Kidnapping.—Illustration (c)—The offence of kidnapping from lawful guardianship is complete as soon as he or she is cut off or taken out of the keeping of his or her lawful guardian [26 M. 454, 27 C. 1011 (1014) (F. B.); 26 A. 117; 18 A. 350, 13 P. R. 1883]. An abatement of the offence can not therefore be a continuing offence [8 P. R. 1891; 7 P. R. 1891; 6 P. R. 1891. Con—1 M. 173.] It follows therefore that the locus of the trial for abetment cannot be the place where the kidnapped person is taken after the completion of the offence.

181. (1) The offence of being a thug, of being a thug and committing murder, of dacoity, of dacoity with murder of having belonged to a gang of dacoits, or of dacoits, escape from custody, etc. of having escaped from custody, may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the person charged is.

(2) The offence of criminal misappropriation or of criminal breach of trust may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction any part of the property which is the subject of the offence was received or retained by the accused person, or the offence was committed.

(3) The offence of stealing anything may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such thing was stolen or was possessed by the thief or by any person who received or retained the same knowing or having reason to believe it to be stolen.

(4) The offence of kidnapping or abduction may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the person kidnapped or abducted was kidnapped or abducted or was conveyed or concealed or detained.

Proposed amendments to the section.—For sub-section (3) of section 181 of the said Code, the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely:—

“(3) The offence of theft, or any offence which includes theft or the possession of stolen property, may be inquired into or tried by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such offence was committed or the property stolen was possessed by the thief or by any person who received or retained the same knowing or having reason to believe it to be stolen.”

Notes.

- Scope of the section.—S. 181 Cr. P. C. does not apply to the case of an offence committed by a person who is not a British subject, outside British territory. The section is intended to regulate the jurisdiction of courts in British India, in respect of offences committed in British India and cannot vary or abrogate the ordinary rule that no offence—2 B 7 P R
- S. 181 does not apply to offences under Chapter XX. I P. C.—A complaint under S. 498 Cr. P. C. can be enquired into, only in the District where the detention occurs. S. 181 (4) Cr. P. C. refers only to cases of kidnapping and abduction, offences dealt with in Ss. 359 to 361 of the Penal Code and does not apply to offences under ch. XX of the Code—51 P. L. 1918.
- Application of the section.—S. 181 (3) Cr. P. C. only applies as between courts of different local areas, whose jurisdictions have been limited under S. 12 Cr. P. C. and to which the Code applies. A British Magistrate cannot take cognizance of an offence of criminal breach of trust committed in a Native state merely because part of the property was retained by the accused within his jurisdiction 5 S. 200. 21 M J 441. But see 26 M J. 235.
- Escape from lawful custody.—[Vide Penal Code S. 224] The British Courts have no jurisdiction under Ss. 181, 188 Cr. P. C. to try the offence of escape from lawful custody committed beyond the limits of British India (e.g. Mysore State) [Rat 870]. The offence would be complete, even if the accused is acquitted of the offence for which he was placed under arrest [24 W. R. 45] or is found guilty of an offence different from the one with which he was charged [Ibid].

[Note.—There is no escape from lawful custody, if the custody itself is unlawful [See 5 M. 22 23 A. 296]. The custody referred to in S. 223 I. P. C. is custody for an offence, and not an arrest under a civil process [12 C. 190]. A convict, who escapes from custody while undergoing sentence, can be tried for the offence only in the district in which he escaped [1 B. H. 139].

5. Person accused of being a member of a gang of dacoits.—Where a resident of Bhartpur, a Native State, was arrested in that state, and was accused of the offence of belonging to a gang of dacoits, without any allegation being made of the prisoner's participation in any dacoity or association with dacoits in the Gurgaon District in British territory, held that the first class Magistrate of Gurgaon had jurisdiction under S. 181 (1) Cr. P. C. to commit the prisoner to the Gurgaon Sessions Court. 1 P. R. 1911. See 6 B. 622 Punj Cr. A. No 2049 of 1907

6. As to notes or subs (2).—See Notes no 11 and 12 under S. 179 supra.

7. Sub-section (2) of Section 182.—A person convicted for dishonest retention of stolen property [6 C. 307. 1 B. 50-10 B. 186-28 A. 372]

8. [Note.—The rulings in M. 171 and 5 B. 338 to the contrary have been superseded by the amendment to S. 410 I. P. C. by Act VIII of 1862 26 M. J. 235. The same remark would apply to the rulings in 4 B. H. 38 and 2 Weir 145].

9. Kidnapping—change of Law.—Under the old Codes, the offence of kidnapping could be tried only by the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the minor was taken out of the keeping of the lawful guardian [See e.g. 18 A. 350. (83) A. N. 164]; for as has been held, "the offence of kidnapping a person is completed when such person is actually taken from or out of the keeping of his lawful guardian and the offence is not a continuing one so long as that person is kept out of such guardianship [27 C. 1041 (F. B.) 2 O. N. 81 26 M. 454 26 A. 197 18 A. 350; (57) A. N. 139; (83) A. N. 164 (83) A. N. 67, 4 P. R. 1863; 13 P. R. 1893 8 P. R. 1894 7 S. 17]. But by enacting subs (4), the Legislature has expressly made the case triable by a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the person kidnapped or abducted is conveyed, or concealed or detained. It should be noted however that the rule applies to an offender proceeding from one jurisdiction in British India to another in British India [1 P. R. 1901].

10. When the offence of kidnapping is committed out of British India.—The accused took a minor girl out of the keeping of her husband in Bikanir, detained her for a month in Bikanir and eventually brought her to Karachi. They detained her in Karachi for 3 days and then were taking her by train to Selwan when they were arrested at the Kotri Railway Station (in British India)—held—that the kidnapping was completed in Bikanir and there was no offence committed in British India of which the Magistrate in British territory could take cognizance under S. 181 (4) [7 S. 17]. An offence of kidnapping committed within the jurisdiction of the Mayurbhanj State cannot be tried within the British dominions, merely because, the person kidnapped was conveyed, concealed or detained within the same. [20 C. N. 62 See 8 C. 695 18 C. N. 1178]. A foreign subject who had kidnapped a girl in a Foreign State but was arrested in British territory while conveying her to another Foreign State does not come within the mischief of subs (1) [1 P. R. 1401].

11. English law as to venue for trials of cases of embezzlement.

Place of inquiry or trial where scene of offence is uncertain or not in one district only or where offence is continuing or consists of several acts partly in another, or where an offence is a continuing one, and continues to be committed in more local areas than one, or where it consists of several acts done in different local areas, it may be inquired into or tried by a Court having jurisdiction over any of such local areas.

Notes.

1. The term "Local Area".—The term "Local area" means a local area over which the Criminal Procedure Code has application. It does not include a local area in a Foreign country or a portion of the British Empire to which the Code does not apply. [16 C. 647]. The expression includes and was intended to include a "District Province, Sub-Division or Sessions Division" and cannot be restricted to the scene of the alleged offence only [25 C. 854. (193-09) L. B. 41 See 12 A. J. 1022]

2. Application of the Section.—The Section does not apply to miscellaneous proceedings (e.g., proceedings under S. 142) as they do not relate 182 When it is uncertain in which of several local areas an offence was committed, or where an offence is committed partly in one local area and in offences [See 3 C N. 149] The section intended to provide for the difficulty which may arise where there is a conflict between different areas, in order to prevent an accused person getting off entirely, because there may be some doubt as to what particular Magistrate has jurisdiction to try the case [16 C 667]

3. Scene of offence being on boundary line of two Districts.—This Section would cover the case where the boundary between two Districts is uncertain, and consequently it is doubtful to which of the two districts, the scene of an alleged offence belongs—25 C. 859; ('83-'00) L B 81

4. Instances of continuing offence.

- (a) Where A steals a buffalo from B in the District W, and personally or by his agent conveys the buffalo through districts X and Y into district Z, this is a continuing offence, and A may be tried for theft in any of the districts W, X, Y and Z—See—Illustration (f) to S 67 of Act X of 1872.

- (b) The case of a travelling Agent.—The accused as agent of a firm in Mirzapur sold goods entrusted to him for sale and committed embezzlements in various Districts in Lower Bengal. When called upon to furnish Rs 500 as a deposit, but did not submit any account, held that the Magistrate of Mirzapur had jurisdiction to try the case—32 A 397 See 26 M J 235.

[Note.—But this ruling and the ruling which it follows, 19 A 111, have been expressly dissented from in several cases]

183. An offence committed whilst the offender is in the course of performing a journey or Offence committed on a journey voyage may be inquired into or tried by a Court through or into the local limits of whose jurisdiction the offender, or the person against whom, or the thing in respect of which, the offence was committed, passed in the course of that journey or voyage.

Note.

1. Scene of offence.

river, lake or canal situate in or passing through different districts or provinces in British India) See 5 M 23 Con Rat 181.

2. Analogous Law—See S 136 of the New York C P C When a crime is committed on board a vessel, the jurisdiction is in respect of the place in which the offence is committed, or in which such lake is situated or on which it borders or in the county where such voyage terminates, or would terminate if completed. In America it has been held that the port of destination has no jurisdiction over an offence committed on board a vessel in the course of a voyage through a river. The offence can be tried only in a county through which the vessel passed—People v. Hulse 3 Hall 309 Compare also, the Criminal Law Act (7 Geo. 4 Ch 64) S. 13, and the Fugitive Offenders Act 1881 (44 and 45 Vict Ch. 69).

5. Kidnapping and abetment of kidnapping is not a continuing offence within the meaning of S. 182 Cr. P. C.—See Note No 9 under S. 180 supra

6. Counterfeit trade-mark (S. 486 I. P. C.) If the accused has in his possession, an article, within the jurisdiction of a Court, with counterfeit trade mark with intent to sell the same, that Court has jurisdiction and it is immaterial that the sale was intended to take place beyond the jurisdiction of such Court—25 C 639

7. The rule as to enticement of married women.—Where a married woman is enticed from the jurisdiction of one Court and detained within jurisdiction of another, both Courts have concurrent jurisdiction to try the offender under S 48 I. P. C as the enticing and detaining constitutes a continuous offence—6 L B. 17.

8. Rules in force as to cases of concurrent jurisdiction—

United Provinces—See Agra Sudder Court Cir. No 21 of 1864

Punjab.—Jud Com Punjab Cir. No. 21 of 1864: Punj Bk. Cir. P. 226.

9. Analogous Law.—When a crime has been committed on the boundaries of two or more counties, or within 500 yards thereof, the jurisdiction is in either county.—S. 133 N. Y. Cr P C. [cf. 7 Geo. 4 C. 54, S. 12]

3. The Journey referred to in this section means a journey which the offender is in the course of performing, and the words that journey at the end of the section refer to the same journey. Where, therefore, a serang was charged under S 250 I. P. C. with rashly navigating a vessel so as to endanger human life, it was held that the only Courts which have jurisdiction to try the offender, are the Courts through, or into the local limits of, whose jurisdiction, the offender in the course of that journey passed—1 C. J. 334

4. Application of the section.—In order to give jurisdiction to the Magistrate, the journey must be a continuous one, from one terminus to the other without any interruption by either party (i. e. the complainant and the accused.) So where an offence was alleged to have been committed during a journey from Bombay to Calcutta, and was in fact committed between Bombay and Allahabad at which the complainant and the accused separated, and proceeded to Calcutta by different trains, held that the Magistrate at Howrah had no jurisdiction to try the case—[13 B. L. (ap) 4] In 1 M H. 193 (a case under the Code of 1802), it was held, that where two Railway guards were charged with drunkenness while in charge of a train under S. 27 of the Railway Act, and removal and detention at Arakonam, a place beyond the local limits of the High Court, but one of them broke away and continued the journey to Madras, that neither of them could be tried by the Madras High Court, as the journey in the course of which the offence was committed could not be said to have ended at Madras having been broken at Arakonam.

5. The effect of a halt during the journey.—Where the stoppage during a journey is due to the nature of the journey itself, the stoppage can not be regarded as amounting to a break in the journey. A box containing money was missed from a boat during a halt at S. in the district of

T. during a journey to C.—held that the journey was not broken at S. so the case could be tried at C.—[25 W. R. 45]

6. Voyage on the High Seas.—Where the accused in the course of a voyage from Bombay to Honawar, threw over board a box of the complainant while nine miles off the Jinjira State—held that the Court of Honawar through whose jurisdiction the accused had passed on the voyage had jurisdiction to try him for mischief [Rat 181]
7. Indictment must show.—(1) that the offence was committed during a voyage on board a boat etc., (2) that on that voyage the boat etc. had passed through some part of local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court trying the offence.—See Larkin 61 Barb. 226.

184. All offences against the provisions of any law for the time being in force relating to Offences against Railway, Telegraph, Railways, Telegraphs, the Post-office or Arms and Ammunition Post Office and Arms Acts may be inquired into or tried in a presidency-town, whether the offence is stated to have been committed within such town or not.

Provided that the offender and all the witnesses necessary for his prosecution are to be found within such town.

Note.

Offence relating to Railways [See Act IX of 1860]; Telegraph [See Act XIII of 1863 amended] by Act XI of 1888]; Post Office [See Act VI of 1895] Arms and Ammunition [Act XI of 1878]

185. (1) Whenever any doubt arises as to the Court by which any offence should under the preceding provisions of this Chapter be inquired into or tried, the High Court, within the local limits of whose appellate criminal jurisdiction the offender actually is, may decide by which Court the offence shall be inquired into or tried.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section.—S. 185 is not restricted to cases in which there is doubt as to whether one Court or another has jurisdiction, but is applicable also to cases in which the doubt is on the point, whether the choice between two Courts, both of which have jurisdiction should be decided on the ground of public convenience—44 C 595 (F. B.). 5 L. B. 17; 17 C. N. 761. 24 P. R. 1917. 40 M. 385; Con. 41 C 303 [O]

2. Which High Court is to decide.—Where Courts of two Magistrates subordinate to two different High Courts have jurisdiction, to try an offence, the High Court, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the offender actually is, may decide by which Court the offence shall be tried—5 L. B. 17.

3. The nature of the doubt referred to in the section.—Apparently be fact [14 P. R.], within the offender ere a doubt arises as to the Court by which an offence should alleged to have occurred, the High Court declined to pass any order holding that the Cantonment Magistrate, if so empowered, could himself deal with the matter under S. 186 Cr. P. C. or if he was not so empowered, the District Magistrate could deal with the matter under Ss. 523 and 186 Cr. P. C. the Cantonment Magistrate being his subordinate [See S. 7 Act XIII of 1889]—Rat 819.

5. Doubt due to the place of occurrence being uncertain.—B a resident of A. in Dist K was travelling with his servant H. who had charge of his money and other personal property. On arriving at S. in the District B, B demanded an account from H. and found a considerable sum unaccounted for and certain moveable property missing. The property being given at different places and it not being clear where it was given, the Magistrate of B. had jurisdiction to try the case—(83) A. N. 59
6. Cases.—Where a complaint was made before a respect of certain handis which the complainant had purchased, held—that the alleged offence should be inquired into at Calcutta and not at Aligarh [5 A J 333]. The nominee of a policy-holder, claiming payment in respect of a life-policy effected at Chittagong, brought a charge of cheating against the Secretary and other officers of an Insurance Company (with head office at Gujranwalla) in the Panjab with a branch office at Chittagong) and the latter brought a counter-charge of cheating at Gujranwalla. On an application under S. 185 by the nominee, the High Court, Calcutta held that the counter charge against him should be inquired into at Chittagong on the ground of convenience and transferred the case from Gujranwalla to Chittagong [17 C N 761: See 41 C. 305]

7. The power to transfer a pending case under S. 185.—S. 185 Cr. P. C. does not enable a High Court to make an order transferring a case pending on the file of a Criminal Court, whether within or outside its jurisdiction, to the file of another Criminal Court, whether such Criminal Court be within its own jurisdiction or without its jurisdiction. 40 M 835. But See 17 C. N. 761. 41 C. 305. 5 L B 17. Ss 185 and 527 Cr. P. C. compared.—The order under S. 527 Cr. P. C. is an executive order which may be made without opportunity afforded to the accused to be heard. In the second place, S. 527 contemplates an order of transfer, and recourse may possibly be had thereto, if an order made by one High Court under S. 185 is disregarded by another High Court. The two sections have therefore entirely different scopes—Per. Mookjee J. in 44 C. 593 (F. B.)

8. S. 185 does not apply to miscellaneous

the Criminal Procedure Code. Proceedings under Ch. XII are not proceedings relating to any offence. Hence, S. 185 Cr. P. C. is inapplicable—12 A. J. 390

9. Form of order under S. 185 Cr. P. C.—The form of the order should be as follows: "It is declared that the Court's decision is that the case against A. B. should be enquired into or tried by the Court of—". [This will leave it open to the prosecution or applicant to take such steps as they may be advised]—44 C. 593 (F. B.).
10. The object of the section.—S. 185 Cr. P. C. was intended to apply to and to provide for the following two sets of circumstances. (1) Where two cases are pending in two Courts within the jurisdiction respectively of two separate High Courts on the same set of facts, the High Court within which the offender is found has the deciding voice whether the Court within its own jurisdiction shall or shall not proceed against the accused (such decision being intended to be based on the grounds of convenience, jurisdiction, fitness to both sides etc.). If it decides in the affirmative, the outside Court cannot proceed further, as the High Court has full powers to prevent a person who is within its jurisdiction from being taken out of that jurisdiction till the case in the subordinate Court is concluded. (2) Where only one case has been instituted, in a Court subordinate to the High Court, in whose jurisdiction the offender is, that High Court can decide whether the case should be enquired into and tried by its own subordinate Court or should be tried in a Court within the jurisdiction of some other High Court—40 M 385.

185 (1) When a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate, or,

Power to issue summons or warrant for offence committed beyond local jurisdiction

if he is specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government, a Magistrate of the first class, sees reason to believe that any person within the local limits of his jurisdiction has committed without such limits (whether within or without British India) an offence which cannot, under the provisions of sections 177 to 184 (both inclusive), or any other law for the time being in force, be inquired into or tried within such local limits, but is under some law for the time being in force, be triable in British India, such Magistrate may inquire into the offence as if it had been committed within such local limits, and compel such person in manner hereinbefore provided to appear before him, and send such person to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try such offence is bailable, take a bond with or without sureties for his appearance before such Magistrate

(2) When there are more Magistrates than one having such jurisdiction and the Magistrate acting under this section cannot satisfy himself as to the Magistrate to or before whom such person should be sent or bound to appear, the case shall be reported for the orders of the High Court.

(2) N. W. Provinces.—All Magistrates of the first class. See Gaz. dated 24 12 73

(3) Oudh.—Ibid See, Gaz 1873 p 3

(5) In the Punjab.—All Magistrates of the First Class.—See Punjab Gaz 1883 pt 1 p 52

2. May enquire.—The object of the enquiry being to find out whether there was a prima facie case. When a Magistrate who is not empowered to act under the section finds that he has no jurisdiction, he can decline to exercise jurisdiction [Rat 819]

3. High Court's powers under the Letters Patent.—The High Court can under s 29 of the Letters Patent, direct a preliminary enquiry and commitment to the Court of Session. But where the circumstances of a case, fall exactly within the terms of this section, the procedure should be governed by it and the High Court will not exercise its special powers under the Letters Patent, unless the case is of an extremely exceptional character.—2 Weir 140.

4. Without British India.—Where a subject of a Native State is charged with abetting an offence committed in British India and the alleged abetment consists entirely of what the accused did or said at a place within the State territory he cannot be such abettor. But See 36 B tion Act XV of 1903

5. Issue of process against the accused.—It is not essential to the validity of a warrant issued that the Magistrate at the time he issues it should be within the local limits of his jurisdiction or even in British India [1 B 340. But See 17 A 36 23 P R. 1010]

6. Proceedings of Magistrate not empowered.—If any Magistrate, not specially empowered, acts under this section, the proceedings will not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered.—See S 529 (d) infra

187. (1) If the person has been arrested under a warrant issued under section 186 by a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate, such Magistrate shall send the person arrested to the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate to whom he is subordinate, unless the Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try such offence issues him warrant for the arrest of such person, in which case the person arrested shall be delivered to the police-officer executing such warrant or shall be sent to the Magistrate by whom such warrant was issued

(2) If the offence which the person arrested is alleged or suspected to have committed is one which may be inquired into or tried by any Criminal Court in the same district other than that of the Magistrate acting under section 186, such Magistrate shall send such person to such Court.

188. When a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty commits an offence at any place without and beyond the limits of British India, or when any British subject commits an offence in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India, or when a servant of the Queen (whether a British subject or not) commits an offence in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India, he may be dealt with in respect of such offence as if it had been committed at any place within British India at which he may be found.

Provided that no charge as to any such offence shall be inquired into in British India unless the Political Agent, if there is one, for the territory in which the offence is alleged to have been committed, certifies that, in his opinion, the charge ought to be inquired into in British India; and, where there is no Political Agent, the sanction of the Local Government shall be required:

Provided, also, that any proceedings taken against any person under this section which would be a bar to subsequent proceedings against such person for the same offence if such offence had been committed in British India shall be a bar to further proceedings against him under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879, in respect of the same offence in any territory beyond the limits of British India.

Proposed Amendments to the Section.—In section 188 of the said Code, after the words "provided that," the words "notwithstanding anything in any of the preceding sections of this Chapter" shall be inserted.

Notes.

(1) Preliminary.

- 1 Scope of the Section.—The word "territory" in the first proviso to S 188 Cr P. C. is used in that proviso in reference only to territories of any Native Prince or chief of India. The word cannot include the High Seas, since they are not part of the territory of any State—S L. B. 221 (F. B.) 41 B. 667.
- 2 History of the Section.—S 188 Cr P. C. has been amended so as to conform exactly to the statutes empowering the Indian Legislature. The first paragraph corresponds to the Indian Councils Act 1869 [32 and 33 Vict. C. 94], the 2nd paragraph with the Government of India Act 1865 [29 and 30 Vict. C. 15], and the third paragraph with the Indian Councils Act 1861 [24 and 25 Vict. C. 67]. The amendment of the proviso to S 188 Cr P. C. seems to have been made in view of the judgment in 13 B. 147 (Queen V. Daya) and to avoid a conflict of jurisdiction with the Courts of Foreign sovereigns and the Courts established by the King by an order in Council under 53 and 54 Vict. C. 37—[6 S. 260]. There is good reason to believe that the words "where there is no political agent" were added in 1898, to remove the difficulty which had previously existed in cases where offences had been committed, for instance in such places as Goa where there is no political agent [41 B. 667].
- 3 Application of the Section.—The proviso to S. 188 Cr P. C. is universal in its application and is not restricted to Native States in India [6 S. 260]. The proviso to S 188 will come into operation only when British Courts cannot get jurisdiction under Ss 179 to 184 and has to depend on the first part of S 188 to get jurisdiction. Surely it could not have been intended to restrict the enlarged liberties and privileges as regards jurisdiction given to the Courts by the previous sections [26 M. J. 235].

(2) Meaning and interpretation of terms.

- 4 As to definition of "India," and "British India" [See S. 3 (27) and 3 (7) of General Clauses Act X of 1897] "Political Agent" [See S 3 (40) ibid.].
- 5 The term "Servant of the Queen"—denotes all officers or servants continued, appointed or employed in India by or under the authority of the said Statute 21 and 22 Vict. C. 106, entitled "An Act for the better Government of India or by or under the authority of the Government of India or any Government".—See S 141 P. C.

- 6 The word "place" in the first paragraph of the section includes High Seas within its ambit: 41 B. 667.
- 7 The expression "where there is no political Agent" means "where there is no Political Agent for the territory in which the offence is alleged to have been committed" and excludes the notion of the high seas.—ibid.
- 8 The term "Native Indian subject of Her Majesty"—Means only a Native Subject de jure and not de facto. A son born of an alien in British India was held to be a British subject notwithstanding that the father was not a naturalised British subject [9 P. R. 1893]. But an occasional residence in British territory and the mere fact that the person owns land in British India cannot make him a de jure subject [1 P. R. 1853; 22 P. R. 1853].
- 9 The words "may be found"—must be taken to mean not where a person is discovered but where he is actually present.—[2 A. 218 (F. B.), cf. 1 P. R. 1911; See, 13 B. 147]. A Native Indian subject of Her Majesty committed an offence in a Native State and was brought down or came of his own accord to Ahmedabad, held he was found at Ahmedabad within the meaning of the section [6 B. 622]. Where a man is in the country and is charged before a Magistrate with an offence under the Indian Penal Code, it will not avail him to say that he was brought there illegally from a foreign country. The principle upon which the English cases to this effect are based underlies also S 188 Cr P. C.—[35 B. 225 See 16 B. 187].
- [Illustration.—A foreigner in the service of the Punjab Government, who commits a murder in Jhindh can be tried and convicted of murder at any place in British India in which he may be found.—Illus (c) S 4 I. P. C.]
- 10 The word "charge" in this section is used in the same sense in which it is used elsewhere in the Code—8 B. R. 507 (511).
- 11 The word "territory" in the first proviso—See Note no 1. above.

(3) Sanction and certificate.

- 12 Sanction of the Local Government.—Under the old Codes, offences committed by

- British subjects, in States where there are no Political Agents, could be tried in British India without the certificate required by the section [See Rat 773 (offence committed in Spain); 2 A. 218 (F.B.) [in Cyprus]; 6 B 222 13 B 117 14 B 227 (Gos.)] But as for the present Code, a trial without the sanction of the Local Government will be illegal [6 S 299 (offence committed at Las Palomas in Spain)]
3. Offence committed on the High Seas.—No sanction of the Local Government under S 188 Cr P C is necessary for the trial of a Native Indian subject in respect of an offence committed on the High Seas.—[5 L B 221 (F.B.)]
4. Certificate an essential requisite of a valid trial.—The certificate is an essential and preliminary requisite of a valid trial. It is as essential to an enquiry preliminary to commitment as to a trial before the Court of Session.—[19 A 109. (54) A N 85; 1 Bur S 334 24 B 257]
5. Does the want of certificate invalidate the proceedings.—There is some conflict of rulings on this point. Excepting the Punjab Chief Court, all other Courts have held that the proviso is imperative and the want of a certificate by the Political Agent will invalidate the enquiry, commitment or trial, and the defect cannot be cured by S 532 Cr P C [19 A 109 24 A 256 (54) A N 85; 20 Cr 276 (1) 24 B 247 10 B 190; 6 B R 513 Rat 870. 13 M 123 5 M 23 8 M T 54 2 Warr 148 7 Cr 184 (M) (72-82) L B 334 See also 6 S 260] In the Punjab, it
- right to try subjects of the State arrested in British India cannot take the place of the certificate or sanction contemplated by S. 188 Cr P C.—42 A. 69
20. Where the offence is not a continuing one. The offence of kidnapping not being a continuing offence, the fact that a person accused of committing such offence in a Native State, is arrested in British India, does not give the British Courts jurisdiction without the certificate of the Political Agent as required by S 188 Cr P C 11 A 452
21. Prosecution need not be confined to the charge mentioned in the certificate.—An order of commitment is good, notwithstanding that it is an order of commitment on a charge which is not specified in the certificate [8 M T. 203] The certificate granted under S. 188 Cr P C in respect of a certain set of facts will cover every charge which the facts disclosed in the proceedings will suffice to sustain and the Magistrate is not restricted to the section mentioned in the certificate [43 A 514].
22. Conditions precedent to jurisdiction.—The Magistrate would have jurisdiction under S 188 Cr P C, if the accused were Native Indian subjects of His Majesty and the Political Agent of the Native State where the offence has been committed had certified that the accused should be tried in British India.—7 S 87; See 8 C 985 (F.B.)
- (4) Miscellaneous.
23. Abetment in British India of offence committed outside British India.—Before the addition of 188A I P C which is as follows:—‘A person abets an offence in British India within the meaning of this Code, who in British India, abets the commission of any act without and beyond British India which would constitute an offence, if committed in British India,’ an abetment by a Native Indian Subject in British India is a crime in British India, and is a foreign territory. [See 19 B.
24. The Code applies to Bangalore.—Though the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore is foreign territory, belonging to Mysore, the Criminal Procedure Code is in force therein, by virtue of declarations made by the Governor General in Council under Act XXI of 1879—12 M 39.
25. Section inapplicable to offences under the Post Office Act.—Offences against the Indian Post Office Act (VI of 1898) committed by officers of the Postal Department, employed in places outside British India, are not governed by S 188 Cr P C.—See S 57 of the Act
26. Offences alleged to have been committed by Native Indian or British Subjects of His Majesty, beyond British India, and not being in a Foreign State as defined in that Act, and issue warrants to arrest the accused.—8 B. R. 607.

27. As to procedure to be followed in obtaining delivery from a Native State of a subject of such State, charged with an offence committed in British India—See Reg & Ord N W. P., S. 10 p. 538
28. Delivery of offenders to Native States—As regards offences committed in some Native States including Jhind, the Governor General in Council has directed that the offenders shall, except under certain circumstances, be handed over to the Courts of the State—Gaz. of Ind. 16th Aug. '76, No. 67
29. This Section does not confer jurisdiction on British Courts to try Foreigners for an offence committed outside British territory.—See Notes under S 177. Supra.

30. Case may be enquired into by Magistrate competent to issue process—Where a Native Indian Subject was arraigned under a warrant issued by a Magistrate of First class, for an offence committed in a Foreign territory, and the Political Agent's certificate was obtained, held, the Magistrate was competent to hold the preliminary inquiry himself under S. 186 supra, rendered it unnecessary send the accused to the District Magistrate Rat 97

189. Whenever any such offence as is referred to in section 188 is being inquired into or tried by the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that copies of depositions made or exhibits produced before the Political Agent or a judicial officer in or for the territory in which such offence is alleged to have been committed shall be received as evidence by the Court holding such inquiry or trial in any case in which such Court might issue a commission for taking evidence as to the matters to which such depositions and exhibits relate.

B.—Conditions requisite for Initiation of Proceedings.

190. (1) Except as hereinafter provided, any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate, and any other Magistrate specially empowered in this behalf, may take cognizance of any offence—

- (a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;
- (b) upon a police-report of such facts;
- (c) upon information received from any person other than a police-officer, or upon his own knowledge or suspicion, that such offence has been committed.

(2) The Local Government, or the District Magistrate subject to the general or special order of the Local Government, may empower any Magistrate to take cognizance under sub-section (1) clause (b), of offences for which he may try or commit for trial

(3) The Local Government may empower any Magistrate of the first or second class to take cognizance under sub-section (1), clause (c), of offences for which he may try or commit for trial

191. When a Magistrate takes cognizance of an offence under sub-section (1), clause (c), of this section, the accused shall, before any evidence is taken, be informed that he is entitled to have the case tried by another Court, and if the accused, or any of the accused if there be more than one, objects to being tried by such Magistrate, the case shall, instead of being tried by such Magistrate, be committed to the Court of Session or transferred to another Magistrate.

Proposed Amendments to the Section.—For clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 190 of the Code, the following clause shall be substituted, namely:—

"(b) upon a report of such facts made by any police-officer."

I. SCOPE OF THE SECTION.

1. The object.—The object of the Code is that before proceedings are taken against an accused person, such as would bring him to a court of justice, a Magistrate must have before him knowledge based either on a complaint or upon police report—11 A J 331
2. When a complaint must be filed only by the person aggrieved.—The law has made special provision with regard only to certain offences, e.g. offences under chapter XIX or XXI I. P. C. or SS 493 and 494 I. P. C. that a complaint must be made only by the person affected by the offence. As a general rule any person having knowledge of the commission of an offence may set the law in motion by a complaint even though he may not be personally interested in or affected by the offence. Excepting S 195 and 291 Cr. P. C. there is nothing in the Code showing an intention to confine prosecutions to the person directly injured—13 B 600. 15 A 465 14 Cr 491 (0)
3. Cognizance of the offence of a person not mentioned in the complaint.—The law was changed by the Police. After examining the investigating officer the Magistrate considered that one S should be joined as an accused person. He accordingly issued process against S, and tried him along with L. (Both men were eventually convicted)

Held that the Magistrate was bound to see that justice was done in regard to any person who might be passed by evidence to be concerned in the offence under enquiry. "This principle seems to have been expressly embodied in S 351 Cr. P. C. and it applies equally whether proceedings started on a complaint or a police report. I hold therefore that the Magistrate took cognizance of S's offence under Cl (b) not under Cl (c) of subsection (1) S 190 Cr. P. C. and was consequently not bound to act under S 191."—Per. Drake Brockman J C—3 N 65 26 O 786 4 C N. 367 32 P R 1904 See also 21 C N 950 4 C N. 560 15 Cr 546 (c)

4. Application of the Section to Misc. Proceedings.—S 190 or S 191 do not apply to proceedings under chapter VIII [27 A 172] Although the section in terms apply only to offences the principle applies to miscellaneous proceedings—[4 Pat J 7 20 C 392 Cr R 401 of 1906]

II. DISQUALIFICATION OF MAGISTRATES (S. 191).

5. Deputy Commissioner in charge of Court of Wards.—When Deputy Commissioner as such (representing the Court of Wards) granted a lease to one C and on certain information, issued warrants (as Collector) against C for offences committed in respect of the lease—held—he was not competent to do so as by such action he was practically making himself a judge in his own case—10 C N 775=3 Cr 473 See 37 C 221 (Per Stephen J)

Note.—Under the law the Magistrate under such circumstances cannot himself try or commit for trial any such case, but he may none the less, take cognizance and issue process—37 C 221= (Per Curduff J Stephen J Contra) See 19 A N. 74

6. Magistrate also Chairman of Municipality.—Where Magistrate as Chairman of a Municipal Board initiates proceedings, he will be debarred by S 556 Cr. P. C. from trying the case—19 A. N. 74

7. District Magistrate also President of District Board.—A District Magistrate who is also President of the District Board, is competent under S 190 (1) (C) Or P. C. to take cognizance of an offence upon information received by him in his capacity of President of the District Board—21 Cr 345 (M) See 37 C 221 (Per Curduff J) Con 10 C N 775

8. The object of S. 191 Cr. P. C.—The object is bound to inform an accused that he is entitled to have the case tried by some Court other than the Court of such Magistrate—11 A J 331

9. Why the right to claim trial before another Court is given.—The real distinction between sub clause (c) and sub-clauses (a) and (b) of S 190 (1) is that in the two latter cases, an application is made to the Magistrate to take cognizance of the offence either by a complainant or by the police, while in the former case, the Magistrate takes cognizance suo moto either on his own knowledge, or suspicion or information received from some person who will not take the responsibility of setting the law in motion. In this case, the law partly out of regard to the susceptibilities of the accused, and partly to inspire confidence in the administration of justice allows the accused the right to claim to be tried before another Court—15 Cr 369 (8)
10. The principle under-lying S 191 Cr. P. C.—The principle of this section is to clear away everything which might endanger suspicion and distrust of the tribunal, and to promote the feeling of confidence in the administration of justice which is so essential to social order and security—See Sargant v Dale 2 Q B D. 558.

to comply with them. The Magistrate has no discretion in the matter [13 A 345] Silence on the part of the accused to take objection as to the plaint or upon a police report. If he chooses to take action without such independent report, he

12. Extent of the rights of the accused.—All that the accused is entitled under this section is to have the case tried by another Court. The section gives the accused no right to select or determine for himself by what other Court the case is to be tried [7 B R 637 See 22 M. 118] The right now appears to be that the accused are only entitled to object to a trial by the Magistrate taking cognizance under Cl. (C) of S 190 but the Magistrate is not bound to transfer the case. He may elect to commit it to the Court of Session—[22 M 118 26 C 756]
13. Objection to be taken at the earliest stage.—The accused if he elects to be tried by another Court, must signify his election by any evidence is taken—20 P. R 1894 (p 62)

14. Appeals.—A subordinate Magistrate who cognizance of a case under sub (C) of 190 is not after becoming District Magistrate hear appeal from an conviction in that case, altho it had been tried by another Magistrate, with following the procedure laid down in S 191 C N. 175. The rule however will not apply the Magistrate did not take cognizance but merely directed summons to issue [36 C. 569]

III. TAKING COGNIZANCE.

15. Accused cannot be summoned without taking formal cognizance.—Where subsequent to the conviction of some of the accused the District Magistrate while inspecting the police outpost made a note that the remaining accused should be sent up—held—that proceeding taken on the basis of the note without any one formally taking cognizance of the case are bad and must be set aside—3 C J. 87.
- 15A. Note.—A Magistrate has power to make orders under S 155 (2) Cr P. C without taking cognizance under S 190—6 M T 259
16. Under Cl. (a) and (b).—Magistrate can under Cl (a) and (b) take cognizance against a prosecution witness when in the course of the trial, the Magistrate found that the offence was not committed by the accused but by the witness—4 S 258.

17. Meaning of "cognizance of an offence"
The expression cognizance of any offence is equivalent to "cognizance of any offender" [4 256] But a Magistrate having taken cognizance of an offence has jurisdiction to hold judicial proceedings in regard to all persons, who evidence shows, are the offenders [21 C N 97 10 C N. 569] The expression "to take cognizance" has not been defined in the Cr P. Code and difficult to ascertain at what precise stage of case cognizance is said to be taken. When Magistrate in charge on receipt of a police report makes over the case to another Magistrate for enquiry and the latter after taking evidence summons the accused the latter and not the former can be said to take cognizance [17 C. N 795 & 65 P. L 1914]

18. What amounts to complaint

1904 (L.B.) 5 C N 254 35 C. 141.

19. Procedure on receipt of complaint.—See (S) Procedure
20. Complaint by a party not aggrieved. Complaint files by any person aware of the commission of an offence although he may not be the party injured, is a complaint within S 4 cl (b) and a Magistrate acting on it, takes cognizance under cl. (a) and not cl (c) 13 B 600 10 C. 18 (A) 18 A 465, 14 Cr 469 (O) 15 Cr 546 (C)

32. Report in a non-cognizable case.—The police report mentioned in S. 190 (i) (b) Cr. P. C. is a police report within the meaning of S. 173 Cr. P. C. that is to say a report in the course of an investigation of a cognizable offence—21 Cr. 269 (1st) 40 C 851 11 A J 331. (11) U. B. 11 19 (01 06) U. B. 1 25.

Put up the case before Mr. Deb for the necessary order," takes cognizance of the case under S. 190 (1) (c). 12 C N. 438.

- (b) Where names of the accused were added by the Public Prosecutor after the institution of the complaint the case against the newly added accused was taken cognizance of by the District Magistrate under S. 190 (1) (c) Cr. P. C. and that S. 191 applied to the case 14 Bar R. 327.

40. Provisions of S. 191 mandatory.—The competency of a magistrate to try a person for offence of which he has taken cognizance under Sub. (1) Cl. (c) is contingent on a strict observance of the provisions of S. 191. These provisions are mandatory and neglect to confirm to them makes the trial null and void 5 N. 113 : 6 C. N. 202 : 13 C. P. 191.

42. Information from police diary.—Where the Magistrate enquiring into a charge against only one man, issues warrant against others on the basis of certain statements of witnesses recorded in the police diary, he takes cognizance under S 195 (1) (c) Cr. P. C.—Rat 551.

43. Cognizance of offence not mentioned in complaint.—Cognizance of offences of different kind from those mentioned in the petition of complaint based on the complainant's examination on oath is cognizance under Cl (a) and not Cl (c) —26 C 786=3 C N 191.

44. Cognizance as a result of private conversation with police officer.—A Magistrate as a result of private conversation with a Police Inspector directed the case to be sent up for trial, he tried the case and convicted the accused without giving him an option under S. 191—held—he took cognizance under Cl. (c) even though there was the usual chalan and it was imperative for him to give the accused option under S 191—4 P L 485.

45. Proceedings under S. 351 Cr. P. C.—Where accused is proceeded against under S 351 Cr. P. C, the Magistrate should be taken to have taken cognizance under 190 (c). It is therefore bound to follow the provisions of S 191 Cr. P. C. 1 C N 105 Conn (10) U B (1—q) 2 : 5 N 113 : 4 S 238

46. Proceedings under S. 351 Cr. P. C.—Where accused is proceeded against under S 351 Cr. P. C, the Magistrate should be taken to have taken cognizance under 190 (c). It is therefore bound to follow the provisions of S 191 Cr. P. C. 1 C N 105 Conn (10) U B (1—q) 2 : 5 N 113 : 4 S 238 evidence issued summons against the petitioners, held, that the latter had issued process neither on police report nor complaint, and although S. 190 Cl (c) may not strictly apply, the petitioners ought to be allowed to have the case tried by another Magistrate—17 C. N 795

47. Reference in a proceeding under Burma Village Act.—Where the Commissioner, Pegu Division, in a proceeding under the Village Act wrote to the District Magistrate requesting him to proceed under S 476 of the Cr. P. C. for an offence under S 199 I P C, held—no sanction was necessary and the District Magistrate could take cognizance under S 190 (c) and transfer the case to another Magistrate under S. 192.—11 Cr. 736 (L. B)

48. Cognizance on the basis of a letter from a superior officer.—A gunner reported to the Cantonment Magistrate Murree, that one B had assaulted him. The latter reported the matter in letter to the Assistant Commissioner for action. Upon this the Assistant Commissioner made an enquiry in the course of which he examined M. as a witness. Thinking that in reality M and not B. had committed the offence, he proceeded to prosecute M. under S. 504 I. P. C.

Held—that the Magistrate took cognizance of case under S. 190 (1) (c) Cr. P. C. 65 P. L. 1

49. Recommendation of prosecution Police Officer.—Where police after investigation

50. Magistrate acting on his own knowledge.—Where magistrate acts on his own knowledge of facts under S 190 (c) Cr. P. C, he bound to proceed under S 191.

1 Bur. R. 239.

51. Cognizance under cl. (c) no bar to preliminary enquiry.—The fact, that a magistrate took cognizance under the provisions of S 190 (c) Cr. P. C, is no bar to the Magistrate hold an enquiry preliminary to commitment. 20 17 (b) : 26 C 786 : 21 A. 109 S 22 M. 148

52. Cognizance under cl. (c) no bar to miscellaneous character.—e.g.—to proceed under S. 110 Cr. P. C. : 4 Pat J 7. 21 C 38 See C. R. No. 491 of 1906 But See 27 A. 172

53. Application of the clause.—The power of a Magistrate to proceed on information under S 190 (1) (c) is intended to be used in a case which a Magistrate has good reason to believe that there has been a serious infringement of the law, but is unable to take action in the ordinary manner, because the party aggrieved either unwilling or unable to prosecute. 2 P. J. 657.

54. Police report a bar to cognizance under Cl. (c).—It is not open to the Magistrate take cognizance upon the report of any Police Officer under S. 190 (1) (c) 2 Pat J. 65 : 5 B. L. 271

What does not amount to taking cognizance under Cl. (c).

55. (a) A complaint was filed by the overseer of a Municipality under the authority of the Vice-Chairman. The overseer was examined on oath and the accused was then summoned to appear—held—that the prosecution was initiated under cl (a) and not cl. (c).—18 Cr 273 (Pat)

56. (b) A trial commenced against A only as the accused officer

zance under S 190 (1) (c) but amounted to taking cognizance upon the Police report of the fact under cl. (b).—18 Cr. 425 (A) : See 26 C.

7. (c) One S complained against the Hon'ble M. his wife and two daughters under Ss 342 and 363 I. P. C. Long before the date fixed for enquiry, he made a petition of withdrawal of the case, on the 17th Sept, 1913. On the 30th Sept the Magistrate passed the following order: "The complainant is present. He applied before, saying he was unwilling to proceed with the case. This is a serious charge. The witnesses must be examined. Summon them and fix the case for the 3rd Oct next." On the 20th Novr 1914 the following order was passed: "Read police papers and the evidence. The real complainant is the girl named S D (wife of S). From her statement and the statement of other witnesses, it appears that there is no satisfactory evidence against the persons complained against. There is however evidence against one D B and a woman called B Summon them under Ss 342, 363, 352 I. P. C. Fix the case for the 2nd Decr next"—held that a magistrate having taken cognizance of a complaint, could also proceed against other person or persons, who although not mentioned in the complaint, appeared on the evidence for the prosecution to have been concerned in the commission of the offence. That in so doing, the Magistrate took cognizance under cl (1) (i) of S 190 Cr P C. The provision of S. 191 therefore did not apply.—15 Cr. 546 (C).

VIII. PROCEDURE.

58. To be followed on receipt of complaint. It is incumbent on a Magistrate upon receipt of a complaint to at once examine the complainant if he does not transfer the case under S 192 Cr P C. He could only order an enquiry or investigation in accordance with S 202 and he could make over the case to the police for enquiry. He cannot take any action "just as he might choose"—10 O 127: 20 Cr 413 (Pat).
59. Strict compliance with provisions of S. 191.—is necessary when a magistrate takes cognizance under cl (c) of subs (1) of S 190. See—(7) Cognizance under subs (c) [38].
60. Omission to examine the accused.—S 191 which lays down the conditions requisite for institution of proceedings must be read with S 200 Cr P C. The cognizance of an offence by a Magistrate is not complete until he has examined the complainant on oath. Failure to examine the complainant on oath vitiates the entire proceedings. It is not a mere irregularity curable by S 537 Cr. P. C.—30 C 923 3 C N 17 18 A, 221 2 Pat

J 637 1 Pat T 316 20 Cr 742 (Pat): But see 11 M 443 9 A 666 1 P R. 1911: 1 Pat. J. 692: 23 C N 479 46 C 807.

- 61-62. On receipt of a police report in non-cognizable case.—A duly empowered magistrate may take cognizance of non-cognizable offence on receipt of a Police Report under S 190 (b) Cr. P C but in that case, he must immediately summon the accused. He cannot hold a judicial enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C.—20 Cr. 113 (Pat) 10 C 854 7 S 76.
63. Cognizance of an offence within the purview of S. 195 Cr. P. C.—Although, as a rule, a complaint unsupported by the sanction required by S 195, should not be accepted, the mere fact that the District Magistrate had erroneously taken cognizance under cl (a) will not vitiate the proceedings, in view of S 529 Cr P C when no failure of justice has occurred in consequence.—13 PW 1913

IX. EFFECT OF IRREGULARITIES.

64. Omission to take further proceedings under S. 191.—after taking cognizance of a case under Cl. (1) (c) is fatal—6 C N 202 13 C P 191
65. Omission to inform the accused of his right to have the case transferred under S 191 will not fall within the provisions of S 537

Cr P C. It is a material defect and not a mere formal irregularity.—28 A 212 2 Weir 151 13 P R 1895 4 Bar 259 (97-01) U B I 56 337 P L 1905 5 N 113 See also—8 P R 1905, 31 P L 1905 81 P L 1905 3 A J. 694 10 C N, 775

X. TRANSFER.

66. A Magistrate deciding under S. 191 Cr. P. C. cannot transfer the case to another magistrate if he does not have power to do so.
67. Objection by accused.—If the accused raises an objection under S. 191 Cr. P. C. to the trial by the particular Magistrate, the magistrate is not bound to transfer it to another magistrate, but can elect to commit it to the Court of Sessions.—22 M 148

68. No power to refuse transfer.—Where magistrate takes cognizance under S 190 (1) (c), he has no power to refuse to transfer the case.—13 A 345
69. Omission to inform accused of right to transfer.

XI. MISCELLANEOUS.

70. Power to pass order under Subs. (?) without taking cognizance. See (?) Taking cognizance (15 A).

71. European British Subjects.—The District Magistrate of Civil and Military Station Bangalore has jurisdiction to take cognizance of and try offences committed by European British Subjects 31 M 316

72. Offence under S. 20, Cattle Trespass Act.—A Magistrate of the 2nd class who is authorized under S. 190 Cr P C to take cognizance of offences upon receiving complaints has power to take cognizance of complaint under S. 20 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I. of 1871) 21 Cr. 95 (B)

73. Magistrates empowered and not empowered.—Where a Magistrate not specially empowered under cl (1) (c) having lawful cognizance of the case, found that a certain other person was concerned in the offence and thereupon issued process against and tried him, held—the Magistrate did not act without jurisdiction

1 A C. N. 357.

74. Revision.

(a) High Court will not interfere with order for discharge of accused under S. 2 wrong but is to be taken as refusal to issue proceedings, when Magistrate is competent to make such refusal 1 A. J. 609

(f) When Deputy Commissioner who is Revenue officer, institutes proceedings as Magistrate for offence against public revenue, he is under cl. (1) (c) and as such his order is subject to revision by the High Court—4 C. N. 825

75. Sections 190 and 191 do not apply to cases under Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act.—A complaint made to a Magistrate in order to induce him to take action under S. 6 of the Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act (IV of 1857) and not under the Code, not amount to a complaint within the meaning of the Cr. P. C. It follows therefore that ss. S. 190 nor S. 191 applies—15 Cr 657 (S).

192. (1) Any Chief Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may transfer any case, of which he has taken cognizance, inquiry or trial to any Magistrate subordinate to him.

(2) Any District Magistrate may empower any Magistrate of the first class who has taken cognizance of any case to transfer it for inquiry or trial to any other specified Magistrate in the district who is competent under this Code to try the accused or commit him for trial; and such Magistrate may dispose of the case accordingly.

Notes.

(1) Application of the section.

1. Cognizance under S. 190 Cr. P. C. condition precedent.—S. 192 refers only to cases of which the transferring Magistrate has taken cognizance—i.e., acted under S. 190 Cr P. C. It has no reference to cases which have been transferred,—that is to say—the Magistrate to whom a case is transferred under S. 190 Cr. P. C. 192 Cr. P. C. A 1 277 36 H 40 (43). See 11 Cr 736 (L B) 1 L B 86 (47). Con. 18 119

[Note.—It follows therefore that a Subdivisional Magistrate to whom a case has been transferred by the District Magistrate, cannot retransfer it to any Magistrate subordinate to him. But he may transfer it to any Magistrate subordinate to him.]

2. District Magistrate of the District to which case has been transferred under S. 538 Cr. P. C.—Upon a transfer by the District Magistrate of the District to which the case has been transferred by the High Court under S. 526 Cr. P. C. can transfer the case for trial by a subordinate Magistrate under S. 192 Cr. P. C. 30 P. R. 1917: See 10 A. 219.

3. Deputy Commissioner of Rhotak with reference to offences on Railway land in Jhind.—Under Government of India N. 515-I. B., dated 17.3. '13, the Deputy Commissioner of Rhotak has power to take cognizance of an offence committed on Railway land situated in the Jhind Native State, and the Government of India N. 516 I. B. of 17.3. '13 can exercise all the powers of a District Magistrate which include a power to transfer such case to a Subordinate Magistrate under S. 192 Cr. P. C.—30 P. R. 1917.

4. The term "any case"—does it include miscellaneous proceedings?—There is a difference of opinion on this point. In 28 C. N. (See pp 716-7), it is has been held that the words "Cases" and "Criminal cases" are not to be indiscriminately or interchangeably in the Code. It is doubtful whether the term "any case" does not apply exclusively to Criminal cases (i.e., cases relating to offences); while in 33 C. N. (1917) it is laid down that the term is not restricted to cases of offences only but includes cases under Ch. VIII, Cr P C

5. The stage at which cases under S. 107 Cr. P. C. can be transferred.—See Note under S. 107: (18) Transfer and Withdrawal

6. Transfer of cases under S. 110.—A District Magistrate can act under S. 102 Cr. P. C. with reference to a case under S. 110 Cr. P. C.—[35 C 243] The case can be so transferred to subordinate Magistrate not competent to institute the same [1 S. 2: 8-71 C 370: 24 A. 15] Con—Rat 835]

7. Transfer of cases under S. 145 Cr. P. C. It is now settled that a District or Sub divisional Magistrate can act under S. 102 Cr. P. C. in reference to cases under chapter XII [22 C 894 10 C N. 1045. 2 C J 614 29 M 188] But a subordinate Magistrate cannot be empowered under S. 102 (2) Cr. P. C. to transfer proceedings under S. 145 Cr. P. C. [36 C 370 4 C N. 821] If however a subordinate Magistrate empowered under S. 102 (2) transfers proceedings under S. 145 Cr. P. C., the legal defect is curable by S. 529 Cr. P. C. [36 C 370 5 C. N. 654]

8. District Magistrate can act under S. 102 Cr. P. C. even before deciding to issue process.—The term "case" has not been defined in the Criminal Procedure Code, but reading together S. 102 (1), 100 (1) (a), and proviso (c) to S. 200, it is clear that it includes a proceeding upon a complaint as soon as the complaint has been received by the Magistrate who takes cognizance of the offence complained of. A District Magistrate can, therefore, upon the application of the accused person, withdraw a complaint from one subordinate Magistrate and refer it to another, even before a decision to issue process against the accused has been reached.—7 N 97

9. A transfer under S. 102 Cr. P. C. operates as a transfer of the whole case.—A complaint was lodged against several accused persons, and the Magistrate, after examining the complainant issued summons against one of the accused only and transferred the case for trial to a subordinate Magistrate—held—that the whole case of the complainant was transferred and the subordinate Magistrate was quite competent in discharging the accused before him, to order summons to be issued for the attendance of some other complainant [240] It is the offence, of the offence, of which cognizance has been taken under S. 100 supra and he can proceed even against parties not mentioned in the original complaint [4 C N 560 27 C 979] It has been held however [Per Henderson J] in 32 C 783 (789) that whether a transfer of the whole case has been made or not is a question of fact depending on the intention of the officer making the order, which intention must be gathered from the order itself.

(2) Rules relating to transfer.

10. Effect of the transfer.—After a case has been transferred to a subordinate Magistrate the transferring Magistrate is functus officio, unless he recalls the case. The former officer alone has jurisdiction to deal with application or to issue summons. The transferring Magistrate cannot make any order save an order for further enquiry under S. 417 Cr. P. C.—16 C 854. 32 C 783. 30 C 419.

27 C 979: 27 C. 798. 5 C. N. 499. 4 C. N. 346: 4 C. N. 212. 3 B. L. (ap) 151.

11. Cases which should be transferred.—Cases coming within the terms of Ss. 487 and 556 Cr. P. C. should be transferred [4 B L (ap) 15; 8 B L 422 (F.B.)]. So also cases initiated under S. 190 (1) (c)—[See Notes under S. 190-1 supra] and also cases in which the Magistrate himself is a material witness [2 C 23 19 M 263] But see 1 B L (ap) 15] But where the Magistrate simply heard statements of the accused but did not record them, he does not necessarily become a witness so as to be disqualified to try the case [24 C 499]

12. Ss. 192 and 202 compared.—The language of S. 202 Cr. P. C. seems capable of an interpretation consistent with the long standing practice under which a Magistrate receiving a complaint refers it to a subordinate Magistrate for local enquiry and report Under S. 102 Cr. P. C. the transferring Magistrate cannot intermeddle with the case transferred, unless and until he recalls it to his own file. The provisions of Ss. 193 and 202 Cr. P. C. are therefore separate and distinct, and the powers conferred by one section do not curtail those conferred by the other.—46 C 854.

issues processes upon the witnesses of the complainant does not materially alter the nature of the transfer nor does it affect his jurisdiction.—20 Cr 413 (Pat) pending before the latter in a particular manner—e.g.—by commitment [2 Weir 152 1 Weir 239]. Where a complaint made to a Joint Magistrate is not withdrawn by the District Magistrate to his Court, the District Magistrate cannot interfere in the trial of the case and direct judicial enquiry by another Magistrate before issue of process, so as to postpone the trial. It is questionable whether such order can be passed even if the case had been withdrawn to his Court for trial [27 C 798]

15. Transfer for limited purpose.—It is doubtful spirit of only to it [1 N, c is for enquiry only and not for trial, the proceedings before the Magistrate to whom the case has been referred cannot be treated as a regular trial [440]

16. Magistrate not bound to examine the complainant before transferring.—A District Magistrate to whom a complaint is made is not bound to examine the complainant, before transferring the case to a subordinate Magistrate [See S. 200 infra 9 B L 146 con 4 N P 85 (90)]

17. Denovo proceedings after transfer.—Magistrate after examining all the prosecution witnesses and framing charge, transferred the case to another Magistrate—held—that the latter Magistrate should have proceeded de novo and his omission to do so vitiated the trial. [14 A. 319; 12 C N 140 (141); 2 Weir 152; 1 L. B. 301; Con. 35 C 157]

18. Defect in the proceedings when not material.—Where both the transferring Magistrate and the Magistrate to whom the case has been transferred have jurisdiction over the offence, any formal defect in the order of transfer is immaterial [("99) A N 8]. Where an Assistant Collector trying a case sent the proceedings to the Collector

District Magistrate being legally competent to act in the way he did, the formal error was immaterial [26 A 511 23 A 319]

19. Invalid transfers.—A transfer of case by a Subordinate Magistrate to the District Magistrate is ultra vires [12 A 66]
20. Transfer must be made to Magistrate having jurisdiction.—A Magistrate has no power to transfer a case to a Subordinate Magistrate who has no jurisdiction to enquire into or try the same—[6 B L (ap) 115. 23 C 442] So a transfer can legally be made to a Teshildar Magistrate in Madrus [G O No 108 dated 17-1-93 Judicial], but not to a village Headman [1 L B. 59]

(3) Miscellaneous.

21. Cases under Cattle Trespass Act (I) of 1871.—A complaint under S 20 of the Act is a complaint in respect of an offence as defined by S 4 (O) Cr. P. C. and can therefore be transferred by the District Magistrate or a Magistrate special authorised [31 C 929 Con 23 C. 309; 23 C 44]

22. Proceedings under S. 478 Cr. P. C. Under the former Codes, a District Magistrate whom a case had been referred under S 478 (P. C. could not transfer it to a Subordinate Magistrate [S 2 N P. 21; 3 N P. 129] But S 478 of the present Code, expressly authorises him to do so
23. Power to act under S 478 Cr. P. C. after transfer.—When Magistrate to whom a case transferred before the issue of process, examines witnesses and records evidence, in order to try the truth of the complaint, he acts at a subordinate judicial proceeding and is therefore competent to proceed against the complainant under S 4 (Cr. P. C. for an offence referred to in S. 195) P. O [36 C. 72]
24. Subordination of Presidency Magistrates.—The subordination of Presidency Magistrates to the Chief Presidency Magistrate shall be deemed to be of the same kind and extent as the subordination of Magistrates to Benchmen to the District Magistrate under S 17 supra. The Chief Presidency Magistrate can under S 524 Cr. P. C. infra, withdraw any case from any one of them and refer it for inquiry or to any other such Magistrate.—1 B R 347 (348)
25. Transfer of cases from the District Magistrate to a Magistrate.—The District Magistrate has powers to transfer cases from the District Magistrate to a Magistrate [1873 p 7]
26. Transfer by magistrate not authorised.—If a Magistrate not empowered under section transfers a case, the irregularity is cured by S 529 (f)—S 36 C 869

Punj. Gaz 1879 Pt. I p 680.

193 (1) Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court of Session shall take cognizance of an offence as a Court of original jurisdiction unless the accused has been committed to it by a Magistrate duly empowered in that behalf.

(2) Additional Sessions Judges and Assistant Sessions Judges shall try such cases only as are referred to them by the Local Government by general or special order may direct them to try, or, in the case of Assistant Sessions Judges, as the Sessions Judge of the division, by general or special order, may make order for their trial.

Proposed Amendments to the Section.—In sub-section (2) of section 193 of the said Code, the words "in the case of Assistant Sessions Judges" be omitted.

Notes.

(1) Subs. (1).

1. Object of the Section.—The object of the restriction enacted in this section is to secure in the case of a person charged with grave offence, a preliminary enquiry which would afford him the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the circumstances of the offences imputed to him and enable him to make his defence [3 M 351] The Law contemplates that in the serious case of which a Court of Sessions may take cognizance the accused should have some information of case he has to answer [4 M 227].

2. Sessions Court not restricted to offence specified by the committing Court.—It is now well established that Sessions Court has power to amend or alter original charge on which accused has been committed or add an altogether new charge provided that the charge so added can be supported by the evidence taken before the Committing Magistrate. [S B 207; 9 A 527, 3 M. 351; 9 S 37] The added charge must be for an offence made out by the evidence, recorded before the Magistrate, if the charge is added under S 226 Cr P C or by the evidence recorded before the Court of Session in the course of the trial, if the charge is added under S 227 Cr P C [9 S 37 But see S A 645; 32 C 22]

3. Note.—The principles on which a Sessions Court should act in amending charges are well stated by West J. in 11 B H. 278. —“The intention of the Legislature is that whenever an amendment of the charge any way tends to the prejudice of the prisoner, steps should be taken to prevent that consequence arising by ordering a new trial, or suspending the trial going on, to enable him to make his defence, or examine any material witnesses or to recall any witness already examined. It is only in the case of charges clearly related that a trial goes on forthwith after amendment”.

4. Exceptions to the general provision in subs. (1).—As exception to the general rule—see Ss 477, 478 and 480 Cr P C, also S 351 Cr P C. Although under S 193 (1) Cr P C, a Court of Session cannot take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction, regard must be had to the exception contained in the words “except as otherwise expressly provided in this Code” The rule is therefore subject to the provisions of Ss 226 and 227 Cr P C [9 S 37]

5. Amended charge to be in the name of the Committing Magistrate.—Where a Court of Sessions amends or alters the charge under S 226 infra, it must still be drawn in the name of the Committing Magistrate. M H Pro 30-8-62

6. When a Court of Sessions may take cognizance of an offence.—Where fact that the commitment was made by an officer exercising the powers of a Magistrate would be sufficient to enable the Court of Sessions to proceed with the trial. The onus is on the party impugning the proceedings to show that there was no jurisdiction to commit [13 W R 17]

7. Trial without commitment is void.—The defect arising from the absence of any commitment is one of substance and not of form. It cannot therefore be cured by S. 537 infra [42 P. R 1884. 6 P W. 1913. See 25 M 61 (P C)]. A trial therefore by a Sessions Court of persons not duly committed by a Magistrate having power to commit is ultra vires [15 M. 352; 22 C 50]

8. Approver.—It is unfair to put an approver, whose conditional pardon has been cancelled, on trial with the other prisoners, in the course of whose trial the approver has given evidence. Nothing should be done, until after the case has been finished, and then his trial should commence de novo 15 M 352 22 C 50 10 W R 43; 23 B 493 (494) ('93-'00) L B 536 (537) 6 O C 236 (237)

(2) Subs. (2).

9. Reference under S. 123 Cr. P. C.—A reference under S 123 Cr P C cannot be treated as a commitment. Therefore an Additional Sessions Judge empowered to try all cases which may be committed for trial to the Court of Session, has no jurisdiction, to pass orders under S 123 Cr P C—Rat 830

10. Change of Law.—Under the previous Codes, an Additional Sessions Judge (called formerly Joint Sessions Judge) could not deal with matters coming within the scope of Chapter XXXII infra [9 B 164 See 1 L B 119] Under the present Code [S 438 (2) infra] that power has been expressly given—See also (03) A N 28

11. Additional Sessions Judge belongs to same Sessions Division.—There can be only

12. For power of Local Government to specify the Court of an Additional Sessions Judge for the trial of a particular case.—See 2 Weir 215

13. Assistant Sessions Judge.—The word “Case” in S 193 (2) does not include appeals. A Sessions Judge has therefore no authority to transfer an appeal to the file of an Assistant Sessions Judge under S 193 (2) [37 A 286 compare (05) A N 199 and 7 A 661 (Cir)] An Assistant Sessions Judge holding charge of the duties of the Sessions Judge during a temporary vacancy, is not competent to exercise the powers of a Sessions Judge. He can try only those cases which are made over to him under Subs (2) [Rat 500]

Cognizance of offences by High Court.

194. (1) The High Court may take cognizance of any offence upon a commitment made to it in manner hereinafter provided.

Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect the provisions of any letters patent granted under the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, [or the Government of India Act, 1915] or any other provision of this Code.

(2) (a) Notwithstanding anything in this Code contained, the Advocate General may, with the Informations by Advocate General. previous sanction of the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, exhibit to the High Court, against persons subject to the jurisdiction of the High Court, informations for all purposes for which Her Majesty's Attorney General may exhibit informations on behalf of the Crown in the High Court of Justice in England.

(b) Such proceedings may be taken upon every such information as may lawfully be taken in the case of similar informations filed by Her Majesty's Attorney General so far as the circumstances of the case and the practice and procedure of the said High Court will admit.

(c) All fines, penalties, forfeitures, debts and sums of money recovered or levied under or by virtue of any such information shall belong to the Government of India.

(d) The High Court may make rules for carrying into effect the provisions of this section.

Notes.

1. Coroner's inquisition under Act IV. of 1871.

—An inquisition drawn by a coroner, though it may have the effect of a valid commitment, upon which the High Court, in the exercise of its original Criminal Jurisdiction may act, has not that effect, and has been accepted by the High Court, and officers of the Crown have drawn up a charge in accordance with it—31 C. 1.

195. (1) No Court shall take cognizance—

(a) of any offence punishable under sections 172 to 188 (both inclusive) of the Indian Penal Code, except with the previous sanction, or on the complaint, authority of public servants the public servant concerned or some public servant to whom he is subordinate,

(b) of any offence punishable under section 193, 194, 195, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206, 207, 209, 210, 211 or 228 of the same Code, when such offence against public justice, committed in, or in relation to, any proceeding in any Court except with the previous sanction, or on the complaint, of such Court, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate,

(2) In clauses (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) the term "Court" means a Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court, but does not include a Registrar or Sub-Registrar under the Indian Registration Act, 1877.

(3) The provisions of sub-section (1), with reference to the offences named therein, apply also to [Criminal conspiracies to commit such offences and to] the abetment of such offences, and attempts to commit them.

(4) The sanction referred to in this section may be expressed in general terms, and need not name the accused person; but it shall, so far as practicable, specify the Court or other place in which, and the occasion on which, the offence was committed.

(5) When sanction is given in respect of any offence referred to in this section, the Court taking cognizance of the case may frame a charge of any other offence so referred to which is disclosed by the facts.

(6) Any sanction given or refused under this section may be revoked or granted by any authority to which the authority giving or refusing it is subordinate; and no sanction shall remain in force for more than six months from the date on which it was given; provided that the High Court may, for good cause shown, extend the time.

(7) For the purposes of this section every Court shall be deemed to be subordinate only to the Court to which appeals from the former Court ordinarily lie, that is to say—

(a) where such appeals lie to more than one Court, the Appellate Court of inferior jurisdiction shall be the Court to which such Court shall be deemed to be subordinate,

(b) where such appeals lie to a Civil and also to a Revenue Court, such Court shall be deemed to be subordinate to the Civil or Revenue Court according to the nature of the case in connection with which the offence is alleged to have been committed,

(c) where no appeal lies, such Court shall be deemed to be subordinate to the principal Court of original jurisdiction within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such first-mentioned Court is situate.

(b) of any offence punishable under sections 193, 194, 195, 196, 199, 200, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, or 223, of the same Code, when such offence is alleged to have been committed in, or in relation to, any proceeding in any Court, except on the complaint in writing of such Court, or of some other Court to which such Court is subordinate, or of the Local Government or some officer duly authorised by it in this behalf, or

I. OBJECT AND SCOPE.

1. The object is.

- (1) To protect parties and witnesses against vexatious or frivolous prosecutions 20 M. 116: See 4 L W 616
- (2) To save the time of the Criminal Courts being wasted and accused persons being needlessly harassed by erecting a safeguard against rash, baseless or vexatious prosecutions. It aims at doing so by providing that, where, prior to the institution of the criminal prosecution, a properly constituted judicial tribunal has placed itself in a position to determine whether the facts constituting the offence really exist, the Criminal Court should decline jurisdiction unless that tribunal has, in effect, certified that in its opinion, the complaint is one worthy of investigation—39 M 677.
- (3) To protect persons from being prosecuted out of mere malice, illwill or reckless frivolity of disposition—(67) A N 152 16 Cr 624 (1). 19 Cr. 769 (N)
- (4) To insure that prosecution is instituted after due consideration on the part of the Court before which the offence has been committed.—16 W. R 37 7 M 500 10 M T 117.
- (5) To prevent parties from oppressing and harassing their adversaries by criminal proceedings—1 S. 63. 1 Mar 497 [Per Sir Barnes Peacock C J]
- (6) To prevent prosecutions by private persons of their own motion. The Court should see if there are good grounds for thinking that a prosecution is necessary in the interests of justice—10 M. T. 117. 1 C N. 400

(2) Scope.

2. Section 195 constitutes a bar to reckless institution of prosecutions for certain kinds of offences by private individuals. Cr. Revision No 39 1913 (O) : 17 A. J. 431.

3. Considerations by which the sanction marily in the interests of public justice and not as a means of satisfying a private grudge [37 C at p 20 (19) Pat 286 20 Cr 337 (Pat); 50 78 (79)] As prosecutions ending in failure to be deprecated as being calculated to do harm rather than good, they ought not to be undertaken termination of the prosecution should be instituted [Per Mookerjee J. in 15 C. J 337 : 20 C 337 (Pat)]

4. Sanction not to be refused on technical grounds.—When a Court is invited to sanction a prosecution because an offence against public justice has been committed, the ends of justice should not be allowed to be defeated on technical grounds. At the same time, a sanction should not be lightly granted, merely because there is a room for suspicion that an offence has been committed 15 C J. 337.

5. Sanction not to be withheld.

he should not hold out to a party to a case that if he comes for sanction, the sanction will be given—19 B. R. 910

6. Prospective changes.—The proposed changes noted above aim at radically altering the scope of the Section. Private parties are no longer to be permitted to prosecute for offences connected with the administration of justice. All the provisions relating to the grant or revocation of sanction are to be deleted. Only a direct prosecution will be allowed to be launched by the Court itself, or, in exceptional cases, by the Local Government. If the changes are confirmed by the Legislature, they will supersede a whole host of rulings so far as they relate to sanction.

III. DEFINITION AND MEANING OF TERMS.

(1) Court.

7. Meaning of "Court".—The term "Court" as used in this section has a wider meaning than a Court of justice as defined in the Penal Code, and includes a tribunal entitled to deal with a particular matter and authorised to receive evidence thereon [45 C 545]. The word "Court" means the Court whose duty it is to consider the evidence and decide the case [11 C N. 499]. The term as used in cl. (a) and (b) is not confined to the Judge who tries the case but includes his successor in office [5 C J. 176]. The word "Court" means the particular tribunal and not the particular Judge before whom the offence complained of has been committed [11 C N. 119 33 C 193 7 A. J. 991 7 M H 12 See 34 C 551 (F. B.)]. It means the Court which tries the case on merits and not the Court before which proceedings were instituted and by which process was issued [6 C. N. 35].

8. What are Courts within the meaning of the section.

- (1) The Calcutta Improvement Tribunal is a Court within the meaning of this Section—45 C 545—See 17 C 572.
- (2) A Collector or a Deputy Collector acting under Sections 69 and 70 Bengal Tenancy Act is a Court—45 C 336 (Fs 17 C 572)
- (3) A Magistrate sanctioning prosecution under Sec. 182 I. P. C. of a person who had given false information about the illicit possession of arms, acts as Court—35 M. J. 656

Revenue Courts.

- (1) Revenue courts are Civil Courts within the meaning of S 195—2 A 533 (F. B.).
- (2) A certificate officer acting in the discharge of his duties under the Public Demands Recovery Act is a Revenue Court—(1919) Pat 325
- (3) So is a mamlatdar holding an enquiry relating to Record of Rights under Bombay Act V of 1879—39 B. 310—See 5 B 137
- (4) A Teshildar holding enquiry regarding transfer of names in a land register is a Revenue Court—24 M. 121.
- (5) Sub-Registrar.—Is a Court when acting under S. 41 of Registration Act of 1877—10 M 154 Contra 12 M 201 11 O C 358.
- Is a Court within the meaning of S. 228 I. P. C 22 W R 10
- (6) Registrar.—Acting under S 72-75 Registration Act is a Court—15 M 139 10 M 154 12 B. 30.

(11) Village Munsiff.—Is a Court within S 195—11 M 375

(12) Commissioners.—Commissioners are Courts and are not functus officio, even though they have submitted their reports—43 P. L. 1900

What are not Courts.

9. Collector acting in his executive capacity.

(1) A collector holding enquiry under the U. P. Land Revenue Act is not a court within the meaning of the section—17 A. J. 1018

(2) Collector of a District acting under the rules framed under the Madras District Municipalities Act is not a 'Court'.—10 Cr. 9 (W)

(3) A Collector to whom application is made for new stamp under cl. (2) of S. 60 Act X of 1862, is not a Court within S 195—3 B L 6.

(4) A Collector entertaining an application (e.g.,—one for a patronship, which comes before him in his administrative capacity—42 A. 130

(5) A Collector of Excise is not a Court, within the meaning of the section—10 C. N. 220.

(6) Officer holding departmental enquiry—is not a Court within the meaning of S. 195 22 B 836.

(7) A Sub-Registrar (except when acting under S 41 of the Registration Act 1877)—11 M 3; 11 M 600 12 M 201 15 A 141; 11 O C 354.

(8) District Registrar (registering a document of which execution is admitted) is not a Court—2 M J 280.

(9) Official Assignee.—The official Assignee is not a Civil Court within the meaning of S 195 Where the accused produced a forged document before the official assignee, held that it was the sanction of the Insolvency Commissioner which was necessary. The sanction of the Official Assignee is not enough—1 M. T. 301.

(10) Quoro.—Is a Sub-Deputy Collector acting under the Land Registration Act a Court?—9 C. N. 127.

(2) Offence.

10. Meaning of the word "offence".—In S 195 (1) (c) the word "offence" occurring as the third word is designedly used in a somewhat abstract manner. It is the "offence" in itself—not any particular offender's offence which the section aims at, and that in accordance with S 40 of the Penal Code, where "offence" is defined as the thing made punishable by the Code. In other words the clause deals with the case where there is a substantive offence committed by a party to a suit. 12 B. T. 3-3.

11. Offence under S. 467 I. P. C. is an offence described in S. 463 I. P. C. and is within Cl. (c) of S 195—11 C. N. 479
12. Omission of the name of a joint decree-holder in the application for execution of the decree is not an offence under S. 193 I. P. C.—(87) A. N. 223.

(3) Produced.

13. Meaning of the term.—The word 'produced' means 'produced in Court' though not tendered in evidence [9 B. R. 735: See 15 M. 224] A document handed over to the Court by a person tendering it, though rejected for insufficiency of stamp or want of registration has been produced and given in evidence within the meaning of S 195 [22 C. 1004 Rat. 242] Where a document being called for by a party is brought into Court and referred to by pleader in argument and by the Magistrate in his judgement, it is produced before the Court within the meaning of Subs (1) (c) [44 C. 1002]. But a deposit of a mortgage deed under S 63 of Act IV of 1882 (Transfer of Property Act) does not amount to production or user within S 195 [(85) A. N. 145]

(4) Document.

14. The word "document" refers only to the original document [8 O. C. 313]

IV. ENQUIRY PRELIMINARY TO SANCTION.

(1) Necessity for preliminary enquiry.

20. Necessity for preliminary enquiry.—Section 195 does not require that a fresh or preliminary enquiry should be held before granting sanction—38 M. 1044 34 A. 267 [Per Wallis J.]
21. Fresh enquiry unnecessary.—In cases where the Court has a knowledge of the facts in the course of the proceeding—Per S. Iyer J.—such an enquiry is unnecessary and the section (195) does not contemplate it—38 M. 1044 See 37 C. 714. 5 A. 62 6 B. R. 578 2 P. R. 1888 But see 6 A. 98 34 C. 848
22. When enquiry is unnecessary.—Where in the course of a proceeding, the Magistrate finds clear ground for believing that offence against public justice has been committed, no further enquiry is necessary—6 C. 308. Rat 132
23. Enquiry not a necessary antecedent to sanction.—Though it may sometimes well be that a preliminary enquiry ought to be held, the adoption of rigid rule to that effect is neither imperative nor desirable.—20 C. 474 [Fd 6 C. N. 25]. 19 C. 345: 13 A. J. 1111
24. Note.—When a suit is not properly tried and no finding arrived at on evidence adduced, a preliminary enquiry should be held before sanction is accorded [Per Abdur Rahim J].
Per Spencer J.—The section does not require any enquiry as a necessary antecedent to the grant of sanction—(1011) M. N. 256
25. Preliminary enquiry necessary when
(a) Before sanctioning prosecution under S. 211,—opportunity should be afforded to the

(5) Party to Proceeding.

15. The actual party to a proceeding is the actual party to a proceeding—section 3
M. 1041, nor a recognized agent [12 C. 87 (L. B.)].
A claimant who files an affidavit of claim before the official assignee in insolvency proceedings is a party within the meaning of S. 195 (1) (c) Cr. P. C. [13 M. 1]

(6) Other terms.

16. The word "case"—in Cl (b) means the actual proceedings in which the offence has been committed and not the original case out of which these proceedings arose—34 A. 197.
17. The terms "Principal Court" etc., in Cl. (c).—The nature of the proceeding in which sanction is given or refused is to determine the principal Court of original jurisdiction and there is no justification for reading the words as if they were "principal Court of original civil jurisdiction"—[Ibid]
18. The word "ordinarily" in Cl. (a)—C. (a) furnishes a complete definition of the term 'ordinarily' in cases which it covers.—8 N. 57.
19. The opening words of Cl. (c)—refer to particular cases in which no appeal lies, and not to courts against none of whose decisions an appeal lies.—[31 A. 107] complainant to prove the truth of the charge [8 A. 38. 6 C. 496: But see 2 P. R. 1907] Before sanction for preferring a false complaint can be given, there must be judicial investigation. It cannot be given on the result of an investigation by the police [1 C. N. 452. But see 38 M. 1044]

(b)

35 P. R. 1889

26. Discretion of the Court.—The Court must determine in the exercise of its judicial discretion whether the case is one which calls for an enquiry by a Criminal Court—14 B. R. 557

(2) Notice.

27. The General Rule.—A notice of the application for sanction to the accused is not a necessary antecedent to the grant of sanction—11 C. 416 (F. B.) 26 M. 33 C. 1: 8 N. 235. 5 Weir 167.
11 Cr. 20 (A) (00) A. N. 189. (84) A. N. 90: 7 C. P. G. 54 P. L. 1918.
28. Notice should ordinarily be given.—Although the issue of a notice is not legally essential to validate a sanction, nevertheless it is desirable as a matter of practice and prudence [20 Cr. 616 (Pat). See 23 A. 142 (190) A. N. 90. 33 C. 1: 14 C. 707 (F. B.). 8 C. 435. 6 C. N. 245. 5 C. N. 254. 2 Weir 167: 5 O. C. 164: 7 C. P. G.]

Strictly speaking notice to the accused is not necessary before an order for prosecution is made against him, but a person sought to be prosecuted.

29. Court should judicially determine whether notice is necessary.—The Court responsible for granting sanction should judicially consider and determine whether any special reasons appear to warrant a departure from the ordinary practice of giving notice—4 B R 750

30. When notice is unnecessary.—(1) The Chairman of a Municipal Board may sanction prosecution for contempt of the lawful authority of the Secretary without previous notice (92) A. N. 31.

(2) When there has been a discharge or acquittal after due trial. 10 M 232

(3) If sanction is granted by the Court before which the offence has been committed 12 C 35 (F.B.). 15 A 354 See (51) A N 271

31. When notice is necessary.

(1) Where a complaint is dismissed merely on the report of the Police, a Magistrate is bound to give notice to and to hear the complainant before granting sanction for his prosecution under 8 211 1 P C—14 C 707 (F.B.). 16 C 661 5 C N 254. 34 C 1 (99) A N 90 7 C P 6 10 M 232 (F.B.). 21 M 210 See 20 C 474 (170) Con 110 110 30 A 54

(2) Where notice has been issued no order should be passed before the notice has been served and sufficient time should be allowed for service—144 401

(3) Where predecessor in office had once refused sanction, his successor acts improperly in not giving notice to the accused and an opportunity to be heard before it is granted—23 M 210

32. When no notice should be issued.—A notice calling upon a complainant to show cause why he should not be prosecuted for preferring a false charge, ought not to issue until it has been finally decided that the complaint must be dismissed as false—12 Cr 539 (1)

(3) General Procedure.

33. Proceedings how to be framed.—Subordinate Courts are bound to frame proceedings in such manner as to enable High Court to judge the propriety of the order granting sanction 16 C 661.

34. Power to take fresh evidence.—A Court has power to hold an enquiry and take fresh evidence for the purpose of determining whether or not sanction should be granted, even though record discloses no foundation for alleged charges 20 M 339. 14 C N 106 Contra 6 M 294. 15 M 224

35. False suit.—When a civil suit has been settled without any evidence being gone into the Court has power to make preliminary enquiry and grant false and if false, should sanction be granted. [14 C N. 306]

36.

2 C J 612 Before granting sanction Court is bound to satisfy itself that there was a prima facie evidence that the offence has been committed—[7 M 224 Rat 374] Before granting sanction to prosecute an accused person for forgery it is desirable that the Court should examine the alleged forged document—[19 Cr 6 42 (Pat)]. It is irregular for a judge to order prosecution on the basis of a departmental enquiry without having himself made an enquiry [13 Cr 43 (A)]. Where the evidence on record of original case did not prove case to be false, High Court remanded case for trial according to law [2 C J 612].

37. Record of Evidence not indispensable.

—It is not necessary that evidence should be recorded after the institution of the application for sanction, and the Magistrate is competent to refer to the evidence recorded in the counter case—38 M 1044 It is competent to the Judge to rely on opinions expressed by his predecessor—[Rat 70]

38 Scrutiny of evidence not necessary.—

It is not necessary to go into the defence or scrutinize the evidence against each individual accused before granting sanction—[7 M. 224]. A Magistrate need not go minutely into evidence or to see whether there is sufficient evidence to support conviction—[2 Weir 557]

39. Proceeding calling an informant to prove his case not judicial proceeding.—The procedure of calling on an informant who is reported by Police to have made false charge before them, to prove his case and examination of witnesses in this connection is not contemplated by the Criminal Procedure Code and the proceeding is not a judicial one—43 C. 1152 4 C N 351.

40 Magistrate should not pronounce opinion on the merits of the case.—On a complaint filed by A against B being dismissed, B asked for sanction to prosecute A under Sec 211 1 P C The Magistrate issued a notice to A to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under Sec 211 He was further ordered to produce evidence in support of his own case On the date of hearing the Magistrate examined A and his witnesses on oath but without examining B. or his witnesses granted the sanction applied for—Held—that the procedure adopted by the Magistrate cannot be supported on any principle at all It is a procedure which has been condemned by the Calcutta High Court in 41 C 416 It is impossible to lay down any hard and fast rules as to the manner in which the enquiry should be held by the sanctioning Court, but it is clear that the enquiry must proceed on the allegation made by the party who asked for sanction and on the basis of the materials placed by him before that Court. It is in the highest degree inexpedient to pronounce an opinion on the merits of the case—(1919) Pat 250.

41. Accused has no right to participate in proceedings.—Cross-examination.—Cross-examination on affidavits in support of an application for sanction should not be allowed.—[11 B R. 1164] It is not necessary that the preliminary enquiry should be conducted in the presence of the accused.—[9 W. R. 3: See 34 A. 207].

(4) Effect of Omission.

42. Omission to make preliminary enquiry not fatal.—An omission to make a preliminary

V. PROCEEDING.

(1) Nature and Propriety of proceeding.

43. Magistrate acts improperly in granting sanction with relation to pending case.—When a Court before which a case is pending institutes proceedings under this Section before any evidence in the case has been given and without any materials before it upon which it could properly exercise a discretion, the proceedings are highly improper.—Per Garth C J 6 C 410

44. Nature of proceedings.—Proceedings relating to sanction are undoubtedly judicial proceedings.—34 A. 602

(2) Initiation.—Application for Sanction.

45. No application for sanction is necessary in cases falling under Sub-Sec. (1) clause (a) of S. 195.—41 C 14 But See 27 C 820

46. Application must be made before Court can grant sanction.—3 A. 62, 18 A. 213; 6 A. J. 785, 20 C 474 10 C N 222, 23 P R 1901, 211 P L 1908 11 U B. 94, See 6 C N. 37, 12 Cr. 539 (P)

- Note.—Where no application is made, Court should proceed under S 476. Where there is no application for sanction and the Court orders prosecution, the order must be taken as a complaint made of its own motion.—7 M 189

47. Sanction without application is bad.—(02) A N 195, 10 C N 223 Contra 16 B R 947. [Note.—The grant of sanction does not presuppose an application having been made for the purpose, 16 B R 947.]

48. Reason of the rule.—The rule that sanction should be given only on application made may be justified to this extent that before sanction is granted, the Court must be satisfied that there is some person who is willing to avail himself of it and carry on the prosecution, (07) U B 1—q. 1, 13 I C 97. (C)

49. Contents of the application.—The application must indicate the documents in respect of which forgery is said to have been committed [18 A. 203 See 2 C J 612] The application must set forth in detail the statements alleged to be false and the place where, and the occasion on which such statements were made (in case of perjury) [ibid]. But it need not be in writing nor need it be made before an inquiry is held under S 195 Cr P C—13 I. C. 97 (C).

50. Police Report a sufficient application.—A Police report setting forth the facts of disobedience to an order under S 144 Cr P C, and containing a request for prosecution under S 1. P. C. is a sufficient application for sanction

41. C 14

51. Where the application should be filed.—Application should, as a general rule, be made to Court before which perjury is said to have been committed.—3 M. II. 02

52. Court to which application for sanction should be made.—A brought a charge against P. in the Court of the Pargana Magistrate but the direction of the District Magistrate to the Court was made over for trial to another Magistrate who convicted the accused. There was appeal to the Sessions Judge who set aside the conviction. In the meantime the Magistrate

The accused applied to the Magistrate for sanction. The Magistrate refused to grant sanction. On appeal to the Sessions Judge he held that the Magistrate was not competent to grant sanction. On appeal to the Sessions Judge he held that the Magistrate was not competent to grant sanction.

Held that the Court to which application should have been made is the Court of the Sessions Judge and the latter not having given the sanction specific terms, it was bad.—(84) A N 276

Application for sanction should be made to the Magistrate or to the Sessions Judge. If the Magistrate refuses to grant sanction, an application may be made to the Sessions Judge. If the Sessions Judge refuses to grant sanction, an application may be made to the High Court. If the High Court refuses to grant sanction, an application may be made to the Privy Council.

20 C. N 981.

54. Application for sanction cannot be dismissed for default.—The Court is bound to consider the application on its merits and either refuse or grant it. [32 B 203 34 P 1916]. An application cannot be dismissed non-payment of process fees. [15 Cr. 71 (M)]

55. Application to prosecute: approver.—Application to High Court for sanction to prosecute approver for perjury should be made on behalf of Crown by way of motion in open Court and not by a letter of reference [24 C 492. P. R 1804] Prosecution of approver for giving false evidence can be granted only before and after commencement of prosecution.—[10 B 11]

56. Previous oral sanction no bar to subsequent sanction on written application.—Previous oral sanction granted at the time pronouncing judgment is no bar to granting it subsequently on a formal written application—[40 C 423]

57. There is nothing in the Law requiring that sanction should be granted only upon application by a private party. 10 C L 4.
59. Application by person other than party to suit or original case—would not justify sanction. [3 C N. 3. See 6 A J 796] But the Government pleader on instructions from the District Magistrate may apply for prosecution [(6) A. N. 200].
59. P.
60. Application by a minor must be made through his next friend—11 Cr 327 (C)
61. When a Magistrate ought to proceed suo moto—Where during the course of summary trial, the Court is of opinion that perjury has been committed, it should take action itself instead of placing in the hands of a private person, the right of vindicating the law—16 A J 992.
- (3) Effect of delay in making application for sanction.
62. Application by Government an exception—In a case in which application for sanction was rejected on the ground of delay in filing it, held that the case being in substance a prosecution undertaken by Government, mere delay could not be taken as suggesting malafides 10 C N. 447: 10 C 477. See 17 C N 617. 43 C 597.

63. Presumption in favour of application by Government—Where the real applicant is the Government, and enquiries have to be made from various departments before an application for sanction can be preferred, a delay of seven months does not point to want of bonafides or wilful negligence 2 Pat J 692. 2 Pat J. 688
64. General Rule—Sanction is improper when there is delay in making application and the delay is not accounted for—7 A J 50. 11 C. N. 119: 18 GS
65. Great delay in application for sanction is good ground for refusing it.—Generally a delay by a private person to apply for sanction to prosecute in the interests of public justice, indicates want of bona fides or culpable negligence or laches 2 Pat J 692 2 Weir 154. 19 Cr. 642 (Pat) 19 Cr 508 (C).
66. Sanction already granted cannot be revoked.—Sanction already granted cannot be revoked on the ground of delay in making application Rat 803.
67. An application presented after one year in the absence of special circumstances to excuse the delay should be disallowed [8 S 49] A Magistrate acts properly in refusing sanction when accused apply for it 4 months after discharge. [15 Cr. 695 (A) 1 C N. 529 7 A J 50]

VI. HOW FAR SANCTION AND COMPLAINT ESSENTIAL FOR COGNIZANCE.

(1) Sanction when condition precedent to cognizance.

68. When sanction is or is not necessary in the case of false complaints.—Where information to the Police is followed by complaint in Court based on the same allegations and the same charge and such complaint has been investigated by the Court, the sanction or complaint of the Court itself is necessary for the prosecution of the informant either under S 162 or 211 I P C but unnecessary when the Magistrate is not moved for enquiry [40 C 650 43 O. 1152 30 A 52 (15) U. B II 95 See 14 C 707 (F. B.) 31 O 1 24 W R 1, 10 M 232 13 Cr 480 (M) 5 Bur T 129 2 Cr 66] Sanction is necessary when an offence punishable under S 211 I. P. C is committed in or in relation to any proceeding in any Court [14 B. R 362]. but not necessary when not committed in or in relation to any proceeding in Court [14 B R 1160]
69. Sanction necessary when there is 'user' within the meaning of S. 471 I. P. C. Sanction is necessary for the prosecution of a plaintiff in a rent suit, who himself filed a Kabiyat and an amalnamah which were forged and which purported to be filed by the defendant, as the act constituted user within the meaning of S. 471 I. P. C. and the offence committed was one under that section [19 C N 125] So sanction is necessary when a forged register kept by a public servant is tendered in evidence in Court [Rat 83] When the prosecution is under S 467 I P C sanction is necessary, if after committing forgery, the document is subsequently produced in Court [14 C N 479]

70. When sanction necessary, although suit is filed after complaint—Sanction of Civil Court is necessary, when a complaint of false endorsement on a promissory note was preferred to a 2nd class Magistrate but transferred to a 1st class Magistrate and when, between the date of filing of complaint and its transfer, a Civil Suit on the promissory note was instituted—39 M 677
71. Antecedent forgery and user.—Where a document is produced in Court by a party, the sanction of that Court is necessary for his prosecution in respect of an antecedent forgery and antecedent user before a Sub-Registrar. (1917) 44 C 1002 14 C N 479 35 A 169 39 M 677: Dir. 4 B R 26.
72. Date of cognizance and not commission the determining factor.—Sanction is necessary for offence committed in respect of document produced in Court by a party, even where the alleged offence was committed before the documents came into Court at a time when the person complained against was not a party to any proceeding. The words "when such offence has been committed by a party" refer, not to the date of the commission of the alleged offence but to the date on which cognizance of the Criminal Court is invited.—35 A. 169; 1 B. R. 65 not followed.

73. Private persons prosecuting under S. 182 Cr. P. C.—A private person may institute prosecution under S. 182 P. C. provided that he first obtains sanction of the public officer concerned or his superior. 8 A. 342 (or 5 A. 36).

74. Test of necessity—not the character of offender but of the offence.—The test for the necessity of grant of sanction under S. 185 Cr. P. C. is not the character of the offender but the character of the offence. 14 B. R. 362.

75. Sanction necessary for prosecuting a person for instigating a witness to give false evidence in a divorce case by the respondent.—26 C. 359.

When a person is accused of committing perjury by making contradictory statements in two different courts, sanction of both Courts is necessary.—11 B. H. 34.

A court before which contradictory statements are made should sanction prosecution in respect of each of the statements said to be contradictory of each other.—27 M. J. 586.

76. Forged document.—When a forged document is produced in Court but not tendered in evidence, prosecution can not be started except on the written complaint of the court concerned,

9 B. R. 735.

77. Sanction necessary—

- (a) When the document alleged to be forged has been produced in Court subsequent to commission of forgery. 14 C. N. 479.
- (c) When a complaint has been filed against a public servant charging him with extortion. 7 B. H. 61.

(2) When sanction unnecessary.

78. Sanction when unnecessary for cognizance—

- (a) No sanction is necessary for the prosecution of a person who gives false information to the Police, not followed by complaint in Court or judicial enquiry. 44 C. 650. See 43 C. 1152.
- (b) When a person files a false certificate before a Collector in an enquiry under Chap. 3 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act, no sanction for his prosecution is necessary, as the certificate was filed before the Collector entirely in his administrative capacity and as at the time of filing he was not acting as a Court.—(1920) 17 A. J. 1018.
- (c) When the alleged false charge was not the subject of any proceedings in Court. (85) A. N. 85. 14 P. R. 1852.

(d) When the accused failed to produce the original document for the cancellation of which a suit was instituted and ex parte decree was passed on the basis of a certified copy of the alleged forged document.—S. O. C. 313.

(e) When offences under Ss. 156 and 211 P. C. have been committed before the Police, arrears to the commencement of any enquiry by the Magistrate. 2 Weir 162, 11 P. R. 1482; 26 C. 760.

(f) Where the offence under S. 47 of the Police Act has been committed. 1 Weir 845.

(g) When the offence is completed before the document which forms the subject matter of the prosecution is filed in Court. 10 C. N. 229.

(h) When the offence relates to a document and was committed before its production in Court.—34 A. 654.

(i) When the offence (forgery) is committed by a witness in respect of a document given in evidence in a Court.—3 M. 400; 15 C. N. 565.

(j) When the complaint relates to forcible dispossession of a person put in possession by Civil Court.—17 W. R. 10.

(k) When the offence is committed by a village Munsiff acting as a private individual and not as a judge.—6 M. T. 125.

(l) When the offence committed constitutes an abetment of the offences specified in S. 105. The abetment of an offence is an offence of itself and is punishable under separate sections of its own (sic) none of which is specified in S. 105.—20 M. S. Contra 26 C. 359.

(m) Where the offence committed was being a charge before the Police which was judicially declared to be false, as the offence is not committed in or in relation to any proceeding in Court.—3 C. N. 33.

(n) When there is no proceeding in existence in any Court relating to the false information.—Est. 704; 11 B. R. 1100.

(o) When the offence is the making of a false statement to Police officer.—11 B. 659; 4 B. 479.

(p) When the accused is charged with (i) fabricating false evidence during Police investigation.—[26 C. 786]. (ii) or filing of forged document in Court when not put in evidence.—[10 W. R. 3]. (iii) or offence under S. 82 of the Registration Act.—[11 C. 566; 11 M. 500].

(q) offence relating to the use of a forged document the use being prior in date to its use in evidence in Court.—4 B. R. 268.

(r) When the offence of fabricating false document is completed before the document is produced in Court.—10 C. N. 220; Contra 14 C. N. 479.

(s) When the offence complained of is forgery of a document filed in Court but not given in evidence.—15 M. 224.

(t) When an offence in respect of a document has been committed prior to its production in Court.—34 A. 654.

(v) When a public servant is accused of extortion.—7 B. H. 61.

- (a) When the offence is committed by a person who is not a party to the Case.—6 A. J. 181; See 31 A. 651
- (v) When the offender is a witness and not a party to the suit.—15 C N 565
- (w) When a complaint has been filed against a public servant charging him with extortion.—7 B H. 61.
- (z) No sanction necessary to prosecute a village Munsiff when he was not acting as a Judge
G M T. 128
- (y) Where the offence complained of does not require sanction, the mere fact that complainant has cited S. 188 I P C. (offence requiring sanction) does not make sanction necessary.—17 W. R. 10

(3) Complaint as distinguished from sanction.

79. A sanction is not tantamount to a complaint, but it is a condition precedent to the entertainment of a complaint [12 M. 47, See. 21, M. 126 (F.B.)]. Where a Munsiff concludes that a prosecution should be instituted and directs that the accused be sent to a Magistrate under bail and that the Magistrate should enquire into the matter, held that the Munsiff's order, whether it was or was not a sanction, was a sufficient complaint within the meaning of this Section. [7 A. 871. (F.B.)]

80. Complaint by Court.—See. 476 Cr. P O A. complaint directly made by a public servant is quite as sufficient as his sanction, 13 C. 270 Nay more, Where a Subordinate Court makes a complaint, neither the High Court nor Sessions judge has power to interfere (But they can interfere with sanction) 23 M 205 7. B R 84 13. B. 109 See 9. C. P. 27.

VII. WHEN MAY SANCTION BE GIVEN.

81. Sanction when to be given—Sanction may be given before the close of the trial in a Civil Court Plaintiff is not entitled to insist on all his evidence being taken before sanction is granted against him.—20 M T. 232
82. Sanction should not be granted until it is clear that the original charge has been either heard, dismissed or abandoned. In order to show conclusively that such a charge has been abandoned, the person who made the false charge, should be offered an opportunity of supporting or abandoning it before the order to prosecute for the false charge is made.—14 C. 707 (F.B.) 7 C P 6

Note.—When a person called upon to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under Section 211 asks for an enquiry, sanction should not be given until and unless the complaint is judicially determined.—3. C. N. 251, 33. C I : 4 C N 305-6 C. 541.

88. Sanction must be given previous to prosecution.—[7 B H 61 10 B 190] Sanction given after trial has commenced and prisoner pleaded is bad.—7. B L 26
84. Sanction for perjury may be given at any time (even after commitment)—3, B L 10.
"At any time" in Sec. 169, (Cr. P C. 1861), explained [18 W R 62. 2 A 533 (F.B.)]
85. Sanction should not be given at an early stage of the proceedings.—3 C N 3 It should not be given before proceedings have closed 8 B H 126
83. Sanction in appeal should not be given before the appeal is decided.—31 C 848.

VIII. PROPRIETY OF GRANTING SANCTION.

(1) General principle.

87. General Principles—The Leading case on this subject, which was decided after a full and exhaustive review of all the authorities, may be summed up as follows

Section 193 Cr P C. vests in the Court an absolute discretion as regards granting sanction to prosecute this discretion can not be restricted by judicial decisions, but must be fairly exercised according to the exigencies of each case Per Jenkins C. J. "There are however certain rules of prudence to which any Court exercising its discretion would have regard and prement among them, possibly a compendious statement of all, would be the rule that the Court will be astute to see that there shall be no abuse of the administration of criminal justice. No one therefore would be permitted to use the penal law merely to satisfy his own private ends or personal spite." Per Chaudhury J. "Judicial decisions on Section 195 have thus multiplied A great number of them have been cited before us and one cannot help feeling that they have unduly overburdened the requirements of the section and obscured its plain intentment. The construction of a plain section ought not to be influenced by judicial decisions however numerous It is difficult to grade these decisions usefully when they range between suspicion of guilt and one has matter Court nts to which an honest man, competent to the discharge of his office, ought to confine himself. per Lord Halsbury in Sharpe v. Wakefield. (1891) A. C. 173 (1911) 41 C 446 (F.B.)

88. Note.—The above Full Bench decision was arrived at after a careful review of the whole range of previous rulings, the more important of which are noted below 41 C 143 23 C 532-20, C. 474; 16 C 730 6 C 304 1 C N. 490, 6 W R. (G.N) 37 23. M 210: 26 M 116 6 A 144. Gardner v. Jay L. R. 29 Ch. D. 50, (54) (1891) A. C. 173; (1897) 76 L. T. 330 1. Marek 407 Saunders

As regards the mass of conflicting rulings with which Sec. 195 had been overlaid, Jenkins C. J. observes, "If they are all to be read into the section as of universal application, then the enactment of the Legislature will pass out of recognition." There has been of late a tendency on the part of some of the High Courts to whittle down or explain away this Full Bench ruling but the Legislature intends to prune down the luxuriant growth of case-law by abolishing sanction altogether. (Fide Section as amended by the Select Committee, appointed to revise the Cr. P. Code). In view of this F B Ruling which seems to have been generally accepted as the leading case on the subject it is not necessary to accord more than a bare passing notice to the previous case-law which came in for full review at the hands of each of the judges who composed the Special Bench.

In anore recent case it has been held that sanction shall not be granted if there is a strong probability that the proceeding would if sanction is granted, prove abortive. The effect of this ruling is to extend the scope of the section beyond that defined in 41 C 416. In the following remarks Sanderson C J seeks to make out that there is no conflict between the two rulings—"I desire it to be clearly understood, that anything I say in my judgment is not intended to be in any way departing from or minimising what was said by the late learned Chief Justice in 41 C 416. The learned Chief Justice there pointed out that the matter was one for the discretion of the court to which application was made. Our decision in this case is arrived at upon the peculiar and somewhat special facts of this case—(1920) 30 C J 33

89. In granting sanction regard should be had to the wellknown principle that a weapon should not be placed in the hands of a private party who may hold it in ferriorem over the party against whom sanction is sought. One of the rules of prudence which has been recognized from the earliest times is that "the Court will be astute to see that there shall be no abuse of the administration of criminal justice"—No one therefore would be permitted to use the penal law merely to satisfy his private ends or personal spite—(1919) Pat 286.

90. The names of persons to whom sanction is granted should be given with discretion in the matter because of the possibility of abuse.

91. Precedent. It is a rule that there is a prima facie case is necessary condition precedent to sanction.—26 M. 193 Rat 374

92. Note.—There is absolutely no warrant for the proposition that the Court must not only be sure that the offence had been committed but that it was likely that the accused would be convicted. Such a principle is radically unsound in theory and likely to be mischievous in practice.—[Per Beaman J. 11 B, R 1161] It is not necessary to see whether there is sufficient evidence to support a conviction, it is sufficient if the evidence discloses a reasonable probability of conviction.

93. Sanction should not be granted if the evidence is so weak that it is not probable that the accused will be convicted.

set out in Section 195 has been made out." It is not necessary that the evidence before the Court granting the sanction should be such that the probable result will be conviction. (1917) 13 A. J. 1111 See 7 B. R. 732; Dins—37 C. 3 (2) 37 C. 250. (254); But See—7 A. 671; G. A. 114

94. No sanction should be granted unless there is sufficient prima facie evidence and a reasonable probability of conviction. But the F B Case reported at 41 C. 416 has very much weakened the authority of this ruling and has overruled the doctrine that probability of conviction is a point to be considered in granting sanction. The trend of the latest decisions of the Allahabad, Bombay, Madras and Patna High Courts leans more or less on the theory favoured by the Special Bench of the Calcutta High Court. 37 C. 250. Pro 12 C. N. 3; 1 C. N. 400; 1 C. 420; 26 M. 116, 117. 23 M. 210; 7 A. 671; 6 A. 114 (1900) A. N. 149. But See (1915) Pat 26, 4 Pat. 374. Contra 11 B. R. 1161. See also—12 M. J. 32 12 M. 95. General Principles.—When the alleged property is not relevant to the trial before the Magistrate, Sanction ought not to be granted. So, Sanction should not be granted for denial of theft committed 38 years ago. "It would be obviously persecution, not protection, to allow any such trial to go on."—16 A. J. 923.

Sanction not granted to be during pendency of appeal. Sanction should not be given by an appellate Court during the pendency of a second appeal.—17 A. J. 191.

96. Prosecution of minor inadvisable.—The prosecution of a boy of 11 years is inadvisable.—3 C. N. 35 (v).

97. No Sanction in the case of doubt.—When the Court is in doubt as to whether or not the evidence is sufficient to support a conviction, sanction should not be given.—1 C. J. 400.

98. Sanction should be given with due regard to the interests of justice and the public interest.—3 C. N. 3; Rat 693

11 A. J. 313. 1 S. 63

99. Sanction should not be given by any Court without first examining the evidence. So where a Magistrate grants sanction upon a mere perusal of the calendar of a case tried by a Subordinate Magistrate, High Court set aside his order.—7 M. 500

100. Sanction to Judgment-debtor against decree-holder.—It is inexpedient and not in the interests of justice that sanction to prosecute the judgment-debtor against the decree-holder.—(73) A. N.

101. Character of the offence is not a consideration in granting sanction unless it is otherwise of a document, no sanction should be granted merely because the plea set up on the basis of such document has been disallowed—(87) A. N. 142

102. When sanction is inexpedient.—Where the question is whether prosecution for giving false evidence should be sanctioned or not, the safest rule is to give the witness as far as possible, a habeas postuler and if the witness avails himself thereof, a prosecution for perjury is inexpedient [(33) A. N. 68] The mere fact that the charge has not been proved is not by itself sufficient ground for sanction. [11 C 661 33 P R 1400]

103. When the Court expresses no decided opinion.—Where a Court expresses no opinion as to the genuineness or otherwise of a document no sanction should be granted, merely because the plea set up on the basis of such a document has been disallowed—A sanction should not be granted simply to try whether the accusation is true or false—(87) A. N. 142.

104. Sanction only on prima facie case being made out.—No order should be made till all available testimony bearing on the question of forgery has been received and a satisfactory prima facie case has been made out. [19 W R 183. 49 P. W 1912] A Court should grant sanction only when it is satisfied that in all probability a conviction will result. [1 C N 400 12 C N 3 2 Weir 166]

Note.—1 C N. 400 and 12 C N 3 must be regarded as overruled by 11 C 416 (F. B.).

105. Test—Character of offence not offender.—The test for the necessity of the grant of sanction under S 195 Cr P C is not the character of the offender but the character of the offence 14 B R 362

106. Sanction for forgery in the absence of finding by Court.—Sanction may be granted to prosecute a person for forgery in respect of a document produced and tendered in court, though not judicially considered by it—29 C 657

107. Rule—reference to sanctions for perjury.—Prosecution for perjury for contradictory statements in one and the same deposition ought not to be sanctioned without considering the deposition as a whole and without having regard to the circumstances under which contradictory answers were given—[2 Weir 164] When there is unmistakable conflict in evidence, the alternative most unfavourable to the accused should not be accepted [9 B R 212]

108. Duty of the sanctioning Court.—

- (a) The Judge granting sanction ought to apply his mind closely to the facts with a view to ascertain whether they really constitute an offence

Rat 693

- (b) The Court should see if there are good grounds for thinking that a prosecution is necessary in the interests of justice—10 M T 117.

- (c) Court should proceed only when the propriety or necessity of doing so is unmistakable.—11 W. R 171.

- (d) Discretion vested in courts should be most carefully exercised.—6 W. R. 11.

- (c) Court should not grant sanction granted except on evidence before it of such matters.—6 A J 337.

109. Sanction should be given when—

- (a) Only when there is a strong prima facie case against the accused—7 Bur 192. But see 41 C. 446 (S.B.).

- (b) only when the charge is deliberately false (When the charge is true in substance but is bolstered up by false evidence, the offender should be prosecuted under S 196 and not 211 I. P. O.) 7 C J 169.

- (c) only when a prima facie case has been established that a false charge has been made maliciously. 5 C P 78

- (d) only when the Court is satisfied that the interests of justice require a prosecution and there is a strong prima facie case against the accused 6 A 114 2 Weir 177

- (e) when one makes a false charge against another and the latter is discharged after judicial enquiry 11 P R 1892 But see 41 C 446 (S.B.).

- (f) Only when satisfied that in all probability conviction will result—
1 C N 400 } Od. by 41 C 446 (S.B.) 2 Weir 166.
12 C N 3 }

110. Sanction should not be granted.—

- (i) When there is nothing to show that the information given by the complainants was false to his knowledge and that he believed it to be false. 20 Cr 678 (Pat)

- (b) When a witness has told a false story in the Court of the Committing Magistrate but a true one in the Court of Session—14 C N 767 21 P R. 1901 See 2 Weir 166

- (c) Where the statements complained of are slightly discrepant owing to inaccuracies of mind and are not deliberately false—19 Cr 230 (O)

- (d) Where the alleged false statements were made in the course of a lengthy cross examination and are not absolutely irreconcilable 9 Cr 234 (C).

- (e) When the offence charged is disobedience of an order not authorised by law—6 M T 376

- (f) When the defendant's denial of the plaintiff's allegations is meant to put the plaintiff to the proof of such allegations In the injunct the pleadings are generally loose in expression, and sanction should not be granted on the basis of such language—6 M T 346

- (g) When the finding is merely that the charge of theft was not proved at all against the accused. 16 C 661.

- (h) When no proper enquiry has been made into the truth or falsehood of a complaint—37 P. L 1809.

- (i) When there is some foundation for the complaint. 137 P. L. 1909

- (j) When the statement of the witness, though believed to be false is not an impossible one. 6 M. T. 91.

(k) When there is nothing to show that the information given by the accused was false to his knowledge or that he believed it to be false, no sanction for an offence under S. 183 I. P. C. should be given—20 Cr. 618 (Pat).

(l) When the complainant has not been duly examined though his complaint has been dismissed upon enquiry and report ostensibly called for under S. 202. The complainant is not liable to prosecution in such a case—12 Cr. 539 (P.)

(m) When, if granted, it would prejudice the judicial enquiry and decision of the suit in which it is to be considered. 20 Cr. 847.

(n) When the false charge was of a trivial nature and the Magistrate acquitted the accused on the ground that the case was of a trivial nature. 19 Cr. 767 (C)

(o) Unless the accused had acted malefide and committed the offence for which it is sought to prosecute him—11 C N 195

(2) Specific points for consideration.

111. (a) The chief point for consideration is—whether the statutory bar imposed by Section 195 should be removed and the law allowed to take its ordinary course—41 C 446 (F.B.).

112. (b) The chief point for consideration is whether "the matter is one which on the face of it requires investigation by a Magisterial Court and ultimately by a competent tribunal. Chance of conviction is not a question to be considered—36 M J 60. F. S. 17 M T 15 [Contra-Sheeshagiri Aiyar J in 32 M J 54]

113. (c) The sanctioning Court must be guided by two principles viz (i) whether there is a prima facie case against the person sought to be prosecuted (ii) whether the real object of the applicant is not to satisfy his private ends or personal spite.—4 Pat. J 374 41 C 446

114. Before sanction for perjury is granted, the following points should be considered:

(i) whether the statements are intentionally false;

(ii) Whether they are material to the issue of the case;

(iii) whether they affect the credit of the witness; 2 A J. 836.

Allowance should be made for evasion of some matter relating to past history of witness [Ibid]

115. (e) The point to be considered in granting or withholding sanction for perjury is—Did the accused know that he was speaking falsely?—6 M T. 91.

116. (f) The primary...

...—13 C. N. 422.

117. (z) Point to be considered in granting sanction is—Am I in a position to produce such evidence as, if un rebutted, would support conviction.—11 B. 256.

(3) Materials justifying sanction

118. (v) The mere acquittal of an accused person is not sufficient for sanctioning prosecution under section 211 I. P. C. There is something more than mere acquittal: there must be a reasonable belief in the mind of the sanctioning Court that there was no foundation for the criminal charge; there must be a belief that in instituting criminal proceedings the petitioner acted knowingly without belief in the truth of the allegations made by him or without caring whether the allegations were true or false. The liberty of any person should not be jeopardised so that the person whose sanction "may take a lesson (acc)" 23 Cr. 603 4 Pat J. 374. 41 C. 446 (S.D.).

119. (b) A sanction must be based on materials on the record before the Court.—618 (Pat.)

120. (c) Order granting sanction should be made on legal evidence.—Where the sanction is granted after dismissing a complaint, asked plaintiff to show cause why sanction should be given and on the complainant not examining any witnesses, sanctioned his prosecution, sanction was set aside by High Court, as there was no legal evidence justifying sanction.—33 M J 101

(d) Section 195 does not prescribe rule as to the materials upon which a sanction should accord its sanction. Though a sanction should not accord sanction merely on the basis of a police report, yet if the report is based on a judgment of the Court in a counter brought against the complainant in connection with the same matter wherein it was found to be false, such report is sufficient legal material for according sanction for complaint. The complainant's sworn statement if disbelieved by the Magistrate, is another trial on which sanction may be granted.—1044: [10 M. 232 (F.B.) discussed and explained]

121. Note. Per Wallis J—"All that is decided in Full Bench in Queen Empress v. Shek Bauri 101 (F.B.) is that the Court should not grant sanction to prosecute for preferring a false complaint merely on the ground that the complaint has been referred by the police as false and then under section 203 Cr. P. C. There are no certain dicta in the judgment of the learned Judges which have been regarded in some subsequent cases as meaning that the order should be made on judicial evidence or legal evidence. Those dicta do not mean that such evidence has been given on the application for sanction. Per Sadasiva Aiyar J "In that case (10 M F. B.) it was held, as I understand the point, which all the learned Judges were agreed, the Magistrate should not substitute the judgment of the Police for his own judgment and cannot accord sanction merely upon the Police report."

122. (e) Evidence of an accomplice.—The evidence of an accomplice, unless materially corroborated, does not constitute sufficient basis for sanction.—(OO) A. N. 149.

123. Where there has been no proper enquiry.—Where no proper enquiry has been made into the truth or falsehood of a complaint the Court has nothing to go upon and is not justified in granting sanction [2 P.W. 1909]. But a Magistrate is competent to grant sanction, even though the complaint was dismissed on the examination of the complainant alone and without hearing his evidence [7 C 208; Con 25 W. R. 10]. A sanction however which has been granted on the strength merely of the report made by the police after investigation, and without making any independent judicial enquiry beyond reading the complainant's statement on oath, is illegal [22 M. J. 419 (F. B.)]

124. Con 25 W. R. 10.

Rat 705.

125. Decree not yet set aside.—A defendant against whom an ex parte decree has been passed, is not merely by reason of the decree not having been set aside, precluded from applying for sanction to prosecute the plaintiff under Ss. 193 and 210 I P C 2 Pat J 688.

IX. PROCEDURE IN SANCTION PROCEEDINGS.

(1) General.

126. The application of Ss. 182 and 211 I.P.C. to false charges.—A prosecution for a false charge may be under S. 182 or 211 I P C if the false charge is a serious offence, the proper course is to proceed under S 211; otherwise it is enough to direct prosecution under S 182.

32 C 180.

(2) In Subordinate Courts.

27. (a) Proceedings under this section should frequently or, even usually, be ex parte. Per Stephen J 41 O 446 (F. B.).
23. (b) Sanction for prosecution of witnesses should not be given while the case is still pending

21 C N 753.

(3) In Superior Courts.

129. (a) Superior Courts can not remand proceedings of Subordinate Courts for further enquiry

17 Cr. 222 (L B). Additional evidence may if necessary, be taken by Superior Court. 44 C. 816 [40 A 21 Fs 17 Cr 29 (A)]

130. (b) On the hearing of an application to the High Court against an order of the Presidency Small Cause Court refusing sanction, a Vakil has a right of audience—21 C N 654

131. (c) A Sessions Judge, acting under clause 6, may examine on oath the person against whom sanction is applied for and also to hold a thorough and searching enquiry into the matter 3 P R 1916.

132. (d) The intention of the Legislature is that a Court of superior jurisdiction to which an application under Sub-section 6 is made should consider the entire matter on the merits on a complete review of all the facts. Such an application stands on a footing different from an application in revision and is analogous to an appeal—37 A 439

133. (e) Superior Court is bound to give reasons for confirming or revoking sanction. (92) A N 60

X. NATURE FORM AND CONTENTS OF ORDER GRANTING SANCTION.

(1) General.

134. Nature of order.

(a) An order under S. 195 is not a sentence or order in a criminal trial [12 M J 408]. The grant of sanction is a judicial—not an executive act [35 M J 646]

(b) The orders of a Munsiff or a District Judge, granting or refusing sanction are not orders of a Criminal Court and are not liable to revision under the Cr P C—19 C N 147 1's 40 C 477 Also see 17 C N 647

(c) An order granting, revoking or refusing sanction is a judicial act.—13 I C. 111 (C) 34 A 602.

135. Form of the order.

(a) The order should not contain an analysis of the materials submitted to the sanctioning authority or expressing any opinion as to the probability or otherwise of a conviction—[36 M. J. 60. F. 17 M. T. 15 Contra Chengut Arayr J 14 32 M J 51

(c) Order omitting particulars is bad.—An order endorsed on a petition for sanction and couched thus "Record seen Sanction allowed" is not a substantial compliance with the law. A sanction which omits to specify particulars required by subsection (4) is bad

(1915) Pat 366 14 C N xvi 3 C N xxviii; 2 C J. 612 10 C 1100 50 A 243 2 Weir 172. See also 23 C. 532 22 C 573 16 M 468 O.A. 101. 5 O.C. 164

(b) Order should not be couched in general terms so as to make it impossible to say exactly what offences and acts were imputed to the accused—11 C N 195

136. Contents of the order.

(a) Prosecutor need not be named.—There is no specific provision that the prosecutor should be named in the order—[41 C. 446 (F. B.)]; 21 P R. 709; Rat see 32 C. 461. 32 C 251; 11 C N 195. 6 A. J. 769]. The substantial question is not whether a particular person ought to be allowed to prosecute but whether the bar against the prosecution ought to be removed [12 M 47]. It does not matter whether the sanction is accorded to a particular person or is couched in general terms.—[13 Cr. 206 (M); 12 M 47 27 M 121 10 S. 65 But see 32 C. 469: 32 C 351]

Note.—Sanction should be granted to a certain person by name.—[6 A J. 796] A sanction must be granted to a contemplated prosecution by a definite person.—[20 C 474: But see 8 B R 32 41 C 446 (F.B.)] A sanction to prosecute which omits to specify the person either by name or by office, to whom sanction is accorded, is bad in law, and consequently a trial held under such sanction is invalid.—8 P. R. 1919.

137. General Rules.

- (1) Sanction should be in writing.—It is very desirable that sanction or direction should be in writing and attached to the record but it is by no means legally imperative.—7 M. II. 58.
- (2) Order must be framed in a manner showing its propriety.—Order must be framed in such a way as to enable the High Court so satisfy itself that the application for sanction was properly granted.—23 M. 210. 16 C 661
- (3) A sanction for abatement of offences under S. 211 should show distinctly what is the nature of the abatement.—2 Weir 167.
- (4) Order should be in express terms.—11 C N 175
- (5) Contents, when given by Civil Court.—When Civil Court gives sanction, the particular offence or offences for which sanction is given should be stated.—13 W. R 25 6 A. 101.
- (6) Particular false statements to be indicated.—The High Court revoked the sanction where the particular statements said to be false in a long deposition were not indicated in it.—10 B 362 Rat 693 3 C N 35 7 B. L. 29n.
- (7) Forgery.—In case of forgery Civil Court should state distinctly what the document is for which sanction is given and the particular act or acts of forgery should be specified.—7 B. L. 29n
- (8) False evidence.—Sanction should specify the Court in which and the occasion on which the offence is committed and should further specify the particular false statements.—3 C N. 35. 6 A 105 6 A 99 11 B H 34. See 9 W. R. 58. 6 A. J 337. But see 11 W. R. 17
- (9) Offence to be defined.—A munsif in granting sanction should mention the section or sections of the Penal Code, under which he authorises prosecution, the date of commission of the offence and the place where it has been committed.—6 A. 101 (1918) Pat 366
- (10) No particular form of words necessary.—Law does not require sanction to be given in a particular form of words.—2 N. P. 132
- (11) What does not amount to Sanction.
 - (a) The following words in the concluding portion of Judgment viz. let the Magistrate of the District be informed that the Court sanctions the prosecution of G and D (Witnesses) for false evidence" did not amount to a sanction.—3 A. 62

- (b) Words to the effect—"It is directed to bring a case under S. 211 P. C." cannot be considered a sanction. If intended as a sanction it is expressed in an improper manner.—5 C 437
- (c) Where complaint being sent to police for investigation was reported to be false and the Magistrate endorsed as follows at the foot of the report.—"The case is closed as D. You may proceed against the complainant" Held—The order could not be accepted as sanction.—14 B. II. 500
- (12) Court or place of offences to be specified.—Sanction must be granted to particular person and must specify the Court or other place in which and the occasion on which the alleged offence has been committed.—11 C N. 195. 1 C J. 630; 6 A J. 796; But see 8 B R 22
- (13) Offences to be indicated.—Although sanction may be in general terms, an indication of the offence which is said to have been committed should be given.—[2 Weir 172].
- (14) Contents of sanction.—Court sanctioning the prosecution should state its reasons for doing so.—(194) A. N. 171
- (15) Joint order against several persons.—Terms of order giving sanction should be accurate and precise, especially when given against several accused.—2 Weir 173. See 2 Weir 172.
- (16) When the person ordered to be prosecuted should be named.—Cl (4) applies only to cases in which the offender is uncertain or unknown. A Court granting sanction should name the person to be prosecuted where there is no doubt as to who that person is.—25 M. 671.
- (17) Sanction for giving false evidence should contain the following particulars.—the allegations upon which perjury is alleged, the place where or the time when false evidence was given, and the section or sections of the Penal Code under which the prosecution is to proceed
- (18) Superior Court cannot direct the subordinate court to rectify a mistake in the form of the sanction.—14 Cr 655 (C)

(2) To whom sanction can be granted.

138. Not limited to party to the proceeding.—There is nothing in the statute law to limit the grant of sanction to a party to the proceeding in connection with which the offence has been committed. Sanction for offences against public justice may be given to a public officer.—37 C. 18 Contra 3 C N. 3.
139. Sanction should not be granted to the judgment-debtor against the person who holds a decree against him.—3; A. I.

140. ...
 141. Sanction should not be granted to a stranger to the proceeding.—13 I. C. 111 (C). See 11 A. J. 313.
 142. General Principle.—Neither sanction nor permission to continue a prosecution commenced by another should be granted to person who might use it for the purpose of harassing his opponent in a civil litigation—11 A. J. 313. 31 C 518 13 C. N. 399.

(3) Against whom may sanction be given.

143. (a) Person not a party to proceeding.—Sanction can be given for prosecuting for forgery a person who is not a party—20 Cr. 630 (Pat)
 144. (b) Witness.—Sanction against witness may be given, for producing forged document, but not before all available testimony bearing on the question of forgery had been received and a prima facie case made out—19 W. R. 153.

(4) Offence in respect of which sanction may be given.

145. (v) Offence under S. 466 I. P. C.—Sanction for prosecution under Sec 466 I. P. C. may be given, though that section is not specifically mentioned in Sec 195—20 Cr. 630 (Pat)

146. (b) Offences under S. 182 or S. 211 I. P. C.—A prosecution for false charge may be under S. 182 on 211 I. P. C. If the false charge is a serious offence, the proper course is to proceed under S. 211; otherwise it is enough to sanction prosecution under S. 182 I. P. C.—32 C 180

147. (c) Offences under S. 210 I. P. C.—When an

23 C 971

148. Offences under special Acts.—The offences specified in the section relate only to those punishable under the I. P. C.—Some special Acts provide sanction for other offences e.g.

(i) Prosecutions under the Arms Act may be sanctioned by the District Magistrate or Commissioner of Police

(ii) Prosecution under the Stamp Act, by the Collector or other officer specially empowered.

(iii) Prosecution under the Metal Tokens Act, by the District or Subdivisional Magistrate.

(iv) Prosecution under the Indian Census Act by the Local Government or officer specially empowered.

XI. DIFFERENT ASPECTS OF SANCTION.

(1) Nature and Meaning of Sanction.

149. A sanction given by a Court is not tantamount to an intimation to the Magistrate that it is his duty to find that there is a prima facie case against the accused and commit him for trial. "In effect by according sanction, it does not say to the Court which tries the case—'This is a case which I think you will have to convict,' but 'this is a case which I think it is worth your while to enquire into.' Sanction is only requisite to prevent frivolous abuse of the powers of the Criminal Courts—36 M. J. 60 [Fs 17 M. J. 15]
 150. The grant of sanction does not involve any trial of the issue nor the formation of any definite opinion as to the prisoner's guilt but is restricted to the removal of a bar to the question being formally tried at another place. 11 B. R. 1161. See remarks by Stephen J. in 41 C. 446 (S. B.)

151. Sanction to prosecute is not a direction to prosecute. it is only a permission granted to a private person to exercise his own untrammelled discretion as to whether he will take proceedings or not—8 C. 435

152. Sanction implies that the prosecution has under Section 182 I. P. C. emanated from some person other than the officer concerned.—S. A. 382

153. The sanction, whilst it is in force, restores to the Criminal Courts a jurisdiction, of which S. 195 deprives them. 8 B. R. 32. See Cr. Rev. No. 36 of 1913 (Oudh).

(2) Effect and sufficiency of sanction.

154. An order granting sanction merely removes the bar which the Legislature has imposed on reckless institution of prosecution by private individuals. Cr. Rev. No. 26 of 1913 (Oudh)

155. Sanction must be in definite terms.—A general and vague order to the effect—"Complaint summarily dismissed. The Thug is at liberty to prosecute the complainant," endorsed on an enquiring officer's report is certainly not a sanction within the meaning of S. 195. [11 U. B. 94]. Mere expression of an intention to sanction prosecution in the judgment (which was never carried out) is not a proper sanction at all. [11 B. 78]

156. When a Magistrate may proceed proprio motu.—Magistrate may proceed proprio motu, if there is a sanction, as the sanction declares that in the opinion of the Court an offence has been committed. O. S. 19

157. Sufficiency of sanction.—Sanction under S. 211 P. C. would not justify trial under S. 182 P. C. 13 W. R. 67

Sanction for substantive offence covers abatement thereof. 30 C. 1015

(3) Sanction by implication.

158. Sanction by Suplt. of Police for prosecution under S. 193 need not be expressed but may be implied.

16 W. R. 57.

Want of sanction invalidates trial.

186. (a) Where out of two persons prosecuted, sanction had been given only against one of them, the High Court directed the release of the prisoner against whom there was no sanction.—15 W. R. 55. 10 W. R. 214.
187. (b) Sanction against agent for false verification of plaint cannot be any ground for proceeding against the principal without sanction against the latter also.—4 W. R. 7.
188. (c) When there is neither complaint nor sanction. Where there is neither complaint nor sanction, the irregularity cannot be covered by S. 537—(04) A. N. 265. See 18 W. R. 32.
189. (i) Where the alleged false statements were made during police investigation in a case which was subsequently tried, held—no prosecution for perjury should be made in the absence of sanction granted by the Court which tried the case.—14 B. R. 715.

(5) Defective sanction.

190. (a) Where order sanctioning prosecution omits to specify the Court or other place in which and the occasion on which the offence was committed—held—order is defective.—30 A. 243.

CORRIGENDA:—

II. LEGISLATIVE HISTORY OF THE SECTION.

(1) Previous changes.

This section follows the lines of the Vexatious Indictment Act of England of 1859 and was grafted in its present form on the Cr. Procedure Code of 1861, the object of both the English and the Indian Legislature being to place a statutory bar on improper prosecutions. This statutory bar has been handed down to the present day through all the successive Codes of 1862, 1872, 1882 and 1898. The section may be traced back to Regulation III. of 1801 and onwards to the Regulations of 1813 and 1817, where it occurs in a rudimentary form.

(2) Prospective changes.

The proposed changes noted above aim at radically altering the scope of the section. Private persons are no longer to be permitted to prosecute for offences connected with the administration of justice. All the provisions relating to the grant or revocation of sanction are to be deleted. Only a direct prosecution will be allowed to be launched by the Court itself, or, in exceptional cases, by the Local Government. If the changes are confirmed by the Legislature, they will supersede a whole host of rulings so far as they relate to sanction.

S. 476 differ in kind from a complaint which it may lodge under S 195.—[21 M. 126 (F. B.)] S 195 should be read in conjunction with S 476 [7 A 871 (F. 361. Power of Revision of High Court under S. 115 Civil P. C.—High Court has power to set aside an illegal order of revocation of sanction S 1

462. Power of High Court to call for record.—It cannot be denied that as the law stands present, the High Court has jurisdiction to call for and examine the record of a proceeding under S 195 cl (C) held in the Court of Sessions Judge and confirming a sanction granted by a subordinate Court.—Per Piggot J. in 20 C 561 (A) 36 A. 403

363. When application for revision is too late.—Where the application for revision had been made long after the sanction had been given and the prosecution had advanced to the stage of framing of charges Held—it was too late ('86) A. N 83.

364. Application to set aside. Sanction should be made to lower appellate Court.—Should except in very special circumstances made to the District Judge and not to the High Court. [(84) A. N 57]

365. Belated order.—It is illegal to set aside sanction on the ground that no formal legal order was recorded, after an interval of six and a half months after the proceeding. Rat 526

Review, Reference, Rehearing and Appeal.

366. Review.—An ex parte order granting sanction may be reconsidered. [2 Weir 184]. But Sessions Judge has no power to revise his order refusing to revoke a sanction to prosecute, as an order being final and not open to review 23 B. 50

367. Reference.—Sessions Judge cannot refer to the High Court any matter in respect of sanction which he can dispose of himself. Rat 937.

question collaterally the legality of the conviction upon the allegation that the Local Government was irregularly constituted and the Sessions Judge irregularly appointed—Per Monckjee J—15 C. J. 517 (S. B.)

(5) Insufficiency or Absence of sanction and effect thereof.

22. A complaint merely copying out language of the sections I. P. C. is a colourable compliance only.—Where the complaint in the case did not set out the facts which constituted the offence but stated that the persons named have amongst themselves and together with other person or persons known or unknown, conspired to wage war against His Majesty the King and to deprive His Majesty of the Sovereignty of British India and they have collected arms etc.—held that a complaint of this description being merely a copy of the wording of the section I P C was a mere colourable compliance with the provisions of this section—Per Monckjee J in 16 C N 1105 (S. B.)

23. Absence of complaint vitiates the trial.—A Magistrate or a Sessions Judge exceeds his jurisdiction if he takes cognizance of an offence under Chapter VI I P C without a complaint. The defect is not curable by S 537 C. P. C (16 P. R 1890, 37 C 467; 17 M. J 533) The absence of such authority is a defect which vitiates the proceedings ab initio—[12 P R 1891]

24. Objection to be valid must be taken at the trial.—Where the accused was prosecuted under S 505 I. P. C. without a formal complaint but there was a valid sanction and no objection was taken at the trial, held—the defect was cured by S. 537 (s) infra—[8 P. R. 1909] The proper course is to bring up the question of insufficiency or legality of the complaint before the was defective, held that after an elaborate enquiry and trial, it was plainly no longer competent to the accused to invite the Appellate Court to set aside the conviction. Such a case was covered completely by S. 537 infra [15 C. J. 517 (S. B.)]

(6) Miscellaneous.

25. Effect of refusal of Government to sanction.—The refusal of the Government to prosecute the accused under S. 122 I. P. C. does not affect the accused's liability to punishment under other sections for minor offence. A refusal to sanction prosecution for graver offences as required by S. 196 Cr. P. C. cannot prevent the accused from being brought to trial under other charges—25 B. 90.

26. Misdescription in the first sanction rectified in the second.—When an article in respect of which a prosecution is instituted under S 124-A. I. P. C. is misdescribed in the sanction and the misdescription is subsequently rectified, after the institution of the proceedings, by a second sanction, held that the defect if any is cured by S 537 Cr. P. C—31 M. 80.

Prosecution for certain classes of criminal conspiracy.

Indian Penal Code,

196A. No Court shall take cognizance of the offence of criminal conspiracy punishable under section 120B of the

(1) in a case where the object of the conspiracy is to commit either an illegal act other than an offence, or a legal act by illegal means, or an offence to which the provisions of section 196 apply, unless upon complaint made by order or under authority from the Governor-General in Council the Local Government or some officer empowered by the Governor-General in Council in this behalf, or

(2) in a case where the object of the conspiracy is to commit any non-cognizable offence, or a cognizable offence not punishable with death, transportation or rigorous imprisonment for a term of two years or upwards unless the Local Government, or a Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate empowered in this behalf by the Local Government has, by order in writing, consented to the initiation of the proceedings.

Provided that where the criminal conspiracy is one to which the provisions of sub-section (3) of section 195 apply no such consent shall be necessary.

Proposed amendments to the section.—The section 196A of the said Code, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"196 B. In the case of any offence referred to in sections 196 or 196 A, a District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate may, notwithstanding anything contained in those sections or in any other part of this Code, order a preliminary

197. (1) When any Judge, or any public servant not removable from his office without the sanction of the Government of India or the Local Government, is accused as such Judge or public servant of any offence, no Court shall take cognizance of such offence, except with the previous sanction of the Government having power to order his removal, or of some officer empowered in this behalf by such Government, or of some Court or other authority to which such Judge or public servant is subordinate, and whose power to give such sanction has not been limited by such Government.

(2) Such Government may determine the person by whom, manner in which, the offence or offences for which, the prosecution of such Judge or public servant is to be conducted, and may specify the Court before which the trial is to be held.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 197 of the said Code, for the words "as such Judge or public servant of any offence," the words "of any offence alleged to have been committed by him while actually purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties" shall be substituted.

I. CHANGE IN THE LAW.

1. The words "as such Judge or public servant of any offences."—It is proposed to amend S. 197 by replacing the above words by the words "of any offence alleged to have been committed by him while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties" [Comp. 2 B 481 and S. 466 of the Code of 1872] The words "purporting to act" are intended to cover such cases—as for example, the case in 26 C. 852, in which a distinction is sought to be made between a Judge acting within the strict limits of his official powers and a Judge who goes beyond such limits.
2. The words "in his capacity as public servant" in the previous codes of 1872 were omitted in the codes of 1882 and 1891 but the scope has not been thereby extended [25 M. 15 (22)]
3. The corresponding S. 167 of the code 1841 related to charges of offences punished under the Penal Code only [See C. II Cr. No. 20 of 4.10.64: 7 B H 61]. No such limitation is laid down in the present Code.

II. SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Scope of the section.

1. Scope of the section under the Code of 1872.—The scope of S. 466 Cr. P. C. (=S. 197 Cr. P. C.) extended to all acts ostensibly done by a public servant, i.e. to acts which would have no special significance except as acts done by a public servant. The first part of the section applies, at least, chiefly to cases of persons responsible to Government, who have failed in their duty, the second part to persons professing to exercise certain authority and with that pretext doing an act, which is impeached by a subject on the ground of its being wholly unwarranted by law or of an excess or impropriety of the same kind—2 B 481.
2. Scope of the section under the present Code.—Under the present Code, a sanction is required only if the act complained of involves as one of its constituting elements that it was committed by the public servant as such [26 C. 852 (10) M. N. 384; 32 M. 235: 25 M. 15; 6 M. T. 124; 7 B H. 61] offences committed against the person or property of individuals by one who happens to be a public servant, are not necessarily committed by him as such public servant in the sense in which these words are used in the Penal Code; and unless committed in that character must be regarded as the acts of individuals in private capacity—13 C. P. 126 (129).

3. The section applies although the Judge was acting ultra vires—Where a village Munsiff with power to try suits but not to act before judgment, attached certain property by judgment, held, that he was still purporting to exercise the function of a village Munsiff, and must be deemed to have acted "as such public servant."—[17 Cr. 394 (M)]
4. The scope of the section as explained in 26 C. 852.—The interpretation put on S. 197 Cr. P. C. in the leading case 26 C. 8 somewhat obscurely widened, but if the meaning be that it covers only those offences which are committed by a public servant or Judge in his official capacity and no other, it appears to us that it is not so wide as the law at present is.
5. Where a Judge commits an offence in discharging his duties as such, the belief that he is discharging such duties, by persons other than public servants—31 1904

19. In the case of subordinate Magistrates etc.—The power of sanctioning the prosecution of subordinate Magistrates, Tahsildars and Deputy Tahsildars in their Magisterial and revenue capacity is delegated to the Board of Revenue—G No 1281 J. dated 29-6-'91.
20. In the case of Registrars etc.—The power as regards Registrars and Sub-Registrars is vested in the Inspector-General of Registration.—9 Mad. Jur. 31.
21. In the case of Superior Magistrates.—The power to grant sanction is reserved to the Governor in Council—Fort St. G. Gaz 1573 p. 1503.
22. In the case of kulkarnis.—The sanction may be given by the mamlatdar or by patel to whom the kulkarni is subordinate—7 B. H. 61
23. In the case of a Second class Magistrate.—Where an offence is committed by a

- Magistrate of the second class, sanction for his prosecution can, under S. 197 Cr. P. C. be given by the District Magistrate to whom he is subordinate, and whose power to give such sanction is not limited by the Local Government—17 B. 1919. 7 M. H. 58.
24. Implied power to grant Sanction.—Upon a construction of S. 167 Cr. P. C. (1911) S. 197 of the present Code, it was held that the power to give sanction by implication, vests in the Court or authority to whom the Judge or other public servant, not removable etc., is subordinate. It does not say that such power must be expressly given by the Government—1 M. H. 58
 25. [Note.]—The proper authority to sanction the prosecution of a District Munsiff for acts of extortion, committed as a Judge of Small Causes, is the District and Sessions Judge to whom the former is subordinate—7 M. H. 182

IV. PROCEDURE IN RELATION TO SANCTIONS.

(1) Form of Sanction.

26. Form of Sanction.—No set form of sanction is required by S. 197 (1) Cr. P. C.—21 Cr. 760 (P) No form is necessary for sanction to prosecute under S. 197 Cr. P. C.—[21 Cr. 584 (Pat)] A sanction is not invalid because it omits to mention the place or time when the offence was committed.—[27 M. 54]. Sanction granted by a letter addressed to the Magistrate is sufficient—[30 C. 905. Rat 32].
- 26A. What amounts to sanction.—Where a Deputy Commissioner after carefully considering the charge against a Sub-Deputy Collector (in charge of the Chowkidari Department) and after carefully considering the materials before him suspended the Sub deputy Collector, and then made over the papers to the Superintendent of Police with the object of his prosecution under S. 409 I. P. C., held that the order making over the papers etc., was clearly a sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr. 581 (Pat)

(2) Preliminary Enquiry.

27. Complainant must be examined.—A complaint against a public servant eg., the Chairman of a Municipality is to be treated as any other complaint, and the question whether the case is one that can be proceeded with, having regard to the terms of S. 197 Cr. P. C. should be decided after examining the complaint in accordance with law—3 C. N. 17.
28. Object of Examining the complaint.—The preliminary examination of the complainant is not such cognizance as is referred to in the section. It is often necessary to examine the complainant, before his complaint can be understood and the complaint must be understood before the sanction is given—[7 M. H. 182 (187)]

29. On re-

 30. Notice to accused before sanction unnecessary.—The Collector then enforced the sanction of the petitioner against his will by writing to the Police. The petitioner denied having sent the petitions bearing his name but went on to state how he had paid the bribe—Held that in the absence of a sanction from Government as required by S. 197 Cr. P. C. the enquiry by the District Magistrate, who was ordered to make the enquiry and report, was not judicial but merely departmental—19 B. 51.
 31. Preliminary enquiry before granting sanction not provided by the Code.—There is no provision in the Criminal Procedure Code, or the Indian Penal Code indicating how the Government or some officer empowered in that behalf by the Government, is to inform itself whether or not to grant sanction. In the absence of any provision of law authorizing the officer conducting such enquiry to hold a judicial enquiry, such enquiry is not a judicial enquiry and there is no authority in him to administer an oath, the enquiry being merely a departmental enquiry. Therefore, a person who gives false evidence in the course of such enquiry is not liable to be punished under S. 193 Cr. P. C.—23 M. 223.

32. Government acts in its executive capacity.—The Government in according or withholding sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C. for the prosecution of a public servant in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by him as a public servant acts purely in its executive capacity and the sanction is not a judicial or legal decision. 4 M. T. 25, 27 M. 54.

(3) Procedure.

33. Specification of the charge.—Under S. 197 Cr. P. C. the Government in granting sanction need not specify the offence with the same precision as is necessary in framing a charge. 111 N. 1062, 11 P. R. 181. But See 21 Cr. 584 (Part). So where a Collector sanctioned the prosecution of a Kulkarni and a Patel "for cheating or for such other offence with which it may be necessary to prosecute them in connection with obtaining money from ryots," held that the offences were sufficiently designated in the sanction, and the sanction was not invalid on account of vagueness.—[43 B. 117.]

34. [Note per contra.—A Sanction ought to be granted with reference to some specific offences but where the language used in it points clearly to a particular section of the Penal Code, and upon

35. No fresh sanction necessary for prosecution for abetment.—Where a sanction has been granted to prosecute a person for a substantive offence, no fresh sanction is necessary to prosecute him for abetting that offence, as the latter charge is founded on the same facts as those on which the first charge is founded.—30 C. 105 (104).

36. Power of selecting the charge cannot be delegated.—An authority empowered to grant a sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C., did not sanction the prosecution of the accused for any offence designated by itself, but merely delegated to another 101 Cr. P. C. 10 M. 103.

37. Want of Sanction is not a mere irregularity curable by S. 537 Cr. P. C. It is fatal to the prosecution. 42 P. R. 1854.

See however (4) Miscellaneous (68).

38. Sanction obtained after commencement of trial, is of no avail.—42 B. 172, 22 B. 112; 9 B. 294 (F. B.) 31 M. 80, 42 M. 83 (55); See 2 B. 481, 7 B. R. (C. C.) 61.

39. [Note.—Though proceedings taken by a Magistrate before receipt of the necessary sanction are illegal, he can take cognizance after the sanction. 10 B. R. 1073.]

V. JUDGE OR ANY PUBLIC SERVANT.

(1) Public Servant within S. 197 Cr. P. C.

40. Chairman of a Municipality.—is a public servant within the meaning of S. 197 Cr. P. C.—[3 C. N. 17]. He cannot be prosecuted without the sanction of the Government [1 Weir 243].

41. Village Magistrate.—A village Magistrate exercising jurisdiction, and trying an offender under Mad. Reg. XI. of 1816 is a Judge within the meaning of S. 197 Cr. P. C. and S. 19 I. P. C.—23 M. 540; 18 Cr. 37 (M).

42. Municipal Commissioner.—A Municipal Commissioner cannot be prosecuted for an offence committed by him in his capacity as Commissioner, except with the sanction of the Government.—14 P. R. 1830, 25 P. R. 1890, 17 P. R. 1902.

43. Member of a Committee of a notified area.—is not a public servant "not removable from his office without the sanction of the Local Government within the meaning of S. 197 Cr. P. C.—45 P. W. 1916.

(2) When sanction is necessary.

44. Village Magistrate preparing false record.—A village Magistrate who prepares a false record in a case pending before him, does not act in his private capacity but as a Judge, and if the making of that record amounts to an offence, sanction is necessary under S. 197 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr. 233 (M).

45. [Note Per Contra.—A Magistrate who fabricates a record in which he figures as Judge, cannot properly be said to be acting as a Judge when he does so.—32 M. 255]

46. Defamatory words used by a Judge.—If defamatory words are used by a Judge in the course of the trial of a suit, the words must be taken to have been uttered by him as a Judge, and not as a private individual, and no complaint can be entertained without sanction.—9 M. 439, Con 26 C. 852.

47. Vatandar Patil.—Where a Magistrate took cognizance of an offence committed by a Vatandar Patil, without the previous sanction required by S. 197 Cr. P. C. and began to record evidence on the 5th of April, but the sanction was not signed until the 12th, held that the proceedings were without jurisdiction and must be regarded as totally invalid.—42 B. 172. See 21 Cr. 594 (Pat) at p. 691.

48. General Rule.—The sanction of the Government is required for the prosecution of any Judge if a complaint is made against him as such.—[6 M. R. (1p) 21]. In the case of a Public Servant other than a Judge, sanction is necessary only when the public servant is "not removable from his office without the sanction of the Government of India or the Local Government"—[12 M. T. 351].

2. Meaning of "person aggrieved."—In cases of defamation, the words "person aggrieved" must be treated as equivalent with the expression "person injured," the object of the section apparently being to limit the right of complaint to the person who suffered injury.—1 Bur. S 617.
3. The object.—The section is clearly designed to prevent Magistrates from inquiring, of their own motion into cases connected with marriage unless the husband or other person authorised moves them to do so.—1 C. L. 523.

(2) Defamation.

"Persons aggrieved" in the case of a Hindu Lady.

4. General Rule.—"A Hindu lady living with her father her brother or her son is a member of his family, and her reputation is bound up with the reputation of the person in whose house and under whose charge she is living. If any imputation is made against her character, that would affect as much the relative with whom she is living as herself"—32 C 425 But See 25 B 151 (F. B.) 18 M 250 Rat 327
5. Husband.—A husband has a right to lodge a complaint about the defamation of his wife, as he is a person aggrieved by an imputation of unchastity to his wife with whom he is living—25 B 151 (F. B.) [Ranade J diss] 15 M J 224 14 M 379 20 P R 1882 See 3 S 15 Con Rat 327 (O J)
6. Brother.—Where imputations were against a Hindu widow living in her brother's house—held—having regard to the circumstances and conditions in which people live in that part, the brother was a person aggrieved within the meaning of S 198 Cr P C and it was competent to the Court to take cognizance of the offence upon his complaint—[32 C 425]
7. Father-in-law.—Where the complainant is the head of his family, his son a lunatic and his daughter-in-law had been living under his protection, and an allegation is made that she was taken away to the house of her father and subsequently married to another person, the offence, if true seriously affects his reputation and status in society and the father-in-law is a person aggrieved within the meaning of S. 198 Cr P C—3 C J 34 (41)
8. Son.—For the purpose of instituting a criminal proceeding under S 499 I P C a mother and son are not in the same position as husband and wife—(93) A N 207 Con 32 C 425.
9. Note.—A distinction seems to have been drawn between Criminal and Civil proceedings. In 18 M 250, it was held that the husband was not entitled to sue in tort for defamation of his wife. In 32 C. 1060, it has been held that a brother cannot sue for the slander of his sister unless the slander necessarily involves a slander upon the brother as well. The case reported in 32 C 425 was distinguished as turning upon the construction of S. 194 Cr. P. C.
10. When the slander is true.—Where the alleged defamatory statement is true as regards the complainant he is not a person aggrieved by the publication within the meaning of S 198 Cr P. C, because it may be false so far as other persons are concerned—(14) M. N. 351.

11. Municipal President cannot complain for defamation against Health Officer.—Where a newspaper published statements which were alleged to be defamatory of specified acts of negligence on the part of the Health Officer and his subordinates held, that the President of the Municipality was not a person aggrieved with in the meaning of S. 194 Cr. P. C, as it could not be said that by imputation against his subordinates his conduct and administration had been impugned—26 M. 13: Cf. 1 Bur S. 617
12. Witnesses.—A witness cannot be prosecuted for defamation in respect of statements made by him in a judicial proceeding—[17 B 127: 17 B 573; 2 M. 13: 11 M 477: 15 C 204 10 A. 425] or in answer to question by a Police Officer [16 M. 235 3 O C 80 (82)] Nor can he be sued in tort for damages [11 B L 321 (P C) 28 C 794] But if the statement is wholly irrelevant to the matter under enquiry and introduced by the witness maliciously and voluntarily he is not protected—[32 C 756]
13. When the Court may act without a formal Complaint.

Appellate Court.—An Appellate Court can under S 423 infra convert a conviction under S 182 I. P. C into one of defamation under S 500 I. P. C. notwithstanding that there was no complaint within the meaning of S 198 Cr P C—25 A 534

C.—24 P. R. 1884
- 15(d) A Criminal Court cannot avoid the strict provisions of this section by altering a charge under S. 501 I. P. C. to one under S. 500 I. P. C.—18 P. R. 1889
17. Death of complainant.—Where the complainant died before the trial—held—the charge was not maintainable—10

24. Person charged with bigamy cannot be convicted of adultery.—See 14 C. N. cclxv, see Note No 7 under S. 199 infra

141 10 P.R. 1883]. The formal assent of the husband to a charge of adultery added at the end of his deposition would not be a proper compliance with the requirements of the section. [24 W. R. 18]

3. Object of the Section.—S. 199 Cr. P. C. was designed to protect the rights of the husband; but that is not its sole aim. The rights of guardians are also entitled to protection. The object of the law is not so much to afford protection to the husband or guardian as to inflict punishment on those who interfere with the sacred relation of marriage. The restriction in S. 199 is not intended to afford immunity to the offender, but to prevent a person unconnected with the woman from giving publicity to a matter which neither the husband nor the guardian is willing to agitate. —17 Cr. 363 (M), 3 S. 15.

4. (a)

formally complains either orally or in writing to a Magistrate with a view to his taking action. "It does not follow that because a husband may wish to punish a person, who has committed rape on his wife, that is, who has had connection with her against her consent, he will desire to continue proceedings when it turns out that she has been a willing and consenting party to the act.—Per Straight J in 5 A. 233—36 A. 1 ('82) A. N. 165 ('12) U. B. 155]. The circumstance of the husband's appearing as a witness in the prosecution for an offence of rape cannot be regarded as amounting to the institution of a complaint for adultery [29 C. 415].

5. (b) Where a person was charged by the husband with kidnapping or with abduction and the Judge convicted the accused on the evidence merely of an offence under S. 498, held that the conviction was wrong as there are no specific complaint by the husband of an offence under S. 498 I.P.C.—27 M. 61.
6. (c) Where the husband is the complainant and brings his complaint under S. 366 1. P. C., a conviction under S. 498 I.P.C. may properly be had in the absence of complaint by the husband under S. 199 Cr. P. C., if the evidence be such as to justify a conviction for the minor offence, and yet insufficient for a conviction for the graver one.—20 C. 493; 1 W. R. 45 Con.—27 M. 61—17 C. P. 105 (106); 14 B. R. 141, 22 C. 1006.
7. (d) Where the husband lodged a complaint to the effect that his father-in-law had remarried his wife to the accused but the Magistrate acquitted the accused of the charge under S. 494 I.P.C. but convicted him for adultery. Held—the conviction was illegal as the husband had not complained that the accused had committed adultery with his wife.—[14 O. N. cclxxx]
8. (e) Where the husband preferred a charge under S. 350 but "upon a perusal of the Police papers, it appeared that the case was under S. 498 1. P. C." and the accused were convicted under S. 498 I.P.C.—held—that in the absence of any complaint under the latter section, the conviction was illegal.—2 P. R. 1918.

9. Complaint under S. 199 Cr. P. C. unnecessary when the charge is for house-trespass to commit adultery.—The complaint of the husband is unnecessary for proceedings in respect of the offence of house-trespass to commit adultery.—(65) 2 Weir 23 S. M. H. (ap) vi: 2 P. R. 1857 (F. B.); 19 (C. 881 (N); 16 C. P. 182 (183); See also 21 A. 5 10 A. 74; Con. ('86) A. N. 12; 5 M. H. (ap) 7.

10. The section explained.—So long as a wife is under the protection of her husband it is not open to any other person, whether he be a father or brother, to institute a complaint under S. 497 or S. 498 I. P. C. if the husband does not want that proceedings should be instituted. Where at the time of the offence, the wife was under the care of another person, the fact that the husband stands by, will not prevent the temporary guardian from preferring the complaint.—17 Cr. 363 (M); See 2 Weir 235; 31 B. 218, 4 R. 1888 32 P. R. 1910.

11. What does not amount to a complaint.—Where the husband presented a complaint follows: "The 2nd accused enticed away the 1st accused, the wife of the complainant. The second accused made away with jewels valued Rs. 2050 and 3 silver vessels. The 1st accused abetted the theft. So I charge the 1st accused under S. 498 and 379/109 and the 2nd accused under S. 379 I. P. C. Pray inquiry and justice but subsequently, there was a meeting between the husband and wife. The woman agreed to surrender the property and went away with the husband who said no further action in the matter was necessary. The matter was therefore dropped. The husband committed suicide the next day and his son filed a formal complaint charging the two accused under the sections mentioned above. Held that even assuming that the complaint filed by the husband was sufficient as a complaint under S. 199 Cr. P. C. of an offence under S. 498 I. P. C., a fresh complaint by the husband would be necessary after he had agreed to drop the proceedings and it was not open to other persons than the husband after the latter's death to revive the proceedings.—16 Cr. 466 (M).

12. Effect of the husband's death after institution of proceedings.—The law only requires that the prosecution on a charge of adultery should be instituted by the husband. Although it is desirable that such charge should be withdrawn by the prosecution on the death of the aggrieved party, it cannot be said that the death necessarily puts an end to the prosecution.—4 M. H. (ap) iv.

13. Minor husband.—A minor husband cannot be represented by another in a prosecution for adultery.—(71) 2 Weir 235; 1 S. 723. The Legislature has not provided for the protection of the lunatic, the paralytic or invalid husband and the word "absence" cannot be taken to include such cases. [3 S. 15]

14. Complaint under S. 497 is not sufficient for a charge under S. 498 and vice-versa.—A complaint of offences under S. 494 and 498 I. P. C. does not involve a complaint of an offence under S. 497 I. P. C. and the Magistrate has no jurisdiction under S. 193 Cr. P. C. to try the accused under Section 476. [East India Co. v. 14 C. N. 101. (1) A. N. 112]. A complaint under S. 476 I. P. C. cannot similarly give jurisdiction to the Magistrate to commit the accused under S. 48 I. P. C. [12 C. N. 101. 18 P. R. 1573].

15. Additional charge under S. 498 I. P. C. at the Sessions illegal.—The accused was committed to the Sessions on charges under Ss. 307, 308 I. P. C. At the conclusion of the prosecution evidence and after recording the evidence for the defence, the Sessions Judge added a charge under S. 498 I. P. C., viz., that the additional charge at that stage was prejudicial to the accused and must be quashed.—31 B. 216. See 14 B. R. 141.
16. Wife divorced previous to institution of proceedings.—Where the complainant had divorced his wife previous to making his complaint, an order of acquittal under S. 498 Cr. P. C. was upheld.—27 P. R. 1579. See Cr. R. 29 of 17-7-95.

[Note.—Husband who has deserted his wife.—may complain of adultery.—See 18 Cr. 321 (L. B. 2).

17. Case dismissed for want of proper complaint no bar to fresh proceedings.—The fact that the accused was acquitted in a trial under S. 498 I. P. C. on the technical ground that the complaint was filed by the brother of the husband alleging the latter's authority to do so, but there was in fact no such authority—cannot be pleaded in bar of a second trial on a fresh complaint by the husband.—31 A. 317.
18. Cases to be registered as private complaints.—The High Court of the N. W. P. has directed that cases under Ss. 497 and 498 I. P. C. ought not to be registered as Emperor's So and so; but only as private complainant v. So and so.—N. W. P. Gaz. 1879 p. 123.
19. Unwillingness of husband to prosecute.—The Court, ought to, in the absence of anything to prove collusion, order the accused to be discharged, if the husband withdraws from the prosecution on a charge of adultery.—5 B. H. (C. C.) 28. 5 B. H. (C. C.) 27.

[Note.—But a Magistrate cannot after committing the accused, discharge him on the representation of the prosecutor that he wished to withdraw from the prosecution.—[4 A. 130]

CHAPTER XVI.

OF COMPLAINTS TO MAGISTRATES.

200. Subject to the provisions of section 476, a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence on Examination of complainant complaint shall at once examine the complainant upon oath, and the substance of the examination shall be reduced to writing and shall be signed by the complainant, and also by the Magistrate.

Provided as follows:—

- (a) when the complaint is made in writing, nothing herein contained shall be deemed to require a Magistrate to examine the complainant before transferring the case under section 192;
- (b) where the Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate, such examination may be on oath or not as the Magistrate in each case thinks fit, and need not be reduced to writing; but the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, before the matter of the complaint is brought before him, require it to be reduced to writing;
- (c) when the case has been transferred under section 192 and the Magistrate so transferring it has already examined the complainant, the Magistrate to whom it is so transferred shall not be bound to re-examine the complainant.

Proposed amendment to the section.—After proviso (a) to section 200 of the said Code, the following proviso shall be inserted, namely:—

- (ia) when the complaint is made in writing and signed by a public servant acting or purporting to act in the execution of his official duties, a Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, and shall, when the complaint is made by a clerk under section 176, proceed with the inquiry into or trial of the case without examining the complainant on oath."

I OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

1. The object of the examination of the complaint before issue of process.—The examination of the complainant under S 200 Cr. P. C. is a very valuable safeguard that the Legislature has provided and must be scrupulously observed and insisted upon. Petitioners of complaint are not drafted by the complainants themselves and it is therefore necessary that before action is taken upon written complaints filed in Court, the complainants should be examined on oath—[20 Cr 247 (Pat)] The object of the provision is to prevent the issue of process, when the examination of the complaint would show that the complaint was clearly false, frivolous or vexatious and that further proceedings would tend merely to harass unnecessarily an accused person and waste the time of the Court [11 P R 1911 10 A J. 79. See Bomb. H. C. Cr. Cir. p. 14].
2. The Examination of the complainant is not mere matter of form.—The examination of the complaint is not mere form but an intelligent enquiry into the subject-matter of the complaint, carried far enough to enable the Magistrate to exercise his judgment as to whether there is or there is not sufficient ground for proceeding.—Wilkins 2. See ('10) U B 4—q 73
3. The Words "subject to provisions of S. 8. 476."—The express reference to S 476 (2) is to relieve the Magistrate who makes the order under S 476 (1) from the obligation of making an enquiry into the facts of the case. These words were introduced to give effect to the views expressed by Petheram C. J. and Straught J. in 7 A 571 (F.B.).
4. Object of proviso (a).—This proviso is intended to meet the decision in 4 N. P. 88-9 B. L. 146 (F B) and 8 B. L. 19: in which the omission of a District Magistrate to reduce to writing the examination of the complainant on a complaint directly preferred to him, before referring to a subordinate Magistrate for dis was held to be an illegality vitiating all the proceedings taken subsequently [See ('10) 4—q 73].

5. Presidency Magistrates.—A Presidency Magistrate is not bound to examine complainant before dismissing the complaint. S 203 Cr. P. C. [(11) M N. 356] But not excused from the necessity of placing record the necessary evidence of the complainant authority in cases where sanction to process is given to a person other than the complainant.—[39 C. 469 See ('90) A. N. 164]
6. Magistrate receiving the complaint bound to dispose of it himself.
 (a) A Magistrate who has taken cognizance of offence under S. 200 Cr. P. C. is entitled to be relieved (if relieved at all), of the case the person who ought to make final orders in the case cannot relieve himself of the responsibility shifting the burden on the District Magistrate 15 A. J. 612; 43 C 173. 10 C N. 1086 9 C 193 (201)
 (b) The Code does not permit a Magistrate to refer a complaint to another Magistrate for enquiry and report.—43 C 1
7. District Magistrate cannot direct submission of cases for orders.—Where Magistrate was authorised to receive petition of complaint and to examine complainants on oath, but as regards a particular class of cases, he was directed by the District Magistrate not to pass orders, but to submit them to District Magistrate himself, held, that such direction of the District Magistrate was illegal 10 C N. 1086
8. The term "Complaint" in S. 200 Cr. P. C.—The word 'complaint' means a complaint as defined by S. 4 (h) Cr. P. C.—30 C. 910 (F B)
 [Note.—For what is and what is not a complaint etc.—See the Notes under S. 4 (h) supra]
9. As to who may make the complaint etc.—See Notes under S. 4 (h) Supra

II. PROCEDURE.

- (1) Who can prefer a complaint.
 10. Complaint to be ordinarily filed personally by the complainant.—The word "at once" in S. 200 Cr. P. C. clearly indicates that ordinarily a complaint must be presented by a person. A complaint should never be accepted which is not signed by the complainant and is not preferred by a person duly authorised to prefer that specific complaint.—42 C 19.

11. Person holding general power of attorney.—A person holding a general power of

12. Complaint through Mukhtear.—A complaint under Ss. 404 and 409 I P. C. having been presented by the complainant's Mukhtear instead of by the complainant herself, who was not present in Court, held that the Magistrate was justified in dismissing the complaint, as he had no opportunity of examining the complainant.—Rat 625

13. Pardanashin Lady.—Where the complainant is a pardanashin lady, the Magistrate ought to follow the procedure laid down in S 503 Cr P C—42 C. 19. Con. 10 P. R. 1896.

14. Where the complainant is a responsible public official.—Where a complaint is preferred by a responsible public official, is reduced to writing and duly signed and authenticated by him, a Magistrate's failure to observe the strict requirements of S 200 Cr P C has been held to be an irregularity sufficiently covered by S 537 (a) Cr P. C.—A. G. 11 M. 443 63 P. R. 1901 11 P. R. 1911. 4 B. R. 609. 20 Cr. 247 (Pat.)

15. Procedure when the complainant has no personal knowledge.—A complaint which is otherwise proper, is not illegal because the person making it has no personal knowledge of the offence committed. [21 Cr. 346 (Pat.) Con. 11 C. N. 170] In such a case, the Court before issuing the summons should satisfy itself upon proper materials that a case has been made out for issuing summons [10 C. N. 1090.]

(2) Procedure on receipt of complaint.

16. Nature of the proceeding.—A Magistrate taking a complaint and issuing summons thereon, acts not ministerially but judicially—5 B. R. 29 2 B. 481.

17. Examination on the complainant.—The Court is bound to examine the complainant and receive evidence from him before disposing of a complaint.—O C 923 L 134 37 10

18. Case cannot be made over to police without examination.—It is incumbent on the Magistrate under S 200 Cr P C if he does not transfer the case under S 192, to at once examine the complainant. He cannot make over the case to the police—4 O C 127 30 C 923 16 C. N. 143. 18 A. 221. 10 A. 79. (11) M. N. 74

19. Whether attestation of written complaint by the complainant is sufficient.—It has been held that where the deposition in the shape of a complaint is made orally or in writing and is sworn to by the complainant, the requirements of S 200 Cr P C. are sufficiently satisfied, though the complainant has not been examined on oath.—9 A. 606. 6 B. R. 602. 4 B. R. 609. (11) M. N. 356. Cr. Rev. case 398 of 1908 (M); Con. 18 A. 221. 30 C. 923.

20. Effect of failure to examine the complainant.—There is a divergence of judicial opinion as to whether the failure to examine the complainant amounts to an illegality vitiating all of that examination is by law, to be reduced to writing and it is obvious that that writing must be and was intended to be distinct from the complaint.—18 A. 221.

21. Effect of failure to examine the complainant.—There is a divergence of judicial opinion as to whether the failure to examine the complainant amounts to an illegality vitiating all

(10) U. B. 4-q 73. 20 Cr. 413 (Pat.) 20 Cr. 553: (Pat.) 20 Cr. 742 (Pat.) 4. N. P. 88; 3 B. L. (Ap) 67; 8 B. L. (Ap) 19 16 W. 22. Mode of Examination.—The Allahabad High Court in 18 A. 221 has held that the substance of the examination of the complainant which is required by law to be reduced to writing must be distinct—from the complaint itself The substance is to be examined on oath, and the substance of the examination is to be reduced to writing It is not a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the section to merely call upon the complainant to swear to the complaint as it was filed and to sign it [18 A. 221]. The Bombay High Court has however laid down that where the complaint made in writing is sufficiently clear, it may frequently be a sufficient compliance with S 201, if the Magistrate reads it over to the complainant and he is asked to subscribe to it [6 B. R. 602—See Note No. 19 above] A Magistrate cannot refer the complaint to the Police and upon receipt of the police report, cross examine the complainant thereon, and then proceed to dismiss the complaint. [30 C 923. See Note No. 18 above]

23. Signature of the Complainant.—The omission to take the signature of the complainant vitiates the record and cannot be cured by S. 237 Cr P C [6 C. N. 810] Unless the complainant is examined on oath pursuant to his complaint and such examination reduced to writing and signed by him, the Magistrate cannot take cognizance of the complaint. [3 B. L. 67].

III. MAGISTRATE'S OBLIGATION TO TAKE COGNIZANCE.

(1) Magistrate bound to take cognizance.

- 24 The use of the term "may take cognizance of an offence" in S. 191 Cr. P. C.; does not make it optional with a Magistrate to hear a complaint but refers to the action of the Magistrate in taking cognizance of an offence in any one of the specified courses in which the facts constituting the offence may be brought to his notice. He is bound to examine the complainant, and can then either issue summons to the accused or order an enquiry under S. 202, or dismiss the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C.—13 C 334; 4 O C 127 (131). 8 W. R. 12; 2 P. R. 1912.

once examine the complainant. He cannot make over the case to the Police. [4 O C. 127; 12 B. 161 (11) M N 74] Even in a case in which the charge can in the first instance be laid before the Police, he is bound to examine the complainant if the complainant chooses to make a complaint [14 W. R. 36].

(2) Magistrate cannot decline jurisdiction.

25. (a) Where the complaint related to the theft of cocoanuts valued at 1a. Sp. (an offence cognizable by the Village Magistrate), the Magistrate cannot refuse summons because it was not laid before the Village Officer—7 M. H. (app) xxv.
26. (b) He cannot dismiss a complaint because the complainant is actuated by malicious feelings—Rat 549
27. (c) A complaint properly laid under the Indian Penal Code should be investigated, even if the case be one in which a civil action will be—10 W. R. 40.

28. (d) Magistrate cannot refuse to entertain a complaint, on the ground that by so doing, he would stir up old religious feuds—Rat 562.
29. Complainant entitled to process if complaint is true—A complainant is entitled to be examined on his complaint, and if his case is found to be true to have process against the accused. After having found to be true, the Magistrate cannot refuse judicial enquiry on the ground that there is no probability of conviction—29 C, 410.
30. Magistrate bound to hear complaint—A Magistrate is bound to hear a complaint on its being only presented to him. It is not open to him to refuse to take cognizance or to postpone its investigation sine die on the ground of a non-existent Civil proceeding—Rat 203.

Note.—But where a complaint is of a purely Civil nature and discloses no offence, the Magistrate may refuse to entertain it.—16 W. R. 58

31. Case made over by Civil Court.—Where a Civil Court makes over a case to a Magistrate to examine a to igns

32. Previous petition to District Magistrate by post.—alleging certain facts (amounting to offences) against certain persons, and asking for an enquiry to be made, and upon which, the District Magistrate has refused to interfere, is no bar to the jurisdiction of a Subordinate Magistrate to entertain a formal complaint, re the same matter in as much as the previous petition did not amount to a complaint—(99) A. N. 291.

IV. MAGISTRATE'S DISCRETION WITH REFERENCE TO COMPLAINT.

33. Magistrate not bound to adhere to sections I. P. C. mentioned in the complaint.—A Magistrate is not bound to adhere to any particular section of the law, which may be mentioned by a complainant in his petition of complaint, but may apply any section which he thinks is applicable to the case—12 W. R. 40

36. Petition disclosing no offence.—When a complaint only amounted to saying that because as between the father of the complaint and the accused, certain arrangements were made in consequence of which, certain moneys were received by the accused and that the accused declined to render accounts, held that the accused would not be guilty of the offence of Criminal Breach of Trust, unless it was alleged that the money had, as a matter of fact, been realised by the accused and was wrongfully appropriated to his own use—9 A. 660.
37. "Filing" a complaint.—An order directing the petition of complaint to be filed (i.e. shewn in the office) is illegal—16 W. R. 58
38. False complaints.—When Magistrates have a suspicion that a charge is false and vexatious, but the suspicion is not strong enough to justify the withholding of process, they may before directing issue of process, or ordering a local enquiry, warn the complainant of the risk he runs of being prosecuted for a false complaint—Oudh. Cr. Dig. p. 7.

39. Original complaint not to be returned.

—It is irregular to endorse and return to a party his petition of complaint alleging an offence. Such papers form part of records of a Magistrate's Court and should not be returned to the party. What the party is entitled to, is an authenticated copy of the Magistrate's order on a proper stamp.—2 Weir 237.

V. MISCELLANEOUS.

40. Summoning accused before examining the complainant.—Where a Magistrate summoned the accused before examining the complainant, it was held that he had misconceived his duty in supposing that it was not his business to examine the complainant—(61) W R 37 4 M R 162

49. Prosecution under S. 211 I. P. C.—Where the police making enquiries upon an information laid before them, reported a case as false, an application by the informant to the Magistrate, impugning the police report and asking the Magistrate to investigate the case and to summon his witnesses, is a complaint within the meaning of S 200 Cr P C The Magistrate is bound to examine the complainant on oath, and to give him an opportunity of substantiating the charge, before he can be prosecuted under S. 211 I P C—17 C 707 (F.B.) 33 C 1. 27 C. 821: 18 C N 95. 10 C N 773 5 C N 254 4 C N. 305 (99) A N 90 15 A 336: 22 B 596: 7 M. 292 (F.B.) 2 P R 1912 7 C. 51. Admissibility in evidence, of petition and oral statement of the complainant.—A petition of complaint may be admissible in evidence, as a dying declaration of the complainant under S 32 (1) Evidence Act [36 C 659]
52. Accused as a complainant, and the other in his examination subsequently as a witness, both the statements contradicting each other, is bad, if the statement recorded under S 200 Cr. P. C. does not bear the signature of the complainant as required by that section [6 C N 840].

201. (1) If the complaint has been made in writing to a Magistrate who is not competent to take cognizance of the case, he shall return the complaint for presentation to the proper Court with an endorsement to that effect.

(2) If the complaint has not been made in writing, such Magistrate shall direct the complainant to the proper Court.

Note.

1. Procedure when the Magistrate is not competent.—If on perusal of the petition of complaint, the Magistrate finds that he has no jurisdiction, he is not bound to examine the complainant, and indeed should not do so, but should return it, after making the endorsement, required by this section when the complaint is in writing—(62) Ag. N. 318; Candy 1853 p. 67

202. (1) The Chief Presidency Magistrate, or any other Presidency Magistrate whom the Local Government may from time to time authorize in this behalf, or any Magistrate of the first or second class, is not satisfied as to the truth of a complaint of an offence of which he is authorized to take cognizance, he may, when the complainant has been examined, record his reasons; and may then postpone the issue of process for compelling the attendance of the person complained against, and either inquire into the case himself or direct a previous local investigation to be made by any officer subordinate to such Magistrate, or by a police-officer, or by such other person, not being a Magistrate or police-officer, as he thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsehood of the complaint.

(2) If such investigation is made by some person not being a Magistrate or a police-officer, he shall exercise all the powers conferred by this Code on a officer in charge of a police-station, except that he shall not have power to arrest without warrant.

(3) This section applies also to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 202 of the said Code—

(1) For sub-sections (1) and (2), the following sub-sections shall be substituted, namely:—

"(1) Any Magistrate on receipt of a complaint of an offence of which he is authorised to take cognizance, or which has been transferred to him under section 192, may, if he thinks fit, for reasons to be recorded in writing, after examining the complainant where such examination is prescribed by the Code, postpone the issue of process for compelling the attendance of the person complained against, and either inquire into the case himself or, if he is a Magistrate of the third class, direct an inquiry or investigation to be made by any Magistrate subordinate to him, or by a police-officer, or by such other person as he thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsehood of the complaint.

(2) If an inquiry or investigation under this section is made by a person not being a Magistrate or a police officer, such person shall exercise all the powers conferred by this Code on an officer in charge of a police-station, except that he shall not have power to arrest without warrant."

(3) After sub-section (2), the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(4) Any Magistrate inquiring into a case under this section may, if he thinks fit, take evidence of witnesses on oath."

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

1. The object of the section.—The object of S 202 Cr. P. C. is to prevent the issue of process where there is some initial ground for doubting the truth of the complaint and where on a local investigation, there appears to be no evidence to support it—(10) U. B. 4—q 73: 21 Cr. 519 (Pat)

[Note.—If a District Magistrate to whom a complaint of an offence exclusively triable by a Court of Session is made, makes it over for enquiry to a second class Magistrate, before examining the complainant, such enquiry cannot be regarded as one made under the section—4 C. N. 305.]

2. Condition precedent to action.—A Magistrate can act under S. 202 Cr. P. C. and refer the case to the police for investigation only when for reasons stated by him, he distrusts the truth of the complaint—(2) A. N. 195; (84) A. N. 47; 20 M. 387; 27 C. 921.

[Note.—Unless a complaint is duly examined, an inquiry and report under S. 202 Cr. P. C. cannot be called for, and if made, are without jurisdiction and cannot form the basis of any further action—2 P. R. 1912; 13 C. 334; 27 C. 921; Rat 368; See 30 C. 923; 9 C. N. 199; 4 C. N. 305; 3 C. N. 17; 4 C. L. 134.]

3. Nature of the Enquiry.—It is doubtful whether an investigation under S. 202 Cr. P. C. can be regarded as a judicial proceeding and may be used for supporting an order under S. 476 C. P. C.—20 Cr. 815 (P); 39 M. 750 (F. B.); 21 M. J. 795; See 4 C. N. 306; 22 B. 936; 23 M. 223; 15 P. R. 1834; 32 A. 30; 7 A. J. 618. Co. 36 C. 72; 1 C. N. 118 (M)

4. Scope of the enquiry.—When it is found that there is evidence in support of the complainant's charge, the function of the officer, making the local investigation is fulfilled. Process should then be issued and the truth or falsity of the evidence should be determined in a regular manner. [(10) U. B.—4 q 73]. It is a misapplication of S. 202 Cr. P. C. to refer the complaint to a Magistrate for local enquiry as well as disposal—[18 C. N. 93].

5. The enquiry is no substitute for trial.—The police enquiry contemplated by S. 202 Cr. P. C. cannot take the place of such evidence as the complainant may desire to produce before an adjudication is made of his or her complaint. Such an enquiry can be ordered before evidence is recorded, to enable the Magistrate to determine how far the complaint was prima facie well-founded. When the Magistrate decides to record the evidence himself, he should complete the enquiry and determine upon the evidence adduced, how far the complaint is borne out.—22 O. C. 321.

[Note.—It is not competent to a Magistrate by virtue of this section to direct further enquiry to be made by the Police into a case in which the accused has been discharged under S. 233 infra.—2 Weir 239.]

6. Power of Magistrate holding enquiry strictly limited.—A Magistrate before whom a complaint is laid cannot direct another Magistrate to make a local enquiry and then dispose of the case in as much as the Cr. P. C. does not make any provision for such a course by a Magistrate to whom the case is made over for disposal.—[18 C. N. 95; 43 C. 173; 15 A. J. 612; 10 C. N. 164; The Magistrate who holds the local enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C. is not competent to dismiss the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C.—15 C. N. 95].

7. Scope of the local investigation.—The local investigation referred to in S. 202 Cr. P. C. is a restricted to the investigation of physical features only; it means an enquiry into the truth or falsity of the allegations made in the petition of complaint. The word "local" is used with a view to hold investigation in the locality for the convenience of the parties and their witnesses, and it may also necessitate in certain cases, an inspection of the place of occurrence. The word "investigation" is not defined in the Code. It must be taken to have been used in its ordinary sense.—19 Cr. 126 (Pat)

8. Magistrate's discretion not fettered by S. 202 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate has full power if he believes that there is truth in the complaint, to issue summons straightway. It is not necessary for him to call for an enquiry, beforehand, if he is satisfied that there are good grounds for proceeding against the person accused in the complaint.—21 Cr. 220 (Pat)

9. Enquiry not to be ordered as a matter of course.—When a man files a complaint and supports it by his oath, rendering himself liable to prosecution and imprisonment if it is false, he is entitled to be believed, unless there is some apparent reason for disbelieving him, and he is entitled to have the persons against whom he complains brought before the Court and tried.—17 C. N. 290 11 A. J. 754.

- 9a. When the complaint is not based on personal knowledge S. 202 Cr. P. C. should be followed See Note No. 15 under S. 200 supra.

10. When the police after full enquiry has reported the case to be true, the Magistrate to whom the report is made, has no jurisdiction either under S. 159 or S. 202 Cr. P. C. to make a further enquiry into the same matter.—(89) A. N. 87.

11. [Faint text, possibly: "When the police after full enquiry has reported the case to be true, the Magistrate to whom the report is made, has no jurisdiction either under S. 159 or S. 202 Cr. P. C. to make a further enquiry into the same matter."]
J. 754.

12. Application of the section.—S. 202 applies only if the Magistrate takes cognizance upon a complaint. There is no provision in the Code empowering the Magistrate to refer a case of which he has taken cognizance under S. 180 (c) for preliminary enquiry—7 S. 75. 24 P. R. 1888

13. When cognizance is taken upon police report.—A Magistrate cannot hold a judicial enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C. open taking cognizance of a non-cognizable case on a police report under S. 190 (b) Cr. P. C.—20 Cr. 413 (Pat)

14. Case sent up under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—S. 202 Cr. P. C. has no application to a case sent up under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr. 310 (N)

15. Petty cases.—It is an abuse of the power conferred by S. 202 Cr. P. C. to refer petty cases of assault and the like to the police for enquiry—19 P. R. 1594.

201. (1) If the complaint has been made in writing to a Magistrate who is not competent to take cognizance of the case, he shall return the complaint for presentation to the proper Court with an endorsement to that effect.

(2) If the complaint has not been made in writing, such Magistrate shall direct the complainant to the proper Court.

Note.

202. (1) The Chief Presidency Magistrate, or any other Presidency Magistrate whom the Local Government may from time to time authorize in this behalf, or any Magistrate of the first or second class, is not satisfied as to the truth of a complaint of an offence of which he is authorized to take cognizance, he may, when the complainant has been examined, record his reasons, and may then postpone the issue of process for compelling the attendance of the person complained against, and either inquire into the case himself or direct a previous local investigation to be made by any officer subordinate to such Magistrate, or by a police-officer, or by such other person, not being a Magistrate or police-officer, as he thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsehood of the complaint.

(2) If such investigation is made by some person not being a Magistrate or a police-officer, he shall exercise all the powers conferred by this Code on a officer in charge of a police-station, except that he shall not have power to arrest without warrant.

(3) This section applies also to the police in the towns of Calcutta and Bombay.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 202 of the said Code—

(1) For sub-sections (1) and (2), the following sub-sections shall be substituted, namely:—

"(1) Any Magistrate on receipt of a complaint of an offence of which he is authorised to take cognizance, or which has been transferred to him under section 192, may, if he thinks fit, for reasons to be recorded in writing, after examining the complainant where such examination is prescribed by the Code, postpone the issue of process for compelling the attendance of the person complained against, and either inquire into the case himself or, if he is a Magistrate other than a Magistrate of the third class, direct an inquiry or investigation to be made by any Magistrate subordinate to him, or by a police-officer, or by such other person as he thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining the truth or falsehood of the complaint.

(2) If an inquiry or investigation under this section is made by a person not being a Magistrate or a police officer, such person shall exercise all the powers conferred by this Code on an officer in charge of a police-station, except that he shall not have power to arrest without warrant."

"(1) After sub-section (2), the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(3) Any Magistrate inquiring into a case under this section may, if he thinks fit, take evidence of witnesses on oath."

1. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

1. The object of the section.—The object of S 202 Cr. P. C. is to prevent the issue of process where there is some initial ground for doubting the truth of the complaint and where on a local investigation, there appears to be no evidence to support it.—(10) U. B. 4—q 73: 21 Cr. 519 (Pat)

[Note.—If a District Magistrate to whom a complaint of an offence exclusively triable by a Court of Session is made, makes it over for enquiry to a second class Magistrate, before examining the complainant, such enquiry cannot be regarded as one made under the section.—4 C N 303]

2. Condition precedent to action.—A Magistrate can act under S 202 Cr P C and refer the case to the police for investigation only when for reasons stated by him, he distrusts the truth of the complaint.—(2) A N 195 (4) A N 47; 20 M 357 27 C 121

3. Nature of the enquiry.—It is doubtful whether an investigation under S 202 Cr P C can be regarded as a judicial proceeding and may be used for supporting an order under S 476 C. P. 6. Power of Magistrate holding enquiry strictly limited.—A Magistrate before whom a complaint is laid cannot direct another Magistrate to make a local enquiry and then dispose of the case in as much as the Cr P C does not make any provision for such a course by a Magistrate to whom the case is made over for disposal.—(18 C. N. 95. 43 C 173. 15 A. J. 612; 10 C. N. 164. The Magistrate who holds the local enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C. is not competent to dismiss the complaint under S 203 Cr. P. C.—18 O N. 93].

7. Scope of the local investigation.—The local investigation referred to in S 202 Cr. P. C. is not restricted to the investigation of physical features only, it means an enquiry into the truth or falsity of the allegations made in the petition of complaint. The word "local" is used with a view to hold investigation in the locality for the convenience of the parties and their witnesses, and it may also necessitate in certain cases, an inspection of the place of occurrence. 11. Section does not contemplate a second

12. Application of the section.—S. 202 applies only if the Magistrate takes cognizance upon a complaint. There is no provision in the Code empowering the Magistrate to refer a case of which he has taken cognizance under S. 180 (c) for preliminary enquiry.—7 S 75; 24 P. R. 1689.

13. Enquiry taken upon police

14. Case sent up under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—S 202 Cr. P. C. has no application to a case sent up under S 476 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr 310 (N).

15. Petty cases.—It is an abuse of the power conferred by S. 202 Cr. P. C. to refer petty cases of assault and the like to the police for enquiry.—19 P. R. 1594

16. After close of evidence.—Action after the close of the prosecution evidence, is not contemplated by S. 202 Cr. P. C.—(00) A. N. 189; 9 M. 282
17. After issue of process.—Reference under S. 202 Cr. P. C. after evidence had been taken for the complainant and process issued, is illegal 9 M. 282 ('96) A. N. 140
18. After accused is brought under arrest.—The previous enquiry provided for by S. 146 (=S. 202) before a complaint to taken up, ought not to be made after the accused has been brought before the court under a warrant.—21 W. R. 44; 9 M. 282. 6 S. 83
19. Departmental enquiry no substitute for. enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C.

(a) A previous departmental enquiry exonerating the accused from the accusation which formed the subject of complaint is not a sufficient substitute for the personal enquiry or the local investigation contemplated by S. 202 Cr. P. C.—33 P. R. 1887

(b) Where the action of the Magistrate is not taken under S. 202 Cr. P. C. but was apparently executive action in the form of a departmental enquiry which was continued by a further enquiry made under para 353 of the Police Regulations, held there was no judicial proceedings before the Magistrate and S. 476 Cr. P. C. had no application.—38 A. 32.

20. Order to show cause is not in effect an order under S. 202 Cr. P. C.—An order passed by a Magistrate calling upon a person to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under S. 211 Cr. P. C. is neither in form nor in effect, an order under S. 202 Cr. P. C. Such an order is not one under any provision of the Criminal Procedure Code.

21. Magistrate cannot call for a report from the accused.—See Note no 46 under S. 200 supra

22. Magistrate cannot base his order on the result of a previous enquiry.—The District Magistrate, on receiving a complaint, cannot call for and consider the papers regarding a previous petition for enquiry and the results of the local enquiry in pursuance thereof. The

23. Power to examine witnesses at the enquiry.—Under S. 202 Cr. P. C. the evidence 24.

25. Meaning of officer 'subordinate' to that Magistrate.—S. 202 Cr. P. C. does not apparently contemplate the subordination of a Magistrate of the first class to the District Magistrate. They are both Magistrates of the first class, and it would seem that the District Magistrate as a Magistrate of the first class, is not competent to direct another Magistrate of the first class, to make enquiry under that section P. R. 1912]. A Deputy Magistrate in charge of the District Magistrate's office, at headquarters, has no power as such, after taking cognizance of the complaint and examining the complainant on oath, to send the case under S. Cr. P. C. for local investigation by the Substantial Officer, to whom he is by law subordinate to dismiss the complaint on the report investigation by the latter.—[16 C. N. 853]

(2) Procedure.

26. Magistrates duty on postponing process.—If a Magistrate takes it upon himself to postpone the issue of process for compelling the attendance of the person complained against for any purpose at all, he is required to enquire into the case himself or to direct a local investigation. The fact that a local investigation has already been made, does not affect the proceedings necessary under S. 202 Cr. P. C., once process has been postponed.—4 Pat. W. 1
27. Magistrate bound to record reasons Magistrate if he distrusts the statement of complainant, must record reasons before taking action under S. 202 Cr. P. C.—21 C. N. 127 C. 141; 40 C. 111. 27 C. 921. (81) A. N. ('02) A. N. 195. 11 A. J. 754; 15 A. J. 64 Pat. W. 807; 6 S. 83.

[Note.—But failure to do so is at most an irregularity and unless it occasions a failure of justice is not a ground for setting aside his order.—M. 546. 2 Weir 244; 10 M. T. 120]

28. Preliminary steps before action under S. 202. P. C.—The Magistrate is bound to examine the complainant. He can then issue summons or order enquiry under S. 202 or dismiss the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C.—13 C. 27 O. 921

29. Right of the complainant to be examined.—A complainant is entitled to be examined on his complaint, and if his case is found to be true to have process issued against the accused and for the attendance of his witnesses.—2410; 16 W. R. 58; Rat 954.

30. Referring complainant to the police.—It is not a proper course for a Magistrate to refer a complaint is made before him of an offence of which he has taken cognizance to refer the complainant to a police officer. He is bound, in the circumstances giving jurisdiction, to receive the complaint and deal with it according to law. A different course would foster anarchy and defeat the purposes of the law, which is to give to the persons, who have been injured, an access to justice independently of the police. 12 B. 161; See Cr. R. 17 of '88.

31. Magistrate bound to take prompt action.—It is the highest degree improper for a Magistrate to put the complaint into his hatchery box and to keep it there without any orders for months—15 Cr. 271 (A).

32. Procedure when the person complained against is a police officer.—Whenever such a course is possible, upon a complaint being made against a Police officer of the rank of a Sub-Inspector of Police or of a higher rank charging him with having committed a cognizable offence, the Magistrate should hold an immediate local enquiry himself or direct that a local enquiry be made by a Magistrate of the first class and the Magistrate should proceed to the spot without delay. It is very improper to refer such a complaint to a superior Police officer for enquiry [20 Cr. 396 (Pat.), 22 O. C. 321, 21 Cr. 416 (A), 21 Cr. 649 (A), 20 M. 387, O. C. N. 199, 4 C. N. exxi., (101) A. N. 189]. In dealing with a complaint against a police officer, a Magistrate does not exercise a proper discretion in dismissing it under S. 203 Cr. P. C. on the mere report of a local investigation by a superior officer of the police. He should himself hear the witnesses on whom the complaint relies to establish the truth of the complaint—14 C. 141, 3 C. N. 17 (A), A. N. 47].

33. Complaint against subordinate officers.—S. 202 Cr. P. C. does not contemplate that any report can be called from the accused, if the accused happens to be an officer subordinate to the Magistrate. A dismissal of a complaint on perusal of such a report is irregular and the order of the Magistrate refusing to entertain the complaint must be set aside—14 C. 141, 13 B. 600, Rat 954.

34. Colling on the accused to show cause.—A Magistrate having jurisdiction to ascertain the truth of a complaint, may, before issuing the process under S. 202 take any preliminary steps for finding out whether the complaint is true or not. He may call upon the accused to show cause why a process should not issue against him. Accused may appear or not in obedience to this, whereas under a process issued under S. 202, the accused is bound to appear—6 B. R. 91. See 28 A. 421.

35. Magistrate holding enquiry need not hold a preliminary enquiry.—O need not hold a preliminary enquiry. It is the entire disposal of the case by the Magistrate.

38. Powers of the investigating officer.—There is nothing in S. 202 Cr. P. C. to prevent an investigating officer from making a full enquiry, by obtaining information from the complainant, and his witnesses, and the defendant and his witnesses if any—33 C. 1282; Rat 669; But See 11 C. N. 170.

37. Procedure after receiving the report.—After receiving the result of the local investigation directed under S. 202 Cr. P. C. the Magistrate is not bound to examine any witness or to hold any enquiry before he dismisses the complaint [19 Cr. 126 (Pat)]. A dismissal of complaint after hearing the complainant and after considering the results of an investigation ordered under S. 202 Cr. P. C. amounts to a legal determination of the complaint [6 C. N. 295. See 11 A. J. 754]. When a complaint is dismissed, upon the report of the investigating officer without taking the complainant's evidence, it is improper to direct the prosecution of the complainant under S. 221 I. P. C. [21 Cr. 416 (A)].

38. Magistrate cannot defer orders in order to make private enquiry.—After the examination of a complainant the Magistrate should either dismiss the complainant at once or elect to hold a preliminary enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C.

39. Reference to an interested person.—Where a complaint being made against certain servants of a factory the subdivisional Magistrate referred the complaint to the Manager of the Factory for report on the circumstances of the petition, held it was highly objectionable to ask an interested party to make a report in judicial proceedings—19 C. N. 127.

40. Reference may be made to any subordinate.—The inquiry contemplated by this section may be made by any officer subordinate to the Magistrate even though he be clerk—36 C. 72.

40a. When complainant objects to the officer selected.—If the complainant protests against the investigation made by the officer selected to make the enquiry as provided by S. 202 Cr. P. C., it is better that process should issue compelling the attendance of the person complained against and that evidence adduced by the complainant be heard in his presence—11 A. J. 751.

41. Interference by District Magistrate.—A District Magistrate has no jurisdiction to order an independent enquiry under this section into a case in which a subordinate Magistrate has issued process [4 P. R. 1908; 27 C. 798. See also 30 C. 449; 27 C. 979; 4 C. N. 242].

(3) Right of audience at the investigation.

42. Right of audience at the investigation.—At 150 Cr. it to be But See

There is no law, no rule restricting a pleader from appearing for a complainant in a preliminary enquiry held by a Magistrate under S. 202 Cr. P. C. 1 S. 128.

(3) Procedure on receipt of Police charge-sheet.

11. A police report, under S 117 (1872)=S 157 would give jurisdiction to a Magistrate to enter upon an enquiry. But the Magistrate is not bound to enter upon an enquiry in all cases. He may determine, as he thinks expedient either to take no further steps, or entertain the complaint under S 190 (b) Cr P C [2 Weir 119]. Where a complaint is made by a police charge sheet, it is not necessary to examine the complainant before dismissing a complaint, as a police report is expressly excluded from the definition of a complaint in S. 1 (h) Cr P C. [2 Weir 216]

(4) The Magistrate who receives the complaint must deal with it himself.

12. The Magistrate who receives the complaint must deal with it himself under S 203 and 204 Cr P C and cannot send it to the District Magistrate for order. The Magistrate who has power to receive the complaint, has power to deal with it finally and it is his duty to do so. —10 C N 1086 9 C N 109 6 C N 813.
13. A District Magistrate cannot dismiss a complaint pending before a subordinate Magistrate.—A District Magistrate is not competent to remove a case from the file of a subordinate Magistrate to his own file, after the complaint has been made and warrant issued by the latter upon the footing of the complaint, and then suspend the warrant and dismiss the complaint. He is bound to proceed with the case from the stage at which it was, when he removed it.—10 B L (ap) 26 3 C N 490 See 30 C 419. 27 C 979, 27 C 786 4 C N 212. 12 W. R 53

[Note.—But if the Magistrate is of opinion, after perusing the record, that there was no case of a criminal character made out against the accused, he is not only competent but is bound to discharge the accused.—6 B L (ap) 6]

14. Magistrate to whom the case is transferred, cannot dismiss summarily.—A Magistrate to whom the case is transferred, cannot dismiss the complaint summarily, unless he has satisfied himself, by examining the complainant that there is no sufficient ground to proceed.—3 C N 1086 See 30 C 923, 9 C N 199; 3 C N 17.

15. The Magistrate who holds a local enquiry.—Under S 202 Cr P C is not competent to dismiss the complaint under S 203 Cr P C. 18 C N 95.

(5) Application of the section.

S 203, Cr P C applies only to cases falling within Ch. XVI, where there has been no issue of process. Where the accused has been summoned to answer a charge, there is a proceeding within the meaning of Ch. XVII, and the complaint cannot be dismissed under S 203 Cr P C.—Rat 544; 11 A. J 451.

16. Process must be strictly followed.—Having examined the complainant the Magistrate must either (a) issue summons or (b) order enquiry under S 202 Cr. P. C.; or (c) dismiss the complaint under this section.—13 C. 334. 16 C. N. 113. 12 B 161.

(6) Magistrate cannot dismiss complaint on information supplied by the accused.

17. After the examination of the complainant, the Magistrate should either dismiss the complaint at once, or elect to hold enquiry under S 202 Cr P. C. before issuing process, where the Magistrate examined the complainant on the 24th April, and without dismissing the complaint then and there, adjourned the case to the 26th May, and then on that date, after making certain enquiries from the solicitor of the accused, and looking into papers which had been filed by the defence before the Police, dismissed the complaint, held that the procedure adopted by the Magistrate was wholly irregular, and that having virtually elected to hold an inquiry under S 202 Cr P C, he should not have dismissed the complaint without giving an opportunity to the complainant to adduce evidence in support of his case.—15 C N 143 Rat 365; 11 A. J. 151 21 M J 785 See 20 M. 358.

13. Where the complainant is disbelieved.—Where the Magistrate disbelieves the story of the complainant, the latter is not entitled to have all his witnesses examined by the Magistrate to whom the complaint was made.—14 C. 707 (F. B.) 21 C 921 6 C N. 295

(7) Magistrate is bound to record reasons for dismissal.

19. A Magistrate is bound to find on examining the complainant, that there is no sufficient ground for complaint, before he can dismiss the complaint.—40 C 41 27 C. 126 14 C 141; 11 C. N. cccviii. 21 M. J. 192

[Note.—Under S. 203 Cr. P. C. the Magistrate must record his reasons for the dismissal of a complaint, and the reasons must appear in the order itself. An order based upon police report, is sufficient if the police report forms part of the order.—[7 M. T. 175]

(8) What amounts to a dismissal under S. 203 Cr. P. C.

21. Refusal to issue process on a supplementary complaint.—On a complaint made against certain persons, the Magistrate proceeded against only one of them, and convicted him. The complainant subsequently appeared before the Magistrate, and asked for process against the remaining accused. This was refused, held that the order refusing process, was, in all intents and purposes, an order under S 203 Cr P C.—24 C 457. See 12 C. N. 69; 20 Cr. 837 (Cal)

22. Order in the following terms "enter mistake of law."—A complaint was made before the Deputy Magistrate of S. on the 21st November 1911, the Deputy Magistrate passed the following order on the petition: Sub-Inspector Chaudhary to inquire and report under S. 496 I. P. C. by the 1st January. On the 28th November 1911, apparently after considering the police officer's report, the Deputy Magistrate passed the following order: "enter mistake of law. Ss 496 I. P. C. Held that the order must be regarded as an order dismissing the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C. 17 C. N. 451. S. C. N. 493. 20 C. 157.
- (9) Order cannot be made after record of prosecution evidence.
23. A Magistrate cannot after having heard the evidence for the prosecution pass an order dismissing the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C. though he could have made an order of discharge of the accused.—11 A. J. 451.
- (10) Proceedings ultra vires.
24. Direction by District Magistrate to sub- mit particular class of cases for orders.—A direction by the District Magistrate that as regards a particular class of cases, subordinate Magistrates taking cognizance of them are not to pass orders under S. 203 Cr. P. C. but to submit them to him is illegal.—10 C. N. 1046.

25. Case sent up after enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C. to another Magistrate.—When a Magistrate sends a case to the police under S. 202 Cr. P. C. for investigation and report, the police officer to whom the case is sent, acts wrongly in sending the papers after investigation to another Magistrate and applying to him for a Kharri ul-maqana order when the case is pending in the Court of the Magistrate who referred it to the police.—53 P. L. 1018.
26. Order made in the Magistrate's private room.—It is improper for a Magistrate to dismiss a complaint which sitting in his private room and without giving the complainant or his pleader an opportunity of being heard.—10 C. N. 1040.

III. WHAT ARE NOT SUFFICIENT GROUNDS FOR DISMISSAL OF COMPLAINT.

27. General principle—the question of motive.—In exercising his discretionary power of summary dismissal of the complaint the Magistrate, should not allow himself to be influenced by considerations altogether apart from the facts adduced by the complainant in support of the charge, nor by a consideration of the motive by which the complainant is actuated the expression "sufficient ground" in S. 203 points exclusively to the facts, which the complainant brings to the knowledge of the Magistrate and to their establishing a prima facie trustworthy case against the accused.—13 B. 590 (F.B.). 25 M. J. 510. Rat 549.
28. Ultior considerations e.g. prospect of stirring up religious feelings.—It is not competent to a Magistrate to refuse to take up a complaint or dismiss it summarily on the ground that if the complaint was entertained, it would tend to stir up old religious feuds and bring numerous other complaints.—Rat 562.
29. Complainant a tool in the hands of others.—A complaint should not be dismissed on the grounds, (1) that the Magistrate believed the complainant to be used by the complainant.
30. Offence committed long ago.—A complaint cannot be dismissed on the ground that the complainant was actuated by malicious feelings against the accused, or that the offence was committed six years ago.—Rat 549.
31. Want of personal knowledge.—A complaint should not be dismissed on the ground that the complainant had no personal knowledge of the circumstances alleged by him.—Rat 649. Rat 70.

32. No chance of conviction.—A Magistrate acts without jurisdiction in dismissing a complaint of an offence under S. 302 I. P. C. on the ground that "the case was one in which no jury would convict the person complained against"—23 C. N. 392.

33. Complaint by low-caste man.—The fact that the complainant is of low-caste and the charge is of 8, round for W. R. 35.
34. Complaint by low-caste man.—The fact that the complainant is of low-caste and the charge is of 8, round for W. R. 35.
35. Second or third publication of libellous matter.—The Indian Penal Code makes no exception in favour of a second or third publication.

cannot dismiss a complaint on the ground that the libellous matter complained of is a mere republication.—12 B. 167.

36. Denial by the person complained against.—When a complaint was filed regarding the conduct of a government officer the Magistrate called for a report from the officer concerned and feeling himself satisfied with it, rejected the complaint, held that the action of the magistrate calling for the report was improper.—Rat 154; 14 C. 141; 3 C. N. 17; 16 W. R. 95; 20 M. 347; 10 M. T. 93; 11 A. 63; 21 Cr. 621 (Pat.)

37. Absence of sanction.—A Magistrate may refuse to entertain a complaint which has been filed without the necessary sanction under S 193 but he cannot dismiss it—24 M 337
38. Death of the complainant.—A criminal case does not abate on the death of the complainant and a Magistrate cannot dismiss the case on that ground—16 Cr 713 (M)
39. Adverse report by the police.—A Magistrate without examining the complainant passed an order directing that a copy of the petition of complaint should be sent to the police station calling for a report of the matter and on receipt of the report dismissed the complaint under S 203. Held that the Magistrate had not complied with the provisions of S 202 Cr P. C. and ought not merely on the report he had received, to have dismissed the complaint under S. 203 Cr P. C.—94 B.S.

IV. GROUNDS OF WHICH A PETITION MAY BE DISMISSED.

40. Materials on which the order of dismissal may be based.—The reasons for dismissing a complaint should be based on inferences of facts arising from or disclosed by (1) the complainant, (2) the examination of the complainant, (3) the investigation if any, made under the powers conferred by S. 202 Cr. P. C. Anything outside these three sources is extra-judicial and must be discarded—9 B R 742.
41. The three cases in which a complaint can be dismissed.—A Magistrate can dismiss the complaint only in three cases; (1) if he, upon the statement of the complainant, reduced to writing under S 200, finds no offence has been committed, (2) if he distrusts the truth of the statement made by the complainant, and (3) if after further enquiry he holds there is not sufficient ground for proceeding—13 B. 600, 9 B 742 27 C 921 14 C 141
42. The result of police investigation.—The dismissal of a complaint after considering the result of a police investigation directed by a Magistrate under S 202 is authorized by S. 203 G B R 662.
43. Delay in instituting complaint after obtaining sanction.—A Magistrate has power to dismiss a complaint on the ground that the complainant has taken no steps to prosecute for 3 months after obtaining sanction—6 M H (app) 15
44. Complainant not personally present in Court.—Where a complaint under No 408 and 109 I. P. C was presented by the complainant's mukhtar instead of the complainant who was not present in Court, held that the Magistrate was justified in dismissing the complaint as he had no opportunity as required by S 200 to examine the complainant.—[at 625]

45. Complaint based upon privileged evidence.—Where a complaint is based upon some official communication whether oral or in writing, falling within the scope of S. 123, 124 or 125 of the Evidence Act, and there is no likelihood of proving the communication by primary and direct evidence, the Magistrate is fully justified in dismissing the complaint under 203 Cr P C—4 P. W. 1910.
46. That the offender is unknown.—Where the complaint discloses a cognizable offence against an unknown offender, the Magistrate must record under this section that there are in his judgment no sufficient grounds for proceeding. It will also be open to him to communicate with the police regarding the information supplied to him, or to leave it to the complainant either to apply to the police or take such other measures as he thinks proper for discovering the offender—Pun. Rec. Co.—No. VIII. date 27-6-84.
47. If the complainant does not take out summons.—A complainant, by omitting to take out a summons, cannot keep a case hanging over a man for an indefinite period. The summons is merely a means of procuring attendance, but if the accused, appears of his own accord, without a summons, he is entitled to require that the complaint shall either be proceeded with or dismissed.—26 B 552.
48. Absence of the complainant.—Where a Magistrate called upon the complainant to produce proof ex parte to justify the issue of process, and upon default, dismissed the charge, the High Court declined to say that as a matter of law, the Magistrate had acted illegally in dismissing the case—17 W R 3.
49. That the case is one which should be a Civil Court.—see (VI) Cases of a Civil Nature (67 62) [infra].

V. SECOND COMPLAINT ON THE SAME FACTS.

50. Power to revive complaint.—A Magistrate can revive, rather than re-arrest a complaint that has been dismissed under S. 203 or 204 Cr. P. C., or in which the accused has been discharged, under S 273 by himself or by a Court of coordinate jurisdiction, without an order under Ss. 137 or 433, setting aside the order of dismissal or discharge.—29 M 126 (F. 51. Note.—Unless there are special reasons a Magistrate might not entertain a complaint for the second time [10 P. R. 1911 (P. B.)]. The prior discharge of the accused under S. 219 Cr. P. C. does not bar the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to entertain a second complaint on the same facts. [24 M. 710 88, 106; see, (79) A. N. 60, 26 A. 73. But where the complaint has been dismissed after hearing the complainant and his witnesses a second complaint will not be entertained. 24 W. R. 74].
52. Dismissal on technical grounds. 8 Bitter P. C. refers to the procedure of a Magistrate who has taken cognizance of a case and S. 105 declares a Magistrate from taking cognizance of certain offences unless sanction is obtained. Where therefore a complaint is dismissed for want of sanction, a second complaint after the sanction is obtained, may be entertained. 24 M. 317 29 A. 7; see, (70) A. N. 67.
53. Where the District Magistrate has refused to order further inquiry.—There is nothing illegal in or void of a Deputy Magistrate receiving a complaint which he had dismissed under S. 203 Cr. P. C. after the District Magistrate has on application made to him, declined under S. 437 Cr. P. C. to order further inquiry into the complaint.—36 C. 415 8 W. R. 6. But see 11 P. W. 1910.

54. Second complaint on same facts by another person.—When a complaint by a woman charging the accused with wrongfully taking away her daughter was dismissed, a second complaint alleging the facts but suggesting a different offence by the first husband should be entertained. 29 A. 7 (79) A. N. 67.
55. Where a part of the complaint has been reported to be false.—The complaint to the police was for a non-cognizable as well as a cognizable offence, and the police enquired into the latter charge only and reported it to be false. The Magistrate thereupon directed the police officer to strike off the offence complained of from the list of reported offences. Held that under the circumstances, there was no bar to the complaint, so far as it related to the non cognizable offence being taken up and proceeded with, upon an application by the complainant.—5 B. 65; see, 21 C. N. 575.
56. Presidency Magistrates.—A Presidency magistrate cannot entertain a case which he C. 652.

VI. CASES OF A CIVIL NATURE.

57. General Principle.—Every discouragement should be given to the habit of rushing into the Criminal Court, where a Civil dispute arises—[33 P. L. 1913]. If a Magistrate is of opinion, after perusing the record, that there was no case of criminal character made out against the accused, he is not only competent but is bound to discharge the accused. [10 B. L. (app) 10]
58. Process cannot be refused because Civil Suit would be more appropriate.—If a complaint is duly made before a Magistrate, and the act imputed appears to amount to an offence, the Magistrate is bound to take that a Civil Suit and appropriate W. R. 10:
59. Where the question relates to Civil rights.—Where the question is one of civil rights, between the landlord and his tenant, it would be better to leave such a matter as this to be settled by the Revenue Court than that it should be taken up by a Criminal Court. 17 Cr. 406 (31).
60. Complaint relating to excommunication

by ecclesiastical authority.—Where the complaint was about threat of an illegal sentence of excommunication by the ecclesiastical authorities, the High Court held that the proper course for the Magistrate was to postpone the trial till the complainant had proved in a Civil Court the incompetency of the ecclesiastical authority to exercise the powers it had assumed.—8 M. 140.

61. Pendency of Civil Proceeding.—Where a Magistrate refused to enter upon a criminal prosecution until after the termination of the Civil proceeding, pending at the time, and connected with the criminal charge, the High Court refused to interfere.—

62. " " " "

dismisses a complaint (e.g., one of them) after making proper enquiries and having satisfied himself the case was one which ought to be tried by a Civil Court [11 W. R. 54, 9 W. R. 21]. But if the Magistrate exercises his discretion improperly and dismisses a complaint of cognizable offences on the ground that "the case was completely for the Civil Court" without assigning any satisfactory reasons for his opinion, the High Court will interfere [29 W. R. 60].

VII. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Disposal of Property (subject-matter of complaint.)

63. S. 517 Cr. P. C. applies only, when an enquiry or trial in a Criminal Court is concluded. Where a complaint is dismissed under S. 203 Cr. P. C.

it cannot be said that there was any inquiry or trial in the Magistrate's Court. Where, a complaint is dismissed under S. 203 Cr. P. C. and there are grounds for believing that certain property was used by the complainant for fabricating false evidence against the accused, the Court has jurisdiction to pass an order directing the forfeiture of such property. In such a case, even if the order purports to have been made under S 517, it should be held to be an order under S. 523 Cr P C.—24 M. J. 1; See 9 M. 418.

(2) Compensation for false complaint.

64. When a Magistrate dismisses a complaint without issuing process for the attendance of the person complained against, an order for the payment of compensation to the accused is not valid — 29 A. 137 3 P R 1906 14 P. R 1897

(3) Prosecution for false charge.

65. Final determination of complaint, condition precedent.—The original complaint must first be disposed of, i.e. dismissed or otherwise judicially determined, before proceedings under S 211 P C can be taken against the complainant — 3 C N 758, 33 C 1. 4 O J 58. See 40 C 41
66. Complaint must have opportunity of substantiating his charge.—Before a person can be prosecuted for instituting a false complaint, an opportunity must be given to him to substantiate the charge — 16 W R 67 16 W R 37 13 W R 37 4 C L 534 2 C L 389. See 10 C N 773 27 C 921

67. What is giving opportunity.—Although a person should not be prosecuted under S 211 P C, until he has had the opportunity of establishing the truth of his complaint, yet, so long as he has the opportunity which the Code gives him, and the dismissal of the complaint is only after hearing and taking such steps as are provided by the Code, it cannot be said that he has not been given an opportunity of establishing the truth of his complaint [6 C N 245 20 Cr 389 (Pat)] A Magistrate is competent to

68. Prosecution on police report.—When a complaint to a Magistrate is sent to the Police, and reported by the latter to be false, and the Magistrate dismisses the complaint on the basis of the report, he ought not to sanction a prosecution of the complainant without giving him an opportunity to substantiate before him, the charge contained in the petition of complaint — 6 C 496. 7 C 87. 14 C 707 (F.B.); 5 A 36 8 A 25. 10 M 232 (F.B.); See however 7 C. 208; 7 M 202 Rat 524. 22 B 596.

CHAPTER XVII.

OF THE COMMENCEMENT OF PROCEEDINGS BEFORE MAGISTRATES

204. (1) If in the opinion of a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence there is sufficient

Issue of process

ground for proceeding, and the case appears to be one in which according to the fourth column of the second schedule, a summons should issue in the first instance, he shall issue his summons for the attendance of the accused. If the case appears to be one in which, according to that column a warrant should issue in the first instance, he may issue a warrant, or if he thinks fit, a summons, for causing the accused to be brought or to appear at a certain time before such Magistrate or (if he has no jurisdiction himself) some other Magistrate having jurisdiction

- (2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the provisions of section 90.

(3) When by any law for the time being in force any process-fees or other fees are payable, no process shall be issued until the fees are paid, and if such fees are not paid within a reasonable time, the Magistrate may dismiss the complaint.

Notes.

(1) Preliminary.

1. Meaning of "commencement of proceedings".—S 201 Cr. P C applies only to cases falling with Ch XVI where there has been no issue of process. Where the accused has been summoned to answer a charge, there is a commencement of proceeding within the meaning of Ch XVII, and the complaint cannot be dismissed under S 203—Rat 544.

2. Proceedings under chapter XVI. must precede order under this section.—

(b) A Magistrate cannot issue process against the accused under this section, without first examining the complainant as to facts only on an oral complaint. [2 Weir 211]

(c) A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to issue a warrant or order of arrest on information if the offence being committed. In a such a case the police should be directed to interfere. — [Rat 90]

3. Magistrate's powers to act at once.—

A Magistrate has full power, upon receipt of a complaint, to issue a summons to the person accused if he believes in the truth of the complaint. If he finds there are good grounds for proceeding, it is not necessary for him to call for an enquiry, beforehand. [21 Cr 220 (Pat)] To start with a presumption that a complaint is false is not a sound method of procedure. If the Magistrate considers that the complainant is entitled to consideration, it is his duty then and there to proceed under S 204 Cr P C [11 A J 754]

4. Process to be issued only on sufficient materials.

Process ought not to be issued against a man, unless there are materials to justify the issue of process. The mere fact that a man states certain things in the petition of complaint, (which on being examined on oath, he does not substantiate), is not sufficient to justify the Magistrate in issuing process. — [18 Cr 226 (C)] The only condition requisite for the issue of process is that the complainant's deposition must show some ground for proceeding. [61 W R 31 37]

5. Caution necessary before issue of process.

—An accused person ought not to be dragged off to answer a charge merely because a complaint has been lodged against him. The Magistrate should see if there is a prima facie case against the accused, and if not, should refuse the summons, or direct the complainant first to produce his witnesses, or one or two of the chief of them, and should then grant or refuse the summons according as a prima facie case is or is not made out. — Oudh Cr Dig p 7

6. Issue of process when complainant has no personal knowledge.

—In a case, where complaint is by a person not having personal knowledge of the allegations made therein (e.g. the Government pleader) the Court should, before issuing summons, satisfy itself upon proper materials that a case has been made out for issuing summons. — 10 C. N. 1090

7. Refusal to issue process when illegal.

—When the police has reported the case to be true, and the Subdivisional Officer passed final orders in the case, namely "enter true", he cannot decline to enter on a judicial enquiry, merely because in his opinion, there was no chance of conviction, and no useful purpose would be served by an inquiry. — 20 O 410. See (01) A N 5: cf. 21 A 265

8. Process ought to issue ordinarily against all the persons accused.

—It appears to be a common fault on the part of Magistrates to issue process against some of the accused, although there is no reason in the examination of the complainant, to discriminate between the several accused. Such a procedure is without jurisdiction and in every view objectionable. — 4 C N 560

9. Meaning of the expression "in the opinion of a Magistrate."—The opinion of the Magistrate referred to in the section is his own independent opinion. Where a Police enquiry is ordered, and the result reported, the opinion expressed by an Inspector of Police, will not warrant a issue of process, if without it, the Magistrate would have acted differently. — 4 M H 162

10. Process unnecessary if the accused appears of his own accord.

—Where the accused appears voluntarily to answer a charge, the want of a summons or of a complaint in order to the issue of a summons, becomes immaterial. [Rat. 8] Issue of process is unnecessary, if the accused were already present, when the case came before the Magistrate. [5 P. R 1910]

11. Accused may appear without being summoned.

—A complainant, by omitting to take out a summons, cannot keep a case hanging over a man for an indefinite time. The summons is merely a means of procuring attendance, but if the accused appears of his own accord without a summons, he is entitled to require that the complaint shall either be proceeded with or dismissed. [26 B 552]

(2) Who can issue process.

12. Only the Magistrate having seizin of the case can issue process.

—In a case made over by the Joint Magistrate for disposal, to a Deputy Magistrate, the latter convicted some of the accused but refused process (subsequently to the conviction) against the rest, held that a subsequent order by the Joint Magistrate for the issue of process against them was without jurisdiction. [32 C 763] A Magistrate who receives the complaint and examines the complainant, should himself pass an order dismissing the complaint or issuing summonses to the accused. — District M. Magistrate v. [unclear]

process, all a view in ordering the Police to make an independent enquiry into the same case. [4 P. R. 1905].

13. Effect of refusal to issue process.

—The order made by a Magistrate refusing to issue process as unnecessary amounts to a discharge. [P. Henderson J in 32 C 743]

14. Effect of refusal to proceed after warrant.

—If a Magistrate issues warrants against the accused, and afterwards refuses to take up proceedings against them, the termination of proceedings amount to an order of discharge. — 4 C. N. 212.

(3) Substitution of warrants for summons and vice versa.

15. Magistrate's discretion in issuing summons instead of warrant.

—Magistrates should use the discretion given them by this section, and should not issue a warrant as a matter of course, especially in cases where a petty charge of defamation, insult to provoke a breach of the peace, or criminal intimidation is preferred before them.—C P. Cr. Cir. Pt. II. No 16: Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 8 20. Person complained against not an accused till process is issued.—See (1) Right of audience etc (14) under S. 202 Cr. P. C.

(4) Process fee.

16. Power to cancel warrant and substitute summons.—A Magistrate has a discretion, under S. 204 Cr. P. C., sufficient cause being shown, to cancel the warrants issued at first against an accused person and issue summons instead. 1 S. 69. 7 S. 40

21. Court fees.—See Court Fees Act VII. of 1920 S. 20 and the Rules framed by the various High Courts as to the payment of Court fees for issue of process etc.

17. Issue of warrant instead of summons does not vitiate proceedings.—If a Magistrate issues a warrant in a case in which he ought to have issued a summons, his mistake will not be a sufficient ground to quash the subsequent conviction.—1 W. R. 16 Cr. R. 10 of 18-1-00

22. Petition in maintenance cases cannot be dismissed for failure to pay process fees.—An application for maintenance should not be dismissed under subs (3) for failure of the applicant to comply with an order for the payment of process fees, as the application does not relate to any offence and process fee is leviable under the Court Fees Act only for an offence.—16 M. 231.

18. Cases in which a bailable warrant ought to be issued.—See S. 70 (11) M. N. 452.

23. Default due to repeated adjournments. A complainant should not be required to repeatedly summon his witnesses on payment of fee process fee, simply because the Magistrate may have been unable to record the evidence on the date originally fixed for examining them. In such a case his duty is to direct the witnesses to attend to appear on adjourned hearing.

19. What does not amount to a process.—A mere notice to the person complained against, that a preliminary enquiry will be held in the matter of the complaint, does not amount to a summons. Such a notice is neither contemplated by the Code nor is it one of the forms in the Fifth Schedule.—25 M. L. 1.

205. (1) Whenever a Magistrate issues a summons, he may, if he sees reason so to do, dispense with the personal attendance of the accused, and permit him to appear by his pleader.

(2) But the Magistrate inquiring into or trying the case may, in his discretion, at any stage of the proceedings, direct the personal attendance of the accused, and, if necessary enforce such attendance in manner hereinbefore provided.

Notes.

1. The application of the section.—The application of S. 205 is not limited to summons cases only, but it extends to all cases in which a Magistrate may issue summons. Although the case may be one in which a warrant may be issued in the first instance, it is not necessary for the Magistrate to do so. He has full liberty under S. 75 (2) Cr. P. C. to cancel at any time a warrant and substitute summons. The section, therefore, applies to all such cases, in which the Magistrate in his discretion, has thought fit to issue a summons instead of a warrant or cancelled a warrant and substituted summons instead.—G. A. 59. 21 C. 554. 20 P. W. 1908. See 18 D. R. 25 (1).

2. Section does not apply after warrant has been issued.—S. 205 Cr. P. C. applies only to a case in which the accused person has been summoned, where a warrant is issued to compel the attendance of the accused, he cannot be exempted from personal appearance in Court, unless he is by reasons of his illness, unable to attend personally.—13 C. N. cl

3. Scope of S. 205 Cr. P. C.—Where a Magistrate has erred in issuing a warrant instead of a summons, he can, on discovering his mistake, make an order discharging the bail bond and direct the major process of warrant to take effect as the minor process of summons. The process issued being then in law a summons, the Magistrate has power to make an order under S. 205 Cr. P. C.—7 S. 40.

4. Personal attendance should be dispensed with in the case of pardanashia ladies, unless their is strong likelihood with having abetted the offence, and complaint was couched in vague terms, held, that the wife was not entitled to exemption from personal attendance, but as to the three others, they should be exempted at any rate, until a prima facie case is made out against them.—(7 S. 161; G. A. 59; 17 C. N. 1214)

5. Pardanashin ladies of respectable family charged with grave offence.—Where two pardanashin ladies belonging to a respectable family, were charged with grave offence under S 320 Cr. P. C. the High Court passed the following order: "We direct that the two petitioners be allowed to appear at the inquiry or trial by their pleader or pleaders, subject to their having to appear before the court to hear the sentence passed, should the case be proved against them, and the trial end in conviction. Should the case be committed to the Court of Session, the personal appearance of the ladies may be dispensed with till the Session Judge gives the order."—17 C. N. 1218.
6. The rule does not apply to complainants.—Pardanashin women, cannot as of right claim exemption from personal attendance in Court. The Magistrate cannot dispense with the personal attendance of the complainant, under the provisions of this section, if she is a pardanashin lady.—5 A 92.
7. Powers under this section not confined to pardanashin women. The power of substituting summons for warrant is not limited to the case of pardanashin women. The power should as observed in 3 S. 167 be freely utilized in the Province of Sindhi, and especially in the case of female accused. 7 S. 10 S. 6 S. 205 1 S. 69.
8. [Note.—In 1 S. 69 the Magistrate issued bailable warrants against some ladies, who were subsequently found to be pardanashin ladies. They applied before the warrants could be executed for exemption from personal appearance. The Magistrate refused the application, thinking that he had no power to do so having issued warrants in the first instance. Held that the Magistrate could substitute summons for the warrants under S 75 cl 2 and then act under S 205 Cr. P. C.]
9. Up to what stage of the case personal appearance may be exempted.—When an order under S 205 has been made, the provisions of this section are complied with, when the pleader pleads or refuses to plead to the charge under S 235. The terms of S 306 (2) support this view for it contemplates the absence of the accused up to the stage of the judgment and even after judgment after that stage where the judgment is one of acquittal or one awarding a sentence of fine only.—[6 S. 206.] A Criminal Court should abstain from compelling a Paidah woman to attend.
10. The Magistrate's discretion.—A Magistrate can excuse the attendance of an accused person as often as he pleases.—11 C. N. cxxxii.
11. Right to maintain purdah in Court.—A pardanashin lady when appearing in Court as accused, can claim to be brought into Court in a covered tonga and arraigned without showing her face.—[1 B L (S N) v.] She can also claim to give evidence from her palanquin. [95 P. R. 1857].
12. Pardanashin witnesses.—Pardanashin women, cited as witnesses can be examined in suitable cases, on commission but the better course would probably be to examine them in chambers.—1 S. 257 1 S. 5.
13. Appearance by pleader without permission, on receipt of summons does not amount to contempt.—In a summons cases, an appearance was made on behalf of the accused on the day fixed for trial, by his Mukhtar who asked the Magistrate to dispense with the personal attendance of the accused. The Magistrate refused the application and served a notice on the accused a notice under S 174 I. P. C. for non-attendance on service of summons. Held that the accused did make an appearance though not a personal appearance, and he was not liable to prosecution for contempt.—27 C. 985.
14. Appearance by pleader must be by special permission.—Where no special permission has been given to appear by pleader the Magistrate is not competent to take the presence of the pleader as the presence of the accused and to proceed to decide the case in the accused's absence.—21 W. R. 25.
15. How far a pleader can act for the accused.—See Note No 9 above.
16. []
17. Does the rule apply to security proceedings?—In 2 Weir 54 it has been held—that the Code makes a marked distinction between bonds for keeping the peace, and bonds for good behaviour. Sec 205 is not applicable to proceedings under Ch. VIII B. Therefore a person called upon to show cause why he should not be bound over for good behaviour cannot be permitted to appear by agent.
18. []
19. Reasons for refusing leave to appear by pleader must be recorded.—The Magistrate the penalty. A Magistrate has no legal authority to secure the attendance of the agent by a bond taken from the agent himself.—5 B H. (C C) 64.

should place on record his reasons for refusing an application for leave to appear in Court by a pleader, more particularly when the accused are pardannashin women.—[6 A. 59]

20. When the accused is an invalid.—A Magistrate acts unreasonably in enforcing the personal appearance of an accused person who is an invalid.—6 O. N. lix.

CHAPTER XVIII.

OF INQUIRY INTO CASES TRIABLE BY THE COURT OF SESSION OR HIGH COURT.

206. (1) Subject to the provision of section 443, any Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class or any Magistrate empowered in this behalf by the Local Government, may commit any person for trial to the Court of Session or High Court for any offence triable by such Court.

(2) But save as herein otherwise provided, no person triable by the Court of Session shall be committed for trial to the High Court.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (1) of section 206 of the said Code, after the words "or any Magistrate," the words and signs "(not being a Magistrate of the third class)" shall be inserted.

Notes.

1. Scope of the section.—The powers conferred under S 206 Cr. P. C convey authority to carry into effect any of the provisions of Chapter XVIII of the Code. The procedure to be adopted under Ch XVIII is not confined to cases exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions, but is also applicable to cases which, in the opinion of the Magistrate concerned, ought to be tried by such court.—5 A. 477

2. "Magistrates empowered in this behalf"

(a) In Madras—All Magistrates [Port & G Gaz 1873 p 717] except the Tashildar Magistrates of Taluks in which there are stationary sub-Magistrates [Port & G Gaz 1893 Pt I p 579]

(b) In Bengal—Formerly all second class Magistrates were so empowered. But the power has been withdrawn [See Cal Gaz 1891 Pt I p 1000]

(c) In Punjab—Second class Magistrates are not empowered to commit [See Punjab Gaz. of 9-3-83]

3. Inquisitions by coroners in Calcutta and Bombay.—An inquisition drawn up by a Coroner, has the effect of a valid commitment on being accepted by the High Court and on the officers of the Crown drawing up a charge in accordance with it.—31 C 1. See Ss 24-26 and 29 of Coroners Act (IV of 1871).

4. Effect of committal by Magistrate not empowered.—A commitment made by a Magistrate having no jurisdiction is no proper commitment and no reference to the High Court is necessary to have it set aside.—11 C L 53. But See 4 L B. 49 (30)

5. Commitment to the wrong Court.—

(a) To High Court.—The High Court in its original criminal jurisdiction, has power to try cases committed to it by the Maffiasal Magistrate and the commitment is not void by reason of the fact that a Sessions Court in the Maffiasal has local jurisdiction in respect of the offences Per Sadavira Aigai J in 42 M. 791. 15 B 200

(b) To the wrong Sessions Court.—A Commitment to a wrong Court—e.g.—a Sessions Court having no jurisdiction is illegal and must be quashed, 30 M 387.

[Note.—This view is opposed to that taken in 8 B 312 16 B 200 (201) 2 B R 394. 18 A 350 (352)—in which the High Court refused to set aside the commitment and transferred the case to the proper forum. These rulings lay down that the commitment is not to be set aside unless the error in procedure has led to a failure of justice]

(c) To courts of Magistrates empowered under S. 30.—A Magistrate has no authority to make over a case cognizable exclusively by a Court of Session to a District Magistrate who is a Deputy Commissioner specially empowered under S 30 to try such cases.—7 O N. 457.

6. Commitment by Magistrate not having territorial jurisdiction.—S 531, applies to a case, where a Magistrate, being empowered to commit to Sessions, but not having territorial jurisdiction in the place where the offence is alleged to have been committed, commits the case to a Sessions Court having jurisdiction over the place.—17 M. 402; 26 M. 640. See 30 M. 94; 7 Bar. T. 26

7. Procedure, when the case is committed to a wrong Sessions Court.—Where a Magistrate commits a case to a Sessions Judge, in which the offence was committed beyond the jurisdiction of that Judge, the latter has to enquire and ascertain whether he has jurisdiction, and if he thinks he has none, he has to discharge the accused or report the case to the High Court for disposal under S 215 Cr P C—Rat 222.

8. Interference by District Magistrate.—For the purposes of commitment, a subordinate Magistrate has equal powers with the District Magistrate. A District Magistrate cannot give to the subordinate Magistrate instructions regarding the commencement of preliminary enquiry or the desirability of commitment. If he desires to interfere, he has to withdraw the case to his own file under S 192 Cr P C.—8 W. R. 61.

9. Analogous law.—A District or Subdivisional Magistrate to whom a case has been submitted under S 319 infra, may instead of himself punishing the accused, commit the case to the Sessions—1 B 210

207. The following procedure shall be adopted in inquiries before Magistrates where the case is triable exclusively by a Court of Session or High Court, or in the opinion of the Magistrate ought to be tried by such Court

Notes.

1. Meaning of the expression "ought to be tried."—The words "ought to be tried" (by the Court of Session) in Ss 207 and 317 Cr P C must be read with S 254 of the Code and a case which ought to be tried by a Court of Session is one which the Magistrate is not competent to try or in which in his opinion, adequate punishment cannot be inflicted by him—(4 B R 85, 24 C 429, Rat 110, 20 Cr 97 (N), 11 S 79, 8 S 23 (O), A N 25, 6 A J 989. See 22 P R 1852)
2. Magistrates discretion.—A Magistrate has a discretion under S 207 Cr P C to commit a case to the Sessions if he is of opinion that he cannot adequately punish the accused—11 A J 439
3. Scope of the section.—"Reading S 254 with S 207 Cr P C it would seem that the Legislature has given to a Magistrate discretion to commit to a Court of Session only such of those cases which he is competent to try as, in his opinion ought to be tried by such Court because the offence cannot be adequately punished by himself. If a case be one which a Magistrate is both competent to try and adequately punish, then apparently he has no discretion to commit it" Per Crouch A J C in 8 S, 23
4. Grounds on which a Magistrate may decide that a case should be tried by a Court of Session.—In 42 M. 83, Sadania Ayar J following the rulings in 3 C. 495 and 1 M 289 (F. B.) and dissenting from 21 C 129. (O) A N 28 and 6 A J 989 has held that the expression "ought to be tried" does not restrict the grounds on which a Magistrate should arrive at his opinion, to the want of jurisdiction in himself or to his inability in his own opinion, to sentence the accused adequately. If the Magistrate considers, for instance, that a complicated question of law arises, or that some connected matter is already before the Court of Session, or that the facts are such that trial with the aid of a Jury or with the aid of Assessors (who may be chosen from experts in the particular matters involved in the case) would be a more satisfactory procedure, there is nothing to prevent him from committing the case to the Sessions. [Con C P. Cr. Cir Pt 11 p 30].

5. In Rioting Cases.—Where there is any good cause why the case should be tried by the Court of Session, [In this case, the opposing faction in a rioting case had already been committed to the Sessions under Ss. 304, 325 and 148 I. P. C., and the Magistrate was of opinion that both sets of rioters ought to be tried by that Court], the commitment should be made, and that cause is not always limited to incompetency of the Magistrate to try the case or to pass an adequate sentence—13 P. R 1017.
6. Where one of the two charges is triable exclusively by Sessions Court.—Where an accused is charged with two offences, one of which the Magistrate is competent to try, but not the other, the proper course is committal.—(83) A N. 199
7. Effect of irregular commitment.—Though the offence of theft in a building is not triable exclusively by a Court of Session there is nothing to prevent such a court from trying a person accused of such an offence and duly committed to it for trial—[16 M J 325. See 11 A J 439; 21 C. 429 7 M T 187] In 15 B R 998 and 38 B 114 the High Court of Bombay quashed the commitment
8. Improper assumption of jurisdiction.—When a Magistrate himself tries a case not exclusively triable by a Court of Session and commits

16 B 550 see 16 P R 1895

9. ~~~~~
10. Magistrate not to shirk responsibility.—~~~~~ nature as trial and a Magis- wastes the valuable time of the Judge and the Jury on the one hand, and causes unnecessary detention to the accused besides causing considerable avoidable expense to the Government. A Magistrate by adopting such a course deliberately shirks the responsibilities of his office.—1 S. 103

208. (1) The Magistrate shall, when the accused appears or is brought before him, proceed to hear the complainant (if any), and take in manner herein after provided all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution or in behalf of the accused, or as may be called for by the Magistrate

(2) The accused shall be at liberty to cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution and in such case the prosecutor may re-examine them.

(3) If the complainant or officer conducting the prosecution, or the accused, applies to the Magistrate to issue process to compel the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or thing, the Magistrate shall issue such process unless, for reasons to be recorded, he deems it unnecessary to do so.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to require a Presidency Magistrate to record his reasons.

209. (1) When the evidence referred to in section 208, sub-sections (1) and (3), has been taken and he has (if necessary) examined the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, such Magistrate shall, if he finds that there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused person for trial, record his reasons and discharge him, unless it appears to the Magistrate that such person should be tried before himself or some other Magistrate in which case he shall proceed accordingly.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless.

210. (1) When, upon such evidence being taken and such examination (if any) being made, the Magistrate is satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial, he shall frame a charge under his hand, declaring with what offence the accused is charged.

(2) As soon as the charge has been framed, it shall be read and explained to the accused and a copy thereof shall, if he so requires, be given to him free of cost.

211. (1) The accused shall be required at once to give in, orally or in writing, a list of the persons (if any) whom he wishes to be summoned to give evidence on his trial.

(2) The Magistrate may, in his discretion, allow the accused to give in any further list of witnesses at a subsequent time; and, where the accused is committed for trial before the High Court, nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude the accused from giving, at any time before his trial, to the Clerk of the Crown a further list of the persons whom he wishes to be summoned to give evidence on such trial.

212. The Magistrate may, in his discretion, summon and examine any witness named in any list given in to him under section 211.

213 (1) When the accused, on being required to give in a list under section 211, has declined to do so, or when he has given in such list and the witnesses (if any) included therein whom the Magistrate desires to examine have been summoned and examined under section 212 the Magistrate may make an order committing the accused for trial by the High Court or the Court of Session (as the case may be), and (unless the Magistrate is a Presidency Magistrate) shall also record briefly the reasons for such commitment.

Order of commitment

(2) If the Magistrate after hearing the witnesses for the defence, is satisfied that there are not sufficient grounds for committing the accused, he may cancel the charge and discharge the accused.

Proposed amendments to the section. In sub-section (1) of section 210 of the said Code, for the words "the charge" the words "such charge" shall be substituted.

1. GENERAL RULES OF PROCEDURE.

(1) The Scheme of the Chapter explained.

1. The Scheme of the Chapter explained.

After that, the Magistrate has to direct the accused to give in orally or in writing a list of his witnesses (S. 211). When the list has been given, the Magistrate may, in his discretion, summon and examine any witness named in it (S. 212). It is only after all this procedure has been followed, that the Magistrate can make an "order of commitment" recording briefly his reasons for it. (S. 213).—12 B. R. 321.

(2) Record of evidence.

2. Magistrate's obligation to record evidence.—The Code seems to have been carefully framed with a view to provide that no one shall be committed for trial, without having a fair which he is B 345]. *A the evidence was confessed, as in many cases confessions are retracted at the trial [Rat 842; 3 N P 27]. A commitment made without taking any evidence in a preliminary enquiry is illegal [Cr R. 10-1-'76] It is the duty of the committing Magistrate to make a full and careful enquiry into the offence and to record, all the evidence procurable [1 Bur.

S 338 Rat 842].

information If such witnesses are not called, in the absence of reasonable belief that they would not speak the truth if called, an inference adverse to the prosecution may reasonably be drawn.
[No such unfavourable inference will be drawn if he accused]

(F. B.).

Note.—A public prosecutor is not bound to call prosecution witnesses whose evidence he believes, will likely be false or is unnecessary.—16 A. 84
(F. B.).

4. Evidence must be taken in the presence of the accused.—An order of commitment to the sessions, is illegal, if the evidence on which it is based was recorded while the accused was not yet arrested on the charge.—[2 Weir 259
5 C N 110]. But a commitment in the absence of the accused himself, is not necessarily illegal, if the accused, has been allowed to appear by agent under S 205 Supra —[2 W. R. 50 17 C N 1219].

(3) Evidence for the Defence.

5. Magistrate bound to examine defence evidence as the accused produces before him for hearing.—[20 A. 264 27 A 177: Rat 100]

He is bound to do so even when he is directed by the Sessions Court to commit, if he has summoned witnesses for the defence.—[196 A N. 306
See 1 C N. 519]

6. Right of accused to call witnesses.—
In cases of commitment the proceedings before the Magistrate is only an inquiry preliminary to the trial, and the law in order to avoid unnecessary commitment is careful to require the Magistrate to examine any witness produced before him by the accused, and provides for the summoning and examination of defence witnesses before the charge is drawn up, and even gives the Magistrate a discretion (S. 212) to examine the witnesses for defence after the charge is framed, and then to cancel the charge and discharge the accused (S 213) It does not compel a Magistrate to summon and examine defence witnesses after or even before the charge is framed if the Magistrate, for reasons to be recorded, deems it unnecessary to do so.—36 M 321

7. Accused not entitled to repeated adjourndements for calling evidence.—I cannot myself see that the Magistrate has in any way failed to observe, the provisions of that section (S 208) It is not suggested that he did not hear all the evidence produced before him and that is all that is required by the first paragraph. The fact that an application was made on the date on which the accused was committed to the Sessions for summoning of further witnesses, appears to me to introduce no condition which shew that the provisions of that section has not been observed.—Per Jenkins C J. in 42
608. But See Rat 110

(4) Examination of witnesses.

8. The practice not to allow cross examination before the charge is framed is illegal.—The practice of a Magistrate in inquiry into cases triable by a Court of Sessions not to allow any cross examination, before he frames charge sheet or until such time that the examination in chief of all witnesses for prosecution is over, is contrary to law and must be avoided. The wording of S 208 Cr P C makes it clear that the intention of the Code was, that as each witness was examined he should then and there be cross examined and re-examined, and allowed to go home. The Code has consideration for witness and their convenience, but this consideration is not always shared by Magistrates.—10 A J 144
See 5 C N 110

9. Construction of s. 208 (2).—It is impossible to construe S 208 (2) Cr. P. C as conferring on the accused the right if he thinks fit, to ask for an order and to have an order recorded that the accused may be examined in the presence of the prosecution witnesses.

10. Cross examination after charge.—In an enquiry under Ch. VIII the Magistrate after having drawn up a charge with a view to commitment allowed the accused to cross-examine the prosecution witness and as a result cancelled the charge—held—it was open to the Magistrate to take that course.—39 C. 865
11. Subs (2).—incorporates the decision in 21 C 612, and merely re-enacts the provisions of S 135 of the Evidence Act,

(5) Examination of the accused and written statement.

12. Object of the examination.—S. 209 and 342, which are the only provisions of the Code, authorising the examination of the accused clearly show that the object of that examination is not to obtain incriminating statements from the accused, but is only to enable him to explain circumstances against him. It is therefore improper to attempt to make an accused person confess his guilt, before any evidence whatever has been recorded—2 C. N. 702 O. C. 96 See 1 O. L. 436; 5 A. 273; 10 M. 295 (Per Keenan J) (39) A. N. 135.

13. Examination discretionary.—The examination of the accused prior to commitment, is in the discretion of the Magistrate. The Magistrate only examines the accused when he thinks it necessary for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstance appearing against him (Ss 293 and 210 Cr P C). If the accused is unwilling to submit to examination, it is sufficient for the Magistrate to make a note of the fact and to record it as a reason for not examining the accused to such a note the provisions of S 364 Cr P. C. do not apply—11 S 52 2 W R 50 10 10 W R 25 See also 1 B L (N) xvi Hat Sec 23 M 636

Note—Where the accused wants to make a statement, a Magistrate is not competent to refuse to record it—10 C L 54)

14. Written statement by the accused.—The filing of a written statement is not contemplated by chapter XVIII, in which § 209 occurs. The only provision which contemplates a written statement is § 256 which occurs in Ch. XVI—
Weir 275

(6) Rules with reference to the order of commitment.

15. Committing Magistrate not to write judgment in Sessions Cases.—Under S 209 Cr. P. C a Magistrate is not authorised to write judgment in Sessions Cases.

L B 262

18. Grounds Of commitment—how to be written.—In preparing the reasons for commitment the committing Magistrate should marshal the evidence, in the order in which it should come under judicial consideration. As a general rule chronological order is the best [Oudh Cr Dig. 10] A Magistrate in his grounds of commitment should specifically note with exactness and precision, the proof against each particular prisoner, and the manner in which it is supported. [5 W.R 6]

17. Magistrate not to determine the guilt of the accused.—A Magistrate holding a preliminary enquiry, has no power to pronounce definitely either upon the guilt or the innocence of the accused—26 A 561 (567), (01) A. N. 5: 14 M T 200

18. Signing with a stamp.—The signature of the Magistrate to the warrant of commitment should not be impressed with a stamp—G M 396

10. Failure to record reasons illegal.--The law requires that reasons for refusal to issue a license shall be recorded by the recorder. The recorder has failed to do so in many cases. This is also true of the recorder's failure to record the reasons for his refusal to issue a license.
- 21 C. 429

(7) Magistrate may commit at any stage of the case.

20. S. 317 empowers a Magistrate in any trial at any stage of the proceedings, when he makes up his mind to commit for trial, to stop further proceedings, and commit the accused. He may therefore do so, even after summoning defence stancace and examining only a few of them. S. 317 belongs to Ch. XXIV, and is not governed by the provisions of S. 204 in Ch. XVIII.

(S) Power to change the order of committal or discharge.

21. Power to try after framing charge.—Where a Magistrate, yielding to the suggestion of the pleader of the accused, directed that the case should be tried by the Court of Session, but on a technical objection being taken, he amended the charge, and intimated his intention to try the case held that the Magistrate had merely framed the charge, and arrived at the procedure so far only as S. 210 Cr. P. C. He had not therefore directed himself of his jurisdiction to try the case himself.

12 B R 521 15 Cr 16 (C)

22. Commitment after discharge 43-44

23. Discharge after commitment illegal.—A Magistrate having committed a person cannot afterward, on the basis of a subsequent event, discharge the accused. A commitment once made can be quashed only by the High Court.—1 A 150.

- 24. Discharge after charge.—1 Magistrate, who has charged an accused person with a view to commit him, cannot discharge him without recording further evidence.—2 L. B. 141

25. No remedy even after wrong commitment on facts.—An Assistant Magistrate after committing the accused person to the Sessions, recorded that he had made a further enquiry and that if he had made the enquiry before the commitment he would not have committed the accused —Heliu—(on a reference by the Sessions Judge) that the High Court was unable to quash the commitment and the accused must be duly tried by the Court of Session —(75) A. N. 53

(9) Joint Enquiry.

28. Joint enquiry against several accused.—There is no provision in the Code which requires a separate enquiry in respect of each accused person prior to commitment. An enquiry may be joint although the trial on commitment cannot be joint under the law.—7 B. R. 457; (00) A. N. 206; But see (83) A. N. 39 ('86) A. N. 256.

27. Proper course when some only of several accused in joint enquiry are guilty of major offence.—When two or more persons are jointly indicted and the jurisdiction of the Magistrate is ousted in the case of one of them, the proper course is to commit both or all for trial before the Court of Sessions [1 Weir 448 1 Weir 428 (129). (81) A. N. G. Wilkins 109 Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 8]. But the mere fact, that there is a connection between a former case committed to the Court of Sessions and the case in question, is no reason for committal, when the connection is not of such a character as to embarrass or prejudice the accused if they had been tried by the Magistrate himself. [15 B. R. 998. See 7 M. T. 187]

(10) Case exclusively triable by Sessions cannot be tried by Magistrate.

28. A Magistrate should not treat a grave offence beyond his jurisdiction, as a less grave offence in order to bring it within his jurisdiction, since to do so is to take upon himself the functions of a superior Court [9 M. T. 71]. In cases where death appears to have resulted from injuries voluntarily inflicted by the accused party, Magistrates ought to be very careful not to take it upon themselves to absolve the accused from the graver charge and convict him of hurt or grievous hurt only [Wilkins 112 Rat 382. 13 B. 502 10 C. 83 3 P. R. 1591] Where the act of accused amounts been caused in committing robbery, a Magistrate cannot convict the accused under S. 394 I. P. C. He is bound to commit under S. 397 I. P. C. [Rat 476] The offence of making a false charge of rape being triable exclusively by a Court of Sessions should not be tried by a Magistrate—[R. 1953]

29. When a Magistrate may try a case

(11) When a case triable by Magistrate may or may not be committed.

30. Case triable by Magistrate should not be committed.—This is the general rule. An offence under S. 9 of the Opium Act not being triable by a Court of Session, a Magistrate is not competent to commit the case [18 A. 465]. An offence under S. 30 of Madras Act I of 1896, of supplying liquor without a license, being punishable only by a Magistrate cannot be committed to the Court of Sessions [5 M. R. 277 See also 1 W. R. 5] But the fact that an offence is shown to be triable only by a Magistrate in the second Schedule, would not prevent the commitment of the case to the Sessions, if the Magistrate thinks that he cannot pass an adequate sentence [24 C. 129] Where a Magistrate is not satisfied as to justify not shirk the committing it

31. Magistrate's duty to try the case themselves.—"We must, therefore, quash this commitment and direct the Magistrate to conclude the trial himself. In so doing, we take the occasion to observe, that it is for many reasons inadvisable in practice that our already overburdened Courts of Sessions should still further be burdened with the weight of cases committed to them by Magistrates, where such Magistrates are themselves competent to decide the cases, and no overriding reasons exist for committal to the higher Court"—Per Batchelor and Shah J J in 15 B. R. 994

(11) Miscellaneous Rules.

32. Accused not entitled to compensation on discharge.—All that a First Class Magistrate has jurisdiction to do, in a case of a charge of an offence triable by the Court of Session is to follow the procedure in Ch. XVIII Cr. P. C. In that Chapter neither S. 270, nor S. 253 finds any place. Therefore the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to award compensation to the accused, when discharging them under S. 209 Cr. P. C.—40 A. 615 Rat 961.
33. Order of discharge not in terms of S. 209 Cr. P. C. may be valid.—An order of discharge by a Magistrate under S. 209, in a case triable exclusively by a Court of Sessions or the High Court, would be a valid order, although the Magistrate uses the words used in S. 253, instead of those in S. 209, if the Magistrate has considered the evidence and is of opinion that no prima facie case has been made out.—2 Weir 255
34. Magistrate ought not to commit a case in face of fatal technical defect.—Where the indispensable conditions mentioned in S. 195 Cr. P. C. are wanting to the prosecution, the committing Magistrate is not competent to entertain the case and the commitment by him is illegal.—6 A. 95
35. Power to direct subordinate Magistrate to commit.—See S. 436 infra [Of the District Magistrate and Sessions Judge]: Ss. 437 and 438 Cr. P. C. [Of the High Court]
36. Power to Quash a commitment.—See Notes under S. 215 Cr. P. C.
37. Cancellation of the charge.—See (1) Farquhar charges under S. 188 Cr. P. C. and the Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction to try them without a certificate from the Political Agent of the State, the commitment is therefore quashed.—(81) A. N. 81.

II. JURISDICTION.

38. Offence committed beyond British India.—When the offence has been committed beyond the limits of British India, the committing Magistrate has no jurisdiction to inquire into the

39. Commitment by Court not having territorial jurisdiction.—Where a Magistrate empowered to commit to the Sessions, but having no jurisdiction in the place, in which the offence is alleged to have been committed, commits the accused to a Court of Sessions which has jurisdiction over the place, it is valid and cannot be quashed under S. 532 17 M. 492 8 B 312 16 B 209 26 M 387.

40. Commitment to a Sessions Court not having jurisdiction.—A commitment is an order of a Criminal Court which cannot be set aside unless a failure of justice has been occasioned thereby. Where a case is committed to a Sessions Court having no territorial jurisdiction, the High Court without setting aside the order of commitment transferred it to the proper sessions Court.—8 B 312; 16 B 209; 2 B R. 394 18 A 370. Con. 30 M 387; 9 A. 191.

III. FRAMING AND CANCELLATION OF CHARGES.

(1) Effect of framing a charge.

41. The mere framing of a charge against the accused as required by S. 210 is distinct from, and does not amount to, an order of commitment which has to be made under S. 213 Cr. P. C. 12 B R. 621. Con. Pat 161.

to remit the fee payable on a copy of the charge or translation thereof, when the copy is given to the accused person.—Guit. of Ind. Not No 310 of 21-1-86.

(3) Joinder of Charges.

(2) Procedure.

42. Charge when to be framed.—Charge is to be framed only when the Magistrate is satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for committing. If the Magistrate thinks that the grounds are sufficient whatever the reason of this insufficiency may be, he may decline to frame a charge and discharge the accused.—9 B R. 225 See 8 B 200.

47. The sections of the Code relating to joinder of charges.—viz., Ss. 213 to 219 Cr. P. C. and the ruling in 25 M. 61 (P. C.) refer to trials only and not to preliminary enquiries under Ch. XVIII 26 M. 592; See 7 B. R. 457; (OO) A N 206; Rat 915. Con. Rat 925.

48. When separate charges should be framed.—Where several persons are charged with having given false evidence, a separate charge must be framed against each person and each person must be separately tried. 3 M. H. xxvii. (81) A N. 83; 5 A. 17.

(4) Cancellation of Charge [S. 213 (2)]

43. Enquiry must be held before framing charge.—A committing Magistrate is bound to make an enquiry before framing a charge. If he fails in his order of commitment to find what offence, he thinks, the accused has committed, and frames a charge without giving any reasons for the same, the order of commitment must be quashed and the inquiry should be again proceeded with before another Magistrate.—6 P R 1681.

49. Where in an enquiry under Chap. XVIII Cr. P. C. the Magistrate after having drawn up a charge against the accused with a view to his commitment to the Court of Sessions, allowed him to examine the witness for the prosecution.

(5) Trial by Magistrate himself after framing charge.

44. Procedure laid down by S. 208 Cr. P. C. must be followed.—A Magistrate inquiring into a case triable by the Court of Sessions is not empowered to frame a charge or make out an order for commitment, until after he has taken all such evidence as the accused produces before him for hearing.—20 A 264.

50. Where the Magistrate, at the suggestion of the pleader of the accused, framed a charge under S. 467 I. P. C. and directed that the case should be tried by the Court of Session, but it being pointed out to him that there was no sanction as required by S. 195 Cr. P. C., amended the

45. Charge must be read over to the accused.—The Magistrate, when he has prepared the charge is bound to read it to the accused and to ask him if he wishes to have any witnesses summoned to give evidence on his behalf at the Sessions. 2 W. R. 50.

46. Commitment to a Court of Sessions.—Where a Magistrate has framed a charge against the accused and committed him to a Court of Sessions, he cannot afterwards withdraw the charge and commit him to a Court of Sessions.

himself of his jurisdiction to try the accused.—15 B. R. 521. Con. 2 C J. xxviii.

VI. SUFFICIENT GROUNDS FOR COMMITMENT [Ss. 209, 210].

(1) Object of Ss. 209 and 210.

51. Object of the law in providing that the inquiry shall be held by a Magistrate before the accused has to undergo a trial, in the Court of Session, seems to be to prevent the commitment of cases in which there is no reasonable ground for conviction. The provision of the law is calculated, on the one hand, to save the subjects from prolonged anxiety of undergoing trials for offences not brought home to them; and on the other hand, to save the time of the Court of Session from being wasted over cases in which the charge is obviously not supported by such evidence as would justify a conviction * * * I am of opinion, that the power given to Magistrates * * * extends to the weighing of evidence and the expression "sufficient grounds" must be understood in a wide sense—Per Mahmood J. in 5 A 101. See (89) A N. 135 (136): Rat 740 3 M 351. 14 W. R. 16

(2) Meaning of the term "sufficient grounds."

52. There is a sharp divergence of judicial opinion centring round the term "sufficient grounds" The first group of rulings of which the leading case is 27 B 84 interprets the term as if it meant 'prima facie' grounds. The second group takes it to mean "reasonable chance of conviction at the trial." Bikenell J. in 14 M T 200, attempts an interpretation which hardly carries us much further. It is as follows:—"I do not think that it is possible to fix positively the limits within which the Magistrate should exercise jurisdiction and prefer to express the rule negatively, by saying that he must not in anyway encroach upon the functions of the Jury"

53. The term as interpreted in 27 B. 84.—"The words in S 209 Cr P C. "sufficient grounds for committing" have been explained to mean not ground for convicting, but whether the evidence is sufficient to put the accused on his trial, and such a case arises, when credible witnesses make statements, which if believed, would sustain conviction. The weighing of their testimonies with regard to improbabilities and apparent discrepancies is more properly a function of the Court having jurisdiction to try the case. It is not necessary that the Magistrate should satisfy himself fully of the guilt of the accused before making a commitment. It is his duty to commit when the evidence for the prosecution is sufficient to make out a prima facie case against the accused, and he exercises a wrong discretion if he takes upon himself to discharge an accused, in the face of evidence which might justify a conviction." See also 11 B 372 14 M T 200 (Per Benson and Bikenell J.) 2 Weir 652 9 M T 71. 2 Weir 542 (04) A N 5 26 A 564 [Per Knox J.] 21 Cr 61 (A) 21 Cr 318 (A) 3 N. P. 27 9 C N 829 21 Cr 202 (Pat) 14 P R 1908. 1 P R 1893 1 L B 318

54. The term as interpreted in the Second Group.—"Under S 210, a Magistrate should commit an accused for trial, when he is satisfied that there are sufficient "grounds for committing the accused for trial" In my opinion, this does not mean that he should do so, whenever there is evidence sufficient to put the case to a jury * * * A Magistrate, in my opinion, need not make an order of committal, when in his judgment, the prosecution is clearly insufficient to justify the conviction of the accused, or the prosecution evidence is clearly untrustworthy." Per Sundaram Aiyar J. in 14 M T 200 See also 35 B 163 17 B R. 010 12 B R 223; 9 B R 225 Rat 746 37 A 375 26 A 564 21 A. 205. (3) The functions of the committing Court.

55. Duty to sift evidence.—"I have, for some time, felt from examination of criminal trials that many Magistrates are too hasty in making commitments, or rather that they do not make the thorough enquiry which, I think, they ought to make previous to commitment. In a case of murder, more especially, there can be no doubt that it is the duty of the Magistrate to sift every fact bearing on the case in order to ascertain whether the accused is guilty or innocent and to examine the accused on the facts which bear against him * * * I think every enquiry should have been made previous to commitment, to ascertain not only whether there was presumption of the guilt of the accused, but also whether he was innocent"—Per Jackson J. in 14 W. R. 16

56. English law.—Under the Indictable Offences Act. 11 and 12 Vict C 42, if the Justices of the Peace are of opinion that a prima facie case has not been made out against the accused, the evidence entitled to a reasonable degree of credit they must forthwith order him to be discharged. If they are of opinion that the evidence is sufficient or if the evidence raises a strong and probable presumption of guilt they may commit him to prison to take his trial. Although the Justices have not to try the case, yet if the evidence for the defence is such in their opinion, that there is a strong and probable presumption that the Jury will acquit the accused, if he were committed, they should dismiss the charge. See R. v. Cavender 5 Q B D 1 (6) Cori. Calcutta 1 B & C 37 (50) Halsbury's Law of England Vol IX. p 320.

57. Considerations governing a commitment.—"It appears to me that when a Magistrate comes to consider—whether he shall or shall not commit a case, he has to consider the gravity of the offence, the punishment with which in his opinion it ought to be met and the section under which he charges the accused person. He may no doubt properly consider any special difficulties in the case or that it is a matter of some peculiar public importance and no doubt other matters also might enter into his consideration such as the wish of the public. But a Magistrate must not determine this important matter, whether he is to commit the case or try it himself, solely by the wish of the parties and the terms of a Government Resolution"—Per Heaton J. in 42 B 172.

58. Materials on which the opinion is to be formed.—The law requires that the Magistrate should take not merely all the evidence produced in support of the prosecution, but also that produced on behalf of the accused. He is also empowered to examine the evidence for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence, against him and upon all these materials, he is to find whether or not, there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial—(90) A N. 135.

(4) Power to accept defence evidence.

59. Discharge on merits.—It is clear from S 271 Cr. P. C. that a Magistrate is to discharge the accused, if he finds that there are not sufficient grounds for committing him for trial. Obviously the Magistrate is bound to discharge the accused if he believes that he has committed no offence. A committing Magistrate does not exceed his jurisdiction, in expressing an opinion on the merits of the accused's defence, and in accepting that defence.—16 Cr. 5 (C) 35 B 161 26 A 564; 37 A. 375; 17 B R 910. C. 90 C N 824
60. Defence extracted from prosecution witnesses.—It is well within the powers of a Magistrate to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses and to consider whether the witnesses examined on behalf of the prosecution were credible [17 B R 910]. The word "witnesses for the defence" in S 214 (2) are wide enough to cover evidence extracted by cross-examination from the witnesses for the prosecution.—[19 C 885]
61. Scope of S. 213 (2) Cr. P. C.—S 213 (2) Cr. P. C. is intended to provide for cases in which the evidence recorded after the charge is changed, the aspect of the case, as to have no reasonable doubt that a conviction is not sustainable. But that clause does not apply when the evidence for the defence merely casts some doubt on the case 'sufficient grounds' of a commitment is a prima facie case, and it still remains a sufficient ground even if to some extent weakened (but not proved beyond reasonable doubt to be false) by the evidence for the defence.—1. L B 314

(5) Magistrate's discretion.

62. Mere fact that offence is of serious nature not sufficient.—The mere fact that the offence is of a serious nature is not a ground for commitment, if the committing Magistrate makes the finding that there is no sufficient evidence against the accused. If he does commit, it would amount amount to an error in law.—35 P R 1878
63. Magistrate not bound to commit in any case.—A commitment to the Sessions would not be justifiable, unless the committing Magistrate considers that a prima facie case had been made out, which in his judgment ought to be tried at the Sessions.—15 M. 39 (99) A. N. 135. See 2 Weir 275

64. Discharge before recording evidence.—Two persons were sent up by the police on a charge of murder, and the Magistrate discharged one of them, even before recording evidence and without recording any reasons therefor Held [The Train J] The Magistrate certainly had power to discharge the accused as he did, but he should then and there have recorded his reasons for doing so under S 209 Cr P C [1 L B 362]
65. When no evidence is forthcoming.—When the accused is present and no evidence is forthcoming against him, and it is not shown that the Magistrate ought to adjourn the enquiry under S 344 Cr P C, he is bound to discharge the accused [15 W R 53]
66. District Magistrate cannot interfere with subordinate Magistrate's discretion.—S 210 Cr P C provides that a charge should be framed and commitment made only when there are sufficient grounds for committing, that is to say not merely allegations as to the offence which may or may not be credible, but such grounds as satisfy the Magistrate as being sufficient to support a charge. A District Magistrate cannot therefore order a subordinate Magistrate to commit a case, unless it appears that the latter had no good reasons to discredit the prosecution witnesses and that their evidence was sufficient in law to form the basis of a conviction.—9 B R. 225

(6) Procedure when the major charge fails.

67. The primary object of S 209 being to make provision for the procedure in case triable by Court of Session or High Court, the Magistrate in a case in which in his opinion there is no evidence to warrant a charge exclusively triable by a Court of Session, cannot proceed to act under the latter part of subs (1) of S 209, until he has "discharged" the accused under the former part of the section.—24 M 136 But see 23 M 225 20 C 633

V. WITNESSES(1) Magistrate's discretion in summoning witnesses.

68. It is not incumbent on a Magistrate to summon every person named as witness by the complainant S 208 Cr P. C vests a discretionary power in the Magistrate.—23 W. R. 9.

(2) All witnesses produced must be examined.

69. S. 208 (3) applies—to the course that may be taken before not after the issue of summons their attendance in the manner provided by S 355 Cr P C—4 M 329.

70. Note.—It should be noted that there is a current of rulings to the effect that an accused person cannot be discharged in a warrant case under S 233 Cr P C without examining all the witnesses produced on behalf of the prosecution.—See 3 C. 389 2 A. 447 (81) A. N. 145 (82) A. N. 179; 4 M 329 8 M R 4]

- 71.

(3) List of witnesses for defence.

72. Duty of Magistrate under S. 211.—A Magistrate is, under S. 211 (1) of the Code, bound to require the accused to give a list of witnesses he desires to call. It is not enough to put the question "Have you any evidence?" since the question is ambiguous and might suggest to the accused only an enquiry as to whether he had witnesses ready in Court.—7 B R 723.

[Note.—Though the language is imperative, there is nothing in it, which leaves it open to a Magistrate to prevent a prisoner from reserving his defence for the Court of Sessions [4 B. L. (1p) 1]. The accused is entitled to refuse to furnish the list, but in that case he would not be entitled as of right to have the assistance of the court to compel the attendance of his witnesses.—[14 A 212 10 A. 302]

73. The accused is entitled as a matter of right to have any witness named in the list summoned and examined.—23 W. R. 56 15 W R 7. 3 W. R. 35. 2 W. R. 6.

power, if he thinks proper, to exercise it, to sanction the summoning of other witnesses than those named in the list delivered to the committing Magistrate.—Per Straight J—8 A 668

74. Power to examine witnesses named in the list [S. 212.]

committing Magistrate is not precluded from exercising his discretion under S. 212, and from summoning and examining the witnesses named for the defence. The law does not require that he should record his reasons before exercising such powers. He is given a discretion which he may be trusted to use properly, and it will be for the person impugning his order, to satisfy the High Court that judicial discretion has not been used before that Court can interfere.—18 A, 380 Ex 4 B L. (ap) 1.

75. Witnesses must not be threatened.—It is illegal of a Judge to threaten a witness with the penalties of the law, unless and until he has shown by his evidence that he is wilfully saying what is false, or is persistently refusing to give evidence of facts which must be within his knowledge.—14 A 242

VI. IRREGULAR COMMITMENTS.

76. Commitment by Magistrate not empowered.—A commitment made by a Magistrate not duly empowered, may be accepted by the Court to which the commitment is made, if the accused is not prejudiced.—See s 532 Cr. P. C 9 B 100. 2 A 398. Con 11 C L 52

77. Commitment by Court not having territorial jurisdiction.—See (2) Jurisdiction (39) Supra

78. Commitment to wrong Sessions Court.—See (2) Jurisdiction (40) Supra.

79. Joint commitment of two opposing factions.—In a riot between two factions the aggressors were accused under Ss. 117 and 301 I P C and the other party under S 113 I P C. The Magistrate committed both the parties to the Sessions. Held that though the Magistrate could and should have tried the party accused under S 113, himself, the committal to the Sessions was not illegal and should not be set aside, and that the Court of Sessions had jurisdiction to try the accused. (56) A. N. 256. 26 M 592 see 8 W R 47 9 W R 33. 6 C 90 11 C 358. 20 C 537 8 C. N 180

80. Committal made without following the procedure laid down in Ss. 212 and 213

Cr. P. C.—A charge under S 302 I P. C was under inquiry by a Magistrate of the 1st class. The evidence for the prosecution had been summoned; the Magistrate at the request of the accused had consented to make a local inspection, when the Sessions Judge directed the Magistrate to commit the accused to the sessions. He did so without examining any of the witnesses for the defence, and without making the intended local inspection, held that the commitment should be quashed.—Rat 915.

81. Committal without recording reasons is illegal.—The law requires, that reasons for commitment should be recorded. Where the Magistrate commits a case, which may either be tried by the Magistrate or the Court of Sessions, the reasons for commitment must include not merely reasons for not discharging the accused, but reasons for sending him before the Court of sessions. To commit without giving reasons amounts to illegality.—38 B 114
82. Commitment under orders of the Sessions Judge.—An order of commitment is none the less valid, because it is made in pursuance of the direction given by the Sessions Judge.—7 P. R 1912.

VII. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Revision by the High Court.

83. Power to quash at any stage.—The High Court can quash an illegal commitment at any stage of the case.—B C. 544

84. Power to go into facts.—The High Court is not got power to go into questions of fact, but it does so merely in order to see whether the Magistrate's order is proper.—15 Cr 373 (M) . 30 M. 224.

85. S. 215 as a bar to revision.—S. 215 bars the revision by the High Court of an order of commitment made under S. 213, 214, 477, 478 Cr. P. C. except on a point of law. But where a commitment has been made under S. 476 Cr. P. C. the High Court has full jurisdiction to enter into facts and to consider the propriety of the order of commitment—12 C. N. 117.

(2) Allied section—S. 347 Cr. P. C.

86. S. 347 is not to be read as subject to S. 208 Cr. P. C.—S. 347 is not to be read as subject to the provisions of S. 208 Cr. P. C. and it is not therefore imperative on the Magistrate, after he has decided to commit the accused, to allow the accused to cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution or to call witnesses in his defence—36 C. 19. But See 36 M. 321 6 L. B. 121 (F.B.).

87. S. 212 does not govern S. 347 Cr. P. C.—The discretion given to a Magistrate to commit a case to the Sessions under S. 317 infra is neither restricted nor taken away merely because he issued summons to defence witnesses under S. 212 and examined them—17 M. T. 83.

88. The discretion to stop further proceedings.—The discretion in S. 347 to stop further proceedings does not justify a Magistrate to disregard the discretions in Ss. 208 to 210, but only requires him to stop proceedings with the case as a trial and instead to commit the case to the Sessions for trial by that Court—36 M. 321.

214. If any person (not being an European British subject) is accused before a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate of having committed an offence conjointly with an European British subject, who is about to be committed for trial, or to be tried before the High Court on a similar charge arising out of the same transaction, and the Magistrate finds that there are sufficient grounds for committing the accused for trial, he shall commit him for trial before the High Court, and not before the Court of Session.

Person charged outside presidency-towns jointly with European British subject.

215. A commitment once made under section 213 or section 214 by a competent Magistrate or by a Court of Session under section 477, or by a Civil or Revenue Court under section 478, can be quashed by the High Court only, and only on a point of law

V. Section 215

IV. Section 215

VII. Section 215

(1) Commitment by a single judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court.

(2) S. 215 governs Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.

(3) Quashing no bar to second trial.

I. SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Commitment once made can be quashed only by the High Court.

1. A Magistrate after committing an accused person cannot quash his order of commitment and discharge the accused because the complainant states that he has compounded the case—4 A 150; 1 B 311 43 B 147 5 P. R 1919. 16 M. J 523. 2 Weir 262

[Note. - A commitment once made by a Magistrate to the Sessions Court cannot be annulled by him allowing the prosecution to file a compromise—2 W R 57]

2. Magistrate cannot cancel his order after committing the accused.—A Magistrate who has once committed the accused to the Sessions has no power to cancel his order and try the accused himself. Any order of the Magistrate to this effect is ultra vires.—7 Bur 269

3. Commitment can be quashed only on a point of law.—A commitment order can be quashed only on a point of law, e.g. want of territorial jurisdiction in the committing Magistrate—7 Bur. T 20 13 B R 201. 11 A J. 439; (59) A N 60 36 A 4

(2) Scope of the section.

4. S. 215 and 439 compared.—S. 215 refers to a commitment actually made in which case the High Court cannot interfere except on a point of law. But it is open to the High Court to consider whether the Session Judge has or has not exercised a proper judicial discretion under S. 439 in setting aside a Magistrate's order of discharge of the accused and directing his commitment.

(3) Where the section does not apply.

5. The section is inapplicable except to commitment made under any of the four sections specified therein. An order of commitment under S. 436 or 520 infra cannot therefore be set aside under this section—27 M 54 See 31 C 1 8 M T. 205; 12 C N 117 See 2 A 398. But See 312 P. L 1913 15 M J 373

(4) At what stage a commitment can be quashed.

6. The dictum in 6 C 594, that "the High Court can quash an illegal commitment at any stage of a criminal proceeding" has no application when the accused has been put on his trial and has pleaded to the charge [1 S 6; 2 Weir 262; 12 C L 120]

(5) Procedure.

7. Commitment cannot be annulled in part.—If the commitment of a European British subject is quashed on the ground of any irregularity of proceedings, the commitment of a person jointly charged with him should also be quashed.—9 B 258 (300)

8. S. 537 Cr. P. C. applies in principle.—Though S. 537 Cr. P. C. applies in terms to orders made in appeals or revision, the principles can grounds for quashing a commitment.—12 A 320 (8)

9. Commitment made by Magistrate not having territorial jurisdiction.—Under the old Code, no orders from the High Court were necessary to set aside a commitment made by a Magistrate not having jurisdiction, at it was ipso facto void [See 11 C. L. 55; 56] But such a commitment is now only voidable and will not be set aside as a rule, unless there has been a failure of justice thereby. [See Note No 6 under S. 206 supra].

10. Commitment made by a Magistrate not having jurisdiction over the offence or offenders.—If the illegality affects the jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge he may discharge the accused notwithstanding the commitment. If it does not, he should refer the case under S. 215 Cr. P. C. to the High Court for disposal.—141 922

11. What a Sessions Judge should do.—If in the opinion of the Sessions Judge a commitment to his Court is illegal he should refer the case for the orders of the High Court, but the insufficiency of evidence against the prisoner is no ground for such a reference.—1 W. R. 8.

12. Power to quash commitment to High Court Sessions quere.—Whether the High Court in the exercise of its ordinary criminal appellate jurisdiction has power to quash a commitment made to it for trial under the ordinary original criminal jurisdiction.—30 C 48

13. Commitment with examine adversely case of the law, and instructions issued by the Sessions Judge. This should be done immediately on receipt of the record so that it may be at once returned to the committing Magistrate to supply the deficiencies, if there are any.—Oudh Cr. J. 12 p. 10 See 2 Weir 200 [as to power to remand for further evidence]

II. ESSENTIAL OF VALID COMMITMENT.

14. Pendency of application in a superior Court challenging validity of proceedings.—The fact that an application is pending in a Superior Court praying that the proceedings of the Magistrate's Court may be declared illegal does not, where there has been no order to stay, of itself render a commitment illegal.—11 C N. 829

15. It is illegal to pass an order of commitment in the absence of the accused.—5 C N 310
16. Commitment made after order of transfer. An order of commitment made after the case was ordered to be transferred from the Court of the committing Magistrate is infectious. It is obvious that a Magistrate is not competent to proceed with a case which has been duly transferred or withdrawn by competent authority.—Cr R 2 of 213—62
17. Commitment by a Magistrate not empowered. A commitment made by a Magistrate having no jurisdiction is no commitment and is altogether void.—11 C L 33 (56)
18. Commitment by a Magistrate not having jurisdiction. A commitment made by a Magistrate not having jurisdiction is no commitment and is altogether void.—11 C L 33 (56)
19. Magistrate being of opinion that he cannot punish adequately.—Where the Magistrate is of opinion that he can not adequately punish the accused and commits him to the Court of Session the commitment is legal [11 A J 119] A commitment by a Magistrate competent to try and pass sentence in a case punishable under S 166 I P C is illegal Section 251 (infra), in mandatory terms, imposes on the Magistrate the duty of trying any warrant case which he is competent to try and which in his opinion can be adequately punished by him. Reading this section with section 207, it would seem that the Legislature has given to a Magistrate discretion to commit to a Court of Session only such of those cases which he is competent to try as, in his opinion, ought to be tried by such Court because the offence can not be adequately punished by himself. Though the fine which can be imposed under S 166 is not limited, the Magistrate has not suggested that a year's imprisonment and such fine as he has power to impose would not be adequate punishment [8 S 21] It is not illegal for a magistrate to commit a case, in which he cannot award adequate punishment, to the Sessions, though the case is exclusively triable by him. Therefore the commitment of a case under section 147 I P C by a Deputy Magistrate is not illegal.—[21 C 429, But See 19 A 165]
20. Commitment after evidence after fresh evidence even though the order of discharge has not been set aside by the High Court.—24 C 211
21. Commitment of a summons case is illegal.—Where a Magistrate committed for trial at the Sessions Court a person charged with offences under S 332 and 447 I P C, held that there was no warrant in the Code for the commitment of summons cases to the Sessions and that the magistrate could have himself awarded adequate punishments for the two offences.—(66) A N 283

22. A commitment for an offence under S. 9 of the Opium Act is illegal.—19 A 165
23. Magistrate bound to state reasons for commitment.—If a Magistrate thinks that a case not exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions must be committed, he must state his grounds in the order to enable the High Court to judge whether the commitment is made in the sound exercise of the discretionary power vested in him by law.—11 B R. 18; 15 B R 909; 38 B. 111

(II) Essentials of a Valid commitment.

24. Commitment at the direction of the District Magistrate is illegal.—A commitment made by a subordinate Magistrate, not in the exercise of his discretion but in consequence of a suggestion of the District Magistrate is illegal.—15 M 34
25. A commitment based on evidence recorded while the accused was not arrested is not valid.—2 Weir 279
26. A commitment made without examining the witnesses for the prosecution is illegal.—[4 M 227, Con. 2 W. R. 50]
27. Commitment without taking defence evidence is illegal.—So also a commitment made without examining the witnesses which the accused wanted to produce.—20 A 261; 26 A 177. See 23 W. R. 56 (66) A. N 306 Con 2 W. R. 50.
28. Commitment without taking defence evidence is illegal.—So also a commitment made without examining the witnesses which the accused wanted to produce.—20 A 261; 26 A 177. See 23 W. R. 56 (66) A. N 306 Con 2 W. R. 50.
29. Commitment in face of fatal technical defect is illegal.—In the case of offences referred to in S 185 supra a commitment would be illegal when the preliminary conditions required by that section are wanting.—6 A 98; 23 C 176. (93-700) L B 377; But See 27 M J. 593
30. When the charge is not proved.—When there is no clear proof that the accused knew the property to be stolen, a commitment for an offence under S. 411 I. P. C. is illegal.—(84) A. N. 14
31. Commitment not illegal because prosecution started on police report.—A commitment for an offence under S 211 I P C is not illegal merely because the Magistrate has not made a judicial enquiry into the complaint but has proceeded solely on the report of the police that the complaint is false.—6 C 542 See 14 C. 707 (711)
32. When commitment is undesirable.—Where a Magistrate commits a person for trial before the Sessions Court for the offence of giving false evidence before the same Sessions Judge, the commitment is not illegal. It is however desirable that the Magistrate should try the case himself, and if the sentence which the Magistrate was competent to pass was not sufficient, the Sessions Judge should refer the case to the High Court for enhancement of sentence.—1 B 311 (313).

I. SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Commitment once made can be quashed only by the High Court.

1. A Magistrate after committing an accused person cannot quash his order of commitment and discharge the accused because the complainant states that he has compounded the case—4 A 159; 1 B 311 43 B 147 5 P R 1919 16 M J 523. 2 Weir 262

(2) Scope of the section.

4. S. 215 and 439 compared.—S. 215 refers to a commitment actually made in which case the High Court cannot interfere except on a point of law. But it is open to the High Court to consider whether the Session Judge has or has not exercised a proper judicial discretion under S. 136 in setting aside a Magistrate's order of discharge of the accused and directing his commitment, and for this purpose the High Court may consider the facts as well question of law involved—[30 M 224 7 C N 77 12 C N 117 7 C N 327 See also 27 M 54]

(3) Here the section does not apply.

5. The section is inapplicable except to commitment made under any of the four sections specified therein. An order of commitment under S. 436 or 526 infra cannot therefore be set aside under this section—27 M 51 See 31 C. I. 8 M T. 205 12 C N 117 See 2 A 398 But See 312 P. L. 1913 15 M 1 373

(4) At what stage a commitment can be quashed.

6. The dictum in 6 C. 584, that "the High Court can quash an illegal commitment at any stage of a criminal proceeding" has no application when the accused has been put on his trial and has pleaded to the charge [1 S. 6. 2 Weir 262. 12 C L 129]

(5) Procedure.

58. (i) Where a Civil Judge has committed a person to the Court of Sessions under S 478 for using a forged document, the mere fact that the party has filed a civil suit to establish the genuineness of the document is no reason to quash the commitment (or to order the adjournment of the trial pending the disposal of the suit)—18 B 531
59. Note.—But in 2 Weir 260 it has been held that criminal proceedings on a charge of forgery should be postponed until the decision of a suit in which the genuineness of the document is in dispute, if such suit is pending.

- THE SESSION JUDGE MUST OBTAIN SANCTION TO THE HIGH COURT.—(1893 1900) L B 377
74. (i) That a Magistrate held a joint enquiry in the case of four accused persons who were charged with different offences under Ss 211, 214, 465 and 109 I P C, held that the procedure was illegal and so much to the prejudice of the accused, that the commitment must be quashed Rat 925. Contra 26 M 592
75. (i) That the only grounds on which an accused person was committed upon charges of abetment of offences under Ss 193, 196, 471 I. P. C. were (1) that a servant in the employ of the accused gave false evidence and produced forged documents at the trial, (2) that the accused was present actually prosecuting those suits, (3) that the evidence, if believed, would have supported the accused's case, (4) that the accused had sometimes made collections and tested jumbundis, held that the commitment was not proper and was liable to be quashed.—9 C. N. 829.

76. (m) That the conditional pardon tendered to an accused person was forfeited and he was committed to the Sessions Court for trial along with the others charged with the same offence. The commitment was quashed, because he had no opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses.—20 A. 529.
77. (n) That the commitment of an approver was made before the completion of the trial of the principal offenders, the commitment was quashed. 14 A. 336.

78. (o) The High Court can set aside an order of commitment which rests upon a misapprehension there being no evidence upon which the order can be supported.—2 Weir. 262.
79. (i) Commitment duly made could be quashed when the evidence stopped short of a case which could be properly left to a jury.—5 C. N. 411.
80. (q) That an order of commitment was made by the District Magistrate in contravention of S. 436 (a) Cr. P. C. without giving the accused an opportunity of showing cause why the commitment should not be made.—15 M. J. 373; 312 P. L. 1913.

V. POWERS OF THE HIGH COURT.

81. The High Court can quash an illegal commitment at any stage of criminal proceeding.—6 C. 541. But see Note no 6 supra.
82. Where accused has pleaded to the charge.—Where the accused has been put upon his trial and has pleaded to the charge, he is entitled to have the trial proceeded with. The commitment cannot be quashed.—12 C. L. 120. 1 S. 6.

But see 6 A. 94, (84) A. N. 14. 2 C. J. 46. 9 C. N. 829. 5 C. N. 411.

84. Where the High Court has full jurisdiction to enter into facts when the commitment is under S. 436.—S. 215 bars revision by the High Court of an order of commitment made under Ss. 231, 214, 477 and 478 Cr. P. C. except on a point of law. But where a commitment order has been made under S. 436 Cr. P. C. the High Court has full jurisdiction to enter into the facts and to review the propriety of the order of commitment. 12 C. N. 117. 7 C. N. 327. 30 M. 224. 28 P. W. 1913.

Note.—It is doubtful if the Criminal Appellate Bench of the High Court has jurisdiction to quash a commitment made to the High Court for trial under its ordinary original criminal jurisdiction. 36 C. 48. A commitment can be set aside only by the High Court. 16 M. J. 525. Cr. 99.

85 When High Court will not interfere—

- (a) "As a Magistrate after enquiry found reasons for committing for trial on the merits, the Court declines to quash the commitment"—Cr. L. 43 of 91.
- (b) High Court will not interfere, where a Magistrate in his discretion commits an accused, being of opinion that the accused can not be adequately punished by him.—11 A. J. 439.
- (c) Though a commitment to a Session Court

86. Delay in moving High Court.—Where the accused waited for a month after the case had been committed and took the objection only after the case being called on at the Sessions, held he was not entitled to any great sympathy and his application under S. 215 Cr. P. C. ought not to be entertained.—12 C. 605.

VI. POINT OF LAW—MEANING AND CASE.

87. Meaning.—The High Court has power to interfere only if the Magistrate has ignored or contravened an express provision of the Code or some other provision of the law. [(100) 2 Weir 255]. It will interfere if the Court below has not adopted the procedure laid down by law but has followed a procedure of its own. [10 A. J. 144]. It has been held that where the order of commitment rested upon a misapprehension and there was no evidence upon which the order could be supported, the High Court had jurisdiction to set aside the order. (2 Weir 262).
89. Insufficiency of Evidence.—Want of evidence to connect the accused with the alleged offence is a defect in law sufficient to justify the quashing of the commitment [6 A. 94, (84) A. N. 14. 2 C. J. 46; 9 C. N. 829. 5 C. N. 411. 11 C. 740 (P. C.), 9 L. B. 209. Con. 13 B. R. 291. 7 Bar T. 26. 27 M. J. 593].

88. Note.—In 14 C. 740 (P. C.) their Lordships of the Privy Council held that when there is evidence to go to a jury that does not raise a question of fact such as arises on the issue itself but a question of law for the consideration of the Judge.
89. The contrary view.—In 13 B. R. 291 Chandra Sekhara and Hutton JJ. were of opinion that the High Court cannot quash an order of commitment on the ground that there is no evidence in the committing Magistrate's refusal to sustain the charges. The same view was taken in 27 M J 531 by Stacy v. Nur and Turley JJ. See also 1 C N 471, 7 Bar T. 26.

91. The test to be applied.—The test which should be applied to decide whether a commitment ought or ought not to be made on the facts is this: assuming that the whole of the evidence against the accused is true, is there a case fit to go to the jury? If the answer is no—then a commitment is improper and ought not to be made. 9 C N 521.
92. The rule applies only when the committal is under the four sections specified in the Section.—See (1) Scope and application (1) Supra.

93. The want of territorial jurisdiction in the Magistrate who holds the enquiry is a point of law—7 Bar T. 26.
94. Commitment in a Sessions Case.—Where a Magistrate finding that there was a prima facie case against an accused person under Ss 352 and 117 I P C committed him to the Court of Sessions, held that the commitment was wrong on a point of law—(66) A N 29.

VII. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) What is sufficient evidence for commitment.

95. When there is evidence that a forged document was used on behalf of an accused person with his knowledge or under his instructions or with his approval which might be proved by the conduct of the accused, it can not be said that there is no evidence on which a commitment can be made [4 C N 471]. When an approver fails to act up to the condition of his pardon, the Magistrate can commence the enquiry against the approver and commit him to take his trial along with the other accused—42 C 870.

(2) Powers of a Session Judge.

96. The Session Judge has no power to quash a commitment even if it is illegal and to direct the Magistrate to try the case himself—16 M J 325.

(3) Commitment by a single Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court.

97. No appeal lies against an order of commitment made under S 475 Cr P C by a Judge presiding on the Original Side of the High Court in the course of the trial of a suit except under S 215. Cr P C—37 M J 652.

(4) S. 215, Governor, Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.

98. Cl 15 of the Letters Patent is controlled by the specific provisions of S 215 Cr P C—37 M J. 652.

(5) Quashing no bar to second trial.

99. The quashing of a commitment, will not prevent the accused from being charged again with the offence—27 M J 593.

216 When the accused has given in any list of witnesses under section 211 and has been committed for trial, the Magistrate shall summon such of the witnesses included in the list, as have not appeared before him.

If, to appear before the Court to which the accused has been committed Provided that, where the accused has been committed to the High Court, the Magistrate may, in his discretion, leave such witnesses to be summoned by the Clerk of the Crown, and such witnesses may be summoned accordingly:

Provided, also, that if the Magistrate thinks that any witness is included in the list for the purpose of vexation or delay, or of defeating the ends of justice, the Magistrate may require the accused to satisfy him that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the evidence of such witness is material, and, if he is not satisfied, may refuse to summon the witness (recording his reasons for such refusal), or may before summoning him require such sum to be deposited as such Magistrate thinks necessary to defray the expense of obtaining the attendance of the witness and all other proper expenses.

Notes.

S 216—S 359 (1872)—S 228 (1881)

1. Procedure on application for summons.—Where an application has been made for summoning defence witnesses the Magistrate is bound to pass an order on it, either granting the prayer or refusing it. To merely pass the order "file" is improper—6 C N. 514.

2. Procedure, when summons has been disobeyed.—Where witnesses summoned by a party have neglected to obey the summons, he has a right to call upon the Court to compel their attendance [6 C N. 548] Where a witness cited on behalf of the accused was summoned to attend on the day fixed for the hearing of the case, and owing to some delay in the service of the summons the witness did not attend, held that the Magistrate was bound to make a further attempt to secure the attendance of the absent witness—[4 A 53].
3. Right of the accused to cite witnesses.—A prisoner is entitled as a matter of right to have any witness named in the list he delivers summoned and examined.—[23 W R 56]
4. The only ground on which Magistrate may refuse summons.—The only ground on which a Magistrate may refuse to summon a witness for the defence under S. 216 is when he thinks that the witness has been included in the list for the purpose of iteration and delay. He will not be justified in refusing to summon such witness merely on the ground that his testimony would not be material or reliable—(82) 2 Weir 263 See 3 C 573
5. Magistrate cannot enquire into the nature of the defence by virtue of the second proviso.—The second proviso does not at all enable a Magistrate to enquire generally into what the defence of the accused is to be, and to consider whether he is absolutely to abstain from summoning the whole of the witnesses cited by the accused—Per Jackson J—3 C. 573. See 8 A 668
6. Court cannot condemn a witness before hearing his evidence.—It is not open to a Court to decide on the credit to be attached to the evidence of a witness before it has an opportunity of hearing it. A Sessions Judge exceeds the discretion given to him by S 216 Cr. P O in refusing to adjourn a case in order to obtain the evidence of two absent defence witnesses, on the ground that they are persons of very ordinary status and their evidence would not carry much weight.—19 M. 375 6 B. L. (1) 65

7. Magistrate bound to record reasons for refusal.—Under S. 216 when a Magistrate refuses to summon a witness included in the list of the accused, he must record his reason for such refusal and such reason must show the evidence of such witnesses is not material. The fact that the Magistrate thought that the reasons assigned for summoning a witness were not sufficient is not a sufficient reason for refusing to summon him—Per Fidge C J in 8 A. 668 See 6 C. 714.
8. Power to refuse summons must be sparingly used.—An order by a Magistrate refusing to summon witnesses for the defence without their expenses being paid by the accused, though legal, should be passed very sparingly, and is improper in a case in which the accused is unable or unwilling to deposit money, and the result is that he is convicted without his witnesses being heard, specially if the case is one in which a severe sentence is inflicted—7 P. R. 1895
9. Magistrate bound to fix the amount of deposit.—Although a Magistrate is competent to refuse to summon the witnesses required by the defence, if the accused declines to satisfy him that there are grounds for believing that they are material witnesses, unless expenses are deposited, he is bound to fix the amount which he considers necessary to defray the cost of the attendance of the persons summoned and to intimate his readiness to issue summons on that amount being deposited—4 M. H. 81.
10. Cost deposited under the section cannot be forfeited.—In the absence of any provision authorising a forfeiture to the Government, an order directing the forfeiture of a deposit made by a prisoner under this section is erroneous. The deposit should be returned to the jailor in trust for the depositor, or paid to any person authorised by the depositor to receive it—6 M. H. (ap) 9

217. (1) Complainants and witnesses for the prosecution and defence, whose attendance

Bond of complainants and witnesses.

before the Court of Session or High Court is necessary and who appear before the Magistrate, shall execute before him bond binding themselves to be in attendance when called upon at the Court of Session or High Court to prosecute or to give evidence, as the case may be.

(2) If any complainant or witness refuses to attend before the Court of Session or High Court, or execute the bond above directed, the Magistrate may detain him in custody until he executes such bond, or until he attends at the Court of Session or High Court is required, when the Magistrate shall send him in custody to the Court of Session or High Court, as the case may be.

evidence is material for the prosecution and it is for the Magistrate to decide as to the necessity for the attendance of the witnesses for the prosecution.—(83) A. N. 37.

2. Witnesses cannot be required to furnish sureties.—A Magistrate, under this section, has no jurisdiction to call for bonds with sureties nor has he the power to require recognizances from such defence witnesses who have never appeared before him.—2 W R 57.
3. Effect of withdrawal after commitment.—The complainant is not at liberty to withdraw from the charge after the commitment. If he does so, he will forfeit his recognizance.—2 W R 57.

4. Medical witnesses.—The attention of Magistrates is called to S 109 Cr. P. C. and they are informed that a committing Magistrate, should not, except for some special reason, bind over a medical witness, whose evidence he has taken to appear in the Sessions Court. It is very undesirable that medical men in the districts should be taken away from their dispensaries, more frequently, or for a longer period than is absolutely necessary.—Bomb H C Cr. C. C. p 18

218. (1) When the accused is committed for trial, the Magistrate shall issue an order to such person as may be appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, notifying the commitment, and stating the offence in the same form as the charge, unless the Magistrate is satisfied that such person is already aware of the commitment and the form of the charge.

and shall send the charge, the record of the enquiry and any weapon or other thing which is to be produced in evidence, to the Court of Session or (where the commitment is made to the High Court) to the Clerk of the High Court or Court of Session.

(2) When the commitment is made to the High Court and any part of the record is not in English, an English translation of such part shall be forwarded with the record.

Notes.

1. Record must be complete.—A committing Magistrate is bound to make his record complete, if he fails in the first instance to get all the necessary evidence down, he should discover his own mistake when he is preparing the calendar, and if he has made the order of commitment under S 213, Supra, he can still take further evidence under S 219 infra, without any order from the Sessions Judge.—Punjab Cr. C. C. para 11-A, p 235 Oudh Cr. Dig. p 10

219. (1) The Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, summon and examine supplementary witnesses after the commitment and before the commencement of the trial, and bind them over in manner heretofore provided to appear and give evidence.

(2) Such examination shall, if possible be taken in the presence of the accused, and, where the Magistrate is not a Presidency Magistrate, a copy of the evidence of such witnesses shall, if the accused so require, be given to him free of cost

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (1) of section 219 of the said Code for the word 'The Magistrate' the words 'The committing Magistrate or, in the absence of such Magistrate, any other Magistrate' shall be substituted

(ii) In sub-section (2) of the same section, for the words 'if the accused so require, be given to him free of cost' the words 'be given to the accused free of cost' shall be substituted

Notes.

1. The stage at which action may be taken under S. 219 Cr. P. C.—The Magistrate's authority under this section to examine supplementary witnesses ceases with the commencement of the trial. After that, the Sessions Judge can cause witnesses to be summoned before himself, or under certain circumstances, have them examined by a commission. He cannot direct the Committing Magistrate or any other authority to call additional witnesses and hold an enquiry.—29 P R 1858

2. Sessions Judge may ask Magistrate to act under S 219 Cr. P. C. on receiving order of commitment.—If on receiving the order of commitment, a Sessions Judge in view of Magistrate's recorded opinion, thinks that

3. Right of the accused to cite witnesses.—

A prisoner is entitled as a matter of right to have any witness named in the list he delivers summoned and examined—[23 W R 56]

4. The only ground on which Magistrate may refuse summons.—

The only ground on which a Magistrate may refuse to summon a witness for the defence under S 216 is when he thinks that the witness has been included in the list for the purpose of vexation and delay. He will not be justified in refusing to summon such witness merely on the ground that his testimony would not be material or reliable—(182) 2 Weir 263 See 3 C 573

5. Magistrate cannot enquire into the nature of the defence by virtue of the second proviso.—

The second proviso does not at all enable a Magistrate to enquire generally into what the defence of the accused is to be, and to consider whether he is absolutely to abstain from summoning the whole of the witnesses cited by the accused—Per Jackson J—3 C 573 See 8 A 668

6. Court cannot coudemn a witness before hearing his evidence.—

It is not open to a Court to decide on the credit to be attached to the evidence of a witness before it has an opportunity of hearing it. A Sessions Judge exceeds the discretion given to him by S 210 Cr P C in refusing to adjourn a case in order to obtain the evidence of two absent defence witnesses, on the ground that they are persons of very ordinary status and their evidence would not carry much weight.—19 M. 375 6 B. L (ap) 65

7. Magistrate bound to record reasons for refusal.—

Under S. 216 when a Magistrate refuses to summon a witness included in the list of the accused, he must record his reasons for such refusal and such reason must show the evidence of such witnesses is not material. The fact that the Magistrate thought that the reasons assigned for summoning a witness were not sufficient is not a sufficient reason for refusing to summon him—Per Fidge C J in S. A. 608 See 6 C 714

8. Power to refuse summons must be sparingly used.—

An order by a Magistrate refusing to summon witnesses for the defence without their expenses being paid by the accused, though legal, should be passed very sparingly, and is improper in a case in which the accused is unable or unwilling to deposit money, and the result is that he is convicted without his witnesses being heard, specially if the case is one in which a severe sentence is inflicted—7 P. 9. Magistrate bound to fix the amount of deposit.—

Although a Magistrate is competent to refuse to summon the witnesses required for the defence, if the accused declines to satisfy him that there are grounds for believing that there are material witnesses, unless expenses are deposited, he is bound to fix the amount which he considers necessary to defray the cost of the attendance of the persons summoned and to intimate his readiness to issue summons on that amount being deposited.—4 M. 10. Cost deposited under the section cannot be forfeited.—

In the absence of any provision authorising a forfeiture to the Government, an order directing the forfeiture of a deposit made by a prisoner under this section is erroneous. The deposit should be returned to the jailor in trust for the depositor, or paid to any person authorised by the depositor to receive it—6 M, II (ap) 9

217. (1) Complainants and witnesses for the prosecution and defence, whose attendance

evidence is material for the prosecution and it is for the Magistrate to decide as to the necessity for the attendance of the witnesses for the prosecution—(183) A N. 37.

2. Witnesses cannot be required to furnish sureties.—A Magistrate, under this section, has no jurisdiction to call for bonds with sureties nor has he the power to require recognizances from such defence witnesses who have never appeared before him—2 W. R. 57.
3. Effect of withdrawal after commitment.—The complainant is not at liberty to withdraw from the charge after the commitment. If he does so, he will forfeit his recognizance—2 W. R. 57.

4. Medical witnesses.—The attention of Magistrates is called to S. 509 Cr. P. O. and they are informed that a committing Magistrate, should not, except for some special reason, bind over a medical witness, whose evidence he has taken to appear in the Sessions Court. It is very undesirable that medical men in the districts should be taken away from their dispensaries, more frequently, or for a longer period than is absolutely necessary—*Bomb. H. C. Cr. 219. (1) When the accused is committed for trial, the Magistrate shall issue an order to such person as may be appointed by the Local Government in this behalf, notifying the commitment, and stating the offence in the same form as the charge, unless the Magistrate is satisfied that such person is already aware of the commitment and the form of the charge, and shall send the charge, the record of the enquiry and any weapon or other thing which is to be produced in evidence, to the Court of Session or (where the commitment is made to the High Court) to the Clerk of the Crown or other officer appointed in this behalf by the High Court.

(2) When the commitment is made to the High Court and any part of the record is not in English, an English translation of such part shall be forwarded with the record.

Note.

1. Record must be complete.—A committing Magistrate is bound to make his record complete, if he fails in the first instance to get all the necessary evidence down, he should discover his own mistake when he is preparing the calendar, and if he has made the order of commitment under S. 213, Supra, he can still take further evidence under S. 219 infra, without any order from the Sessions Judge—Punjab Cr. Cn. L.V., para 11-A, p. 235 Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 10.

219. (1) The Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, summon and examine supplementary witnesses after the commitment and before the commencement of the trial, and bind them over in manner herebefore provided to appear and give evidence.

(2) Such examination shall, if possible, be taken in the presence of the accused, and, where the Magistrate is not a Presidency Magistrate, a copy of the evidence of such witnesses shall, if the accused so require, be given to him free of cost.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (1) of section 219 of the said Code for the word "The Magistrate" the words "The committing Magistrate or, in the absence of such Magistrate, any other Magistrate" shall be substituted.

(2) In sub-section (2) of the same section, for the words "if the accused so require, be given to him free of cost" the words "be given to the accused free of cost" shall be substituted.

Notes.

1. The stage at which action may be taken under S. 219 Cr. P. C.—The Magistrate's authority under this section to examine supplementary witnesses crises with the commencement of the trial. After that, the Sessions Judge can cause witnesses to be summoned before himself, or under certain circumstances, have them examined by a commission. He cannot direct the committing Magistrate or any other authority to call additional witnesses and hold an enquiry—20 P. R. 1858.

2. Sessions Judge may ask Magistrate to act under S. 219 Cr. P. C. on receiving order of commitment.—If on receiving the order of commitment, a Sessions Judge in view of Magistrate's recorded opinion, thinks that further evidence should be taken, the proper course is to point out to the Committing Magistrate that he could summon, and examine any supplementary witnesses who could give evidence, and bind them over under this section to appear at the trial, and not to send the case to the Magistrate after the conclusion of the trial and the opinions of assessors have been taken [4 P R 1892]. Where the committing Magistrate, did not take all the available evidence, on the ground that the accused had confessed, the High Court declined to quash the commitment but directed the Magistrate to act under this section [Rat 512]

3. Copies of evidence to be given free of cost to accused.—Under s 35 of the Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), copies of the evidence of witnesses given to an accused person, under this section are exempt from Court fee [F.R. Govt. of Ind. Not, dated 21-1-'86]

220 Until and during the trial, the Magistrate shall, subject to the provisions of this Code regarding the taking of bail, commit the accused, by warrant, to custody.

CHAPTER XIX.

OF THE CHARGE.

Form of Charges.

221. (1) Every charge under this Code shall state the offence with which the accused is charged.

(2) If the law which creates the offence gives it any specific name, the offence may be described in the charge by that name only.

(3) If the law which creates the offence does not give it any specific name, so much of the offence must be stated as to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged.

(4) The law and section of the law against which the offence is said to have been committed shall be mentioned in the charge.

(5) The fact that the charge is made is equivalent to a statement that every legal condition required by law to constitute the offence charged was fulfilled in the particular case.

(6) In the presidency-towns the charge shall be written in English; elsewhere it shall be written either in English or in the language of the Court.

(7) If the accused has been previously convicted of any offence, and it is intended to prove such previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which the Court is competent to award, the fact, date and place of the previous conviction shall be stated in the charge. If such statement is omitted, the Court may add it at any time before sentence is passed.

Illustrations.

(1) A is charged with the murder of B. This is equivalent to a statement that A's act fell within the definition of murder given in sections 299 and 300 of the Indian Penal Code; that it did not fall within any of the general framed to steer clear of merely technical objections. "The English rule as to what ought to be set forth in the indictment is modified in Indian by Ss. 225 and 537 Cr. P. C. [Per Sankaran Nair J. in 32 M. 384 (S. B.)]

4. Accused entitled to know the exact value of the charge.—An accused is entitled to know with certainty and accuracy the exact value of the charge brought against him, for unless, he has this knowledge, he may be seriously prejudiced in his defence. This is true in all cases but it is more especially true in cases, where it is sought to implicate an accused person for acts not committed by himself, but by others with whom he was in company.—[11 C 106. 42 C 957 See 33 C 295] When the accused was summoned for storing wool, he cannot be charged with storing cotton.—[Rat 529]
5. Charge ought to refer to the section I. P. C.—A charge should be so framed as to refer to the section of the Penal Code under which the offence charged is punishable. [9 W R 33 See III (C)], but omission to comply with the requirement will not invalidate the commitment [1 I J (N S) 43].

6. The Object—The object of Ss. 221, 222 and 223 Cr. P. C. is clearly to enable the accused to know the substantive charges which he will have to meet and to be ready for them before the evidence is given.—[17 Cr 411 (V)] It is the duty of the Courts to draw charge sheets accurately, and where they fail to do this, the persons convicted are entitled to the benefit of any material omission [139 P. L 1911]

7. Charge should not be vague.—The least that can fairly be allowed in favour of one criminally convicted is that when a charge has been expressed in vague terms the prosecution on appeal should be limited to the particular sense in which the charge has been understood in the actual trial. [2 B. 142]

8. Useless details should be avoided.—A common fault in the framing of charges is the insertion of useless details. It should be remembered that nothing which is not essential to the offence should be included in the charge, except such details of time and place as are necessary to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged.—C P. C. Cir Pt. II, No 18

II. THE CHARGE WITH REFERENCE TO SPECIFIC OFFENCES.

9. In cases of rioting and unlawful assembly.—In cases of rioting it is necessary that the common object of the unlawful assembly should be set out with precision [11 C 106] In a trial for rioting, the charge is bound to state the common object of the assembly, but if it does not, the omission is not fatal to the conviction, if the accused has been in no way prejudiced by the omission. [38 P. W. 1907 4 C N 599] Where a charge is defective and does not specify the property, the taking possession of which is supposed to be the common object of an unlawful assembly, the accused are thereby prejudiced and S. 537 Cr P C should not be had recourse to, specially when the specification of the property would alter the whole complexion of the case [33 C 295] See Notes under S. 223 Cr P. C. infra.
10. Notes.—Where a Judge in his charge to the jury propounded two different common objects of an unlawful assembly, the accused being charged with one of them only, held that the conviction of the accused should be set aside and a retrial ordered in as much as it was impossible to say which of the two common objects the jury accepted, and if they had accepted the one on which he had not been charged, he had no opportunity of meeting it [22 C 276 See 6 M. T. 17. 36 C 657] But the omission by a Judge to state correctly the common object of an unlawful assembly in the charge to the jury, does not vitiate the trial, if such omission has not in any way prejudiced the accused in their defence. [4 C N 196 (199)]
11. Offences of which guilty intention is an essential ingredient.—A conviction under S. 155 I. P. C. would not be had for want of specification of the intention in the charge, though one under S. 177 could not be sustained without such specification [22 C 391]. A charge under S. 467 of the Indian Penal Code is bad if the intention is not set out [17 C N 334 But see 6 M. T. 266]. A charge which sets out an intention on the part of the accused to commit an offence, but of which intention, there is no evidence on the record, is defective and a conviction based thereon is illegal. [23 P. W. 1911] In an indictment for criminal trespass the particular intent with which the act is committed must always be stated in a charge when a particular punishment is provided for it, if committed with a particular intent [16 W R 63 22 C. 391] In a case of mischief by fire with intent to destroy a dwelling house, the intention to cause destruction of a house simply but a house used as a human dwelling must be set out [8 W R 30].

12. The charge in conspiracy cases.—The indictment in all cases of conspiracy must, in the first place, charge the conspiracy but in stating the object of the conspiracy the same degree of certainty is not required as in an indictment for the offence conspired to be committed [42 C 957 See 17 P. R 1915. Reg v Gill 2 B & Ald 204; Reg v Kenrick, (43) 5 Q B 49 Reg v Blake (44) 6 Q B 120. Reg v Aspinall (70) 2 Q B D 15 (60)] So in respect to a charge under Ss. 4, 5 and 6 of the Explosive Substances Act (VI) of 1904. Monkerye and Richards v J. J. held "we are clearly of opinion that the conspiracy charge is not open to objection on the ground that it does not specify the explosive substances for the preparation or possession whereof the alleged conspiracy was formed" [42 C. 957] R v Eccles 13 East P. C. 220 (S). But see, R v. Rowland 17 Q. B. 671. R. v. Fox 9 A & E 686 R. v. Richardson 1 Mand R 6 102; R. v. Steward 1 A & E 700.

3. The charge with reference to the conspirators.—In a conspiracy case the accused can be charged with conspiracy with persons unknown, but if they are charged with persons known, then such persons must be named in the charge.—Jenkins C. J. in 39 C. 559; See R. v. Stoddart 25 T. L. R. 612; R. v. Ex parte 1 F. and F. 213; Con People v. Mathar (30) 4 Wend 229].
4. Cheating Cases.—An indictment for obtaining property by a false pretence must not only expressly allege that the pretence was false but also set out the false pretence sufficiently [R. v. Mason 2 East P. C. 837; R. v. Oyles 6 Cox C. C. 340; R. v. Hendrick 9 Cox. C. C. 472 But see R. v. Compt 2 Q. B. 824; Sunderoff v. R.—11 Q. B. 245 See S. 223 ill. (b) infra]
5. Charge of extortion (384 I. P. C.)—Where any charge involves consequences which may be stated in a general form such as may arise in a case of arson, where a man by one act of arson sets fire to and destroys several stacks of several persons no particular is required, the nature of the offence being sufficiently stated by the date, time, and place of the setting of fire, but extortion or obtaining money from persons by unlawful means, to my mind, involves stating with some approach to accuracy the approximate amounts alleged to have been obtained from each person and the nature of the extortion against each person. It is not sufficient to say that at the close of the evidence, the accused knows what is alleged against him—17 Cr. 411 (A)
6. Cases of sedition.—If an offence under S. 124 A of the Indian Penal Code, is committed by means of words spoken, the requirements of the law are satisfied if the charge gives such a description of the words used as is reasonably sufficient to enable the accused to know the matter with which he is charged, that is, if the charge states the words used with substantial, though not absolute accuracy. [Per Benson and Wallis J. J. Sankaran Nair J. contra, in 32 M. 384; See 32 M. 3] where the accused was charged and convicted under Ss 124=A and 153=A, I. P. C. in respect of each of the two articles published in his newspapers without the specification of particular passages.

[Note.—Where previous conviction of theft is not mentioned in the charge the award of the sentence of whipping in addition to imprisonment illegal—2 Weir 265]

III. INACCURACIES IN THE CHARGE.

19. Effect of inaccuracies in the charge.—In one charge two persons were charged with causing hurt to two others with a dao but there was no case of hurt by dao by one of the accused and he was convicted under S. 352 for using a lathi against two of the complainants held that this was an irregularity which might have prejudiced the accused in their trial and that a retrial by a new Magistrate must be held on charges properly framed [17 O. N. 419] Where the charge against the accused was to the effect that he, on or before the 21st January, 1907, committed breach of trust in respect of some deeds which he took from the complainant but at the trial he was convicted of embezzling not the deeds but amounts obtained by dealing with those deeds—held—that the conviction was bad [12 O. N. 577]

- 19A. Duty of Magistrates to frame accurate charges.—Magistrates cannot exercise too much care when they proceed to frame a charge. The charge-sheet is a very important document and the drawing up of it a very important act in a criminal trial—11 A. J. 188

IV. PREVIOUS CONVICTION.

20. Meaning of previous conviction.—A previous conviction for the purpose of affecting the punishment which a Court is competent to award is a conviction the penalty following which had been undergone by the accused (in whole or in part) at the time when he committed the offence for which he is being tried—C. P. Cr. Cr. Pt II No. 19

21. The procedure.—Where it is intended to prove a previous conviction for the purpose of affecting punishment it should be entered in the charge and the accused should be called on to plead thereto; his mere admission that he has been in jail once is insufficient to show that he pleaded guilty to a previous conviction—33 P. L. 1911. 4 R. R. 177-21 W. R. 40 22 W. R. 39; Rat 70; 2 Weir 265; 2 Weir 265.

- to in S. 35 Cr. P. C. If the Magistrate thinks that the accused deserves an enhanced punishment, the best course for him is to commit the accused for trial to the Court of Sessions.—11 A. 391.
33. S. 221 (7) does not apply to an order under S. 505 Cr. P. C.—The provisions of S. 221 (7) Cr. P. C. does not apply to an order under S. 505 Cr. P. C. and such an order can be legally passed without the previous conviction on which it is based, having been mentioned in the charge.—9 N. 85
34. The High Court.—Evidence of previous convictions disclosed after the trial, does not justify the High Court in enhancing a sentence in the exercise of its revisional power.—Rat 457: See Rat 458

35. American Law.—Under the N. Y. Code, the time and place when and where a crime was committed must be stated with certainty in the indictment but it is not necessary to prove them as stated unless they are necessary ingredients of the offence [People v. Stocking 50 Barb 573] the doctrine is general, that where time is material it must to the extent of such materiality be alleged correctly and proved as laid

222. (1) The charge shall contain such particulars as to the time and place of the alleged offence, and the person (if any) against whom, or the thing (if any) in respect of which, it was committed, as are reasonably sufficient to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged

(2) When the accused is charged with criminal breach of trust or dishonest misappropriation of money, it shall be sufficient to specify the gross sum in respect of which the offence is alleged to have been committed, and the dates between which the offence is alleged to have been committed, without specifying particular items or exact dates, and the charge so framed shall be deemed to be a charge of one offence within the meaning of section 231.

Provided that the time included between the first and last of such dates shall not exceed one year.

Notes.

(1) General,

1. Particulars as to time place etc.—A committing Magistrate is bound under S. 222, 223, to insert in the heads of charges, sufficient particulars of time, place person and circumstances as would give each of the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged [15 B. 491: 17 Cr 411 (A)] In the absence of anything to show that all the accused acted in concert, an omission to specify in the charge, the particulars as to the time and place of the commission of the offence as alleged against each of the accused, must seriously prejudice their defence and amounts to a gross violation of the provisions of Ss 221 and 222 of the Code.—See Judgment of Naper J in 25 M T 379] In an indictment under S. 1031 P C, the charge should specify the person to whom the property belonged [14 W R 13]
2. Effect of omission to specify particulars.—In a case in which the charge did not contain such particulars as to time and place as were reasonably sufficient to give notice to the accused of the matter with which he was charged, the High Court set aside the conviction and acquitted the accused.—25 W R 46 See 7 B L (4p) 60
3. In a charge under S. 37 / I. P. C.—The only fact proved against the accused was that he habitually wore woman's clothes and exhibited physical signs of having committed the offence, held that the conviction could not be sustained, as the charge did not specify the time when, the place where and any known or unknown person with whom the particular act charged as an offence under S. 377 I. P. C. was committed.—6 A 204.

4. Cheating.—In a case of an attempt to cheat, the omission in the charge to specify the person upon whom the alleged attempt to cheat was made, and also the manner in which it was intended by the accused to influence the conduct of that person is a serious defect.—3 C N 278
5. Criminal breach of trust.—Where the charge against the accused was that he, on or before the 21st day of Jan'y 1907, committed breach of trust in respect of certain deeds which he took from the complainant but, at the trial he was convicted of embezzling, not the deeds, but amounts obtained by dealing with those deeds, held the conviction under S. 406 I P C was bad and must be set aside.—12 C N 577
6. Defamation.—A charge of defamation should set forth the particular occasions on which the defamation is said to have been committed.—30 C 402
7. Offences of which guilty intention is an essential ingredient.—See Note No 11 under S. 221 Cr P C Supra
8. The principle as applied to appeals against acquittal.—In an appeal from an order acquitting a person of a specific offence, the Court will not convict that person of an offence entirely different from that charged against him in the grounds of appeal. Where therefore, the grounds of appeal, were clearly directed against the acquittal of the respondent on a charge of murder, and it was now held suggested that he had committed an offence under S. 201 I P C, the Chief Court declined to convict him of the latter offence.—[63 P. L. 1911]

9. The test of sufficiency of particulars specified in the charge.—The test of the sufficiency of the particulars as to time and place mentioned in the charge, is whether the accused has reasonable notice of the accusation against him. No general rule can be laid down, for while in some charges, it may be necessary to specify the time and place, it may be unreasonable to require the prosecution to do so in others [Rat. 659]. Courts have a wide discretion in the matter and no general rule, as to the particulars required can be laid down [1 B 610]. But where an accused was convicted under S 406 read with S 116 I. P. C. without any specified charge being framed against him, but it appeared that he had knowledge, of the charge as he put in a written statement denying it, held that his conviction was valid and should be set aside [12 C N 577 See 17 Cr. 411 (A)].

10. Omission to specify common object.—In an indictment charging the accused with being members of an unlawful assembly, the omission to specify the common object in the charge, though a defect, will not vitiate the trial, unless, it has really prejudiced the accused. (18) M. N 129 See Note No. 1, under S 223 Cr P infra.

(2) Embezzlement Criminal Misappropriation etc.

11. Charge in the Law.—By enacting subs (2) the Code of 1898 has superseded the rulings under the former Codes [vide (96) 24 C. 193 (98) 2 C N 341 (343)] which laid down that an accused person could not be charged with, and tried at the same time for Criminal misappropriation of a sum which was not the subject of a single act of misappropriation but represented a general deficiency consisting of a series of separate defalcations spread over a length of time. The conflict of rulings [See 19 B. 749 17 A. 153] has now been set at rest by subs (2).

12. The object and effect of Subs. (2).—“It seems difficult to conceive that the Legislature should have intended that under S 222, the prosecutor should be at liberty, to prosecute for a gross sum misappropriated during a particular period, consisting of certain items more than 3 in number, and obtain a conviction for the same, and then choose another gross sum consisting of three different items, alleged to have been misappropriated during the same period, and have a separate trial for the second group of items. Where (therefore) a person has been tried and convicted for the misappropriation of a gross sum of money, during a certain period, S 193 Cr. P. C. will be far to the second prosecution, of the man for certain items of misappropriation during the same period.”—Per Abdul Rahim and Ayling J.J. in 17 Cr 30 (M) : See however 12 B R 225

13. Does subs (2) apply to a single accused only?—In 16 C N. 660. Holman and Sharfu Khan J. J. lay down that the “wording of S 222 Cr. P. C. refers to a single accused, and it must be so, because it is impossible to hold that two persons can be guilty of misappropriation of the same parcel of money. S 239 has no application to such a case. This view has been expressly dissented from in 17 Cr. 30 (M) by Abdul Fahu and Ayling J. J. who hold that there is nothing in S. 222 Cr. P. C. compelling the inference that it contemplates the trial of one person only at a time.—[See also 30 B. 49.]

14. S. 222 () an exception to the general rule.—S. 222, is an exception to the general rule that at a trial for an offence certain particulars must be given in the charge. Cl. (2) of S 222 modifies the rule as to charges for criminal breach of trust, but does not restrict in any way the scope and object of S 234 Cr. P. C.—[12 B R 226] The section clearly admits of the trial of any number of acts of breach of trust committed within the year as amounting only to one offence. It does not require any particular formulation of the accusation, but only enacts that it is sufficient to show the aggregate offence without specifying the details: i.e. the particular items of which the gross sum is composed—30 B R 229 M 558 See 16 P. W. 1907]. S 222 Cr. P. C. provides for the charge being framed in respect of gross sums misappropriated within 12 months from the first to last, and enacts that a charge so framed shall be deemed to be a charge within the meaning of S 234 Cr. P. C. but it does not follow that the acts so charged shall be deemed to be one transaction within the meaning of S. 235 Cr. P. C.—[30 M 326]

15. Cases.—Where a charge of Criminal misappropriation consisted of three counts, alleging misappropriation on three different occasions, viz. of those items being made up of three smaller sums of money each, held that such a charge was a valid charge under S. 234 Cr. P. C.—[27 A 9 Fd in 29 M 558 (561) 24 A. 251, 33 A 36 1 S 38 31 C. 928] Where an accused person was prosecuted on charges of criminal breach of trust in respect of two cheques and also on another charge in respect of a gross sum made up of three different items, which might have been but were not specified, the trial is, in fact not on five distinct charges but is only for three offences, and is therefore legal under S 234 Cr. P. C.—[29 M 558] Where a person was put upon his trial for embezzlement of three sums in one year and one charge was drawn up, in which all the three sums and the persons from whom he collected them were

P. C. [32 C. 1085]

16. Application of Subs (2) S. 222 Cr. P. C.—

(a) only only to agency in an to specify it it applies bare been but are not, specified.—29 M. 558.

(b) The second clause of S 222 refers to cases of Criminal breach of trust or dishonest misappropriation of money. This subsection cannot be applied to S. 177 I. P. C.—[41 C 722; 35 C. 450]

26 C 569] The trial of three charges of Criminal breach of trust and three of falsification of accounts, at one and the same trial, is opposed to Ss 222 and 274 Cr. P. C. [11 C 722. 30 M 328. 30 A 351. 13 A. J. 1059. 17 Cr. 369 (M). (11) M. N. 536. 17 M. J. 141]

(c) A charge of cheating relating to a sum total consisting of 26 different items is not justified by this subsection and a conviction on such a charge cannot be upheld—1 A. J. 599

(d) The joinder of three charges of theft or misappropriation of specific articles committed at different times, with a charge of misappropriation of the aggregate of ten items of money (the cost price or proceeds of those articles) amounts to a misjoinder vitiating the trial [18 Cr. 310 (C)]

(e) A person cannot be charged and convicted at one trial of the offences of mischief and criminal misappropriation in respect of a large number of trees cut by him at different times in one year, when there is nothing to show that all the fellings are so connected as to form one transaction under S 235 Cr. P. C.—(11) M. N. 467

17. General Rules.

(1) Charge to be confined within a period of one year.—A trial held on a charge referring to items which extend over a period of more than one year is illegal—14 P. R. 1905. See 11 C 106

(2) Charge should not be vague.—In a case of criminal breach of trust, a general charge of embezzlement mentioning the gross sum misappropriated as laid down in subs. (2) is sufficient, but it is defective and must fall through, when the accused appear to have been prejudiced by not having any definite charge to answer—16 P. W. 1937. 17 C N 479

(3) Charge how to be framed where several persons are implicated.—Where two persons are implicated in a case of criminal misappropriation, or breach of trust, with respect to a certain sum of money, the charges against them are of misappropriation in one case and of abetment in the other. It is also open to the Court to frame the charges against each individual accused in the alternative, i. e. of misappropriation or of abetment—16 C. N. 600

18. Rules as to charges of falsification of account.—A series of alterations in accounts made to cover a defalcation might all be charged in one charge under the provisions of S 477-A., and there are not three distinct offences committed by an accused person, merely by reason of the fact that he makes more than one false entry to cover one defalcation. It is impossible to take a series of false entries referring to three different defalcations in the same trial although it might be possible to try three defalcations in one charge or to try a whole series of falsified accounts in one charge [41 C 722]. As the law stands only three offences of misappropriation can be joined at the same trial. The combination of 120 items in the absence of anything to show that it was a case of making a number of false entries in various books etc., to conceal one misappropriation was illegal [38 A 42. See 26 C 560. 4 B R 433]

19. Effect of inaccuracies.—Where the accused was charged with embezzlement committed between 17th Aug 1909 and 15th Aug 1910, but the evidence did not disclose any completed act of breach of trust between these two dates and it appeared that most part of the money criminally misappropriated by the accused were received by him before the 17th Aug 1909, held—that the error in the charge and the discrepancy between the dates specified and actual dates on which the offence appeared to have been committed was not a mere irregularity which might be cured by S 537 Cr. P. C. It vitiated the whole trial.—17 C. N. 479.

223. When the nature of the case is such that the particulars mentioned in sections 221 and,

When manner of committing offence must be stated 222 do not give the accused sufficient notice of the matter with which he is charged, the charge shall also contain such particulars of the manner in which the alleged offence was committed as will be sufficient for that purpose

Illustrations

(1) A is accused of the theft of a certain article at a certain time and place. The charge need not set out the manner in which the theft was effected

(2) A is accused of cheating B at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A cheated B

(3) A is accused of giving false evidence at a given time and place. The charge must set out that portion of the evidence given by A which is alleged to be false

(4) A is accused of obstructing B, a public servant, in the discharge of his public functions at a given time and place. The charge must set out the manner in which A obstructed B in the discharge of his functions

(5) A is accused of the murder of B at a given time and place. The charge need not state the manner in which A murdered B.

(f) A is accused of disobeying a direction of the law with intent to save B from punishment. The charge must set out the disobedience charged and the law infringed.

Notes.

1. Rioting and unlawful assembly.—The offence of rioting can be legally described by its specific name, and the question whether any particulars are necessary under S 223 Cr. P. C. must be a question of discretion according to the circumstances of each case. But, as a matter of law it is otherwise with a charge under S 149 I. P. C. There is no specific name of the offence, and the fact that any offence is committed in prosecution of the common object is of the essence of the case, and there could be no conviction for any offence committed with a different common object. It is therefore obligatory to set out the common object in a charge under S. 149, unless it has been already specified in the main charge under S 147. [39 C 781 See 22 C 276; 7 C N. 512 (513)]

2. Resent of omission to set out the common object.—The general rule has been stated thus in the leading case of Behari Mahtan 11 C 163 "In a charge of rioting it is necessary that the common object of the unlawful assembly, should be set out, as an accused person is entitled to know with certainty and accuracy the exact nature of the charge brought against him." [See 26 C 630] Where the charge is defective as not specifying the property the taking possession of which is supposed to be the common object, S 537 Cr. P. C. will not cure the defect particularly when the specification of the property would alter the whole complexion of the case. [33 C 295. See 3 C N 605] The rule may be reduced to the form of a question. "Is the omission material that is to say, has the failure to specify the common object, in fact, prejudiced the accused?" If it has, the omission is fatal [See rulings quoted above 36 C 865] If it has not, or in other about the 15th April 1871, gave false evidence not sufficient. [3 N. P. 314] Where the charge was that "you on or about the 7th May 1904, at gave false evidence in a judicial proceeding namely in a case under S 133 I. P. C. and there committed an offence punishable under S 133," was held that the charge was vague and defective and the conviction was set aside. [10 O N 109] The charge should set out in direct narration the exact words alleged to constitute the false evidence and not a paraphrase.—[1 L. B. 268, 7 N 137.]

Note.—Where precise words need not be given.—Where in a proceeding for perjury, the Court stated that the whole of the evidence of witnesses convinced him of the existence of a conspiracy on their part to make it appear that a certain date, a certain person was a partner in a firm and that all they had said was material to the issue was a tissue of deliberate falsehoods, held that the having regard to the nature of the charge, the Judge was making against the witnesses, it did not admit of being formulated in a series of special allegations. [See 10 O N 109] (P. C.) See 2 W. R. 51.

(d) Occasion.—State of the judicial proceeding.—It is essential to a charge under S 191 P. C. that the prosecution should make out that on a day stated in the charge a judicial proceeding was pending and that the prisoner in the course of the proceeding made the statement alleged to be false. The particular stage of proceeding should be mentioned in the charge.—1 B. L. (ap) 13 13 W. R.

5. General rule applicable to charges of perjury.—Charges of perjury should contain a distinct assertion with regard to each statement intended to be characterised as perjury, that was made, that it is untrue in fact and that the accused knew it to be so, when he made it. The investigation of the Court should be directed to each of these points singly.—9 W. R. 54

6. Where it is doubtful which of the two contradictory statements is false.—When it is impossible to decide which of the prisoner's two contradictory statements is false, which is true, he should be charged in the alternative, and convicted on the alternative charge. natur, and convicted on the alternative charge. 1 W. 3. What must be set out in a charge of perjury.

(a) Date.—The charge should disclose the exact date on which the offence was committed.—7 B. L. (ap) 66

(b) Place.—The Court or officer before whom the false evidence was given should be specified [Ibid]

(c) Exact words of the statement.—Charges of perjury ought to be based strictly upon the exact words which were used by the person who is charged; and no evidence which does not profess to give those exact words can alone be a safe foundation for a conviction.—[23 W. R. 28 7 B L. (ap) 66. 8 W. R. 95. 5 W. R. 71. See 9 W. R. 14. 9 W. R. 25; 17 W. R. 32. 17 W. R. 37; 36 C. 604; Rat 152; 1 L. B 268; 36 P. the same deposition is one aggregate case of giving false evidence, charges of false evidence cannot be multiplied according to the number of false statements contained in the deposition—6 M. H. (pp) 27.

9. Sedition.—(S 124—A I. P. C.) See Note No 16 under S, 221 supra.

10. Conspiracy.—See. Notes Nos 12 14 under S 221 supra

11. Effect of charge being vague.—Where the accused was charged under S 217 I P C and the charge did not distinctly state what the direction of the law was which he had disobeyed, and how he had disobeyed the same, held that the charge having been expressed in vague terms, the prosecution, on appeal, should be limited to the particular sense in which the charge was understood at the trial.—2 B 112.

12. Charge of arson and extortion.—Where any charge involves consequences which may be stated in a general form, such as may arise in a case of arson, where a man may, by one act of arson set fire to and destroy, several stacks of several persons, no particular is required, the nature of the offence being sufficiently stated by the date, time and place of the setting of fire, but extortion or obtaining money from persons the close of the evidence, the accused knows what is alleged against him—Per Walsh J in 17 Cr 411 (A) the accused was in fact misled by such error or omission, and it has occasioned a failure of justice.

(a) A is charged, under section 242 of the Indian Penal Code, with "having been in possession of counterfeit coin, having known at the time when he became possessed thereof that such coin was counterfeit," the word "fraudulently" being omitted in the charge Unless it appears that A was in fact misled by this omission, the error shall not be regarded as material

(b) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge, or is set out incorrectly. A defends himself, calls witnesses and gives his own account of the transaction The Court may infer from this that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating is not material

(c) A is charged with cheating B, and the manner in which he cheated B is not set out in the charge. There were many transactions between A and B, and A had no means of knowing to which of them the charge referred, and offered no defence The Court may infer from such facts that the omission to set out the manner of the cheating was, in the case, a material error

(d) A is charged with the murder of Khoda Baksh on the 21st January 1882 In fact, the murdered person's name was Haidar Baksh, and the date of the murder was the 20th January 1882 A was never charged with any murder but one, and had heard the inquiry before the Magistrate which referred exclusively to the case of Haidar Baksh The Court may infer from these facts that A was not misled, and that the error in the charge was immaterial

(e) A was charged with murdering Haidar Baksh on the 20th January 1882, and Khoda Baksh (who tried to arrest him for that murder) on 21st January 1882 When charged for the murder of Haidar Baksh, he was tried for the murder of Khoda Baksh The witnesses present in his defence were witnesses in the case of Haidar Baksh The Court may infer from this that A was misled and that the error was material

Notes.

1. Test of prejudice.—Where the accused persons fully understood the nature of the offence with which they were charged, it was held that the mere omission of the word "dishonestly" in a charge of theft, could not possibly have prejudiced them in their defence [10 B. H 373; See 32 M 3] Where the error in the charge, could not in fact mislead the accused, who were all defended by counsel and were fully cognizant of the nature and particulars of the case which each of them had to meet, it could not be regarded, at any stage of the case, as material. [17 P. R. 1915] The mere absence of any formal charge of using insulting language in addition to the charge of criminal trespass, will not justify an annulment of the proceedings, when the said language was complained of from the very first by the complainant [3 W. R. 28]. An omission to frame a separate charge of theft in addition to the charge of murder was held not to have caused a failure of justice, even though the accused was acquitted of murder but convicted of and sentenced for theft [(188) A. N. 95]. If the charge is drawn up in a somewhat informal manner but is sufficiently explicit to give the accused notice of the charge, the irregularity is cured by this section [13 B. 77].

2. When a failure of justice may be inferred.—Where the accused was charged, and convicted in the alternative either under S 182 or under S 193 I P C, held that the charge was bad in law, being an alternative charge in a form forbidden by S 233, and the accused, should be held to have been prejudiced by the course adopted [10 B 124. See Rat 336 401; 503; 21 C. 955; 24 B 533 78 96 1 L. B 101]. Where the charge was that the accused, had committed criminal breach of trust in respect of certain deeds entrusted to him, but he was convicted of embezzlement of certain amounts of money obtained by a fraudulent use of those deeds, held that the conviction was bad. [12 C. N. 577] When a case is tried as a warrant case, and a charge drawn up any offence which is triable only as a summary case with which it is sought to charge the accused should form a part of the charge, as otherwise the accused would be misled in his defence [29 C. 481]. It is illegal to convict an accused person of the offence of rioting with a common object other than that specified in the charge as it is manifest that the accused had no opportunity of defending themselves with reference to the same. [27 C. 900; 2 C. J. 516. See Sankaran Nair J. in 6 M. T. 17. 40 C. 168.] An Appellate Court is bound to acquit the accused if it disbelieves the common object found by the Lower Court. It cannot convict the accused on the basis of some other common object [27 C. 99]. The question in each case is whether the common object found agrees in essential particulars with the common object as stated in the charge. If the difference is only slight, the accused cannot be held to have been misled or prejudiced [35 C. 394; 36 C. 805. See 36 C. 158 22 C. 391].

2. A is charged with forging a valuable security under section 467 of the Indian Penal Code. A charge of fabricating false evidence under section 193 may be added.
3. A is charged with receiving stolen property knowing it to be stolen. During the trial it is established that he has in his possession instruments for the purpose of counterfeiting coin. A charge under section 235 of the Indian Penal Code cannot be added.

Notes.

1. Meaning of the word "charge."—See Note No. 1, under S. 221, supra.
2. Meaning of "without a charge"—The words "without a charge" not only refer to the charge as framed, but also to the manner in which it is framed, and ought to be so framed as to be clear and precise.
3. The stage at which a charge may be altered.—On a trial by Jury, the Court of Session has no power after a charge after the delivery of the verdict [5 B II (C. C.) 9]. A Sessions Judge acts without proper discretion, when he adds a new and grave charge after the close of the defence and continues the trial without a adjournment [6 C. N. 72].

4. Limits within which the power to add or alter charges may be exercised.—The Sessions Court is not a Court of original jurisdiction, and though vested with large powers of amendment or adding to charges, it can only do so with reference to the immediate subject of the commitment and prosecution, and not with regard to matter not covered by the indictment [22 C. 22. 20 P. W. 1009]. The addition of a charge which is not supported by the evidence before the committing Magistrate is ultra vires and is merely an error of procedure. [3 M. 311 22 C. 22 11 B. H. 274.] Three persons were committed for trial before the Sessions Judge, two of them charged with culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and the third with abetment of the same. At the trial, the Sessions the Judge suddenly added a grave charge like dacoity and proceeded with the trial without even granting an adjournment and convicted the accused on the newly added charge, held that the Judge had altogether failed to exercise a proper discretion [6 C. N. 73]

- (b) Magistrate.—It is certainly not the intention of this section that a Magistrate should cancel a charge and substitute an entirely different charge as that would amount to an evasion of the provisions of other sections of the Code. [(97-'01) U B I 64]

2. The section is not intended to cure illegality.—Where a person is charged with, and tried for four offences committed in the same year, it act under and con

The word to warrant a Court in altering a charge, by striking out one of the charges, at any time before judgment, but the section does not seem to warrant the striking out of a charge, for the purposes of curing an illegality which has been committed. Disobedience to an express provision as to the mode of trial cannot be regarded as a mere irregularity, within the meaning of S 537 Cr P C.—29 M. 569 25 M Gl (P. C.). 20 P. W. 1909

3. What the term "alter" signifies and includes.—The words "or add" which were introduced by the Code of 1898 have removed the conflict of decisions with regard to the scope of the term "alter". The amendment confirms the view of Satt in S B 205 (F. B.), that the word "alter" in S 227 must be taken to be equivalent to the words "add to or otherwise alter" as used in S 226. Therefore the addition of a new head of charge is alteration within the meaning of the section [See also 9 A 525, 3 N P. 337 & 1 605]. In the same case, Sargent C. J. and the majority of the Full Bench (See at pp 211, 214) held that the word "alter" did not include the addition of a new charge. [8 B. 209 (F. B.)] The word alter includes withdrawal by the Sessions Judge of a charge added by him to the charge on which the commitment was made.—[12 A 551]

4. Limits within which a charge may be altered or added to.—As a matter of general principle, an alteration of or addition to a charge is permissible only when the amendment, has not the effect of changing the whole complexion of defence set up by him through his counsel the prisoner is likely to be prejudiced in his defence on the merits. [6 H. H (C. C) 76].

5. Cases in which the amendment has been held to have caused a failure of justice.—The addition of a charge under S 141 I. P. C to charges under Ss 431 and 426 I. P. C. on which appellants were tried in the Lower Court, is not permissible, as such addition would have the effect of imposing a constructive responsibility for individual acts on all persons who were members at the time of the assembly. [16 Cr. 737 (M.)]. Where the accused was committed on the specified charge that he had given false evidence before Sessions Judge, but the Sessions Judge, at the trial, added a charge of giving false evidence by reason of contradictory statements, one before the Magistrate under S 104 Cr. P. C and the other when giving evidence before the Sessions Judge. Held that the accused was prejudiced in as much as he had no notice until the new charge was added, that he would have to meet the charge of making contradictory statements [(99) A. N. 39]. Where a complaint for rape is preferred, it is illegal on the

233. 5 A. to a normal complaint of the husband is necessary to enable the Court to take cognizance of the latter charge [29 C. 415] A court after drawing up a charge of an offence compoundable without the sanction of the Court and having recorded the accused's plea, should not alter the charge to a non-compoundable offence [29 P. R. 1914].

6. Stage at which the charge may be altered or added to.—Under S 227 Cr. P. C. the alteration in the charge is only permissible up to the time of taking the opinion of the assessors. An alteration of the charge after the assessors' opinion has been taken is illegal [30 P. R. 1916]. On a trial by jury the Sessions Judge has no power to alter the charge after the delivery of the verdict [5 B H (C C) 2] The words "return of once. [10 D. 117]

8. (b) Amendments how to be made.—Amendments in the charge ought to be made formally and should appear on the face of the record [D W. R. 14]. Whenever a Sessions Judge may see cause to amend a charge, a statement that such amendment was found necessary should form a part of the record. [1 Ag 67] When a

Magistrate amends the charge, he should not write over the original charge, but should write the amended charge on a separate sheet. The original charge should remain on the file for reference, if necessary [16 Cr 2 (L. B.)]

9. (c) Additional charges should be read over and explained.—But where the accused is defended and his counsel is present in Court, the omission to read out and explain the additional charge is an irregularity which, unless it has prejudiced the accused in his defence, does not affect the validity of the trial—8 B 200 See also 7 C 93 9 M 61.

228. If the charge framed or alteration or addition made under section 226 or section 227

When trial may proceed immediately after alteration is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of Court, to prejudice the accused in his defence or the prosecutor in the conduct of the case, the Court may in its discretion, after such charge or alteration or addition has been framed or made proceed with the trial as if the new or altered charge had been the original charge.

Note.

1. Where the newly added charge is closely related to the former charge.—A and B were tried at the same trial, A for murder and B for abetment. A confessed to having committed the murder at the instigation of B. The Sessions Judge subsequently amended the charge against

A to one of abetment. B, who was represented by a Vakil did not object to the amendment or ask for a new trial, held that since the two charges were so nearly related and there was no material prejudice, no new trial could be considered as necessary [11 B. H. 278]

229. If the new or altered or added charge is such that proceeding immediately with the

When new trial may be directed, or trial suspended trial is likely, in the opinion of the Court, to prejudice the accused or the prosecutor as aforesaid, the Court may either direct a new trial or adjourn the trial for such period as may be necessary.

Notes.

1. New trial may be waived.—Where a new charge was read aloud to the jury, but was not explained to the prisoner and he was not called upon to plead to that charge, but his counsel, on being asked, did not require a new trial, held that the accused was not prejudiced by the addition of the new charge or the omission to hold a new trial [8 B 200 (F. B.) : See 11 B H 278]. But if the trial itself is illegal, the waiver is of no avail, [20 M. J. (S. N.) 1].

2. Procedure on new trial being ordered.—Where a former trial has been set aside and a new trial ordered, the Magistrate holding the second trial is not justified in referring to the former record as a whole but he may refer to particular depositions which are specially put in evidence before him.

7 C. L. 193.

230 If the offence stated in the new or altered or added charge is one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained, unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the new or altered charge is founded.

Notes.

1. The rule as applied as to alternative charges.—When it is intended to charge a person with having made a false statement in the Court of Magistrate or (alternatively) a a false statement in the Court of a Subordinate Judge, there must be a proper sanction for a prosecution on each branch of the alternative. 11 B. H. 34.

2. When the new charge is one of abetment

—The Inspector General of Registration wrote a letter to the District Registrar directing that the accused a Sub-Registrar should be prosecuted Under Ss 417 and 468 I. P. C., but the accused was tried and convicted for the offence of abetment of forgery for the purposes of cheating (SS 469 169 I. P. C.) held that no fresh sanction was necessary, as the charge of abetment was founded on the same facts as those on which the original sanction was given—30 C 903.

3. The General Principle explained.—If the altered or added charge is one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained. Unless sanction has already been obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the new or altered charge was founded 21 Cr. 230 (P); 11 P. R. 1911: 30 C 905

231. Whenever a charge is altered or added to by the Court after the commencement of the

Recall of witnesses when charge altered trial, the prosecutor and the accused shall be allowed to recall or resummon, and examine with reference to such alteration or addition, any witness who may have been examined, and also to call any further witness whom the Court may think to be material.

Note.

1. "Shall be allowed."—When a charge is altered or added to, the Court is bound under S 231 Cr. P. C. to allow the prosecutor and the accused to recall or re-summon and examine with reference to such alteration or addition, any witness who may have been examined, and also to call any further witness whom the Court may think to be material—30 P. R. 1916

232 (1) If any Appellate Court, or the High Court in the exercise of its power of revision

Effect of material error or of its powers under Chapter XXVII, is of opinion that any person convicted of an offence was misled in his defence by the absence of a charge or by an error in the charge, it shall direct a new trial to be had upon a charge framed in whatever manner it thinks fit.

(2) If the Court is of opinion that the facts of the case are such that no valid charge could be preferred against the accused in respect of the facts proved, it shall quash the conviction.

Illustration.

A is convicted of an offence, under section 196 of the Indian Penal Code, upon a charge which omits to state that he knew the evidence, which he corruptly used or attempted to use as true or genuine, was false or fabricated. If the Court thinks it probable that A had such knowledge, and that he was misled in his defence by the omission from the charge of the statement that he had it, it shall direct a new trial upon an amended charge; but if it appears probable from the proceedings that A had no such knowledge, it shall quash the conviction.

Notes.

1. Application of the Section.—If in consequence of material errors in the charge, the accused has been misled, the High Court is bound to direct a new trial to be had upon a charge framed in the proper manner—30 P. R. 1916

2. The section interpreted.—The language in Ss 535 and 232 Cr. P. C. shows that the omission to frame a charge is not a ground for revision unless there has been a consequent miscarriage of justice. An omission to frame an alternative charge comes under the very comprehensive words "error or irregularity in any enquiry or other proceedings" in S 537 Cr. P. C.—Per Ebrahim Huss J. in (1916) 2 M. N. 297; See 24 B. 123

3. Scope of the Section.—There is nothing in the language of S 231 (b), to limit the power of an Appellate Court to direct a retrial, to cases in which the trying Magistrate has not jurisdiction. A Sessions Judge has power also under S. 232 Cr. P. C. to direct a retrial to be had upon a charge framed in whatever manner he thinks fit, on the ground that the accused has been misled in their defence by the absence of a charge or by a defect in the charges—7 C. N. 301.

[Note.—In this case the Sessions Judge thought that the omission to insert the words "or their Agents or Managers" in a charge framed under Ss. 154 and 155 I. P. C. had seriously prejudiced the accused in their defence].

4. Where S. 232, instead of S. 423 should be applied.—The complaint against the accused was originally under Ss 471 and 199 I. P. C. but the evidence at the trial was directed towards

- a charge under S. 471 I. P. C. only. The Magistrate after charging the accused under S. 471 I. P. C. eventually convicted him under S. 500 I. P. C. for defamation contained in the document Halt (1) that the Sessions Judge on appeal acted wrongly in ordering a new trial for defamation under S. 423 Cr. P. C. He should have acted under S. 232 Cr. P. C. and (2) as there was nothing on the record to show that any valid charge could be preferred against the accused, the conviction ought to be quashed, under subcl (2)—[28 C. 63 cf 30 C. 492].
5. Conviction for entirely different offences by the Appellate Court.—The accused were charged with and convicted of rioting under S. 147. On appeal the Sessions Judge set aside the conviction under S. 147 but convicted the accused under Ss. 145 and 323 I. P. C. they having never been charged with those offences. Held that conviction under those sections should be set aside, as they were distinct and separate offences which should have formed the subject of separate charges and that the accused had been prejudicial within the terms of S. 232 Cr. P. C. by the omission of those charges. [30 C. 288 : See 9 Cr. 406 (M)]. Where the accused were charged under S. 325 read with S. 149 I. P. C. they were called upon to answer a charge of grievous hurt only by implication. It amounted therefore to serious prejudice, when they were acquitted of rioting but convicted of the specific offence of causing grievous hurt [16 C. N. 1077 : See 8 C. N. 344]. But where the case against the accused was that he had instigated the lodging of a false complaint, a conviction for the substantive offence (S. 211 I. P. C.) instead of abetment was held not to have prejudiced the accused [7 C. N. 556].

6. High Court may proceed under S. 423 instead of S. 232.—Where the charge of murder was defective and incorrect with reference to the 2nd and 3rd clauses of S. 300 I. P. C., the High Court instead of ordering a new trial under S. 232, set aside the conviction of murder but convicted the accused of grievous hurt (under S. 326 I. P. C.) on his own confession and the evidence of two witnesses—8 C. 211.
7. Where the accused was held to have been "misled in his defence."—Where the accused was charged with storing wool but convicted of storing loose cotton,—held that he had no proper opportunity of answering the charge [Pat 529]. Where one of the accused was charged under S. 324 I. P. C. with having voluntarily caused hurt with a dao but convicted of using a lathi, the conviction was set aside on the ground of misleading [17 C. N. 419]. Where the charge of perjury was framed in these words : "You on or about the 7th day of May 1904, at Leslie, gave false evidence in a judicial proceeding namely, in a case under S. 133 of the Code, and thereby committed an offence punishable under S. 193 I. P. C. within my cognizance"—it was held that the prosecution could not proceed on such a vague charge [10 C. N. 1099].

Joinder of charges.

233. For every distinct offence of which any person is accused there shall be a separate charge, and every such charge shall be tried separately, except in the cases mentioned in sections 234, 235, 236 and 239.

Illustration.

A is accused of a theft on one occasion, and of causing grievous hurt on another occasion. A must be separately charged and separately tried for the theft and causing grievous hurt.

I. GENERAL REMARKS AS TO JOINDER OF CHARGES.

- (1) The general scheme of the sections relating to joinder of charges analysed.—The provisions of S 233 Cr. P. C. and the following sections of the Criminal Procedure Code require to be considered together. They occur in a subdivision of the Code headed "joinder of charges". The general principle that there shall be a separate charge and a separate trial for every distinct offence of which any person is accused is first laid down in S 233 Cr. P. C. Then follow a number of sections specifying possible exceptions. In these sections, where a Court is empowered to try offences jointly or accused persons jointly, the word "may" is used in each case and not the word "shall" as used in S 233, where the general principle is laid down. These are therefore empowering sections which require to be used with discretion and in suitable cases.—[14 A J 177, 12 B R 220.] A Court cannot be thought not to treat a case before it as in violation to the general and broad rule unless it is satisfied that in the case before it, the charges should be brought within one of the four exceptions.—[11 A J 168, 17 A J 614, 40 C 318, 11 C 722, 29 M J 381.]
- (2) The section should be strictly construed. A definite rule of law such as that enacted by S 233 Cr. P. C. cannot be disregarded to accelerate or facilitate the disposal of a case, against several offenders.—[13 N 35, 20 M J 101 (F B), 41 C 722, 10 C 840.] S 233 Cr. P. C. is mandatory and for every distinct offence, there should be a separate charge which should, except in certain cases specified be tried separately.—[40 C 168, 25 M J 381.] A trial in contravention of S 233 Cr. P. C., unless justified by the exceptional sections is not a mere irregularity but it is an illegality.—[25 M 61 (P. C.), 11 A J 168, 38 A 12, 71 B 68, 6 M 396, 25 M J 381, 24 M J 197.] The violation of a plain provision of the law is not a mere irregularity, and is, therefore, not curable by S 537 of the Code.—[25 M 61 (P. C.), 11 C 722, 41 C 662, 29 C 355, 14 C 1, 1067, 10 C 51, 8 C 180, 6 C J 75, 2 C 1018, 1 C J 475, 30 M 328, 26 M 125, 17 C 645 (M), 16 Cr 298 (M), 6 B R 725, 1 B R 441, 4 B R 140, 4 B R 57, 25 A 195, 6 A J 177, 14 P R 1905, 4 P R 1905, 101 P L, 1904, 16 P R 1902, 15 C P 53, 17 C P, 159, 1 L B 361, 5 O C 243.]
3. 25 M. 61 (P. C.) the leading case explained.—What their Lordships of the Privy Council in 25 M. 61 have prohibited, is, that if the law expressly provides a particular mode of trial, disobedience of that law vitiates the whole trial. It is doubtful if the framing of charges is a mode of trial, but joint trial of charges as to distinct offences would be a mode of trial and if the accused is tried jointly on several charges not coming under ss. 233 to 236 and 239, that trial would be null and void. Therefore a charge which contravenes the first part of S. 233 is an irregularity covered by S 537 Cr. P. C. [Per Beach & Hamilton JJ. (Fletcher J. contra) in 10 C. N. 972, 41 C. 60; See also 48 C. 712, 25 M. T. 372, 12 P. R. 1918.]
- (3) The application of the law relating to joinder of charges.
4. The exceptional sections.—Ss. 234, 235, 236 and 239 of the Criminal Procedure Code referred to as exceptions to S 233 are not mutually exclusive, otherwise the provisions of Ss. 236 or 237 can never be invoked to prevent a miscarriage of justice arising from a failure to make good all the details of a charge joined with two other charges under S 234. The Legislature hardly intended that a joint trial of three offences under S. 234 should prevent the prosecution from establishing at the same trial the minor or alternative degrees of criminality involved in the acts complained of. Ss 235 and 236 may be resorted to in framing additional charges, where the trial is under S 234, of three offences of the same kind committed within a year.—Per Scott C. J. and Butcher J. in 10 B. R. 973; See 33 B. 221; 33 D. 77; Con 32 A. 219.
 5. S. 233 Cr. P. C. does not control proceedings before the Committing Magistrate.—As regards misjoinder, Sec 233 Cr. P. C. no doubt prohibits the joint trial of separate charges, with respect to separate transactions. But an enquiry before a Committing Magistrate is not a trial and does not come within the prohibition contained in S 233 Cr. P. C.—35 M J 259, 20 M. 592, 7 B. R. 457.
 6. S 233 Cr P C does not apply to miscellaneous proceedings.—The law, as to the joinder of charges, against a person accused of definite offences has no application to an inquiry under S 110 cl (d) [11 C N 789].
 7. Does Ss. 233 to 239 apply to summons cases?—A charge is an essential element in any trial and if the provisions as to joinder of charges do not apply to summons cases there are no other provisions of law to guide Magistrates. In a summons case, it is not necessary to have a charge embodied in writing, but none the less the section applies to summons cases also; so also when an accused person is charged with several distinct offences, even in a summons case, the trial is illegal and a retrial will be ordered.—[3 L B 52 (L B), 3 L B. 113.] It has been held therefore by Mookerjee and Becheroff J. J. in 41 C. 694, 3 L B. 52 (L. B.) that the fact that a case under the Bengal Excise Act (I of 1904) has taken place as a summons case, does not exclude the application of this section. In (1912) M. N. 60, the rule was held to be applicable to a trial for levy of excess toll under S. 19 of Act II of 1890 each levy of excess toll, being held to constitute a separate offence.
 8. The rule as to misjoinder does not apply to trial of cross-cases on "parallel lines."—Where two cross-cases of rioting were tried separately but for all practical purposes, simultaneously, the accused in one case being examined as witnesses for the prosecution in the other, held that as the charges were framed on different days and separate judgments were delivered, though on the same day, the mode of trial and the procedure adopted did not vitiate the trial as the accused were not prejudiced thereby [8 C. N. 341. See 20 C 537.] In an almost exactly parallel case, the High Court held that the Magistrate had acted improperly and ordered a new trial [See 17 C L 275.]

(4) Object of the rule and its variations.

9. Object of the rule.—The section contains the general law and the reason of it is that the mind of the Court might be prejudiced against the prisoner, if he were tried in one trial upon different charges resting upon different evidence. It might be difficult for the Court trying him in one of the charges not to be unfairly influenced by the evidence against him on the other charges.—[Per Paterson C.J. in 7 A 174 (177)] The accused are likely to be benefited in their defence by having to lation, to induce an undue suspicion against the accused [See 15 B 191 1 S 73.] One of the objects the limitation is to prevent the accused being embarrassed by a multiplicity of charges [29 M 569.]

10. Reason of the exceptions.—The Legislature having specially empowered the Courts with large powers as regards joinder of persons and joinder of charges, resort must be had to those powers. The object was to avoid the necessity of same witnesses giving the same evidence two or three times over in different trials, and to join in one trial those offences with regard to which the evidence would overlap [1 S 73.]

II. EFFECT OF MISJOINDER—ON THE VALIDITY OF THE TRIAL.

(1) The rules laid down by the Privy Council in Subramanyam's case.

11. The accused in this case was tried for several distinct offences (41 acts spread over a period exceeding 12 months from first to last in contravention of S. 231. The Full Bench of the High Court held that the trial amounted to an irregularity which was curable by S. 537 infra. On appeal to the Privy Council the very important dictum was laid down that "a disobedience to an express provision of the law as to the mode of trial can not be regarded as mere irregularity but amount to an illegality which is not curable under S. 537 Cr. P. C." It was further ruled that (1) such an illegality could not be amended by arranging afterwards what might or might not have been properly submitted to the jury, and thereupon support the conviction by or appropriate the finding of guilty to so much of it as was legal. (2) to allow such a course would leave to the Court the functions of the jury, and the accused would never have been really tried at all upon the charge afterwards arranged by the Court. [25 M 61 (P. C.)=28 I A 257=5 C. N. 886=3 B R. 540.]

Note.—The Privy Council decision has over-ruled: 27 C 839 (F. B.); 28 C 1011 28 C. 7, 28 C. 10 20 C 537. 21 P. R. 1001; 21 A. 127; 14 A. 502; 11 M. 441; 12 M. 273; 10 M. J. 147 (F. B.). Rat 212. 1 B 610 and confirmed: 14 C. 128. 14 C. 395. 22 C 176; 61 P. L. 1900.

(2) The ruling as distinguished and explained in later cases.

12. Joint trial of three separate complaints.—Where three separate complaints were laid against the accused by the same complainant for cheating three different tenants while engaged in the collection of rent on behalf of the complainant held that the defect of drawing up a single charge, amounted to a misjoinder [76]; and 5 and 537 128.

13. The ruling explained and distinguished.

—In this case, the accused was charged along with two others of having committed an offence punishable under S. 147 I. P. C. He was also charged under S. 323 I. P. C. with having caused hurt to two persons K. and R. but only one charge was framed against the petitioner in respect of the hurt caused to these two persons. Held per Backhouse J. (Shahjudin J. concurring Fletcher J. contra) Not only is the decision in Subramanyam's case not an authority on the result of a disregard of the first part of S. 233 Cr. P. C. but the "generality of expressions" used in the judgment does not even bear on the question.  The sentence ("Their Lordships are unable to regard the disobedience to an express provision as to a of trial" in that sentence have reference to the —"lead of course "have when to an express provision as to a mode of trial" they do not refer to a formal defect in the proceeding in a trial which is properly constituted.  The first part of the section is designed to give the accused notice of the charges against him. The object is that he shall not be convicted of an offence with which he has not been charged. This object is not frustrated, and the accused is not prejudiced if the accusations against him are written in one sentence or on one sheet of paper, instead of in two sentences or on two sheets of paper. [19 C. N. 972; 11 C. N. 54 relied on.] Reg v. Guldens (42) Car and Mar 634 R. V. James Andrew Thompson 24 Cox C. C. 43 Fd.]

14. Misjoinder of charges is not rendered fatal in all cases by the Privy Council ruling.—I do not think that the decision of

- 1 P. O for the possession of stolen articles which were not shown to have come into his possession on different occasions though it was proved that they were stolen from several persons at different times, held that it was not shown that the accused was prejudiced on account of a defect in the charge and the Court of appeal could not interfere.—36 P. L. 110. See 9 C. J. 142 (150). 13 C. N. 415. 11 C. N. 1128.
21. Nine separate items of falsifications of account.—Where an accused, a public servant, was charged with nine separate falsifications of account, held that the non-specification of the alleged false entries in the charge did not vitiate the trial, as the accused knew the subject of the charge and was not prejudiced in his defence and did not object to it in the Court of Sessions.—(12) M. N. 345

22. Forgery of eleven receipts.—When a person was charged with forging 11 rent receipts and using the forged documents on three different occasions (in three sets in three different suits pending against him) and three charges were framed against him one for each set of forged receipts, held that as the using charged were merely the putting in of each set of documents in each suit simultaneously together with the written state-

III. THE RULE IN S. 233 (1ST PART) EXPLAINED.

(1) General Principle explained.

23. The General principle.—It is illegal to frame one charge for two distinct offences. For each offence a separate charge ought to be made (though several charges may be tried together) [40 C. 840. 10 C. N. 529]. The joinder an one charge of two distinct offences, though arising out of the same transaction is an illegality fatal to the trial [10 C. N. 63. See 33 C. 292]. A joinder in one charge of two offences of attempting to cheat committed on two successive dates, is an illegality which vitiates the trial, and is not cured by S. 537 [10 C. N. 529. Fd. in 13 C. N. 1067 (Per Jenkins C. J. and Moulton J.)]. 6 C. J. 757. but see 27 B. 135]. Three separate offences not of the same offence, a separate charge must necessarily be made against each prisoner and a separate trial must be held on each charge [3 M. H. (ap) xxvii. See 5 S. 129. But See 14 B. R. 972]. False evidence given by several accused in the same trial being distinct offences should be separately charged and tried. [4 A. 293. 5 A. 17. 10 C. 405. 4 B. R. 38. 4 B. R. 63. 39 P. R. 1888. Rat. 31]. Every breach of the conditions of a license or permit is a distinct offence and under S. 233 Cr. P. C. should be made the subject of a separate charge and tried separately [2 L. W. 933]. Where accused's servants levied excess toll, held that each individual levy of excess toll constituted a separate offence and Ss. 233 and 234 Cr. P. C. would apply. [(12) M. N. 69]. Even though offences constituting the same transaction (three dacoities in the same night) can be charged and tried at one trial, yet they should be separately charged. A violation of this rule amounts to illegality and a conviction on such a defective should frame the charge so as to contain a separate head for each offence [7 W. R. 8. 11 A. J. 188]. So two distinct offences of criminal breach of trust ought not to be included in one charge [17 C. N. exhn.]

(2) The rule illustrated by examples.

24. Procedure.—Charges against three persons, though not for the same offences, should not be single and joint but several and specific [5 A. 17]. Each act of giving false evidence being a separate public servant and the Magistrate, held that the first, on oath before a Magistrate, held that the two statements being irreconcilable, that is to a public say, the first being made only once to a public

CHARGE
[10 B. 124].

IV. SEVERAL ACTS CONSTITUTING ONLY ONE OFFENCE.

(1) The practice of law incorporated in S. 233 Cr. P. C.

25. Different felonies constituting only one charge.—"It is a well established rule of practice that if different felonies, not being different acts of describing the same act, are charged in separate counts of an indictment, the Judge will put the prosecutor to his election to proceed and offer evidence on one charge only."—Lord Halsbury's Laws of England: Vol IX. p. 312.

(2). The principle explained and illustrated.

26. The point to be considered.—When the offence is directed against several persons or in effecting it the accused, commits felony in respect of several things or items, the most important point to be considered is, was the offence as a whole committed in the course of the same transaction or not? It has been held that community of purpose or design and continuity of action are essential elements of the connection necessary to link together different acts into one and the same transaction [See 23 M. T. 220; 27 B. 135; 30 B. 4; 16 B. 411; 15 B. 491; 26 M. 125]. If the component parts of the offence are divisible and can be regarded as consisting of several distinctly separate counts not interdependent on each other, and not referable to one single and indivisible aim or object, they cannot be treated in a lump as one single offence, forming the subject of one indictment. But where they are indivisible and interdependent, the aggregate of all the items forming the subject of the charge will be regarded as one offence [See 25 M. T. 370. (Per Napier J.)]

27. Illustrations of the rule.—Where the charge against the accused was that he had made an attempt to cheat a number of men by speaking to them in a body, held that a joint charge was valid as only one offence was in fact committed [10 C. N. 520; Per Rumpin and Mukerjee J.J.] Where the accused (a sub Registrar) was convicted of the attempt to obtain a bribe of Rs 14 from seven persons as a motive for registering seven sale deeds executed in their favour by one R. held that whether this amounted to seven offences was a question of fact. If the accused attempted to obtain Rs 2 separately from each of the seven purchasers, and was willing to register any one purchaser's sale deed on getting from that purchaser Rs 2 the contention that there were seven offences ought to prevail. But if on the other hand, the Registrar treated this as one transaction, and was not willing to register any one of the documents, until all the several purchasers had paid Rs 2 each, that would be one offence only and there would be no misjoinder [13 C. N. 1082]. Where certain sums of money were collected from the landholders of several villages and were paid in the case of each village as a lump sum as bribe to a Zilladar in the irrigation department to induce him to show favour in his official capacity to each village as a whole, and the accused was charged and convicted in respect of one of the lump sums, held that the charge as framed was legal and correct, it was not necessary to charge the accused with an offence under S. 161 P. O. in respect of every item, contributed by the various landholders and consequently there was no misjoinder of offences or charges [11 P. R. 191; Con. J. (14) A. N. 223]. The accused in collecting the first instalment of the loan from 23 persons who had borrowed from Government on a joint bond, made a misrepresentation to each borrower of the amount due by him and thus made an excess collection in each case, held that the misrepresentation being in each case the same and the offence having all been committed at the same time and place and in pursuance of the same conspiracy could be tried together [48 C. 712]. Where eleven rent receipts were forged by the accused for the purpose of defending three separate rent suits against him, and a certain number of them was filed along with a separate written statement in each case and on three different occasions, held that it was not necessary to frame a charge in respect of each of the eleven receipts but that one charge in respect of each set of receipts, filed in each of the 3 cases was sufficient [20 C. 413, But See 14 C. J. 65]. A public servant was charged with receiving one single bribe in two instalments on two successive days, held that the offence was a continuous one and the separate convictions for offences under Ss 161 and 163 P. C. was bad in law [6 C. N. 332]. Where a police officer prepared several incorrect documents (a rukna addressed to the magistrate) for the purpose of screening off H from punishment running through them all, so they could form the subject of one trial [12 P. R. 1918]. It has been held the theft of several bullocks from the same person at the same time, is in reality only one offence [181 A. N. 154]. When in the same night the accused stole the property of two different persons from the same house, held that he could be convicted only of one offence [11 W. R. 38]. The making of any number of false statements in the same deposition, is only one distinct offence of giving false evidence and charges cannot be multiplied [9 C. J. 690]. Housebreaking by night to commit theft and theft are in reality only one offence and can be included in one charge [Rat 95. Rat 79]. By a parity of reasoning, therefore it would be illegal to try an accused person for eight separate and distinct offences in one and the same trial [7 A. J. 19]. In the absence of anything to show that it was a case of making a number of false entries in various books to conceal one misappropriation, the combination of 120 items in the same trial was illegal. The fact that there was a similarity in all the acts and all the illegal acts took place within 3 days was immaterial [38 A. 42]. The mere fact that two calendar cases of cheating under S. 420 P. C. were instituted against the same accused by the same complainant by the presentation of only one complaint, will not render the joint trial legal, in the absence of anything to show that the formed parts of the same transaction [See the Judgment of Oldfield J. in 29 M. J. 101 (F. B.)].

(3) Other cases.

28. Making a number of false statements in the course of a single deposition.—The making of any number of false statements in the same deposition is one aggregate case of giving false evidence, and charges of false evidence cannot be multiplied according to the number of false statements in the deposition. Separate statements in a deposition are not to be separately charged for under S. 234 Cr. P. C.—Per Sir L. Jenkins C.J. and Mukerjee J., in 36 C. 809. Fy 6 M. H. (sp) 27. See 26 M. 63 (Per Benson J.)
29. Receiving properties stolen from different persons.—Where the accused were charged with receiving two separate items of stolen property, which were received on one and the same occasion, held that it was wrong to convict the accused of two separate offences, as there was no evidence to show that they received the stolen property on two distinct occasions—

7 B R 187. 36 P. L. 1910: See 9 C. 371 (a case of housebreaking). But see 13 C. N. 118 which Fe. 11 C. N. 1128.

Misappropriation of several sums.—Where the accused (a Ky-fanyi) having no authority to collect, collected, Capitation tax from three different persons and after collection paid over to the thugyi only a portion of his collection from each tax payer, and misappropriated the balance, held that in the absence of any evidence to show that there were three separate and distinct acts of misappropriation he could not be punished for three different offences. [1 Bar S 492] The accused was charged with criminal breach of trust in respect of three separate sums of money, the third charge with regard to a sum of Rs 195 consisting of two separate sums of Rs 150 and 45, held that the entries in the account books did not clearly show that the misappropriation of Rs 195 took place on two dates or consisted of two distinct transactions. Under the circumstances the offence in regard to Rs 195, was really one offence and could be included in one charge. [14 C 128. See 29 M 558. 7 A J 807. 21 A. 251]

Criminal breach of trust in respect of a number of books of account. The accused was charged with having committed the offence of criminal breach of trust in respect of certain books of account between July 11 1910 and Aug 15, 1910. He was called upon to produce them on Aug 15 1910. Held as those books, forming one set of account books, were found together in two locked boxes, the keys being with the accused, they may fairly be regarded as one item of property, with which the accused was dealing in one particular way, therefore the objection that the charge was bad, (as there was a separate charge as regards each book), and the accused could not be tried for more than three of such offences was untenable.—17 C N 479

32. Theft of two bullocks belonging to two different persons at the same time.—The stealing of two bullocks belonging to two different persons at the same time, from the same custody is only a single offence, and should be punished only once. (81) 1 N 151

33. Offence under the Bombay District Municipalities Act (III) of 1901.—A shopkeeper affixed to his shop a board which projected into the public street. The shop was divided into two portions, one of them was occupied by the shopkeeper himself and the other was let out by him to a tenant. The shopkeeper was tried separately under S 122 of the Act for two projections, and convicted separately, held that the offence related to one single board and could not be split up into two distinct offences. 4 B R 912

34. Alternative charge in cases of perjury.—Alternative charge is permissible, only when it cannot be established with certainty as to which of the two contradictory statements is false. In such a case the conviction can proceed upon an alternative finding. [See 13 B L 324. 13 B L 325 N. 6 W R 65. Rat 26 4 M II (51)], though of course, every presumption in favour of the possible reconciliation of the statements ought to be made [13 B L 325 N. 7 A 44]. The two charges (in the alternative) relating to contradictory statements in a single deposition, is in fact in respect of one offence only. There is therefore no necessity to find which of the contradictory statements is false, it is sufficient if it is established beyond doubt that both cannot be true. [See Judgment of Wilson and Tottenham JJ. No. 113 J. dubitante]

V. MISJOINDER OF CHARGES.

(1). The rule as to joinder of charges.

35. The rule illustrated.—Where the first charge of criminal breach of trust (S 408 I P C) could be joined with the second one of falsification of the cash book (S. 477 P C) and the second charge could be amalgamated with the third charge under S 477 I P C but the first charge did not form with the third, the same transaction, held that the joinder of the three charges at one trial must (See S 233 Cr P. C) be brought within S 231 or S 235 or 236 or S 239 Cr P C but as there was nothing in any of those sections to justify the joinder of the third charge with the first, the three charges could not be tried together.—40 C. 318. See 41 C 722. 28 M J 381

(2) Incompatible offences.

36. Theft and receiving stolen property.—A joinder of the charge of theft with that of receiving stolen property, not in the alternative but cumulatively is not countenanced by the Code.—28 M. J 341. 1 C N 35. 29 C. 10. 6 O L 245. 3 P. R. 1905. but See 6 B R 517. The same remarks apply to Ss 350 and 411 I. P. C. [O B. II.

725] But there is no misjoinder of charges under Ss 395 and 412 I P C when the charges under S 411 and 412, are based on an incident which was part of the evidence on the charge of S 395 [Per Jenkins C J and Mackenzie J. in 11 C. J 182] be definitely determined on the evidence on record. Thus an accused can no more be charged as an abettor as well as a perpetrator of the offence abetted not in the alternative but cumulatively, than he can be charged with an attempt to commit an offence and the commission of that very offence—[24 M. 523 (547)] A person, who is the principal or actual offender charged with murder, cannot be charged also with the offence of causing disappearance of the evidence of his own crime (S 201 P. C.) [8 A. 252; 7 A. 749; 2 A. 713, 7 W. R. 52; 22 C 634; 27 M. 271; 8 B R 533]

under S. 201 [6 C 780 See 6 P. R. 1902] though the mere fact that there is reason to suspect that the accused is possibly or even probably the principal offender would not make S 201 inapplicable [See 1 L B 316 1 P. R. 1904, Rat 799]. On the same principle a thief cannot be charged with offence under S 379 (theft) as well as under S 215 I. P. C. (receiving gratification for restoring the stolen property [12 Cr. 72 (S). 14 Bar R. 67] The principle has been given effect to in S 35 Cr. P. C. A person convicted of two or more offences which form part of one and the same transaction can only be punished for the principal offence [7 W. R. 13; M. H. C. Pro 1862, 1363]

234. (1) When a person is accused of more offences than one of the same kind committed within the space of twelve months from the first to the last year may be charged together of such offences he may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, any number of them not exceeding three

(2) Offences are of the same kind when they are punishable with the same amount of punishment under the same section of the Indian Penal Code or of any special or local law.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 234 of the said Code

(a) In sub-section (1) after the words "such offence" the words "whether in respect of the same person or not" shall be inserted

(b) In sub-section (2), the following proviso shall be added, namely,—

"Provided that, for the purpose of this section, an offence punishable under section 379 of the Indian Penal Code shall be deemed to be an offence of the same kind as an offence punishable under section 359 of the said Code, and that an offence punishable under any section of the Indian Penal Code, or of any special or local law, shall be deemed to be an offence of the same kind as an attempt to commit such offence, when such an attempt is an offence."

(1) Preliminary.

1. Interpretation of S. 234 Cr. P. C.—S. 234, Crim. Proc. Code, does not say that, at the most, a trial must be limited to three charges; and that the offences must be of the same kind. The "offence" as defined by the Code itself is the act or omission made punishable. Publication of two seditious articles on different dates amounts to two offences, but these are punishable under the same sections (124 A and 153 A) of the Penal Code and are therefore offences of the same kind. The word "section" in the second clause of S. 234 is not invariably to be read as singular. It is not the intention of the Criminal Procedure Code, either express or implied, to exclude the operation of S. 234 from an offence, because it is made the subject of more than one charge. [Per Heaton J.] There is nothing in the Crim. Proc. Code which directs that where an accused person is alleged to have done two or more acts, each of which may fall within the definition of an offence under one or another section of the Penal Code, the section or sections in either case being the same, the joinder of the charges under those sections is illegal. Substantially, the acts amount in such a case to offences punishable under the same sections of the Penal Code, and therefore they are offences of the same kind. [Per Chandraiah J.]—33 B 77

2. S. 234 does not exclude operation of Ss. 235 and 236 Cr. P. C.—The Legislature hardly intended that a joint trial of three offences under S. 231 should prevent the prosecution from establishing at the same trial, the minor or alternative degrees of criminality involved in the acts complained of. Ss. 235 and 236 may be resorted to in framing additional charges, where the trial is, under S. 234, of three offences of the same kind, committed within a year.—33 B 221

3. Note.—Tulball J in 32 A 219 held that cl (1) S. 233 and S. 234 Cr. P. C. are mutually exclusive so that three offences under S. 408 I P C and three offences of forgery under S. 467 P C could not be tried together merely because they were committed in the course of three similar but separate transactions. A person was charged with three separate acts of criminal misappropriation committed within a year, and two separate offences of forgery with intent to conceal two of such acts of criminal misappropriation, held that there was a misjoinder of charges. [30 A 351 (F. B.) See (11) M N 636]

The joint trial of three charges of Criminal Breach of trust and three of falsification of accounts at one and the same trial is opposed to S. 234 Cr. P. C. [30 M 328, 17 Cr 369 (M), 41 C 722, 30 A 351]

4. Offences must be committed within the space of twelve months.—Where the accused was charged with having altered and mutilated certain accounts between the years 1907 and 1909, held that the charge was bad in as much as he should have been tried at one trial, only for three separate offences committed within the space of twelve months from first to last.—[32 A 57] A series of acts of criminal misappropriation covering a period of two years cannot be charged and tried at one trial. [11 P R 1905]

5. Does S. 234 refer to the case of a single accused?—The leading case for the affirmative is 33 C 292 which laid down in 1905 that S. 234 does not apply where several persons are jointly accused but refers to the case of a single accused person. The rule that words in the singular shall include the plural [see S. 13 of General Clauses Act (X of 1897)] was held not to apply, being repugnant to the subject and context of the provisions of the section. The same view was adopted in 168 P L 1011 and 122 P L 1911, 17 P R 1917, 4 N 71 (73) and 20 Cr 7 (N). Compare 33 C 1256. The case for the negative has been enunciated as follows by Sadasua Aiyar J in 25 M T 379 "I am satisfied in my mind that S. 13 (2) of the General Clauses Act which says that the word in the singular shall include the plural and vice-versa, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, is applicable to the construction of those sections (234 to 244). I can find nothing repugnant in the subject or context of S. 234 to 248 in holding that the words "a person" include a set of persons acting together.—This view has also been taken in 34 A 157 (460) 3 Pat J 121 See 11 C N 1128

[Note.—But the joint trial of two persons on two charges, theft in a building (S. 352 I P C) and theft of paddy in a field, (S. 379 I P C) the property in the building and the paddy belonging to one and the same complainant and committed on two successive days, is illegal under S. 234 O P C.]—20 C N 672]

(2) Scope and application of the section.

6. Scope.—S. 234 refers to offences and not to sections. It does not provide that all offences committed within a year in three different transactions may be tried in one trial.—10 S 192, [30 M 325 (F. B.)]

7. Not more than 3 offences can be joined in one trial.—Accused was sent up for trial under Ss. 218, 219 and 408 I P C on eight counts and convicted on two counts under Ss. 409 and 420, held that having regard to the provisions of S. 234 Cr. P. C., the accused could only be tried on three counts in one trial.—[20 Cr 781 (V)] A person felling 69 trees in a Reserved Forest is guilty of as many offences under S. 25

(b) of the Forest Act (VII of 1878) and the trial of the accused on three charges for 69 offences is bad in law—[19 Cr. 161 (V)] An accused person who committed 5 murders in one day, three in one village in the forenoon and two in another village in the afternoon and was tried on a single charge, held that the charge framed contravened the provisions of Ss 233 and 234 Cr. P. C.—[17 A. J. 614]. See also 1 B. 610: 8 C. 430 and 25 M. 61 (P. C.); But See 4 L B. 315 where the irregularity was overlooked.

8. Meaning of the expression "offences of the same kind."—Under cl (2) of S 234 of the Code, offences are of the same kind, when they are punishable with the same amount of punishment under the same section, and when this is not the case, neither S 236 nor S 237 can be read with S 234 Cr. P. C.—29 Cr 751 (N) [15 C P 53 Fd] See 33 B 77

Note—Therefore three separate complaints laid against the accused by the same complainant for cheating 3 different tenants while engaged in the collection of rents on behalf of the complainant could be tried together under S 234 Cr. P. C.—[41 C 66] But the offence of murder and the offence of voluntarily causing hurt are not of the same kind as defined in cl (2) of S 234 [15 B 491. 10 B 414 referred to]—11 A J. 188

9. Does S. 234 apply to offence committed against different persons?—S. 234 Cr. P. C. is not limited to cases where the offences have been committed against the same person. S 234 is taken from S 5 of the statute 24 and 25 Vict. C 96 but the word against the same person which appear in S 5 of the statute do not appear in S 234 Cr. P. C.—[43 C. 13. 9 C 371 13 C N 507 38 A 458 Rat 331. 11 A. J 700 Con 4 A 147. ('83) A. N. 12. ('83) A. N 39 11 C N 1128, 13 C N. 118. 2 Weir 299 3 L B 214] When a public servant dishonestly misappropriated sums of monies placed in his hands by three different persons on three different occasions in one year, held that the offences of which such person is accused, being the dishonest misappropriation of public moneys (for they lost their private character on coming to the hands of the accused), such offences were "of the same kind" and that such person might be charged with and tried at one trial for all the offences [7 A 174 (F. B)] The conviction of an accused person at one trial for three acts of misappropriation committed against three different persons, is not illegal—[29 Cr. 71 (N); See also 2 Pat J 209: 20 M. J 234]

10. Procedure when the accused has committed more than 3 offences of the same kind.—The ordinary course for the prosecution in cases in which an accused has committed numerous offences of the kind is to select a small number of typical cases, to frame their charges accordingly and to prosecute them before the Magistrate. If the result of those proceedings is to penalise the accused and the sentence of fine inflicted is considered sufficient to meet the ends of justice, remaining need not 1 hand, throu, carriage at the trial, the accused is acquitted of those charges, then it is open to the prosecution to proceed with the remaining charges.—Per Walsh J. in 19 Cr. 161 (A)

11. The section does not lay any limitation on the liability of the accused.—"I do not see any reasons for the suggestion that if a person commits 50 different offences within 12 months of the same kind, you can only try him three and must necessarily abandon the trial of all charges in respect of the remaining 47 offences. In the case referred to as Empires v. Dononjoy Barot—[30 C 540], the learned Judges considering S 453 of old Code of Criminal Procedure which is almost word for word the same as section 234 of the present Code say:—"See 453 of the Cr. P. C. modifies S 452 (=S. 233 of the present Code) which require a separate charge and a separate trial for every distinct offence by allowing three charges of three distinct offences of the same kind, and committed within one year of each other, to be tried at the same time, but this does not mean that if at one time or within one year a man commits fifty distinct offences of the same kind, he shall not in one day be prosecuted for more than three such offences"—Per Atkinson J. in 4 Pat L W. 105

12. Offence constituted by an aggregate of several acts.—S 234 Cr. P. C. has no application to a charge under S. 401 I. P. C. as the gist of the offence under the latter section is association for the purposes of habitually committing theft or robbery and habit is to be proved by the aggregate of acts, though the charge may be of a single offence—21 Cr 356 (C). See 6 M. H 120.

(3) Misoinder of charges,—instances.

13. Examples—Charges under Ss 379 and 380—It is illegal with reference to S 234 Cr. P. C. to charge a person in the same trial and to convict him of offences under S 379 and 380 I. P. C.—[20 Cr 751 (N)] or under Ss 380, 451 and 457 I. P. C [15 C P. 54] or under S 395 P. C. and S 20 of the Indian Arms Act (XI of 1878) [44 P R 1917] or on three charges under S 409 I. P. C. and another charge of an offence under S. 210 I. P. C [22 C. N. 506]

14. Other Instances.—The following offences have been held not to offences of the same kind, and as such a joinder of them has been held to be illegal—

- (a) Adultery (S 195) and began my (S 494)—Rat 4
(b) Theft and the charge of rescuing from lawful custody—13 C N 804
(c) Receiving stolen property (S. 411) and habitually—334
C.

See—For other instances See Notes under S. 233 supra.

15. Some typical cases.—The joinder of six charges—one under S 231 and two under S 193 I P C, relating to the report and evidence about the death of one person and three exactly similar charges relating to the report and evidence about the death of another person is illegal. [1 B L 294 (F.B.)] Where a woman, a member of the dancing-girl caste, who obtained from another woman a minor girl, who was employed by her for the purpose of prostitution, and who subsequently took in adoption another girl of the same caste with the same object, was charged and tried together with the parents of the second girl on charges relating to both the girls under Ss 372 and 373 I. P. C. held that the joinder of the two charges was clearly erroneous [12 M 273 Cf 11 C. N. cclxxiv: 4 L. R. 315 (F.B.)] Where the Sessions Judge tried at one trial all the accused on charge under S 401 P. C. three sets of the accused on three different heads of charges under Ss 328 and 380 and one of the accused on a charge under S 411, held that the joint trial of all the accused on all the heads of the charges was opposed to S. 214 I P C [Rat 509] Where a person was charged in respect of rust and for rust and for held that the joinder of the charges was illegal [5 C. N. 294] The joinder of three different offences of forging certain cheques, (2) three offences of cheating committed in respect of those cheques, (3) and the offence of falsifying accounts to conceal the forgery, cannot be lumped together in one charge and jointly tried —[2 P R 1905]

(4) The section in relation to S. 222 Cr. P. C.

18. S. 234 is to be read as subject to S. 222 Cr. P. C.—On a criminal breach of trust or dishonest misappropriation of money, it is sufficient under S 222, to specify the gross sum, in respect of which the offence has been committed, without specifying the particular items of which the gross sum is composed, and the charge so framed shall be deemed to be a charge of one offence, within the meaning of S 234 —[20 M. 558 31 C 928 32 C 1085 24 A 254 27 A. 69 33 A 36—See 7 A J 597: Rat 509. 9 M T (Suppl) 17. 15 Mys 271]

17. [Note. Per contra.—S. 222 Cr P. C. is an exception to another general rule that, at a trial for an offence, certain particulars must be given in the charge. Clause 2 of 222 modifies that rule as to charges of criminal breach of trust, but does not restrict in any way the scope and object of S 234 of the Code.—Per Chandiwarkar and Knight JJ. in 12 B R 226 In 16 P W 1907 it was held that the charge will be set aside if the accused has been prejudiced for not having definite charge to answer by reason of the omission of details

19. Charges of falsification of account.—Every act of falsification of a book of account would amount to an offence under the Code under S 234. An accused can only be charged and tried at one trial for any number of offences of the same kind not exceeding three committed within the space of one year. The explanation attached to S 477-A does not purport to override S 234 Cr P C [26 C 590 See 4 B R 473 (434)] So when a person is tried for criminal breach of trust in respect of 17 sums of monies received by him between the 16th March 1901 and 8th May 1901 and he was also charged with 17 falsifications of account under S 477-A, I P C. held that the joinder of charges was illegal —1 B R 433: See also the following cases.—32 A 57. 30 A. 351: 30 M 328 2 P R 1905. 33 A. 36. 12 B R 226.

10. Note.—In 40 C. 318, the accused was charged under S 408 I P C with criminal breach of trust in respect of a sum of Rs. 500 and two items of falsifications of account books, the first on 18th November 1910 and the second on 9th February 1911 to conceal the embezzlement of this sum. Held that the 2nd and 3rd charges under S 477-A were made triable together by S 234 Cr P C [40 C 318] Where all the six false entries were made in the course of one transaction, held that a single count in respect of all the six separate

Mys 29]

20. Cases in which there was no misjoinder.—Where some of the accused charged under S. 395 I P C were also charged under Ss 411 and 412 I P C on the strength of an incident which was part of the evidence against them on the charge under S 395 I P C held that there was no misjoinder [11 C J 182] Three offences under Ss 178 and 179 I P C can be charged and tried together at the same trial, the trial being a summary one, before the Presidency Magistrate where no charge-sheet need be drawn up, and the facts having been admitted there was no trial in the sense of investigation of facts [35 C 161]

235. (1) If, in one series of acts so connected together as to form the same transaction, more offences than one are committed by the same person, he may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, every such offence.

(2) If the acts alleged constitute an offence falling within two or more separate definitions of any law in force for the time being by which offences are defined or punished, the person accused of them may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, each of such offences.

(3) If several acts, of which one or more than one would by itself or themselves constitute an offence, constitute when combined a different offence, the person accused of them may be charged with, and tried at one trial for, the offence constituted by such acts when combined, and for any offence constituted by any one, or more, of such acts.

(4) Nothing contained in this section shall affect the Indian Penal Code section 71.

(f) A, with intent to cause injury to B, falsely accuses him of having committed an offence, knowing that there is no just or lawful ground for such charge. I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

1. Object of the Section.—The Section provides for the joint trial of offences so connected together as to form essentially and strictly the same transaction. The object is to prevent the accused from different matters and tending by mere accumulation to induce an undue suspicion against the accused.

15 B. 491. 16 B. 414. Sec. 1 S. 73.

2. The Section is an enabling one.—Section 235 is not an imperative but only an enabling Section [Rat 307] S. 235 Cr. P. C. allows a number of offences, even if exceeding three, and extending over a period of more than twelve months, being tried at one trial, if they are committed as to 28 M. J. caused for
GA 121.

3. Scope of the Section widened by the Codes of 1882 and 1888.—By Ss 452 to 459 of Act X of 1872, which are reproduced with slight modifications in the present Code as Ss 233 to 239, the Legislature considerably widened the power of the Court to try at one trial offences charged was witness times
trial those offences with regard to which the evidence would overlap—1 S. 73

4. Application of S. 235 (1).—In considering whether S. 235 Cr. P. C. (1) applies, the Court has to consider carefully whether the series of acts with which the accused are charged are so connected together as to form the same transaction

11 A. J. 188.

5. Sec. 235, explained and read with S. 35 Cr. P. C. and 75 I. P. C.—Sec. 235 should be explained in a broad and common-sense way, and not by a technical dissection of the language employed. Regarded in the proper way the distinction between its three subsections is very clear. Reading the whole section with S. 71 of the Indian Penal Code, we get a fourfold result which may be stated thus

First—A repetition in the same transaction of several criminal acts of exactly the same character may constitute one crime—e.g.—a number of blows on one person, a number of lies in one continuous deposition or a number of articles stolen at one house breaking. This is a case covered by S. 71 I. P. C.

Second—A single transaction may give rise to either (1) several offences of a different character, each complete in itself and distinct from the other,—e.g.—a criminal breach of trust accompanied by falsification of accounts as preliminary or sequel to such breach, or (2) Several offences of the same character but affecting different persons—e.g.—a single gunshot fired with Criminal intent which injures two or more persons

Such cases come under the first subsection of S. 235 above mentioned

Thirdly—The same series of acts may constitute different offences. All may be charged, but only one offence can be regarded as committed for the purpose of punishment

I P C

Fourthly—An act in itself an offence, may become either an aggravated form of that offence or different offence, when combined with some other acts, innocent or criminal. Here we have a compound offence, which, as well as its component minor offence, may be charged under S. 235 Subs (3) of Cr. P. C. but again S. 71 I. P. C. controls the punishment

These provisions of the law must not be confused with the provisions laid down in S. 35 Cr. P. C.

Separable offences which come under S. 71 I. P. C. and may be charged under S. 235 subs (2) and (3) Cr. P. C. are not distinct offences within the purview of S. 35 Cr. P. Code, while subs (1) of S. 235 refers to distinct offences which are separately punishable.—Per Staynon A. J. C. in 9 N. 20; See also 38 C. 433.

6. [Note—The following cases should be studied with a view to clearly understand the bearing of Ss 71 I. P. C. and 35 Cr. P. C. on the principles enunciated by S. 235 Cr. P. C.: 16 C. 442 (F.B.) [11 C. 349, Od.] 12 C. 495 23 C. 174: 8 C. N. 344 9 W. R. 33 10 W. R. 63 13 W. R. 12: 7 A. 414 (F.B.) 6 A. 121: 17 B. 260: 23 B. 706]
7. Alternative charges.—Neither S. 235 nor S. 236 relates to two acts which form two transactions or empowers a Court to say in a charge to an accused person: "Either on one day at one place, you did an act which constituted one of several offences, or on another day at another place, you did a different act constituting a different offence, and therefore you are guilty of some one or other of all the offences specified"—43 P. R. 1887.

8. Primary offence excludes secondary crime.—The person who is charged with a crime cannot be charged under S. 201 of the same Code. [8 B. R. 535] The person who is concerned as a principal in the commission of a crime cannot be convicted of the secondary offence of concealing the evidence of the crime [7 A. 749 22 C. 618 6 C. 780].

II. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

9. Separate sentences.—When the accused is tried at one trial on two separate charges for two distinct offences and conviction are recorded on both charges, separate sentences ought to be passed Rat 369 Rat 597 Sec 7 A 114 (F.B.) 7 A. 29
10. Separate charges must be framed.—Distinct offences committed in the same person can be tried at one trial but must be charged separately. The failure to frame separate charges is an illegality fatal to the trial—10 C. N. 53: 10 C. N. 520
11. Joint trial of an offences punishable with imprisonment exceeding 6 months and an offence not so punishable.—In such a case, the procedure laid down for warrant cases must be followed and formal charges should be drawn for both offences—3 L. B. 113.
12. Attention must be concentrated on the principal charge.—Although for the purposes of the charge, it may be convenient to vary the

13. Charge of offences at a separate trial illegal.—

8 C. 481

14. False charge and giving false evidence.—When the accused is charged with making a false charge and giving false evidence and found guilty, consecutive and not concurrent sentences should be passed as the accused has committed two distinct offences—10 B. 251 7 W. R. 59
15. Prosecution can confine itself to offences not requiring sanction.—The accused was committed for trial under S. 116, I. P. C. of having instigated certain persons to commit dacoity. In the course of the trial, the Assistant Sessions Judge added an alternative charge under S. 311 and convicted the accused of either instigating or attempting to commit dacoity. It appeared that the real charge was attempt to commit the offence of waging war against the Queen under S. 123 I. P. C. but the Government refused to give sanction. Held that the refusal of Government to prosecute under S. 122 did not affect the accused's liability to punishment under the other sections—25 B. 90.

III. THE SAME TRANSACTION—MEANING AND CASES.

16. The real test.—The real and substantial test determining whether several offences are so connected together as to form the same transaction, depends upon whether they are so related to one another, in point of purpose or as cause and effect, or as principal and subsidiary acts, as to constitute one continuous action. A mere interval of time between the commission of one offence and another does not, by itself necessarily import want of continuity though the length of the interval may be an important element in determining the connection between the two

(The word "transaction" should be read in the ordinary sense of a completed act—28 M. J. 397)

17. The principle explained.—If a series of acts are so connected together by proximity of time, community of criminal intent, continuity of action and purpose and such subsidiary acts as criminis relation of opinion of caused may for every of acts if more persons than one are accused of different offences committed in a series of acts, so connected, they may be tried together. Whether or not the series of acts be so closely connected as to form the same transaction, necessarily rests with the Court to decide. The limits are wide, but no pointer of charges or trials should be permitted which will result in bewildering any of the accused in his defence, or in causing undue prejudice against him.—1 S. 73. See 15 C N. 732.

16. Separation by time or space.—The expression "same transaction" is not applicable to cases in which the offences are separated by distinct intervals of time and space and which must be proved by distinct evidence.—10 S 192 [15 B 431 Pol] The mere fact that the complaints were lodged on the same day or that the motive of the commission of the offences was the same in all the four occurrences does not at all go to show that the offences were committed in the course of the same transaction [18 Cr 739 (Pat.)—See 17 C N. 1124, 4 Pat W 103]

19. Meaning of "same transaction" discussed.—What is the nature of the connection contemplated between different acts which would bind them into the "same transaction"? The idea conveyed by the words "same transaction" seems to be obvious enough and it may be doubted whether it can be compendiously expressed in simpler and clearer language. Generally speaking, there can be very little difficulty in arriving at a proper conclusion in a concrete case. No doubt proximity of time, any more than unity of place is neither a necessary nor decisive test of what constitutes the "same transaction" though such proximity of time furnishes good evidence of the connection which unites several acts into one transaction. This seems to be the effect of the decisions reported in 27 B 123 30 B 19 15 B. 191, 16 B 411, that at least in a certain class of cases, community of purpose or design and continuity of action are essential elements of the connection necessary to link together different acts into one and the same transaction. In such cases, the acts alleged to be connected with each other must have been done in pursuance of a particular end in view, and as necessary thereto, or perhaps as suggested by the circumstances in which the acts in pursuance of the original design was done, and in close proximity of time to those acts. But mere community of purpose is not sufficient, there must also be continuity of action. For, it may happen that an act is done with a particular object in view but the final aim is abandoned for some time and pursued afterwards. For instance, suppose a man forges a document with a view to cheat a certain individual and then forgoes his intention for two years and afterwards reverts to his original intention and uses the document for the fraudulent purposes which he had in mind when he committed the forgery, it would be difficult to say in such a case that the offences of forgery and cheating by means of the forged document were committed in the course of the same transaction. As regards community of purpose, it would be going too far to lay down that the mere existence of some general purpose or design, such as making money at the expense of the public, is sufficient to make all acts done with that object in view part of the same transaction. If that were so, the results would be startling: for instance, supposing it is alleged that A, for the sake of gain, has for the ten years been committing a particular form of depredation on the public, viz, house breaking and theft in accordance with one systematic plan, it is hardly conceivable that he could be tried at one trial for all the burglaries which he committed within the ten years. The purpose in view must be something particular and definite, such as where a man, with the object of misappropriating a particular sum of money or of cheating a particular individual of a certain amount, falsifies books of account or forges a number of documents"—Per Iddu Rahim J in 33 M 502

20. Using cloven forged receipts in three different suits.—Where the accused filed eleven forged receipts in three suits in three suits, each act with a separate written statement—held, as the "using" was merely putting in of three set of documents in three suits simultaneously and there was nothing to show that any of them was used at any other time, held therefore that there was no illegality in framing three charges for the three sets and convicting the accused on all the three charges in the same trial.—20 C 113
21. Several falso entries.—Where several falso entries as to amounts collected were made by the karnam in the Government accounts of his village so as to show less amounts as collected, —held—that they constituted one transaction within the meaning of S 235 (12) M N 515
22. Theft and escape from custody.—The trial of two charges, theft and escape from lawful custody (S 224 I P C) are not so connected as to form one transaction, and none of the sections mentioned in S 233 will cover the mis-joinder [12 Bar R 216]
23. Possession of cocaine and opium.—Where the accused was found in illegal possession of opium and cocaine for the purpose of carrying on the business of a vendor of contraband, held that the possession of both the articles was part of the same transaction.—19 Cr 31 (L B): See 3 Pat J 413
24. Criminal misappropriation and falsification of account.—A charge of criminal breach of trust of a sum of money can be tried under S 215 (1) Cr P C, at the same time with one of falsification of accounts made with the object of concealing the act of misappropriation, as part of the same transaction, but a charge of criminal breach of trust cannot be legally tried together with one of falsification, relating to a distinct act of misappropriation committed in a separate transaction.—10 Cr 987 (1) 40 C 315: See 30 M 324 (11) M N 576
25. Cheating and receiving stolen property. A charge of receiving stolen property may be joined with a charge for cheating, when the facts constituting the offences form part of the same transaction.—21 Cr 27 (M)

- 39 One substantive offence forming the aim of the other - This section taken with its illustrations forbids two punishments for an offence so compounded that one substantive offence is the aim of the other. Therefore where a person who has been tried and convicted under S. 391 P C of abducting a child with the intent of dishonestly taking movable property cannot also be punished for the theft of a part of the movable property which he intended dishonestly to take through the means of abduction—7 M. H. 375 Fd. in Rat 159].

40. When S. 71 P. C. does not apply.—Where the accused has committed distinct offences which when combined are not punishable under any single section of the Penal Code S. 71 P. C. does not apply Rat 228 10 B. 493-7 A. 414 (F. B.) But See Rat 790

42. Subs. (3) of S. 235 Cr. P. C.—joint trial of separate offences and the combined offences.—An accused person tried for offences under S. 321, 323, 326 or 353 P. C. and S. 143 and the combined offences under S. 147 or 149 P. C. can be separately convicted and sentenced for each such offence provided, the limit imposed by S. 71 P. C. is not exceeded.—12 O. 495 7 A. 757 (F. B.). 7 A. 414 (F. B.); 7 A. 29 9 A. 645; 19 C 105 17 B. 260 (F. B.). See Rat 493; Con 16 C. 412 (F. B.); 4 P. R 1901 (F. B.); 6 A. 121, 52 P. L 1801.

V. JOINDER OF CHARGES.

43. Counterfeiting Trade marks.—A person can be tried at one trial for having in his possession stolen plates for counterfeiting trade marks (S. 485 P. C.) for having sold goods to which a counterfeit trade mark was affixed (S. 486), and for having in his possession such goods (S. 486), since the three offences can be said to arise out of the same transaction.—27 B 135

44. Dacoity, forgery, using forged document and cheating by personation.—The trial of the accused on seven charges, three of dacoity, two of forgery, one of using as genuine a forged document, and one of cheating by personation would be perfectly regular, if the offences with which the accused was charged, all formed one transaction.—11 C N 715

45. House-breaking and theft.—An accused person can be tried under two heads of charge (See S. 454 and 350 P. C.)—Rat 307.

46. Accused committed an offence only on a charge.—C 1053

47. Charges under Ss. 307, 406 I P C.—In a conviction under S. 307 I P. C., a charge under S. 406 was also joined, held that the two acts did not form one series of transactions within the meaning of S. 235 Cr. P. C. and that the two charges ought not to have been joined—6 A. J 697

48. Cattle trespass and rescue of cattle.—The act of permitting cattle to trespass and rioting in rescuing the cattle after they had been impounded at another time and place, could not be treated as forming part of the same transaction [See 7 M T 367]

49. Facts necessary to justify joinder of charges.—The accused who was a servant of a lambardar of a mahal, obtained possession of a Jamabandi belonging to the additional lambardar, and after collecting canal dues on the basis of the Jamabandi and deducting his commission, thereon, paid the amount to his mistress (the lambardar) and not to the additional lambardar who was lawfully entitled to the same. The charge was one of criminally misappropriating that portion of the canal dues which was paid to him on account of the additional lambardar's division of the mahal—held that the prosecution was entitled to go into the whole matter at a single trial, provided it took upon itself the burden of proving that all the facts alleged against the accused, were in fact so connected together as to form part of the same trial—13 A. J. 1131.

50. Cheating, forgery, using as genuine forged document and cheating by personation.—Where the accused was tried on seven charges—three of cheating, under S. 420 I. P. C. two of forgery under S. 466 and 465 I. P. C., one of using as genuine a forged document under S. 471 I. P. C. and one of cheating by personation under S. 419 P. C.

Held—that the trial of the accused on all these charges was perfectly regular under S. 235 Cr. P. C. as the offences with which the accused was charged, all formed one transaction

11 C N. 715

51. Counterfeit coins—Joint trial.—A person tried and convicted under S. 243 for being in possession of counterfeit coins can be jointly tried with another person and convicted for delivery of counterfeit coins (S. 240 P. C.)

31 C 1007.

52. Criminal breach of trust and falsification of accounts.—A charge under S. 408 I. P. C. cannot be legally tried with one of falsification of account relating to a distinct act of misappropriation committed in a different transaction (477-A), but when forming part of the same transaction, they can legally be tried together by virtue of the provision of S. 235 (1) Cr. P. C.

40 C 318 30 M 328

53. Joint trial of charges.—A person tried and convicted under S. 243 for being in possession of counterfeit coins can be jointly tried with another person and convicted for delivery of counterfeit coins (S. 240 P. C.)

said to be a continuation of it. The four offences, therefore, were not committed in the course of the same transaction, so as to be capable of being joined in one trial under S. 235 Cr. P. C.—[10 S. 102]. But where the accused was tried under S. 203 I. P. C. in the same trial for two distinct and separate offences—viz.—a false suit against one person in the Court of the City Munsiff and another false suit against a different person in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, held that the accused in spite of full warning, had acquiesced in the joinder of the two charges and the error had in no way prejudiced the accused. The case was therefore covered by S. 537 Cr. P. C. [42 A. 12]. Where the accused (Agents and Secretaries) were tried in respect of five charges, four of which related to a false balance-sheet prepared for 1912, and one to a false balance-sheet prepared for 1913, held that the trial was illegal as the different acts attributed to the accused in respect of the two balance sheets did not form part of the same transaction [21 B R 732].

54. Ss. 302 and 323 P. C.—Where at a trial, several persons are charged with several offences, punishable under Ss. 302 and 323 P. C. which do not form part of the same transaction, held—the trial was illegal.—11 A. J. 154

55. One charge for three distinct offences.—The framing of one charge under S. 321 P. C. for causing hurt to three different persons is illegal

17 C N. 419

56. Charges under S. 408 and 455 P. C.—Where the alleged offence under S. 465 (falsification of accounts) was committed in relation to the act forming the basis of the charge under S. 405 P. C.—held—the two offences were connected with each other and arose out of the same transaction within the meaning of S. 235 (1).—11 B R 306

VI. AUTREFOIS ACQUIT.

58. Application of subs (1)—It should be noted that subs (2) of S. 493 lays down that a person acquitted or convicted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any distinct offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under S. 235, subs (1). "It seems to us that the rule is that where a person is charged again on some of the facts forming part of the series of acts, another offence may be charged against him, * * * See 235 (1) seems to us to be inapplicable when the accused is sought to be charged with another offence on the identical facts on which he was charged before with one offence." [Per Sundara Aiyer and Aylmer, J. J. 36 M. 308 See also 2 C J 622; 10 C N. 518 and 8 M. 296]

59. Cases—S. 211 I. P. C. the same fact P. C. [36 M. 36] charge of committing mischief by cutting certain branches from a tree, could not be charged again with the offence of theft on the same facts [8 M. 296] Similarly a person who was tried for offences under Ss. 201 and 202 I. P. C. could not be tried again for an offence under S. 176 on the

57. Instances of misjoinder of charges.—

(a) Obstructing Civil Court peon and beating son of decree-holder.—Where several accused more than five in number, obstructed the execution of a Civil Court decree and after holding a consultation, all of them excepting one or two proceeded to the lutchery of the decree-holder to beat his son and the Tashildar, and took the Tashildar to the judgment-debtor's house where they had obstructed the execution of the decree and there assaulted the Tashildar, Held—that the two occurrences did not form part of the same transaction—11 C. N. 1113. But See 6 M. T. 17.

(b) Misappropriation and Cheating.—The accused (a Jamadar in the service of a firm) was entrusted with two cheques for encashment on the 20th September, and told to pay out of the proceeds, the freight and take delivery of certain goods from the Railway Company. He cashed the cheques on the 21st and on the 22nd but when asked by the firm, denied having done so. On the 29th he induced, under promise of immediate payment, a clerk of the Railway to give him delivery of the goods and then without making payment, absconded. Held that the offence under S. 405 I. P. C. was complete before the petitioner cheated the Railway Company (S. 420 I. P. C.) Therefore the two offences could not be tried together as they were not committed in one transaction—13 C N. 1089

(c) Other instances.—See cases noted under S. 234 Cr. P. C. and 233 Cr. P. C. Supra also 6 A. J. 697 (106 I. P. C. and 307 I. P. C.) and 10 P. R. 1906 (Murder, and causing grievous hurt in removing the dead body) same facts [Per Paigter and Woodroffe J. J. in 10 C N. 518] A person acquitted of a charge under S. 147, owing to the non-appearance of the complainant, could not be again charged under Ss. 417, 504 and 506 on the same facts, [2 C J 622] The accused was charged under S. 203 I. P. C. for giving false information. Upon the facts on record, he could have been convicted under S. 177 I. P. C. The advisers of the Crown seeing that a charge under S. 203 I. P. C. was not sustainable, fell into error in withdrawing the entire

60. Scope of subs. (1)—As more offences than one committed in the course of the same transaction can be separately tried, a conviction on one of such offences is no bar to the trial of another. [10 A. N. 32 23 C 174]

61. The bearing of S. 235 Subs (1) on the doctrine.—Where under a charge under S. 305 P. C. a conviction is held to be bad, a subsequent trial for abduction is not barred by S. 403 Cr. P. C. the case being one which falls under S. 235 subs. (1). (10) A. N. 32; S. 31 C 1007.

62. Person convicted under Ss. 201, 202 P C cannot be tried again for an offence under S 176 P. C.—based on the same facts, by an inferior Criminal Court, as such a case does not come, under subs (1) of 235 Cr P C but rather under subs (2) of that section. The charge under S 176 P C might have been framed at a former trial on the very facts and the Sessions Court which tried him under S 202 P C was competent to try him under S 176 P C.—10 C N 518

63. Person acquitted of offence under S 182 I P C tried under S 500 I P C on same facts.—The accused who had in a petition to Teshildar under the Court of Wards, falsely made certain defamatory statements against a Sub Inspector of Police, was tried for an offence under S 182 I P C, on the sanction of the Manager of the Court of Wards, but was acquitted on the ground that the person to whom the petition was made was not a public servant, held that the case fell under S 235 (1) of the Code of Criminal Procedure and under no other of the exceptions in Ss 231, 235, 236 and 239, and therefore the prosecution under S. 500 I P C was clearly saved by the provisions of S 403 (2) Cr P. C.—14 C. N. 839

64. Previous acquittal under Ss. 467 and 109 I. P. C. no bar to second trial under S. 471 I. P. C.—Where the accused was previously tried under Ss 467 and 109 I. P. C before the Sessions Judge and acquitted and was afterwards tried for a second time with respect to the same document under S 471 I. P. C and convicted by the Additional Sessions Judge, held that as abetment of forgery and the using of the forged document in a Civil Court were distinct offences committed in the same transaction, the matter fell within the first sub-section of S 215 Cr P. C.—40 B 97,

VII. MISCELLANEOUS.

65 Joint trial of offences partly triable by Jury and partly with the aid of assessors.—With reference to Ss 226, 233 and 235 Cr P C, a Judge is competent to hold two trials, where some of the charges, on which the accused are committed are triable by jury and the remaining with the aid of assessors.—2 L W 993

66. Combination of two cases.—Four persons, members of the Police force, were charged with illegally confining, and torturing complainant H and his wife R and his son-in-law Y, in the course of the Police investigation. The charge consisted of 7 counts which may be analysed as follows—

All the four accused were charged

(1) for an offence under S 330 I P C against H (2) for an offence under S 348 I P C against H between 5th and 18th Jan'y, (3) for an offence under S 330 against Y, between 15th and 23rd Jan'y (4) for an offence under S 348 I P C against Y, during the same period.

(5) Accused nos 1 and 3 under S 348 I P C against R on 15th Jan'y

(6) Accused No 3 under S. 330 I P C against R on the 14th Jan'y

(7) Accused Nos 1, 2 and 3 under S 346 I P C against Y, between the 5th Feby and 9th March 1901—that all the several acts of violence alleged to have been committed against H, during his illegal confinement could rightly be regarded as constituting a single transaction. But the act of violence said to have been committed against R, at a different place could not be regarded as a part of that transaction. Nor was the wrongful confinement of R, by the accused Nos 1 and 3 on the 15th January a part of the transaction constituted by the hurt which was caused to her by the accused No 3 on the previous day. In the same way all acts of hurt caused to Y, during his first period of wrongful confinement would with the confinement form part of the same transaction. But the second period of confinement would be a separate transaction. 15 B 191

67. Offences falling within two definitions.—For examples See 10 C N. 518 (offences under Ss. 201, 202 and 176 I P C) 24 M J 463 (offences under Ss 181 and 211 I. P. C). 2 C. J. 622 (Ss 447, 504 and 506 I P C)

68. Power to select the charge.—Where the accused has committed housebreaking and theft, he need not necessarily be charged with both, but he may be tried for and convicted of either [Rat 307] If during the course of the same transaction, offences are committed, some requiring sanction, and others not, the accused can be tried for offences not requiring sanction, when no sanction is given in respect of the offences that require sanction [31 M 43]. Though there might be a joint trial for offences committed in the same transaction, yet, a separate trial for each of the offences is not illegal [8 C. 481]

236. If a single act or series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of several

Where it is doubtful what offence has been committed offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, the accused may be charged with having committed all or any of such offences, and any number of such charges may be tried at once; or he may be charged in the alternative with having committed some one of the said offences.

Illustrations.

He may be charged with theft, receiving stolen property, criminal breach of trust and cheating, or be charged with having committed theft, or receiving stolen property, or criminal breach of trust or

A states on oath before the Magistrate that he saw B hit C with a club. Before the Sessions Court A states that B never hit C. A may be charged in the alternative and convicted of intentionally giving false evidence, if it cannot be proved which of these contradictory statements was false.

(1) If, in the case mentioned in section 236, the accused is charged with one offence, and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence, a person is charged with one offence and it appears in evidence that he committed a different offence for which he might have been charged under the provisions of that section, he may be convicted of the offence which he is to have committed, although he was not charged with it.

(2) When the accused is charged with an offence, he may be convicted of having attempted to commit that offence, although the attempt is not separately charged.

Illustration.

A is charged with theft. It appears that he committed the offences of criminal breach of trust, or that of receiving stolen goods. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust or of receiving stolen goods (as the case may be) although he was not charged with such offence.

Proposed amendment to the section.—Sub section (2) of section 237 of the said Code shall be omitted.

Alternative charges,

3. When person charged with one offence can be convicted of another.

I. APPLICATION OF THE SECTIONS.

Scope of the section (236).—This section does not relate to several distinct acts but to a single act or series of acts to which the ascertainment of facts, it is doubtful which section is applicable.—43 P. R. 1887. 14 C. N. 839. 23 C. 174. 5 S. 16. See 36 M. 309.

Ss. 234, 236 and 237 not mutually exclusive.—The provisions of Ss 236 and 237 are intended to prevent a miscarriage of justice arising from a failure to make good all the details of a charge joined with two other charges under S 231 Cr. P. C. The provisions of S 231 Cr. P. C. do not prevent the prosecution from establishing at the same trial the minor or alternative degree of criminality involved in the acts complained of. Ss 235 and 236 may be resorted to in framing additional charges, where the trial is, under S 231 of three offences of the same kind committed within a year.—10 B. R. 673. See 7 W. R. 13. 9 N. 26. Con 9 C. 371.

Charge framed under S. 236 Cr. P. C. in relation to appeals.—Where the accused was charged with and tried for various offences arising out of a single act or series of acts, it being doubtful which of those offences the facts proved will constitute, an appeal from a conviction for any one of such offences, lay the whole case open to interference by the appellate Court, notwithstanding the acquittal recorded by the first Court as regards any of the other offences.—22 C. 377.

4. Distinctly separate transactions.—Neither S 235 or 236 Cr. P. C. relates to two acts which form two distinct transactions or empowers a Court to try in charge to an accused person—“either on one day at one place, you did an act which constituted one of several offences or on another day at another place, you did a different act constituting a different offence, and therefore you are guilty of some one or other of all the offences specified.” 43 P. R. 1487. 11 Cr. 731 (L. R.) See 3 L. B. 201.

5. S. 236 applies to cognate offences.—Offences charged in the alternative arise out of the same delictum and are, therefore, necessarily cognate offences. [Per Pratt J. C. v. Crouch A. J. C. (Contra)] The alternative offences need not necessarily be offences dealt with under the same chapter of the Penal Code or cognate "in any other technical sense," but they must, from the nature of the case, be such that the commission of each can reasonably be inferred from the same facts—[Per Crouch A. J. C.]—5 S 16.

6. Application of the section.—An alternative charge under S. 236 Cr. Proc. Code cannot be framed in respect of distinct offences nor even in respect of cognate offences, when the difference is one of degree, i.e. as to the intention imputed to the accused or as to some circumstances of aggravation. S. 236 applies to those cases only in which the prosecution cannot establish exclusively any one offence, but is able, on the facts which can be proved, to exclude the innocence of the accused and to show that he must have committed one of two or more offences—[Per Pratt J. C. in 5 S 16 (88) A. N. 95. See 19 B 57 (71) [Per Raudade J.]

7. Nature of the doubt justifying alternative charges.—The section applies to cases in which the facts themselves are not doubtful but the application of law to them is doubtful [7 N P 137 11 P R 1837 11 P R 1913 21 C 955 (973), 18 C J 574 40 B 97 4 Pat W 40 Sec 2 Weir 391 Rat 20 23 C 17 12 C N 530] The doubt referred to in S. 233 Cr. P. C. can only arise when the legal character of the facts sought to be proved against the accused might be considered as ambiguous, and the section authorises a charge in the alternative when it is doubtful which of the several offences, the facts which can be proved will constitute and not in a case where there may be doubt as to the facts which constitute one of the elements of the offence, that is corpus delicti. The section contemplates a state of facts constituting a single offence but it is doubtful whether the act or acts involved may led by the prosecution leads to one result and the result only, it cannot possibly be said that it is doubtful which of the offences has been committed by the accused [21 Cr 44 (Pat)] The section does not apply when the facts proved leave a doubt whether the accused is guilty of any of the charges at all [12 C N 530 Cr R I of 4 8 02]

Yet in the interest of simplicity and convenience, it is best to concentrate the conviction and sentence on the greatest offence proved—2 A 644 See [177-92] L B 390 S C P 7.

9. "Several offence" in S. 236, mean not merely several offences punishable under different sections, but also two or more offences punishable under the same section, whether under the same part or under different parts, of the same section—32 P. R 1845, 25 B 533

10. Series of facts "and several offences". The series of acts contemplated by S. 236, Cr. P. C. need not be necessarily a series of connected acts. Several offences, may be of the same kind or otherwise—24 B 533.

11. Rule for assessing punishments.—When the materials available as to the offence are used but the committee charged under S. 236, the Court should record a conviction in the alternative and the question of sentence should be considered from the point of view of the maximum sentence provided for the lesser of the two alternative charges—15 A J 587

12. The application of S. 403 (1) in so far as it is controlled by S. 236.—In order to apply S. 403 (1) of the Criminal Procedure Code, it is necessary to see whether under S. 236 of the Code any charge in the previous trial could have been framed for the offences for which the accused is sought to be tried at the second trial. Sec 23 of the Code only applies when the act or a series constituted, see [110 C N 1125] 21] Under S. 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code an accused cannot be tried a second time on the same facts for an offence cognate to or involved in the offences with which he was previously charged [45 C 727 See 3 S. 16] Where the subsequent charge is based on certain additional facts discovered after the previous trial on a different charge had ended in acquittal, the provisions of Ss. 236 and 237 Cr. P. C. cannot be invoked in order to plead the bar provided by S. 403 Cr. P. C. [10 C N 1031]

13. Ss. 236–239 provide for the consequences of misapplication of the law.—An exception to the general rule that an accused person should not be convicted on appeal of a charge to which he had no opportunity to plead in the lower Court, is provided by Ss. 236–239 Cr. P. C. Where the prosecution has established certain acts constituting an offence and the Court has misapplied the law to these acts by charging and convicting the accused for another offence and where notwithstanding the error, the record shows that the accused had endeavoured to meet the accusation arising out of the proper charge, the appellate Court may convict the accused of the latter charge and a retrial is not necessary 26 C 663 See [11] U B 3-4 98

14. Addition of charge at the Sessions.—Three persons were jointly committed for trial before the Sessions Judge, two of them being charged with culpable homicide not amounting to murder and the third with abetment of the same. At the trial, the Sessions Judge added a charge against all the accused of causing hurt to another person either at the same time as, or immediately after, the attack which resulted in death and convicted them of all the charges, held—that the Judge had no power to—add to the charge and the case did not come within the terms of Ss 223, 234 or 237 Cr. P. C. 8 A 665

15. When Sec. 234 can be read with Ss. 230 and 237 Cr. P. C.—Under Cl. (2) of S 234 of the Code, offences are of the same kind, when they are punishable with the same amount of punishment under the same section and where this is not the case, neither S 233 nor S 237 can be read with S 234 of the Code

23 Cr 751 (N) See 15 C P 53 33 B 77

16. Procedure when accused is charged alternatively with graver and less serious offences.—When the accused is alternatively charged with a graver and a less serious offence, a definite finding as to the accused being guilty of a particular charge should be given—1 Bar S. 374

17. Alternative charge for perjury.—When a person is charged with having made contradictory statements, one at the Police investigation and the other before a Magistrate, he cannot be charged with, still less convicted, of the offence under S 193 I P C.—[18 B 377 (F. B.) Rat 503] Prosecution on alternative charges for making contradictory statements before the Police and the Magistrate, should be discouraged and can be justified only when the prosecution is unable to prove which of the statements is false [27 P R 1899 See 11 Cr 731 (L B) 3 L B 204-10 B 124 20 P R 1910]

18. Form of charge in respect of possession of stolen property.—Where the accused is found in possession of several stolen articles belonging to A and B, at one and the same time, the proper course is to frame two charges, in respect of the property of A, one under S 379 I. P. C., and the other under S 411 I P C expressed either alternatively or cumulatively and two similar charges in respect of property of B.—26 P R 1889 See 17 M J 219

19. Joint trial.—The joint trial of two persons accused of giving false evidence, in the same case and on the same point is not permitted by the terms of S 238 Cr P C—[5 S 129] But where four accused were tried together, the first under S 353 P C the second under S 350 and 411, the third and fourth under Ss 411 and 414 P C all the stolen property being handed to the first accused, and the disposal with which the other accused were charged, forming one and the same transaction—held there was no misjoinder of charges or persons [4 Bur T 263]

20. Application of S. 237 Cr. P. C.—The application of S 237 is by its express terms restricted to case mentioned in S 236 Cr P C S. 236 applies only to a case in which there is a single act or a series of acts of such a nature that it is doubtful which of the several offences is constituted by the criminal act or acts Hence when there is no doubt as to the offence committed neither S 236 or 237 can apply [Per Mookerjee and Beache off J J]—18 C J 574 18 C N. 1276

22. Court's duty when convicting under S. 237.—When a Court finds it necessary to make use of S 237 Cr P C, in order to convict an accused person of an offence with which he has not been charged, it should be particularly be careful to formulate to its own mind the charge, upon which, had it been duly framed, the Court would be prepared to convict—Per Piggott J in 17 Cr. 64 (A)

23. S. 23 / Complementary to S. 236.—S. 237 Cr P C would apply in cases where S 236 applies See 237 is an enabling section, which empowers the Court to convict the accused of offences for which no charge has been framed, but for which a charge could have been framed under S 236 Sec 236 applies only when there is no doubt as to the facts of the case but only under which section of the law upon the facts found the accused would be guilty—4 Pat W 40-14 C N 839

24. Procedure with reference to recording the plea of the accused.—When arguing the accused and before his plea is received, the Court should see that the charge is sufficiently and explicitly explained to him in order to enable him to understand fully the nature of the charge to which he is called upon to plead [5 C 820; Rat 698 931 61] An accused person should not be called upon to plead in the alternative but separately to each of the heads of a charge. [Rat 327]

II. ALTERNATIVE CHARGES.

In cases of perjury.

25. Effect of the change in Law.—Illustration (b) introduced by the Code of 1898 is proposed to settle the law that contradictory statements by a witness which are inconsistent constitute the offence of intentionally giving false evidence though it cannot be proved which of the two statements is false. (See statements of objects and Reasons) The illustration has adopted the view of the Full Bench in 21 W R 72 (F. B.) and 7 A

44 which laid down in 1884—under the law of British India it is not necessary that a charge of perjury under S 193, based on two contradictory statements on oath, should allege which of them is false, but it is sufficient (unless some satisfactory explanation of the contradiction should be established) to warrant a conviction, to show that an accused person has made one statement upon oath at one time, and a directly contradictory statement at another. [7 A 11; See also 2 Weir 210]

The ratio decidendi of English cases relating to perjury is inapplicable to India. [7 A 44, 26 M 55 (92)]

Notes.—Rat 518; 336 401 and 18 B. 377 (F. B.) must be held to be superseded.

23. Scope of ill (b).—In 15 K. 115 it has been sought to confine the scope of ill (b) to cases where the two contradictory statements are of the same kind and it has been held, inapplicable to statements falling under the two different parts of S 193 I P C. It has therefore been held that where one of the statements was made before the police and the other before a Magistrate, the section would not apply. [See also 18 B 377 (F. B.) and 23 B 533 Rat 503 518, 336.] But this view is opposed to that taken in 22 A. 115; (105) A N 73 and 5 M T 356.

27. [Note.—Prosecution on alternative charges of persons who make contradictory statements to the police and to a Court, has its convenience, but it has also its drawbacks. It is not a prosecution to be encouraged, and is justifiable only when the prosecution is unable to prove which of the contradictory statements was false.—27 P R 1850 11 Cr 734 (L B) 3 L B 204.]

23. When the section is to be applied.—It is only when it is found impossible to say which of the conflicting statements was false and the two could not be reconciled, that the prisoner should be convicted in the alternative on a charge framed under this section.—2 Weir 300

29. Form of charge.—The charge should be framed in the alternative as in Form No XXVIII, (4) Sch V [7 A 41 10 B 121. 32 P R 1888]

30. The rule as to reconciliation of two contradictory statements.—An alternative finding should not be resorted to until both the committing officer and the Sessions Judge are satisfied that no reliable evidence is procurable in support of one or other of the charges and such a finding cannot be based in a case of giving false evidence upon two statements, which are not absolutely contradictory, the one or the other, nor when in one of them the accused gives only hearsay evidence. Every presumption in favour of the possible reconciliation of the statements must be made. 13 B L 325; See 28 B 533 7 A. 44. (10) M. N. 397; See III (b) to S 237

31. Alternative charges under the Penal Code and a special Law.—An alternative charge under Ss. 236 and 237 cannot be framed in respect of an offence under the Penal Code and an offence under a Special Law, nor can a Court inflict any sentence upon a person found guilty in the alternative of an offence under the Penal Code and another under a Special Act. 5 S. 16. See 8 B. H 115.

32. Difference between cumulative and alternative charges.—The essential difference between (1) cumulative charges (2) alternative charges and (3) charges in the alternative, is that under the first, the Court is asked to convict of two or more offences, under the second of any one specified offence, and under the third, of one or other of two offences without specifying which. The alternative offences must be such that the commission of each can reasonably be inferred from the same facts. 5 S. 16

33. Alternative charge should be framed.—As in the form given in Sch. V, No. 29 Sub-head II—1 Bur. S. 436.

34. Alternative charges under Ss. 302 and 201 I. P. C.—A and his wife B committed a series of acts in the course of the same transaction, from which acts, it could be inferred that both A and B or either of them committed the offence of murder or that one of them caused the disappearance of the evidence of commission of the offence by burning the dead body. Held, that the joinder of charges of murder and of causing disappearance of the evidence of the murder in the alternative was legal under S. 236 Cr P C. [4 S 171. 1 S 73. See 11 P. R. 1013]

35. Omission to frame an alternative charge.—An omission to frame an alternative charge comes under the very comprehensive words "error or irregularity in any enquiry or other proceedings" in S. 537 Cr. P. C.; (16) M. N. 267 26 B 533.

III. WHEN A PERSON CHARGED WITH ONE OFFENCE CAN BE CONVICTED OF ANOTHER (S. 237).

38. Principle to be observed in applying S. 237.—A person should not be convicted of an offence with which he had not been formally charged, if the altered charge was such that if it had been originally framed, the defence made and the evidence adduced for the defence might have been of an entirely different character.—See (16) M. N. 267. 30 C. 284 1 Pat W. 40. 5 C N. 567.

37. Modification of charges.—The accused was charged under Ss. 232 and 245 I P C. It was found that the purpose of counterfeiting was not making gain by passing off false coins as good ones but of getting certain enemies into trouble by secretly getting them into the latter's house. They were acquitted under S. 212 but convicted of offences under Ss. 235 and 195-107

I P C. The appellate Court on appeal convicted the accused under S 195 and set aside the conviction under Ss 235 and 195-107 I. P. C. holding that the conviction under S 195 was permissible although the section was not mentioned in the charge.—43 P. L 1012

 44. Person charged under S. 124-A may be convicted under S. 153-A.—An accused person who has been charged with an offence under S. 124-A may be convicted under S. 153-A I. P.  45. Person charged under Ss. 392 and 382 I. P. C. cannot be convicted under S. 458 I. P. C.—N was sent up by the Police with two others for trial under S. 395 I. P. C. The District Magistrate charged him under S. 392 I. P. C. with robbery and also with a previous conviction under S. 382 I. P. C. The accused pleaded an alibi which was disbelieved. The Magistrate found the accused guilty under S. 153 I. P. C. (house breaking by night after making preparations to cause hurt) and convicted him under that section, observing that as the defence was an alibi, the accused could not be prejudiced by the change of section, held that this doctrine could not be accepted as correct, except in cases falling within the purview of Ss. 236, 237 and 238 Cr. P. C.—(11) U B 3-g 98
 46. Case under the Bengal Excise Act (V of 1909).—The High Court in this case in revision set aside the conviction under Ss. 46, and 52 of the Act, and convicted the accused under S. 61 read with S. 16 cl (a) and S. 2 cl (12) holding that Ss. 236 and 237 were applicable—41 C 537
 47. Person charged under S. 147 cannot be convicted under S. 323 I. P. C.—Where the accused were charged with and convicted for an offence under S. 147 I. P.  59. Abetment under the Excise Act.—A person cannot be punished for abetment of an offence under the Excise Act [XXI of 1876] as that Act contains no provision for abetment and the Penal Code is inapplicable on account of its defining offence as "a thing punishable by the Code."—7 W. R. 53.

60. Person charged with dacoity may be convicted of abetment of robbery.—The fact that the accused has been charged with dacoity does not necessarily invalidate a verdict of guilty of abetment of the robbery. 8 Bur T. 247 (F. B.) 3 M T. 122 7 W. R. 19. cf 8 B 200 (F. B.)
61. General Principle.—There is no provision of law which allows of a conviction of a major charge after being charged with a minor offence 1 B. R. 513
62. Ss. 236 and 237 Cr. P. C. will not justify second conviction on discovery of new facts.—The accused, on being challenged, dropped a sewing machine and tried to escape but was arrested and sent up and convicted under S. 31 of the Rangoon Police Act Subsequently, the machine was identified as the one stolen from Mr. Y's house and the accused was tried under S. 457 I P. C. and convicted a second time, held that Ss. 236 and 237 did not authorise a second conviction on further evidence subsequently coming to light and showing that the act of the accused constituted a graver offence than that of which he was convicted S. 433 would bar the second trial.—8 Bur T. 129.

63. Procedure in cases tried with the aid of assessors.—A person cannot be convicted of an offence with which he has not been charged, but which the evidence shows he has committed in a case tried with the aid of assessors, when the opinion of the assessors, has not been taken with regard to such offence.—2 Weir 391.

238. (1) When a person is charged with an offence consisting of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitutes a complete minor offence, and such combination is proved, but the remaining particulars are not proved he may be convicted of the minor offence, though he was not charged with it.

(2) When a person is charged with an offence and facts are proved which reduce it to a minor offence, he may be convicted of the minor offence, although he is not charged with it.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize a conviction of any offence referred to in section 198 or section 199 when no complaint has been made as required by that section

Illustrations.

(a) A is charged, under section 407 of the Indian Penal Code, with criminal breach of trust in respect of property entrusted to him as a carrier. It appears that he did commit criminal breach of trust under section 406 in respect of the property, but that it was not entrusted to him as a carrier. He may be convicted of criminal breach of trust under section 407.

(b) A is charged, under 325 of the Indian Penal Code, with causing grievous hurt. He proves that he acted on grave and sudden provocation. He may be convicted under section 335 of the Code.

Proposed amendment to the section.—After sub section (3) of section 238 of the said Code, the following sub-section shall be inserted, namely:—

"(2c) When an accused is charged with an offence, he may be convicted of an attempt to commit such offence although the attempt is not separately charged."

Notes.

(1) Preliminary.

S. 238 (1894)=S. 467 (1872)

1. Application of the section.—This section applies to cases in which the charge is of an offence which consists of several particulars, a combination of some only of which constitutes a complete minor offence. The graver charge in such a case gives to the accused notice of all the circumstances going to constitute the minor one of which he may be convicted. The latter is arrived at by mere subtraction from the former. But when this is not the case, when the circumstances embodied in the major charge do not necessarily and according to the definition of the offence imputed by that charge constitute the minor offence also, the principle no longer applies, because notice of the former does not necessarily involve notice of all that constitutes the latter. This section is not intended to apply to a collateral offence. It is not open to a court to find a man a charge of

2. offences.—a composite offence he may, under S. 238 Cr. P. C. be convicted of any element of the composite offence which constituted a minor offence [Bat 293 P'd] In this case the accused was charged under S. 457 I. P. C. Mankipore and Shepphards J J held. "We hold consequently that although the specific intent—namely—the intent to commit theft was not established yet it was competent to the Court to convict the accused under S. 156 I. P. C. and only the consideration is, whether the accused has been prejudiced at the trial by the conviction for a minor offence in conformity with S. 234 Cr. P. C. In determination of this question, as pointed out by Couch I in 6 B. H. 76, the nature of the case made at the trial against the prisoner, the evidence that was given and the line of defence set up by him, are all matters to be taken into consideration, [20 C. N. 1075.]

3. The fact must be indicated in the charge.

—See s. 237 and 248 Cr. P. C. do not authorise the conviction of the accused upon facts which are not stated or indicated in the charge [11 B. H. 240 (12) M. N. 725 8 Bar T. 247]. An appellate Court, while sitting aside a conviction under S. 147 I. P. C. cannot convict the accused of offences under Ss. 418 and 323 I. P. C. when neither criminal trespass nor hurt was the alleged common object in the case. Such a case is not covered by S. 235 Cr. P. C. [18 Cr. 460 (M). 23 W. R. 59 34 C. 325 Fd.] The offence under S. 202 I. P. C. cannot be treated as a minor offence included under S. 201 for an essential ingredient of the offences under S. 202 is the legal duty of the accused to give information which is no part of the offence under S. 201. S. 235 Cr. P. C. therefore does not apply and a charge under S. 202 should have been framed — 5 S. 123

4. Scope of subs (2).—The accused were charged under S. 147 I. P. C. only, there being no charge nor any complaint under S. 447 I. P. C. The common object described in the charge was to take forcible possession of the complainant's land and of assaulting him and others. Held S. 238 (2) Cr. P. C. did not apply in as much as the common object was not to commit criminal trespass and the offence under S. 447 I. P. C. was not minor to that under S. 147 I. P. C. within the meaning of the section [23 W. R. 59 18 C. N. 992]. When the accused are charged under Ss. 304 and 325 read with S. 149 I. P. C. in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by another person and the commission of the riot is disbelieved, they should not be convicted under S. 323 in respect of their individual acts with which they are not charged and which are not imputed to them in the Judge's charge to the Jury.—[31 C. 325 See also 34 C. 634 17 C. N. 1311]

5. Rioting and grievous hurt.—Where in a riot, the accused had caused grievous hurt with his own hands and he is charged under S. 325 I. P. C. he cannot be convicted separately under S. 325 I. P. C. read with S. 149 I. P. C. he cannot be convicted separately under S. 325 I. P. C. if it cannot be said that the offence of causing grievous hurt is minor to or included in a charge under S. 149 I. P. C. [11 C. N. 696 See 6 C. N. 94 31 C. 325 5 C. 871 17 C. N. 1311]. A person charged by implication under S. 149, cannot be convicted of the substantive offence unless the Court draws up a charge under S. 325. When the Court draws up a charge under S. 325 I. P. C. read with S. 149 I. P. C. it clearly intimates to the accused persons that they did not cause grievous hurt to any body themselves, but that they are guilty by implication of such offence. When they are acquitted of rioting obviously all the offences which they are said to have committed by implication disappear, and the defence cannot be called upon to answer to the specific act of causing grievous hurt, simply because it may have appeared in the evidence [16 C. N. 1077 But See 7 M. 151]

6. Minor offences.—The words "minor offence" in S. 234 Cr. P. C. ought to be taken in their ordinary sense and not in any technical sense, if so taken, an offence under S. 365 would be a minor offence as compared with those under Ss. 366 and 376—22 C. 1006

7. Subs (1) illustrated.—The accused was charged and convicted under S. 457 I. P. C. On appeal, the Court altered the conviction to one under S. 411 I. P. C. Held that the offence under S. 457 being composite, the Appellate Court could record a new finding and sentence on any element of that composite offence [Rat 293]. On failure of a charge of dacoity the accused can be convicted of theft, if the evidence prove him to be guilty of theft although, the offence is not mentioned in the extradition order [17 B. 369]

8. Subs (2) illustrated.—The accused was charged under Ss. 304 and 325 I. P. C., held they might be convicted under S. 323 I. P. C. although no charge under that section has been drawn up against them [31 C. 325]. The dishonest retention of property acquired by dacoity being included in the more comprehensive charge of dacoity, the accused could be convicted under S. 412 when the conviction for dacoity had to be set aside for want of jurisdiction, [11 B. 50]. A person charged with criminal breach of trust as a public servant cannot be acquitted because the facts disclosed—(1) that he was not a public servant (2) that he committed the offence of cheating. In such a case he ought to be convicted of cheating, though he is not charged with it [12 B. H. 1]. A person charged with murder may be convicted of the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder by the Jury, [20 B. 215]. An offence under S. 365 I. P. C. is a minor offence as compared with offences under Ss. 366 and 376 I. P. C. and the accused charged with the latter offences can be convicted of the former offence, even though not charged with it [22 C. 1006.]

(2) Offences not coming within the purview of the section.

9. (1) Murder and kidnapping.—Where the accused was charged with murder but the evidence established the offence of kidnapping from lawful guardianship with which he was not charged, held that the latter offence was not a minor offence within the meaning of the section [2 Weir 302]

10. (2) Murder and Criminal misappropriation.—A person charged with murder cannot also be convicted of the offence under S. 404 I. P. C. for having misappropriated property possessed by the deceased person, unless he is charged with it also. [13 C. P. 167]

11. (3) Extortion and theft.—It is wholly illegal to convict and punish a man for a grave offence such as extortion (S. 384 I. P. C.) involving many totally different ingredients, on charge of theft under S. 379 I. P. C. [13 Cr. 597 (C)].

12. ()

of house-breaking by night, or theft in a building, [Rat 211]

13. (5) Ss 392 and 438 I P C—Where a person has been charged under S. 392 I P C he cannot be convicted of the offence under S. 438 I P C. [(11) U B 189 See I L B 17]

14. (8) Rape and adultery.—An offence under S. 494 is not a minor offence to offences under Ss 363 and 366 I P C and therefore even the formal addition of a fresh charge under S. 498 at a late stage of the trial, is opposed to the spirit of this section, when the trial has commenced on charge under S. 366, only. [31 B. 218 See 5 A 233 Fd in 27 M 61 29 C 415] It is not competent for a Judge in appeal to alter a conviction under S. 376 into one under S. 366, because a charge under the latter section would involve very different elements and different questions of fact, from a charge under S. 376 I P C [8 B. R 120]

(3) Miscellaneous.

15. The application of the rule to verdicts by jury.—The effect of S. 238 is to invest a jury trying an offence triable by a jury with authority to find as an incident to such trial that certain facts only are proved in the trial which constitute a minor offence, and return a verdict of guilty of such offence, though it may not be triable by a jury * * *. In cases in which, having regard to the charge and the evidence adduced at the trial, it is appropriate to do so, the Sessions Judge in his charge to the jury should draw their attention to the provisions of S. 237 or 238 as the case may be, so that the charged—Per Bhushyam Ayyangar J. in (102) 26 M 213

16. Cases in which the Jury convicted under a minor charge.—A Jury in a Sessions case, is competent where a charge under S. 397 Cr. P. C. is not established to convict the accused of an offence under S. 326, P. C. where the facts proved established the commission of that offence. [13 Cr. 739 (M)] In a trial of the accused upon a charge under S. 149, read alternately with S. 325 of the Penal Code (being members of an unlawful assembly and causing grievous hurt) a verdict of guilty by jury of an offence under S. 325, alone, though it did not form the subject of a separate charge was held legally sustainable under S. 457 of the Criminal Procedure Code (of 1872) [5 C 871].

Note.—See also the following cases: 22 M. 15; 24 M. 611.

17. On a reference under S. 307 Cr. P. C., the High Court can act under S. 238.—On a reference under S. 263 Cr. P. C. (=S. 307), the High Court can convict a prisoner of any offence, which the Jury could have convicted him of, upon the charge framed and placed before them, under S. 457 of Cr. P. C. 1872 (=S. 238) — 3 C. 189 22 C. 1006 (1011); 20 B. 215.
18. Conviction for major offence.—There is no provision of law which allows a conviction of a major offence on a charge of minor offence — 1 B. R. 513.
19. Conviction for adultery on a charge of kidnapping.—Where the accused was charged by the husband of the woman under S. 366 I. P. C. a conviction under S. 493 I. P. C. may properly be had if the evidence be such as to justify a conviction for the minor offence and yet insufficient for conviction for the graver offence. — 20 C 483.

Note.—This ruling is opposed to the dicta laid down in 27 M 61. 5 A. 233 22 C. 1006; 29 C. 415; 30 C 910 (F. B.).

20. Scope of the Section.—Though an accused person may be charged in the alternative with either of two offences under S. 236 or may be convicted under S. 237, of a different offence from the one with which he had been charged, the two sections must be read along with S. 238 Cr. P. C. [(11) U. B. 3 q 99]. The section is merely an enabling one. Its provisions are not imperative and therefore where the accused was charged and convicted under S. 454 I. P. C. the conviction was held good, though the facts disclosed an offence under S. 380 I. P. C. and the accused should have been tried for charges under both the Sections [Rat 307].

239. When more persons than one accused of the same offence or of different offences

What persons may be charged jointly. or of different offences committed in the same transaction, or when one person is accused of committing any offence, and another of abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence, they may be charged and tried together or separately, as the Court thinks fit, and the provisions contained in the former part of this Chapter shall apply to all such charges.

Illustrations

(1) A and B are accused of the same murder. A and B may be charged and tried together for the murder.

(2) A and B are accused of robbery, in the course of which A commits a murder with which B has nothing to do. A and B may be tried together on a charge, charging both of them with the robbery, and A also with the murder.

(3) A and B are both charged with a theft, and B is charged with two other thefts committed by him in the course of the same transaction. A and B may be both tried together on a charge, charging both with the one theft, and B alone with two other thefts.

Proposed amendment to the section.—For section 239 of the said Code, the following section shall be substituted namely:—

"239. The following persons may be charged and tried together, namely —

(a) persons accused of the same offence committed by them in the same transaction,

(b) persons accused of an offence and persons accused of abetment, or of an attempt to commit such offence,

(c) persons accused of more than one offence of the same kind within the meaning of section 231 committed by them jointly within the period of twelve months,

(d) persons accused of different offences committed in the course of the same transaction;

(e) persons accused of offences which include theft, extortion or criminal misappropriation, and persons accused of receiving or retaining or assisting in the disposal or concealment of, property possession of which has been transferred by offences committed by the first named persons, or of abetment of or attempting to commit any of the last named offences,

(f) persons accused of offences under sections 411 and 414 of the Indian Penal Code, or either of those sections in respect of stolen property the possession of which has been transferred by one offence, and

(g) persons accused of any offence under Chapter VII of the Indian Penal Code relating to counterfeit coin, and persons accused of any other offence under the said Chapter relating to the same coin, or of abetment of or attempting to commit any such offence.

And the provisions contained in the former part of this Chapter shall, so far as may be, apply to all such charges."

NOTE.—The several sections relating to joinder of charges and persons are so intimately connected with each other, that a joint interpretation of two, three or even all of them has been made not infrequently in several decisions. An attempt has been made to avoid repetition of these overlapping decisions and the reader is requested to consult the notes on the same point under more than one section, whenever necessary.

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

1. The principle to be followed.—If more persons than one are accused of different offences in a series of acts so connected together by proximity of time, community of criminal intent, continuity of action, or by relation of cause and effect, as to constitute in the opinion of the Court one transaction, they may be tried together.
- 1 S 73 (74). See 13 C N 1113 122 P L 1911
2. Commitment is not rendered illegal by reasons of misjoinder of offenders in the preliminary enquiry by the committing Magistrate.

25 M 592.

3. The illustrations to S. 239 Cr. P. C.—seem to suggest that the persons jointly tried must have been associated from the first in the series of acts which form the same transaction.

25 B 419

4. S. 230 affiliated to S. 233 Cr. P. C.—S. 233 Cr. P. C. contains the general rule, namely, that for every distinct offence of which any person is accused, there shall be a separate charge, and every such charge shall be tried separately. To this rule there are several exceptions—viz—those contained in Ss 234, 235, 236 and 239 Cr. P. C.

12 B R 226.

5. Principle explained—In S. 230, a series of acts separated by intervals of time are not excluded provided that the object of those jointly tried has throughout been directed to one and the same objective. If the accused started together for the same goal, this suffices to justify the joint-trial, even if incidentally one of those jointly tried has done an act, for which the other may not be responsible. The foundation for the procedure in the section, is the association of persons concurring from start to finish, to attain the same end.

7 B R 633. See 38 C 453 13 C N. 1059.

6. Ss 234 to 236 and 239 not mutually exclusive.—Ss 234 to 236 and 239 Cr P C referred to as exceptions in S. 233, are not mutually exclusive.

10 B R 973

7. Difference between S. 234 and S. 239.—S. 234 is not applicable where there are several persons accused. A joint trial of several persons charged together with having committed offences of the same nature though not different dates during the course of one year, not forming parts of the same transaction is illegal.

31 C 292 168 P L 1911 122 P L 1911

8. Application of S. 239 Cr. P. C.—S. 239 of the Criminal Procedure Code is the only section of the Code which refers to a joint trial of more persons than one, but it does not authorise such trial for two or more distinct offences unless they form part of the same transaction or unless one is the actual offence and the other or others are offences of abetting or attempting that offence—[20 Cr 7 (V) See 4 N 71]

9. The two clauses of S. 239 not mutually exclusive.—The two clauses of S. 239 Cr P C are not mutually exclusive. If A induces B to cheat and B attempts to cheat in consequence, A and B may clearly be tried together for abetment of and attempt at cheating. If in the course of the same transaction, A commits the separate offence of criminal breach of trust in furtherance of the conspiracy to cheat, A may clearly be charged with that offence at the same trial.—[38 C 173: See 13 C N 1059].

10. "Same transaction" includes principle and subsidiary offence.—The expression "same transaction" used in Ss 235 to 239 is an expression which, from its very nature, is incapable of exact definition, and must have been advisedly used, because it had this quality. The area of facts covered by the expression "same transaction" varies with the circumstances of each case. The illustrations to the section however make the intention of the Legislature sufficiently clear. Those criminal acts, which are by English and Indian law regarded as subsidiary to an offence, are included in the same transaction as the offence. Instances of such acts are in the case of theft the disposing of the stolen property, and handing it over to a receiver, and in the case of murder, the concealment of the body—1 S 73

11. The Section does not apply to preliminary inquiries.—There is no provision in the Code which requires a separate enquiry in respect of each accused person as the provisions contained in S. 233 relate to separate trials only. The trial no doubt could not be joint, but there could be no objection to proceedings prior to commitment on the ground that the enquiry was conducted against the accused jointly with others.—7 B R 457 26 M 592 42 M. 561. But see Rat 925.

Note.—The section is enabling and not imperative—26 M. 592. 11 W R 16, Rat 915. (CO) A. N 206

12. Security proceedings.—The main principles applicable to criminal trials regarding joinder of charges and the joint trial of accused persons are also applicable to inquiries under S. 107 Cr P C [8 C N 180 9 A 452. See 11 C N 472] Where several persons are arraigned to show cause under S. 110 Cr P C each must be separately tried [Rat 585 Rat 536. See 14 C 358. But see notes under S. 110 VI (B) Procedure (12)]

13. Meaning of "accused of the same offence."—The words "same offence" in S. 239 of the Code of Criminal Procedure imply that both the accused should have acted in concert or association and do not apply to a case like the present, and that the two accused ought to have been tried separately as required by the provisions of S. 233—7 L B 68 6 M 690

II. SAME TRANSACTION—MEANING AND CASES.

14. Meaning.—Transaction means "carrying through" and suggests not necessarily proximity of time, so much as continuity of action and purpose. The successive acts may be separated by intervals of time, the essential element being progressive action all pointing to the same object. The foundation for the procedure is the association of two persons concurring from start to finish to attain the same end. The continuance of a common object, the progressive execution of it by successive acts satisfy the test and criterion implied in S. 230—Per Russell and

Batty in 30 B 49 See 6 C 171 (F. B.) at p 186 For definition of same transaction, See Notes under S. 233 supra 15. Theft and Receiving Stolen property.—The illustrations to S. 230 of the Crim. Proc. Code of 1908 seem to suggest that the persons jointly tried must have been associated from the first in the series of acts which form the same transaction [29 B 440 14 C 395]. On this principle it has been held that when different articles stolen at one time are found in the possession of several persons, a joint trial under S. 230 Cr. P.

C would be illegal and must be quashed [33 C 1250 17 Cr 477 (V)] unless of course it can be shown that all the accused received the stolen articles during the same transaction [1 C N 35 40 C 741] When a stolen article is criminally disposed of by one person and at the same time and place, dishonestly received by another, the two offences of theft and receiving stolen property form part of the same transaction and the two persons can be jointly tried at one trial [24 B 112] S 239 therefore does not apply to a joint trial of the offences of stealing and receiving the stolen property (i.e., the thief and the receiver) when they are not parts of the same transaction [3 P. R. 1905 21 C. N. 1111 1. C. N. 35 5 C L 574. See G. C. L. 245 (07) U. B. 1-q 5 Con 25 C 7, 25 C 10] Accused No 1 received from certain thieves stolen property. Subsequently he delivered to the accused No 2, a portion of the stolen property in satisfaction of the debt which he owed to the latter. A further portion of the stolen property was afterwards recovered from accused No 3, but there was nothing to show when he received it and from whom. Held that the three accused could not be tried together under S. 239 [29 B 419]

18. Note pro contra.—Persons concerned in the theft as well as those engaged in the purchase or dishonest receipt of the stolen property are all engaged at different stages in what amounts to the same transaction [remarks of Brett J in 33 C 1250 adopted] The guilty receipt of the property stolen is a continuation of the act of theft or criminal breach of trust [6 B R 517 fd]—39 A 311

17. Murder and grievous hurt.—Some unknown set of persons killed N and another set of persons came and tried to carry off N's body and in attempting to do so committed grievous hurt to W S, who tried to prevent the body being taken off. Here the two offences of murder and grievous hurt do not form part of the same transaction, for the murder might have been committed by one set of men with one object and the attempt to carry off the body may have been committed by the other set of men with a different object. The trial was therefore had for misjoinder of parties [the two sets of men]—10 P R 1106

The tests explained and illustrated.

18. (1) Common purpose.—Where three persons passed a resolution defamatory of the complainant and published the same, while a fourth person transmitted the resolution to a newspaper in Bombay, and all the 4 persons were tried together—held that the trial was bad for misjoinder as there was no evidence to show that the two offences were committed with the same object or that there was any common purpose or that the three persons instigated the fourth person to report to the newspaper [7 M 1 127] Two persons severally charged with giving false evidence in their depositions at a certain trial in a Sessions Court cannot be tried together in the absence of evidence of conspiracy [4 B R 53] The complainants were called to custody by two police and were fined by the Sub. on the 11th. On paying a part of the fine and promising to pay the balance they were released. As they failed to keep their word they were again called and confined on the 18th, but on hearing that the police were coming, they were shoe beaten and turned out—held that the two occurrences of the 11th and 18th including shoe-beating were for a single purpose—extortion of money. They therefore constituted really one transaction [12 C. 760]

The rule as to community of purpose illustrated.—Where the accusation against all the accused persons was that they carried out a single scheme by successive acts done at intervals but there was complete unity of project, and the whole series of acts were linked together by one motive and design, and they constituted one transaction within the meaning of S. 239 Cr. P. O. [14 B R 972. See 43 B 137] If several accused persons start together for the same goal, this suffices to justify their joint trial under S. 239 of the Cr. P. C. even if incidentally one of those jointly tried has done an act for which the others may not be responsible [21 Cr 161 (Pat) See 29 B 119; 33 M 502] On this principle, it is illegal to try two sets of persons, one set having permitted cattle to trespass in a reserve forest and the other set having released the cattle [7 M T 367], or to try a person charged with an offence under S. 124 of the Railway Act with the person charged with the offence of rescuing him (S. 225 I. P. C.) [29 C 385] C gave the accused 50 counterfeit rupees to pass for him in Calcutta. While in Calcutta the accused's trunk was broken open and the counterfeit coins were stolen. The accused gave information to the police which led to the discovery of 64 other counterfeit rupees in the house of C. C was separately tried and convicted under S. 231 I. P. C. for being in possession of counterfeit coins. The accused and C were then also tried jointly the former under S. 217 and the latter under S. 210 with reference to the 50 counterfeit coins made over by C to the accused. Held that the joint trial was permissible as S. 239 read with the first clause of S. 237 Cr. P. C. [11 C 1007] The offence of the keeper of a common gaming house and the players arise out of facts so inseparably connected together as to form a single transaction and therefore S. 239 applies to the trial as a joint trial of persons accused of offences committed in the same transaction [10 N 65 14 P R 1919 20 Cr 764 (Pat); 3 N 5 P W 1910 35 P R 1914]

19. (2) Continuity of action and proximity of time. To constitute acts as one transaction prior to conspiracy among the actors is not required. So long as the actions form one continuous series in a continuous stream, the doctrine is applicable. Proximity of time is one of the elements but it is not necessary that all the acts should be completed within one day [Pr. Nijer J in 25 M T 37; 15 31 M 532 (Per J. for R. J. P.) 21 M T 36; See also 21 B R 712] Where the offences are different, falling under different acts, and the dates of the offences are different, the acts of persons committing the offences are different, and the persons or sets of persons against whom the offences are committed are different, they cannot ordinarily be held to have been committed in the same transaction [Per Sadasia Aiyar J in 25 M T 397] When the crops of one plot were looted on one day and those of another plot on the next day, held S 239 did not apply. [33 C 292 10 C N 32] Where the 4 accused were charged and tried for two offences—one dacoity committed on the 30th May and another committed on the 2nd June, and there was nothing to show that there was any community of purpose running through the two offences, held that the joint trial of the two offences was bad [8 M. T. 286 Pg. 33 C 292 See also 31 C. 1053] Where it appeared that the three accused, in the presence of washirs went into a patch of jungle, and brought out a box containing aniline dyes and the accused Nos 2 and 3 on another occasion look out of same lau bushes a tin of coal-tar and all the accused were jointly tried and convicted under S 111 P C the allegation being that both the box and the tin had been stolen from a train, held that the joint trial of the accused was illegal [3 S 136]. House breaking and theft occurred on two successive nights in two villages, 4 miles apart, held that a joint trial of the first accused who was charged with house breaking and theft and the 2nd accused his concubine who was charged with house breaking by night and theft or in the alternative with receiving stolen property was illegal, as there was no proof of continuity of action justifying the inference that the two offences were parts of the same transaction [28 M. J. 381 See 7 L B 272] A mere interval of time between the commission of one offence and another, does not, by itself, necessarily import want of continuity, though the length of the interval may be an important element in determining the connection between the two [27 B 195 See 2 N 147 11 C N 715 13 A J 1131]

20. (3) Primary and subsidiary offences.—

When two persons are jointly concerned in the production in evidence of a forged document, and are tried, the one as the principal and the other for abetment, the trials should be separate [42 A 24 20 Cr 214 (A)] The test to be applied as to whether a number of separate occurrences form the same transaction or not is this "There must be a continuity of action and the two occurrences should be so related to one another in point of purpose, or as cause and effect or as principal and subsidiary acts, as to constitute one continuous action," [27 B 125 33 M 502 3 Cr 382 (M) 24 M J. 397] Under S 239 Cr. P. C. judicial discretion has been given to the Court to try the principal offender and the abettor either jointly or separately, and the manner in which this discretion should be exercised, must depend on the facts of each case [19 C N 121]

21. (i) Preconcerted plan.—As a general (though by no means invariable) rule, the series of acts following each other must proceed out of a preconcerted plan in order to form parts of the same transaction. Where the second and third charges are unconnected with the first charge, there being no evidence of a preconcerted plan being entertained, when the offence covered by the first charge was committed by only one of the accused, a joint trial is illegal [15 Cr. 696 (M) See (10) M. N. 541 29 C. 385] In 15 Cr. 695 (M.) one of the accused in trying to force an entry into a factory was ejected. After the ejection, he got the other accused to join him and formed an unlawful assembly, the common object being to force an entrance into the factory. Where 5 persons were tried together on 4 charges, all of them were charged with having engaged in the illicit transport of opium; two of them with being in unlawful possession of 1 seer of opium, two others being in unlawful possession of 6 seers of opium, and the remaining accused with selling opium against the contract terms of the license, there being nothing on record to show that the different facts alleged were connected together in such a way as to constitute one and the same transaction.—Held that the trial held in express defiance of the provisions of 239 S Cr. P. C and must be held to be a void trial, [10 J. 141] If A. B. and C. conspire to make or have in possession or under control, an explosive substance within the meaning of the Explosive Substances Act, and in pursuance of such conspiracy, A. makes or has in possession or under control an explosive substance, they may, if the Court thinks fit, be charged and tried together under S 120-B I P. C. and see 4 (6) of Act VI. of 1909, under S 239 Cr. P. C. [42 C 957 See 10 C N 672] Where the three accused had entered into a conspiracy to defraud the Ry company by understating the weight of consignments—the first accused, as the loader of the Railway, being charged under Ss. 120 B, 420 and 161 I P C and the two accused (not Railway servants) under Ss. 120 B, 420 and 161—109 I P. C. held that a joint trial of the accused was valid.—[16 C N 672] It is fallacious to argue that a transaction is complete as soon as any offence is committed, or in other words that the term transaction is synonymous with the term "offence". It is clear that so long as a conspiracy continues, the transaction which begins with the forming of the common intention, continues through the whole series of acts proceeding out of that common intention [42 C 1153] If a person entrusts a sum of money to more than one person and those persons in collusion commit criminal breach of trust or dishonestly misappropriate the amount, surely one would expect that the Legislature would have used very clear and explicit language if it intended that in such a case those persons ought not to be tried together. The transaction is one and the same within the meaning of S 239 Cr P C [17 Cr. 80 (M)] S 239 applies where part of the stolen property is found in the possession of one accused and another part in the possession of the other accused, when evidence is given to show that the two men were acting in concert and were in joint control of the stolen property [1 Pat J 61] Where the six accused had been jointly concerned in carrying on a systematic trial of these three charges at one and the same time [38 A 157] Where the allegations against the five accused are: (1) that they entered into a conspiracy to cheat and (2) in accordance with the conspiracy they forged Railway receipts on the 17th Decr 1915, and these receipts were used, some of them on the 18th, some on 20th and some on the 21st December in order to obtain money by cheating the same persons, and (3) that the fraud was not complete till all the railway receipts had been used—held that under the circumstances there was continuity of action and purpose and the three offences of cheating along with that of forgery were committed in the course of the same transaction [17 P R 1917] Where there is evidence of jointness and concert, the joint trial of several tenants for mischiefs committed in respect of different plots of land in their respective possession is not contrary to law. [1 Pat W 691]

2. When joint trial for offences committed in the same transaction is undesirable.—Though 4 members of a police force, who had conspired to extort confession by torture from a family of suspected persons, could under certain circumstances be dealt with under Ss 235 and 239 for a series of oppressive acts which they committed in the prosecution of their common object, the propriety of doing so will be questioned, when the prospect of a fair trial may be endangered by the production of a mass of evidence directed to many different matters and tending by mere accumulation to induce an undue suspicion against the accused

3. Offences committed on two successive days.—When the accused committed theft of sheep and on being remonstrated with by the owner, threatened him, drove him into his house and confined him there till late at night, and on the next morning went again to his house and renewed the threat and intimidation,

Held—that the above acts formed part of the same transaction within the meaning of S 235 Cr. P. C and need be tried separately

9 Cr 367 (M)

[For the principle governing joinder of charges—See 10 C N 53 10 C N 520 13 C N 1067]

24. Common object—the determining factor.—Where the accused obstructed the Civil Court peon in the execution of a decree and after consulting with each other, and at the instigation of two of them, proceeded to the kauchery of the decree holder, in order to beat his son and teshid-dar, and violently assaulted the teshid-dar—held the mere fact that all the accused were not engaged in the second occurrence, and that the common object in respect of it was different from that of the first, shows that the two occurrences did not form part of the same transaction

13 C N 1113

26. Joint trial of abetment and attempt.—The two clauses of S 239 Cr P C are not mutually exclusive. If A induces B to cheat and B attempt to cheat in consequence, A and B may clearly be tried together for abetment of and attempt at cheating. If in the course of the same transaction, A commits the separate offence of criminal breach of trust in furtherance of the conspiracy to cheat A may clearly be charged with that offence at the same trial

35 C 153

III. JOINT TRIAL—WHEN NOT PERMISSIBLE.

27. General Rules.—The following rules may be laid down as crystallized by a long criminal case, and may form a useful guide for the determination of the question 'should a joint trial be held in this case?' which not unfrequently confronts the Magistrate and the prosecutor in Criminal trials.

28. (1) The fact that several persons have committed the same offence will not justify a joint trial in the absence of anything to show that they acted in concert, that is to say the several offences committed by them though separated by intervals of time proceeded out of a common conspiracy and were calculated to further the same object [see 5 M. 20 33 C 232 3 C N. celvan 13 C N. eli 13 C N. cxxti 2 weir 303 168 P L 1911] Persons owning lands on both sides of a road can not be tried jointly on a charge under S 283 P C of having let the water on their land overflow the road [Cr. R 3 of 1906] It follows therefore that where the charges involve a conspiracy among the accused, a joint trial will be valid [see (1) A N 52 16 A 88]

29. Note. In perjury cases, where several witnesses on the same side, give false evidence in the same case, their offences will, as a rule be regarded as distinct, unless there is any evidence of the existence of a conspiracy [14 B R 972]. [See the following cases: 7 B L (sq) 66 11 W. R 16 abatement of offence in the case of the other. [16 C. N 600]

32. (3) Where each offence is a completed act in itself and the original design was accomplished so far as that act was concerned before the next offence was embarked upon there is no continuity. In such cases, the first offence and the subsequent offence cannot be tried together.

33. Cases.—A Magistrate held a joint investigation in the case of 4 accused persons who were charged with different offences and committed them under Ss 211, 114, 465, 193 I P C. The High Court directed a fresh enquiry, remarking that the charges against all the accused being under Ss 211 and 114, can only form the subject of a joint trial. While in other cases the trial must be separate. [It 925 See 7 P R 1901, 14 A, 502] Where S obtained in August certain currency notes by committing offences under Ss 120, 471 and 404 I P C and in January following, he in conjunction with H tried to obtain goods in exchange for one of the notes, held that the two offences committed in August and January did not form parts of the same transaction and therefore the joint trial was bad in law but they could have been tried jointly for the offences committed in January. [31 C 1053 See also the following cases 10 C N 32 13 C N 1076 14 C 395 3 S 136 51 P. R 1905 10 P R 1906 33 C 292 122 P L 1911] Manufacturing excisable article seized and brought into Court, bottling it, possessing it, selling from time to time various other articles not before the Court, and attempting to render denatured spirit fit for human consumption do not constitute one transaction—[41 C 631]

34. (4) Where the second offence is really an offshoot of the first but the two offences are not connected together by proximity of time, community or purpose of design and continuity of action a joint trial of the persons committing the two offences would be illegal.

35. Note.—This rule is aptly illustrated by cases of theft or criminal misappropriation followed by disposal resulting in the receiving or retention of stolen property. It has been held that the offence of receiving stolen property does not form part of the same transaction with the offence of theft, unless they are simultaneous [1 C N 35] Theft and the disposal of stolen property will ordinarily form part of the same transaction but there is no necessary inference of connection but where the person charged with retention or receipt of stolen property is proved to be a particeps criminis with the actual thief a joint trial is legally permissible [6 B R 617 11 A J 344 11 C J 182]

36. False information.—Where a Deputy Collector acting under the Land Acquisition Act complained against the lessor and the lessees that they had given false information in certain written statements concerning certain lands under acquisition, held that the mere fact that there was joint complaint against all the parties would not justify a joint trial of what were essentially distinct transactions [29 C 955] But where two persons on two successive days laid false information before the police implicating the same person in theft of certain goats held that the trial of the two persons under S. 211 P. C was not bad for misjoinder of parties [27 M. 127]

37. Lurking House-trespass (S. 458 I. P. C. and receiving stolen property (S. 411).—Where the two accused were sent up on a charge under S. 458 I P C but the Magistrate on taking evidence found that one of the two accused was guilty under S. 411 I P C held that the joint trial was illegal as when the Magistrate found that S. 458 was not applicable to one of the accused, he should have tried the two separately. 51 P. R 1905. See 38 P. R 1905. (53) A. N. 135 (82) A. N. 215

37-A. Ss. 457, 411 and 413 P. C.—The accused S. D R and M were committed to the Sessions on the following charges—viz, S D under S. 457 P. C, S. D R. M under S. 411 P C for dishonest possession etc. of stolen property belonging to 7 different persons and S D R and M under S. 413 for habitually receiving and dealing with stolen property—held—that the commitment was illegal and must be quashed

(53) A. N. 39; (85) A. N. 236

38. Contempt of Court.—It is illegal to conjointly try in one trial several persons accused of distinct substantive offences of contempt of Court. It is obvious that this procedure may have been prejudicial to the cases of the persons thus improperly tried, for they would be precluded from calling each other as witnesses in support of their various and distinct pleas of not guilty. 40. Cattle trespass and rescue of cattle.—Certain persons were charged and tried for permitting cattle to trespass, and the same persons with others were charged and tried together for rioting in rescuing the cattle after they had been impounded at another time and in another place. But it was not found that the parties when they permitted the cattle to trespass intended that if the cattle were impounded they would rescue them, held—that under the circumstances the accused ought not to have been tried together.—7 M. T. 307 [26 M. 414 20 C 335 R.]

41. Person accused of kidnapping a girl and person found disposing her off.—A person accused of kidnapping a girl, or of having kept a kidnapped girl in confinement cannot be tried jointly with a person who is found disposing her off on a subsequent date, and is charged with the offence under S. 419.

613 P. L. 1903

42. Quotations.—The Court has no jurisdiction to try persons accused of two separate and distinct offences in the same trial.—29 C 385
43. Criminal breach of trust and receiving property obtained by the same.—A person, who commits a criminal breach of trust, can be tried jointly with another person, who receives the property obtained by the breach of trust

44. Distinct offences of cheating.—The trial of persons jointly for distinct offences of cheating and the fusion of the trial of such persons before delivery of judgment are opposed to so 235 and 239 Cr P C 16 P. R. 1902
45. Causing hurt to three persons.—Where the two accused were, in one charge, charged with causing hurt by do to three others, but it appeared that one of them did not cause hurt by do and was convicted under S 352 I P C for using a bat against 2 of the 3 persons, held that the charge was improper and extremely confusing and might have prejudiced the accused in their trial [Conviction set aside Retrial ordered]
17 C. N. 119
46. Illicit possession and illicit selling.—Where the illicit possession of cocaine by the accused (S 49 of the Exercise Act) is unconnected with and distinct from the offence of illicit selling of cocaine (S 53) of the co-accused a joint trial of the two accused is illegal and the illegality is not cured even if the accused did not object
29 P R 1911.
47. Two fraudulent executions of kabulyat.—Two sets of persons cannot under S 233 and 231 Cr P C, be jointly tried in the same case, merely because they have on the same date, and in order to defraud the same person, executed kabulyats, as the two kabulyats are separate transactions, 21 C N 756
48. Joint trial of several witnesses guilty of perjury.—Though A and B may conspire to give false evidence to the same effect with the common object of inducing a Court to believe and hold to be true that which is not true, nevertheless the act of A in going into the witness-box, taking an oath, and telling a lie, is not any part of the same transaction as the similar but distinct act of B. A joint trial of A and B would contravene the terms of S 239 Cr P C, as they have not committed the same offence but different offences within the meaning of the section 13 N 35 [4 N 71 2 N 117 P] 9 W. 51. Joint trial of the alleged thief with persons charged with rescuing him from lawful custody.—When one of the accused, caught in the act of committing theft was rescued by 5 others while being taken to the thana and some of the latter snatched away some clothes from the person of the complainant and the Magistrate tried all of them jointly two of them under ss 225, 379 P. C., two under S 379 P C and the remaining two on a charge under S 225 P C
Held that the trial was illegal, being vitiated by mis-joinder of charges 13 C N 801
52. Offences under Ss. 193, 195 and 211 P. C. A joint trial of two or more persons for offences under Ss 193, 195 and 211 P C is illegal, and must be quashed (82) A N 121
53. Charges under Ss. 193 and 465. Persons accused of offences under Ss 193 and 465 P C (with reference to a forged bond) cannot be jointly committed for trial (59) A N 160.

59. Charges under Ss. 411 and 414 P. C.—When a stolen article is criminally disposed of by one person and at the same time and place dishonestly received by another, the two offences from part of the same transaction and the two persons can be tried jointly at one trial

65. S. 408 and 400—109 and S. 420—511.—A ticket collector handed over 2 used tickets to a confederates and the latter thereupon prepared a false claim for refund on producing them before a Railway authority. The former was charged under Ss 108 and 120 read with S 109 I P C and the latter under S. 420 read with S 511 P. 66. Principal and Agent.—S 239 clearly allows an agent to be tried in the same trial as the principal. A licensed vendor who is punishable by implication under S 56 of the Bengal Excise Act 1909 may be tried together with his agent who commits the offence. The case is one of abetment by implication [15 C J. 692] A person who had license for the sale of opium allowed another who had no license to sell the drug, had that their joint trial and conviction under S. 9 of the Opium Act was valid as they acted in the course of the transaction [113 P. VII. MISCELLANEOUS.

72. Joint accused as witness against each other.—Where two prisoners are being tried together for different offences committed in the same transaction, it is improper and illegal to take one prisoner from the dock and examine him as a witness against the other—[5 C L 574 15 C. P. 112 (113)] Where the trial was separate because one of the two accused persons was unknown when the case against the other was taken up, it was held that a Magistrate's procedure in examining the accused in one case as a witness in the other case was irregular—[9 Bur T 135]

73. S. 239 governed by Ss. 234 and 235 Cr. P. C.—S. 239 is governed by Sections 234 and 235 Cr P C, as the provisions contained in the former part of chapter XIX apply to all charges falling under that section 11 A J 188

76. Judgment in cases tried under S. 239 Cr. P. 240. When a charge containing more heads than one is framed against the same person, and

Withdrawal of remaining charges on conviction on one of several charges when a conviction has been had on one or more of them, the complaint, or the officer conducting the prosecution may with the consent of the Court, withdraw the remaining charge or charges or the Court of its own accord may stay the inquiry into, or trial of, such charge or charges. Such withdrawal shall have the effect of an acquittal on such charge or charges, unless the conviction be set aside, in which case the said Court (subject to the order of the Court setting aside the conviction) may proceed with the inquiry into or trial of the charge or charges so withdrawn

Notes.

1. Application of the section.—S. 240 applies to a case when a person is accused of several offences and not a case where several formal charges have been drawn up by the Court against him. It may also apply to a case in which there are charges of several distinct offences constituted by separate acts or series of acts, e.g. charges falling under S. 234 or S. 235 Subs. 1. But it does not apply when there are several formal charges founded upon the same act or series of acts regarded in different aspects, e.g. charges under S. 235 subs. 2 and 3 or S. 236—[21 P. R. 1849]. The section applies only to charges formally framed under Chapter XIX of this Code. [10 C. P. 1].
2. The separate charges must have been framed in the same case.—The permission to withdraw one of several charges against an accused person allowed by S. 240 of the Cr P C only applies to charges against the same accused in the same case and not to separate charges of distinct offences in different cases—[1st 362, Rat 977 6 M T 39 (1)]

3. The consent of the court.—Criminal Courts have equally with Civil Courts, inherent power to mould their procedure, subject to statutory provisions to enable them to discharge their functions as Courts of Justice. A Criminal Court has no power to permit the prosecution to withdraw charges, the power of which is objected to as illegal. [Per M. J. J. in 16 C N 1105 (S.B.)]
4. Why the consent of the Court is necessary.—Withdrawal of complaint is the act of only one party to the proceeding—i.e. the complainant * * It is quite intelligible why in the case of the withdrawal of a complaint, the Legislature should have imposed the necessity of obtaining the permission of the Magistrate

5. Stago at which a charge may be withdrawn.—A charge cannot be withdrawn after the Judge had summed up and the Jury returned their verdict [Rat 254]. When the evidence on all the charges are recorded, and the pleaders heard, the Sessions Judge, must under S 297 sum up the whole of the evidence, and the Jury should then be required under S 303, to return a verdict on all the charges [Rat 256].
6. When charges should not be dropped.—When a Court considers the evidence sufficient to convict an accused person under more than one offence under each head, it should not record a formal conviction under the first head and drop the others, but its best procedure is to convict on each head of the charge and pass concurrent sentences [Rat 19].

7. High Court may on appeal stay enquiry. In a case of criminal breach of trust in respect of 10 receipts of small amounts, the High Court observed that the Sessions Judge acted very properly in confining the trial to three of such receipts and also directed that the prosecution in respect of the receipts of other items might be stayed as the sentence of two years imprisonment already inflicted, was sufficient to meet the requirements of the case.—3 C. J. 257
8. Stay of enquiry by implication.—When a Magistrate merely convicts the accused on the first charge and specially refrains from dealing with the second, the trial on that charge may be taken as stayed, and a subsequent trial on the second charge, on the conviction being reversed, on appeal, will not be barred by S 493 Cr. P. C.—(89) A. N. 8
9. Prosecution should not be compelled to institute a second prosecution.—Having dealt with the case as it has been tried by the lower Court, in appeal or revision, the superior Court will not be justified, except in exceptional cases, in giving orders for the future proceedings of the Crown and the executive duty of repeating the prosecution where the first trial breaks down.—4 N. 71. See 12 C. N. 240.

CHAPTER XX,

OF THE TRIAL OF SUMMONS-CASES BY MAGISTRATES.

Procedure in summons-cases

241. The following procedure shall be observed by Magistrates in the trial of summons-cases

Notes.

1. Application of the Chapter.—This Chapter deals only with the trial of summons cases. A warrant case being a graver offence cannot be tried under this Chapter, nor can a summons case be tried under Chapter XXI which deals with the trial of warrant cases.—7 M. 454 (456) See 22 B. 711
2. Composite Cases.—Where two charges arising out of the same transaction are made against an accused person, one of which is a summons case, and the other a warrant case, the case should be tried as a warrant case
11 C. 913. L. B. 113
- [Note.—If the complainant is absent, the proper order would be a discharge under S 253 Cr. P. C. and not an acquittal under S 247 Cr. P. C. [11 C. 91. 22 B. 711 (713)].
3. S. 233 Cr. P. C. applies to trials under this Chapter.—The principles of S. 231 and the sections mentioned in it apply to trials of summons cases under Ch. XX of the code.—3 L. B. 52 (55) [F.B.].
4. Summons case cannot be committed to the Sessions.—Where a Magistrate committed a person charged with offences under Ss 352 and 447 I. P. C. for trial at the Sessions, held that there was no warrant in the Criminal Procedure Code for the commitment of Summons cases.—(66) A. N. 28
5. Effect of trying warrant cases under Ch. XX.—The accused charged with an offence under S. 9 of the Opium Act (I of 1878) was tried under this Chapter and called upon to plead before recording evidence in support of the prosecution. He was convicted under S. 243 on his own admission without even framing a formal charge. Held that the procedure was more than an irregularity and had occasioned a failure of justice.—29 M. 372. see also 5 M. T. 204
6. After issuing summons, procedure cannot be changed.—Once a Magistrate has issued a summons for an offence punishable with imprisonment for more than six months, he cannot change his procedure from that prescribed for warrant cases into that provided for summons cases, on an estimate of the prosecution evidence—17 P. R. 1887.

7. Cases under the Municipal Act, being summons cases, should be tried under this chapter.—See 2 P. R. 1890.

242. When the accused appears or is brought before the Magistrate, the particulars of the offence of which he is accused shall be stated to him, and he shall be asked if he has any cause to show why he should not be convicted; but it shall not be necessary to frame a formal charge.

Notes.

1. Meaning of "substance of accusation"—It is necessary that the accused should have a clear statement made to him (a) that he is about to be put on trial and, (b) as to the offence or facts constituting the offence with the commission of which he is accused [4 C 603]

2. Procedure.—The point (i.e. the facts which the accused is required to disprove) should be clearly explained in the same way as the issues in a civil suit are explained to the parties (see Punj. Cr. Ch. 12 p 231). When an accused person is called upon to make his defence, and such accused person is undefended by competent counsel, the trying officer should explain the strong points against him, and ascertain whether he fully comprehends them in order to give him an opportunity of rebutting or refuting the charge. [Oudh Crim. Dig. 11]

3. The word 'charge' as used in S. 242 Cr. P. C.—It is clear from S 256 (1) Cr. P. C. that in a warrant case, the trial does not begin till a charge has been framed, and the accused claims to be tried. In summons cases the intimation prescribed by S. 212 of the Code takes the place of the formal charge. The word 'charge' must be similarly interpreted in Ss. 213, 212 and 254 Cr. P. C. appears from S 4 (1)—9 N 42

4. Duty to explain the charge.—Magistrates trying cases under Ch. XX of the Code must not only state the charge to the accused but also explain fully to him. The record must show that this has been done. [(72-92) L. B. 594]

5. European British subjects.—In the case of European British subjects, a formal charge is necessary before the trial can go on. S 151 (1) infra

6. Record of the plea.—Process was issued against the accused under S 506 I P. C. and he was tried under the section but his plea was not recorded. Held—that the plea of the accused should have been taken under S 506 as the law provides that in summons cases, the first thing to be done is to ask the accused what he has got to say. [13 Cr. 188 (O)] The answer of the accused to the accusation must be recorded as nearly as possible in the words used. [(72-92) L. B. 594]

7. In mixed cases, there should be a written charge.—In a case in which the accusation consists of two parts, viz. a charge of an offence triable as a warrant case, and an accusation in respect of an offence triable as a summons case, (eg. offences under Ss 379 and 117 I P. C.) the latter offence should also form part of the charge. —29 C 481

8. The section applies in principle to security proceedings.—A Magistrate proceeding under S 117 as nearly as practicable in the same way as under S 212 Cr. P. C. has to state to the accused the particulars of the matter against them, and ask them if they could show cause why they should not be required to execute bonds.—7 M. T. 304

9. District Magistrate cannot order police enquiry after Magistrate has acted under S. 212 Cr. P. C. Where a Magistrate has acted under Ss. 212 and 214 Cr. P. C. with reference to a case under S. 19 of the Local Act (XII of 1900) the District Magistrate acts wholly ultra vires in ordering an independent police investigation in the same case.

1 P. R. 1898

243. If the accused admits that he has committed the offence of which he is accused, his admission shall be recorded as nearly as possible in the words used by him and if he shows no sufficient cause why he should not be convicted, the Magistrate shall convict him accordingly.

Proposed amendments to the section. In section 243 of the said Code for the words "shall convict," the words "may convict," shall be substituted.

2. The plea must be recorded at once.—The admission of the accused must be recorded at the time it is made and in the words of the accused as far as possible. It must not be prepared subsequently after the close of the trial from memory or from rough notes [15 M 83].
3. Examination of accused not imperative when written statement is filed.—When a written defence is filed in a case tried under ch XV (=ch XX of the Present Code), the Magistrate is not bound to take down the defence of the accused by personally examining him 16 W R 53 2 P R 1890
4. The section should be strictly complied with.—It is of the utmost importance that the terms of this section shall be most strictly complied with, because the accused's right of appeal depends on whether he has really pleaded guilty or not. It was no doubt for that reason that the Legislature required that the exact words used by the accused in his plea, should, as nearly as possible, be recorded (89) A N 81
5. Self-exculpatory statements.—When an accused person makes a self-exculpatory statement before the framing of a charge, the Magistrate should take down the plea of guilty in the form of question and answer and in the exact words used by the accused in answer to the charge.—5 B R 999; 2 P. R. 1890.

6. The section applies to security proceedings.—A statement by the person called upon to show cause in security proceedings, expressing willingness to furnish security, should be duly recorded under this section—17 M J. 438.
7. Plea of guilty renders record of evidence unnecessary.—In summons cases, where the accused pleads guilty, there is no need of recording evidence.—Cr R. 23 of 21—2—'96
8. What amounts to a plea of guilty.—A plea of guilty must be unequivocal to be the basis of a conviction. Where the accused while professing to plead guilty, denies some of the essential constituents of the offence, the plea cannot be a legal basis of a conviction [Cr R 5 of 11-4-'02]. Vague admissions and requests for pardon cannot be twisted into confessions of guilt [Cr R 5 of 15—1—'04]
9. Admission before the Police.—Where there was no plea of guilty on the part of the accused, and no witnesses were examined for the prosecution, and the accused was examined on oath and the Magistrate relying upon an admission alleged to have been made by the accused and recorded in a report written by police officer in another case—Held that the conviction was wholly irregular and must be set aside—9 C. N. 816

244. (1) If the accused does not make such admission, the Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant (if any), and take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution, and also to hear the accused and take all such evidence as he produces in his defence.

(2) The Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, on the application of the complainant or accused, issue process to compel the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or other thing

(3) The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on such application, require that his reasonable expenses, incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial, be deposited in Court

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 244 of the said Code—

(1) In sub section (1), before the words "If the accused" the words "If the Magistrate does not convict the accused under the preceding section, or" shall be inserted.

(2) In sub section (2) for the words "process to compel the attendance of any witness or the production of" the words "a summons to any witness directing him to attend or to produce" shall be substituted

Notes.

1. Meaning of "shall proceed to hear the complaint."—The section does not say that the complainant himself has got to be examined. It merely says that he shall be heard. Therefore the non-examination of the complainant does not vitiate the whole of the proceedings. Where the complainant was not examined on account of illness and consequent inability to give evidence, held that the non-examination could not be a ground for setting aside the conviction 21 Cr. 272 (C).

2. Duty of complainant to prove his case.—Where an accused person denies the truth of the complaint made against him, the Magistrate ought, under this section, to hear the complainant and his witness. Until he does so, he has no jurisdiction to record an order of acquittal—2 B L (S N) 11-18 A 221; Rat 539; 5 M 160; 20 M 348
3. Duty to examine defence witnesses.—Under this section, the Magistrate is bound to examine witnesses produced by the defence. He acquittal of the accused without examining the complainant and his witnesses is illegal [Rat 539.]

3. Order of discharge in summons case tried wrongly as warrant case amounts to acquittal.—If a Magistrate trying a summons case, whatever procedure he adopts, finds no case against the accused and lets him go unconditionally, he acquits him, though he calls his order an order of discharge and tacks on it the number of some section of the Code which deals with discharges—8 M. T. 78 See 23 W. R. 63

4. Acquittal will not affect a warrant case. A Magistrate treated a case under S 323 I. P. C. as a summons case and did not frame any charge. He dismissed the charge under S 245 Cr. P. C. Held that the so called acquittal had no effect and the order of acquittal would operate merely as an order of discharge under S 253 Cr. P. C. and would come within the purview of S 437 Cr. P. C. (86) A. N. 260

5. Effect of acquittal.—An offence under S 23 of the Forest Act VII of 1878 is a summons case, and if the accused is acquitted by a Subordinate Magistrate, the District Magistrate has not jurisdiction to direct further enquiry under S 437 infra [19 P. R. 1900]. A Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction to direct further enquiry into a case in which the order, which should have been passed under S 245 Cr. P. C. has been wrongly passed under S 233 Cr. P. C. [8 M. T. 78.] The High Court has no power in revision to convert an acquittal under this section into a conviction [8 M. T. 380.] In such a case the proper order will be an order for retrial [15 M. J. 225]

6. Second complaint after order under S. 247 infra.—Where a case was dismissed, on the ground that the complainant was absent on the day of hearing, held (1) that the proper order was one under S 247 acquitting the accused and not one striking off the complaint, (2) that on a second complaint after the above order the Magistrate could not acquit the accused on the ground that an order S 247 had already been passed in the case. The Magistrate was not entitled to acquit without trial—10 B. R. 630

7. Compensation on acquittal under the section under S. 250 infra. See Notes under S. 250 infra
8. Cases in which the High Court reversed the order of acquittal.—Where the complaint was dismissed and the accused acquitted under S 245 on the ground that the case was one completely for the Civil Court, the High Court set aside the order and directed the Magistrate to try the case—20 W. R. 66; 11 W. R. 34; 9 W. R. 21.

(2) Subs. (2)

9. Magistrate bound to pass some sentence on conviction.—Where a Magistrate convicts the accused, he is bound to pass some sentence, if only a nominal one [4 M. H. (app) 176] 2 B. R. 611. But See S 562 infra
10. Sentence of daily fine—is illegal, as that would amount to an adjudication of an offence which had never been committed—1 B. L. (O. C.) 41 25 W. R. C. 18 W. R. 44 5 B. H. 103 1 Bar S. 421.
11. Award of Court Fee to complainant on the complainant on his petition of complaint and for service of process against the accused [1 Bar S. 109]. But a general order to pay costs in addition to fine is bid. The precise amount must be specified [1 Bar S. 616]

12. Procedure on conviction of Government servants.—As to any government officer in Civil employ [See Govt. of Ind. Aug. 7 1863]. As to Military officers, sepoy, recruits in the Native Army etc [See Govt. of Ind. Oct. 3rd 1871 July 6th 1895]

246. A Magistrate may, under section 243 or section 245, convict the accused of any offence.

Finding not limited by complaint or summons triable under this Chapter which from the facts admitted or proved he appears to have committed, whatever may be the nature of the complaint or summons.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section.—The Section enables the Magistrate to proceed in regard to any other offence, prima facie established by the evidence for the prosecution but if he does so, he must proceed under S 242 Supra—23 W. R. 40.
2. Person charged with criminal trespass convicted of assault and mischief.—Where certain accused persons had been summoned to answer a charge of criminal trespass only, it is open to the trying Magistrate to convict them of the offences of assault and mischief. Held—that

247. If the summons has been issued on complaint, and upon the day appointed for the appear-

Non-appearance of complainant, ance of the accused, on any day subsequent thereto to which the hearing may be adjourned, the complainant does not appear, the

Magistrate shall, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, acquit the accused, unless for some reason he thinks proper to adjourn the hearing of the case to some other day:

Provided that, where the complainant is a public servant and his personal attendance is not required, the Magistrate may dispense with his attendance, and proceed with the case.

S. 217—Ss. 205, 208, 212 (1872)—S. 239 (1861)

Note.

(1) Scope of the Section.

1. The Section does not apply to cases instituted under S. 195 Supra. In cases instituted under S. 195 of the Code, the complaint cannot be dismissed on default of the complainant to appear.—Rat 137
2. Adjournment in summons cases.—Sec 217 of the Cr P C gives power to a Magistrate to adjourn a summons case for sufficient reason when the complainant does not appear and the fact that some witnesses are examined in the absence of the complainant would not vitiate the trial, unless it is shown that the accused was in some way prejudiced [21 Cr 232 (C)] In a case tried under this Chapter, it is not an irregularity to adjourn the case to allow the defence to secure the attendance of their witnesses—[16 W R 21 (22)]
3. Composite cases.—The fact that one of the offences complained of and tried by the Magistrate in the same case is punishable with imprisonment of 6 months or less, does not make that part of the trial a summons case. A Magistrate, therefore, cannot in such a case, pass an order of acquittal under S. 217 Cr P C, if the complainant is absent—41 M. 727 39 M 503 29 C 481 11 C 91—22 B. 711.

4. The Section may be expanded as follows:

same section on the latter date, when the complainant has again failed to appear. [2 Weir 308] In the case of Mudusoolun v. Haridoss [22 W R 40] it was held down that "under S. 205 Cr P C of 1872 (S. 217 of the present Code), the Magistrate may dismiss the complaint, if the complainant does not appear on the day to which the hearing has been duly adjourned, even though the complainant and his witnesses have been examined and their attendance seems unnecessary."

5. Can the case be dismissed on the day fixed for argument?—The hearing of a case is not concluded with the examination of the witnesses for the parties, but with the argument. S. 217 Cr P C therefore applies where the complainant is absent on the date fixed for the argument [18 C N 581 See Cr R 7 of 211 W].
6. Case dismissed for default of appearance on the day of judgment.—After a case was closed for the defence, and arguments had been heard the Magistrate adjourned it for judgment.

S. 217 of the Code, in as much as the hearing of the case had already been concluded and the attendance of the complainant had not been specially directed—46 C 567 2 Weir 306

(2) Non-appearance of complainant.

7. Appearance by wakil.—Appearance of the complainant's wakil is not "appearance" of the complainant—2 Weir 309
8. Court not bound to wait.—A Magistrate, before acquitting an accused person under S. 217 for the complainant's default of appearance, is not bound to wait till his Court is about to close for the day—7 M 356
9. Complainant prevented by flood.—The Section contemplates the use of discretion on the part of Magistrates in dismissing complaints [21 W R 64 5 W R 51 (52) A N 229] Where a complainant was prevented from attending the Court on the day of the hearing by heavy flood which cut off all communications, held that the Magistrate did not exercise his discretion properly when instead of postponing the case, he dismissed it under S. 217 [Ibid]
10. Ignorance of date. Where in a summons case, the Magistrate did not give the complainant notice of the next hearing, but sent a summons directing him to be present either at Aligarh or Talhabnagar on the 5th July 1882 where he used to hold the Court, held that the Magistrate should not have dismissed the complaint for default, but should have adjourned the case under S. 205 (S. 217) [182 A N 229] Where a case was adjourned one die, and in consequence of the absence of the complainant on the day in which it was resumed the accused was acquitted, held that the order of acquittal was illegal [16 W R 58] Ignorance of date will be presumed when the adjournment is not made in the presence and hearing of the parties [8 M R (apps) 8]
11. Change of venue without notice.—Where the complainant's witnesses could not appear on account of the Magistrate's failure to give a place different from that fixed in the summons, held that the order under S. 217 was improper. 5 W R 51
12. Transfer of the case to different Court without notice. Where a Magistrate, to whom a case had been transferred, ordered the case on the day fixed by his predecessor for the trial, without any communication to the parties, and dismissed it under S 217, for default of the complainant, but it was found that the complainant and his witnesses, though they were not present in that Court, were in attendance at another Court in the same Court-house, held that under the circumstances of the case, the provisions of S. 217 had not been properly applied—13 C L 303 21 C J 444

13. Death of the complainant.—S. 217 Cr P C

trial is ended 16 C N 1211 1 Pat J 261
See 20 C N 862 But see 14 C N 334

14. Complainant kept out of the way by fraud.—An appeal from an acquittal under S. 217 Cr P C lay on the ground that the complainant had been kept out of the way by the action of the accused. So that the acquittal had been procured by the fraud of the accused—26 M J 160

(3) Effect of acquittal.

15. An acquittal which is illegal or ultra vires is of no consequence.—A Magistrate acts wholly without jurisdiction in acquitting the accused, of a charge under S. 426 I P C (under S. 217) when he knows that the complainant is dead. The order being wholly without jurisdiction is no bar to the Magistrate taking cognizance of a second complaint on the same facts (18 C N 1211; See 4 C. N. 26 Rat 16 and 23 (91) A N 120) A dismissal of a complaint under the Workmen's Breach of Contract Act for non appearance of the complainant is illegal, before a plea could be made, by the Magistrate under S. 2 There being no offence, Sec 403 did not apply [7 L B 37] An order of acquittal passed under S. 217 Cr P C, on a date which order of dismissal will not operate as an acquittal [2 Weir 307]

16. Is an acquittal under S. 247 at all stages a bar to a second trial?—There is a difference of opinion on this point based on an interpretation of the word "tried" in S. 103. Abdul Rahim J in 10 M 176 lays down the law as follows "In summons cases the "trial" commences as soon as the Magistrate has taken cognizance of the matter and issued process. The mere fact that chapter XX is headed "Of the trial of summons cases by Magistrates" and S. 212 lays down that the first thing that a Magistrate has to do when the accused appears or is brought before him is to ask him to show cause why he should not be convicted, does not indicate that the "trial" did not commence at an earlier stage within the meaning of the Code" [In this case there was a difference of opinion with Najeeb J. and Wallis C. J. to whom the case was referred agreed with Abdul Rahim J] The above view is supported by 34 M 253 4 C N 346. 7 C N. 493; 7 C. N. 711] On the contrary, Ayling and Napier JJ. in 40 M. 977 (foot note), are of opinion that if the case is dismissed for default before the accused's plea has been recorded under S. 212 Cr P. C. and the case "tried", the acquittal will not bar a fresh complaint on the same facts [See also 26 M J 160 2 Weir 457]

[Note.—The following cases should also be consulted 10 W. R. 52. 23 W. R. 63; 25 W. R. 63 ('85) A. N. 43; 3 C. N. 760]

17. Effect of the order on charge which has not been tried.—Where a Magistrate issued process against and summoned accused persons for one of several offences alleged against them, and acquitted them of the offence for which they were summoned, no fresh processes could, in view of the provisions of S. 403 (1) be issued against them, in respect of all the offences alleged against them on the previous occasion, including the one for which they were summoned and acquitted—2 C J. 622.

(4) Miscellaneous.

18. Failure to pay process fee.—After process has been issued a Magistrate has no jurisdiction to dismiss the complaint under S. 203 for failure to pay process fees. The Magistrate should proceed under this section.—M. R. C. Pro 20-10-'86

19. When summons has not been served.—When summons has not been served on the accused, a complaint cannot be dismissed on the ground that the complainant has not appeared on the day fixed for the hearing—2 Weir 307.

20. The order "struck off" amounts to acquittal.—The order passed in a summons case where the complainant is absent on the day of hearing, is one of acquittal. A Magistrate's order "striking off" the complaint is improper—[10 B R 628]

21. Magistrate bound to dismiss except for a proper reason.—Where the complainant is absent, a Magistrate cannot adjourn the case or proceed with the case on the ground that the accused has been guilty of contempt of the processes of the Court—17 C. N. clxx. 19 C. N. 334

22. District Magistrate cannot interfere with orders under this section.—A District Magistrate cannot reverse an order of acquittal and direct a rehearing on the ground that the complainant and his Vakil appeared soon after. [7 M 213. See 2 Weir 308] A District Magistrate cannot act under S. 437 with reference to a case dismissed under this section See 4 C. N. 346 7 C N. 493; 7 C. N. 711]

23. Appeals.—No appeal is allowed against a dismissal for default of the complainant under this section [2 Weir 305].

[Note.—See also (31) A. N. 120; ('85) A. N. 43].

248. If a complainant, at any time before a final order is passed in any case under this Chapter, satisfies the Magistrate that there are sufficient grounds for permitting him to withdraw his complaint, the Magistrate may permit him to withdraw the same, and shall thereupon acquit the accused.

Notes.

1. This section applies to summons cases only.—In a warrant case in respect of a non-compoundable offence, it is not competent to the Magistrate on a private complainant's offering to withdraw from the prosecution, to enter an order of acquittal. The only sections of the Code which contemplate the termination of criminal prosecution by private arrangement are Ss. 218 and 315. S. 218 occurs in chapter XX of the Code, and that Chapter deals only with the trial of summons cases by Magistrates. S. 315 refers only to the compounding of offences which by law are allowed to be compounded. 37 B 369; Rat 461; 10 C. 531; 21 C 103. See 5 M 378; 22 B 711.
2. Magistrate bound to give effect to petition of withdrawal.—Where on the filing of a petition of compromise withdrawing the case, the Magistrate examined the complainant and satisfied himself that he understood the same, it
3. The effect of withdrawal.—The complainant who has withdrawn his case, cannot subsequently be allowed to withdraw the compromise, and insist upon the case being tried. [3 O N. 322; See 25 W. R. 61.]
4. The effect of withdrawing the case against one of several accused.—S. 218 of the Criminal Procedure Code contemplates the withdrawal of a complaint as a whole. Where a complaint against several accused persons is withdrawn as against one of them, the withdrawal amounts to a withdrawal of the whole complaint in respect of all the accused.—1 Pat T, 32.
5. 'Withdrawal' and 'order' which 'to which' as no such meaning. A case is compounded, if it is withdrawn with the consent of the accused. A Magistrate is entitled to question the complainant in order that he may be satisfied that the application filed is in fact one for composition and not for withdrawal. If on questioning the petition turns out merely to be one of withdrawal, a magistrate will be justified in not giving effect to the petition and in that case the trial will not come to an end. [1 Pat W 21; 21 C 103].
6. The effect of withdrawal of a compoundable charge on a non-compoundable summons case in the same trial.—In a case under S. 24 of the Cattle Trespass Act (I of 1871) which is a summons case but not compoundable under the law, and S. 323 I P. C. the parties effected a compromise with regard to the latter charge. Held that the Magistrate was entitled to treat the petition of compromise as one of withdrawal of the charge under the Cattle Trespass Act and to acquit the accused under S. 214 Cr P. C.—21 Cr 405 (A)

7. Who can withdraw.—The power to withdraw is confined to the complainant, i.e. the person who has preferred a complaint in Court. Where the Magistrate has taken cognizance of a case on a police report, he is not competent to allow the complainant (the informant before the Police) to withdraw.—23 M 626
8. Who can permit the withdrawal.—This section does not empower any Police Officer to entertain an application for the withdrawal of a complaint. The permitting of a complainant to withdraw is a judicial act the exercise of which is vested in the Magistrate by this section and the Police have no authority to interfere in such matters.—Rat 91
9. In contempt cases.—In cases of contempt of lawful authority of a public servant, the complainant is the public servant whose authority had been resisted and not the person injured by the resistance. 2 B 653.
10. **" "
[27 M. J. 617]
11. Award of Compensation.—Under the code of 1882, it was held that S. 250 Cr P. C. applied only to acquittals under Ss 215 or 217 Cr P. C. Compensation could not be awarded in a case of acquittal under S. 218 on the withdrawal of a complaint.—[Rat 462; See also 56 P. R. 1847]
- [Note.—This limitation no longer holds good as S. 250 is no longer limited to acquittals under Ss 215 or 217 Cr P. C.]
12. Why the permission is necessary.—Withdrawal of complaint is the act of only one party reward or advantage for his forbearance. It is quite intelligible, therefore, why in the former case, viz. the withdrawal of a complaint, the Legislature should have imposed the necessity of obtaining the permission of a Magistrate. Had such a restriction not been imposed, a person might be harassed by a perfectly vexatious Criminal proceeding from which the complainant, having put the accused as much inconvenience and degradation as he could, might then calmly withdraw.—Per Battigan J. in 19 P. R. 1844

13. See also 10 C. 551.
14. Effect of withdrawal for want of sanction.—A complaint was made to a Magistrate against the accused of offences under Ss. 182 and 500 I P. C. On the day when the accused appeared before the Magistrate, the latter passed the following order.—“As there is no sanction, prosecution withdraws the charge. The accused is discharged.” Held—that the order was no bar to the entertainment of a fresh complaint after the sanction had been obtained.—22 B. 711.

249. In any case instituted otherwise than upon complaint, a Presidency Magistrate, a Magistrate of the first class, or with the previous sanction of the District Magistrate, any other Magistrate may, for reasons to be recorded by him, stop the proceedings at any stage without pronouncing any judgment either of acquittal or conviction, and may thereupon release the accused.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section.—The section applies only to cases instituted otherwise than on a complaint—[9 P. R. 1913. 21 Cr. 185 (Pat)].
2. Power to cancel summons.—A Magistrate has full power to cancel summons on receipt of a second police report after having issued summons under S 182 I P. C. on the basis of the first police report 21 Cr 185 (Pat).

3. See also 10 C. 551.

Frivolous Accusations in Summons and Warrant Cases.

250. (1) If, in any case instituted by complaint as defined in this Code, or upon information given to a police-officer or to a Magistrate, a person is accused before a Magistrate of any offence triable by a Magistrate, and the Magistrate by whom the case is heard discharges or acquits the accused and is satisfied that the accusation against him was frivolous or vexatious the Magistrate may, in his discretion, by his order of discharge or acquittal, direct the person upon whose complaint or information the accusation was made to pay to the accused, or to each of the accused where there are more than one, such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, as the Magistrate thinks fit.

Provided that, before making any such direction, the Magistrate shall—

- (a) record and consider any objection which the complainant or informant may urge against the making of the direction, and
- (b) if the Magistrate directs any compensation to be paid, state in writing, in his order of discharge or acquittal, his reasons for awarding the compensation.

(2) Compensation of which a Magistrate has ordered payment under sub-section (1) shall be recoverable as if it were a fine :

Provided that, if it cannot be recovered, the imprisonment to be awarded shall be simple, and for such term, not exceeding thirty days, as the Magistrate directs.

(3) A complainant or informant who has been ordered under sub-section (1) by a Magistrate of the second or third class to pay compensation to an accused person may appeal from the order, in so far as the order relates to the payment of the compensation, as if such complainant or informant had been convicted on a trial held by such Magistrate.

(4) Where an order for payment of compensation to an accused person is in a case which is subject to appeal under sub-section (3), the compensation shall not be paid before the period allowed for the presentation of the appeal has elapsed, or, if an appeal is preferred before the appeal has been decided.

(5) At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any compensation paid or recovered in this section.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 250 of the said Code.—

(i) For sub-sections (1) and (2), the following sub-sections shall be substituted, namely:—

(1) If, in any case instituted upon complaint or upon information given to a police-officer, one or more persons is or are accused before a Magistrate of any offence triable by a Magistrate, and the Magistrate by whose order the case is heard discharges or acquits all or any of the accused, and is of opinion that the accusation against any of them was false and either frivolous or vexatious, the Magistrate may, in his discretion, by his order of discharge or acquittal, call upon the person upon whose complaint or information the accusation was made, forthwith to pay compensation to such accused, or to each or any of such accused when there are more than one.

(2) The Magistrate shall record and consider any cause which such complainant or informant may show if he is satisfied that the accusation was false and either frivolous or vexatious may, for reasons to be recorded, that compensation not exceeding one hundred rupees be paid by such complainant or informant to the accused each or any of them.

(2a) Compensation for the payment of which an order is made under sub-section (2) shall be recoverable as a fine, and the Magistrate may, by the order directing payment of the same, further order that, in default of payment, the person ordered to pay such compensation shall suffer simple imprisonment for a period not exceeding thirty days.

(2b) When any person is imprisoned under sub-section (2a), the provisions of sections 68 and 69 of the Penal Code shall, so far as may be, apply.

(2c) No person who has been directed to pay compensation to accused under this section shall, by reason of such order, be exempted from any civil or criminal liability in respect of the complaint made or information given by him.

Provided that, any amount paid to an accused person under this section shall be taken into account in awarding compensation to such person in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter."

(a) In sub-section (3), for the word and figure "sub-section (1)" the word and figure "sub-section (2)" be substituted.

(iii) In sub-section (4), after the words "appeal has been decided" the following shall be added, namely:—
"or, in other cases, until the expiration of one month from the date of such order."

(iv) Sub-section (5) shall be omitted.

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) The object and scope of the section.

1. The object of the section is not to punish the complainant but to award by a summary order some compensation to the person against whom a frivolous or vexatious accusation is brought, leaving it to him to obtain further redress against the complainant if he seeks for it by a regular civil suit or by a Criminal prosecution—30 C 123 (F.B.)—6 C N 799

2. False cases.—Where an accusation is frivolous or vexatious, the fact of its being false as well, cannot disentitle the accused to compensation under S 250. Order for the payment of compensation, therefore, can be made in a case, which is false as well as frivolous or vexatious.

S 250 Cr P C. contemplates a case where the accusation is false, a charge that is false must also be vexatious, though it may not be frivolous as well
5 B R 124

[Note].—In the proposed amendments, the word "false" is sought to be introduced into the section so that the matter may be set beyond doubt. The following rulings therefore will be rendered obsolete if the amendment is accepted 1 W R 1 2 W R 57 3 W R 70 G.W. R 55 7 W R 40 17 C P 104 4 B R 615 28 C 251 29 C 179 26 C 181 22 C 586 (96) A N 150 31 A 354

3. Scope of the section.—The words of S 250 limit it to a case instituted either by complaint as defined in the Code, or by the information given to a police officer or to a Magistrate—[11 B R 1166] It cannot, therefore, have any application where the Court makes an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. although the order is made on an application for sanction to prosecute being made by a party. [ibid See 25 P R 1910 20 C 481 26 A 187 1 B 175 2 Wm 318] It has no application to a case instituted on a police report [S 21 C 979: 7 C N. 206 5 C N 370 7 M 509 6 A 96]

4. Simultaneous proceedings under Ss. 250 and 476 Cr. P.C.—There is nothing in the Code which makes it illegal for a Magistrate to proceed under both the sections 250 and 476 Cr P C at the same time. There is no conflict between the two sections as the object of S 250 is to give compensation to the accused who have been harassed by a vexatious accusation, whereas proceedings under S 476 are taken on grounds of public policy to punish the complainant for making a false charge 10 S. 162: 7 S. 10: [21 M 217 30 C 123 (F.B.) 1d] 15 B R 49 See 6 P. R. 1901 (F.B.)

5. Report sent to a Village Magistrate.—The words "information given to a Police officer" in S 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V. of 1898) include also a report which a village headman is bound to send, under S 45 (c) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, on a complaint made to him of the commission of a non bailable offence—32 M 258 (F.B.) 32 M J 79 27 M J 37 16 Cr 248 (M) 4 L W. 73 Con 25 M 667 22 M J 138 Cr Rev case no 627 of 1915 (M) (11) M N 558 See 14 C. N. 326

6. Malafides necessary.—Compensation cannot be ordered, where the complainant did know the complaint to be false and acted upon the information supplied to him by another person, unless it is shown that he acted in collusion with the latter—[11 S 55] Where the charge in respect of which the complaint was made, was a specific and serious one, the Court would not be justified in holding it to be frivolous or vexatious, within the meaning of S 250 Cr. P. C., unless it was also maliciously false. [2 Pat W. 116]

7. Section limited to cases triable by Magistrates only.—S 250 Cr. P. C applies only to a case where a person is accused of any offence triable by a Magistrate. It has no application to a case which is triable exclusively by a Court of Session [19 B R 60 21 P W. 1910 14 P R 1902 26 P R 1902: 15 P. R. 1919. 1 P. R. 1919 40 A 615]

8. T. A. S. v. ...

Rs 10 Rev Spooner made an enquiry on his account and then conveyed the information to the District Magistrate. The allegation on trial was found to be false. Held that Jogmohan was clearly the person upon whose information the accusation was made and the mere fact that he utilised the Missionary for the purpose of conveying the information to the District Magistrate could not protect him. Had he told the Missionary about the case merely in conversation without any desire for the subsequent prosecution, he would hardly have been liable for the intervention of a busy-body who took upon himself to convey the information to the District Magistrate—40 A. 79 See 14 C. N 326

9. Wilful exaggerations and distortions.—Sec 250 Cr P. C speaks of the "case" as a whole and contemplates a trial or inquiry ending in the unqualified acquittal or discharge of the accused. A complainant who, having a genuine grievance, wilfully exaggerates or distorts the same in order to aggravate the case against the accused, is liable in the discretion of the trial Court, to be prosecuted for any offence against the Indian Penal Code which he may have committed; but the policy of the Legislature seems to be to limit the summary jurisdiction of the Court under S. 250 Cr. P. C. to simple cases in which the complainant is found to have been wholly in the wrong—Per Popplett J. in 40 A. 610 [24 C 53 fd]

9A. Instigator of false information.—Sec 250 Cr. P. C. does not warrant an order to pay compensation against a person who only indicates the giving of false information but who does not himself make the complaint or give information to the Police.—12 S. 76.

10. There must be a complete discharge or acquittal.—An order for compensation under S. 250 Cr. P. C. cannot be justified merely because the complaint filed was erroneous in one particular. An award of compensation can only be made where there has been a complete discharge or acquittal of the accused on all the heads of the charges against him. 12 S. 87. 21 C. 53.

11. Case compromised between the parties.—Proceedings under S. 250 are inapplicable where the accused person has himself, by agreement with the prosecutor, arrived at a settlement and been a party to the compounding of the offence. 10 B. R. 1056. 30 P. R. 1910. 19 P. R. 1854. Rat 957. 700. 7 C. P. 2.

12. Power of appellate Court to award compensation.—An appellate Court can pass an order against the complainant, awarding compensation to the accused under S. 250 Cr. P. C.—[14 C. N. 212]. This ruling has been overruled by 39 C. 167 (F. B.). It has been definitely laid down that an appellate Court cannot order compensation such as is contemplated by S. 250 Cr. P. C. [P. Woodroffe, Mookerjee, Girdhuff and Chatterjee v. J. J. Jenkins (J. Conton)]. See also 28 A. 625. (92) 1 N. 54. 3 B. R. 841. 8 M. H. (app.) vii. 7 B. R. 995.

- 12A. Failure to act under S. 250 no bar to prosecution for perjury.—The failure to make an order under S. 250 Cr. P. C. awarding compensation against the complainant does not preclude the Magistrate from directing the prosecution of the complainant for perjury. 1 Bar. T. 216.

13. Minor complainant.—Under S. 250 Cr. P. C., a guardian or next friend of a minor complainant cannot be ordered to pay compensation to the accused.—63 P. L. 1912.

14. Complaint dismissed under S. 203 supra.—Compensation can be awarded only where there had been a discharge or acquittal after a frivolous or vexatious charge has been heard. Where the complaint is dismissed under S. 203 albeit in the presence of the accused and his pleader, S. 250 has no application.—[3 P. R. 1906]. Where a Magistrate dismissed the complaint in default, held he should not have awarded compensation. [17 W. R. 6].

15. Withdrawal of the case no bar to order under S. 250.—See Note under S. 214 supra.

16. Nature of the order under this section.—The compensation which the Court is empowered to give under S. 250 is not a fine, but is in the nature of damages for malicious prosecution, although it is made recoverable in a summary manner as if it were a fine. [20 M. 127].

17. Case partly false and partly true.—A Magistrate is competent to pass an order for compensation, although the complaint is well founded as regards some of the accused and yet vexatious and frivolous as against others. [5 M. 341. 10 B. 199. See 6 C. 541. 15 P. R. 1877].

18. Framing of a charge.—The fact that a Magistrate framed a charge or heard the defence evidence, does not make a complaint any the less vexatious or frivolous, because it is quite possible that the Magistrate might not be able to detect the frivolous or vexatious nature until the defendant had an opportunity of explaining the real circumstances.—10 B. 199. 2 Weir 310. Rat 734.

(2) Application of the Section.

19. Public Policy. If the false charge is of such a nature that a prosecution is necessary on grounds of public policy, it may well be that a Magistrate would exercise his discretion wrongly, if instead of sanctioning a prosecution, he awarded compensation. If the false charge is one which does not render it necessary on grounds of public policy that a prosecution should be sanctioned a Magistrate who makes an order for compensation cannot be said to exercise his discretion wrongly.

27 M. 58

20. S. 250 applies only when compensation is paid to the accused.—S. 250 Cr. P. C. applies to a case, in which compensation is awarded to an accused person, because a frivolous complaint has been made against him. But where a compensation is awarded not to the accused, but to the complainant and is awarded under S. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act, S. 250 Cr. P. C. does not apply.

occurrence had taken place and the same day his statement was taken by the Police, who held an enquiry, collected evidence and then started the case, held that the proceedings against the accused was not instituted by the complainant and S. 250 Cr. P. C. did not apply.—1 Pat. J. 106.

23. Simultaneous orders under S. 211 I. P. C. and S. 250 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate by granting or by expressing an intention to grant sanction to prosecute the complainant under S. 211 I. P. C. is not precluded from awarding under this Section reasonable compensation to the accused.

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) The object and scope of the section.

1. The object of the section is not to punish the complainant but to award by a summary order some compensation to the person against whom a frivolous or vexatious accusation is brought, leaving it to him to obtain further redress against the complainant if he seeks for it by a regular civil suit or by a Criminal prosecution—30 C 123 (F.B.)—6 C N 799

2. False cases.—Where an accusation is frivolous or vexatious, the fact of its being false as well, cannot disentitle the accused to compensation under S 250. Order for the payment of compensation, therefore, can be made in a case, which is false as well as frivolous or vexatious

3. Scope of the section—The words of S 250 limit it to a case instituted either by complaint as defined in the Code, or by the information given to a police officer or to a Magistrate—[14 B R 1166] It cannot, therefore, have any application where the Court makes an order under S. 476 Cr. 4. Simultaneous proceedings under Ss. 250 and 476 Cr. P. C.—There is nothing in the Code which makes it illegal for a Magistrate to proceed under both the sections 250 and 476 Cr. P. C. at the same time. There is no conflict between the two sections as the object of S 250 is to give compensation to the accused who have been harassed by a vexatious accusation, whereas proceedings under S. 476 are taken on grounds of public policy to punish the complainant for making a false charge 10 S 162 7 S. 10- [21 M 237, 30 C 123 (F.B.) 14] 15 B R 19- See 6 P. 9A. Instigator of false information.—Sec. 270 Cr. P. C. does not warrant an order to pay compensation against a person who only instigates the giving of false information but who does not himself make the complaint or give information to the Police.—12 S. 76

10. There must be a complete discharge or acquittal.—An order for compensation under S. 250 Cr. P. C. cannot be justified merely because the complaint filed was veracious in one particular. An award of compensation can only be made where there has been a complete discharge or acquittal of the accused on all the heads of the charges against him. 12 S. 87. 21 C. 51

11. Case compromised between the parties—Proceedings under S. 250 are inapplicable where the accused person has himself, by agreement with the prosecutor, arrived at a settlement and been a party to the compounding of the offence. 10 B. R. 1056. 30 P. R. 1910. 19 P. R. 1888. Rat 957. 700. 7 C. P. 2

12. Power of appellate Court to award compensation. An appellate Court can pass an order against the complainant, awarding compensation to the accused under S. 250 Cr. P. C. —[14 C. N. 212.] This ruling has been overruled by 39 C. 157 (F. B.). It has been definitely laid down that an appellate Court cannot order compensation such as is contemplated by S. 250 Cr. P. C. [P. W. Adloff, Mookjee, Canduff and Chatterjee J. J. Jenkins (J. Conting)]. See also 25 A. 625 (1902) A. N. 55. 3 B. R. 541. 8 M. H. (appx) viii. 7 B. R. 995

- 12A. Failure to act under S. 250 no bar to prosecution for perjury.—The failure to make an order under S. 250 Cr. P. C. awarding compensation against the complainant does not preclude the Magistrate from directing the prosecution of the complainant for perjury.—1 Bur. T. 246

13. Minor complainant.—Under S. 250 Cr. P. C., a guardian or next friend of a minor complainant cannot be ordered to pay compensation to the accused.—83 P. L. 1912.

14. Complaint dismissed under S. 203 supra.—Compensation can be awarded only where there had been a discharge or acquittal after a frivolous or vexatious charge has been heard. Where the complaint is dismissed under S. 203 albeit in the presence of the accused and his pleader, S. 250 has no application.—[3 P. R. 1906]. Where a Magistrate dismissed the complaint in default, held he should not have awarded compensation [17 W. R. 6]

15. Withdrawal of the case no bar to order under S. 250.—See Note under S. 215 supra.

16. Nature of the order under this section.—

if it were a fine. [20 M. 127]

17. Case partly false and partly true.—A Magistrate is competent to pass an order for compensation, although the complaint is well founded as regards some of the accused and yet vexatious and frivolous as against others. [5 M. 381; 10 B. R. 199. See 6 C. 581; 13 P. R. 1877]

18. Framing of a charge.—The fact that a Magistrate framed a charge or heard the defence evidence, does not make a complaint any the less vexatious or frivolous, because it is quite possible that the Magistrate might not be able to detect the frivolous or vexatious nature until the defendant had an opportunity of explaining the real circumstances.—10 B. R. 199. 2 Weir 316. Rat 131.

20. S. 250 applies only when compensation is paid to the accused.—S. 250 Cr. P. C. applies to a case, in which compensation is awarded to an accused person, because a frivolous complaint has been made against him. But where a compensation is awarded not to the accused, but to the complainant and is awarded under S. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act, S. 250 Cr. P. C. does not apply

21. Where no process has been issued.—S. 250 does not apply where the complaint is dismissed without any process being issued. It is a condition precedent to the grant of compensation under this Section, that the case shall have been heard by the Magistrate and that the shall have discharged or acquitted the accused

23. Simultaneous orders under S. 211 I. P. C. and S. 250 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate by granting or by expressing an intention to grant sanction to prosecute the complainant under S. 211 I. P. C. is not precluded from awarding under this Section reasonable compensation to the accused.

24. If the Magistrate tries the accused on a charge other than that complained of he can allow compensation to the accused.—31 P. R. 1886

(3) Meaning of terms.

25. The word "information" referred to in S. 250 Cr. P. C. need not necessarily be the information on which the case is instituted where a person making a complaint against an accused person subsequently gives information leading to the accusation/arrest of others in the case he may be dealt with under S. 250 Cr. P. C. [14 C. N. 326.] "Information" in S. 250 of the Cr. P. C. is limited to the information given and entered in the cognizable register under S. 154 Cr. P. C.—Per Pratt J. C. in 21 Cr. 49 (S).
- 25A. Section to be construed strictly—S. 250 of the Cr. P. C. is a penal section and must be construed strictly. Words ought not to be introduced into it which extend the liability to pay compensation to any person beyond the actual complainant or person who gives the information on which the case is instituted.—21 Cr. 49 (S)
26. The term "vexatious."—An accusation can not be said to be vexatious within the meaning of the section unless the main intention of the complainant be to cause annoyance to the person accused and not merely to further the ends of justice.—11 S. 55.
27. The words "frivolous or vexatious"—The word "vexatious" in S. 250 Cr. P. C. must be read as excludendi generis with "frivolous." Both the words apply to that class of cases in which the aid of law has been heedlessly invoked and therefore where a Magistrate holds the complaint to be false or needless he cannot award compensation under S. 250 Cr. P. C. [1 S. 12.] [This ruling is obsolete.—It was overruled by 1 S. 28 (F. B.).—9 Cr. 268. It is proposed to expressly amend the section so as to include "false" cases]
28. The words "triable by a Magistrate" in S. 250 Cr. P. C. mean triable under S. 28 Cr. P. C. The cases provided for by S. 250 are those specified in the eighth column of the Schedule, as triable by a Magistrate. A Magistrate exercising powers under S. 30 is not competent to award compensation in a case triable by a Court of Session or the High Court [602 P. L. 1902, 14 P. R. 1902, 1 S. 81.] So a Magistrate by whom an offence under S. 497 I. P. C. is not triable but who enquires into the case and discharges the accused cannot award compensation under S. 250 Cr. P. C.—9 Cr. 502 (M).
29. "Complaint."—The term "complaint" in S. 250 means a complaint within the meaning of S. 4 (b) Cr. P. C. A deposition made to a Magistrate in the course of trial cannot be treated as a complaint [20 C. 481; 1 B. 175; 26 A. 183; 14 B. R. 1166.]
30. "Frivolous" means trifling, silly or without due foundation.—11 A. 366

35. Cases under the Cattle Trespass Act.—By S. 4 (c) of the Cium. Proc. Code of 1893, the word "offence" includes an act in respect of which a complaint may be made under S. 20 of the Cattle Trespass Act. It follows therefore that a person against whom a complaint is preferred under S. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act is a person accused before a Magistrate of an offence S. 250 therefore applies [See 29 M. 517]

II. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) Objections must be recorded and considered.

39. It is imperative on the Magistrate in passing an order under S 250, to record and consider the objection of the complainant, even in a summary trial on the analogy of S 203 (g) Cr. P. C. A failure to do so vitiates the order [2 S 4 2 S 14 8 S 25 10 G. N. 544 16 P. W. 1913 21 Cr 751 (Pat)] An order directing payment of compensation to an accused ought not to be made without calling on the complainant to show cause [Rat 725 Rat 634 35 C 302 5 C N. 214 2 S 4 Cr Rev No 27 of 1908 (B) 9 A J 170 3 B R 556 2 Weir 310 11 M. 142. (09) U. B. 3—q 51]

40. What does not amount to giving opportunity of showing cause.—Where the Magistrate passed the following order "Judgment delivered. Accused acquitted, ... complainant to pay Rs50 compensation to each of the accused under S 250 Cr. P. C. and show cause why he should not pay. Subans Singh is absent. His brother verbally shows cause which is insufficient, order made absolute"—Held that the complainant was in fact given no opportunity of showing cause—18 C. N. 1277

(2) Separate proceeding is without jurisdiction.

41. When a Magistrate on finding a complaint to be vexatious or frivolous, considers 14 C P 37. 10 N. 8.

42. Note per contra.—An order as to the compensation is not necessarily invalid, if it is not pronounced in the same breath as the order of acquittal, that is to say, if it is written a few minutes or even for good and sufficient cause a few days later, provided it is substantially a continuation of the order of acquittal and part of the same proceeding—7 S 123 8 B R. 847 (16) M. N. 159 21 Cr 371 (B) 18 Cr 1014 (C); 36 A. 132 (03) A. N. 214

(3) Procedure.

43. Preliminary order need not necessarily be made in the presence of the complainant.—It is not necessary, neither is it in complainant has shown cause.—18 C. N. 702.

44. Proceedings to be summary.—"Proceedings under S 250 Cr. P. C. are intended to be of a summary nature, as is sufficiently indicated by the direction that the order awarding compensation is to form part of the order of discharge or acquittal. The Court is bound to offer a complainant, such representations. All this should be done before the passing of the final order of discharge or acquittal and it was clearly not the intention of the Legislature that a complainant should be entitled to adjournment, in order to enable him to show cause much less to an opportunity of producing further evidence after all the evidence tendered by him in support of the allegations made in the complaint has already been taken at the trial of the case itself. The difficulty which

45. Adjournments should not be granted.—It is irregular to grant adjournment in a proceeding under S 250 Cr. P. C. but the irregularity is cured by S 537 Cr. P. C.—36 A. 132. (05) A. N. 204. See 8 B R. 847.

46. ...

10 D. R. 101.

47. Compensation can be awarded only in original trials.

8 M. H. 7 (ap.); 21 P. W. 1910; See Rat 001: 9 Cr. 502 (M); See Note No 12 above.

48. Prosecution for contempt of the lawful authority of public servants.—When on the report of a peon the Civil Court orders prosecution and sends the case to a Magistrate for investigation, the latter in dismissing the case as false etc cannot direct the peon to pay compensation under S 250 Cr. P. C. In such cases the real complainant is the Court and S. 250 Cr. P. C. therefore cannot apply. 1 B 175 26 A. 183. 14 B. R. 1166.

Note.—But there is a distinction between a prosecution at the instance of a Judge acting judicially and a prosecution at the instance of an executive body, e.g., a Municipality. In the latter case S 250 applies. Rat 309.

49. Where the case has been withdrawn.—The Magistrate cannot award compensation in a case which he has allowed to be withdrawn (81) A. N. 155. 26 P. R. 1870; 16 P. R. 1891; Rat 462; Cow 24 P. R. 1853.

[N. B.—S 250 as at present enacted does not prevent any bar to such award].

(4) What is Sufficient compliance with the provisions of S. 250.

50. A Magistrate, in discharging an accused, recorded at the same time, his conclusion that the case was one in which subject to any objection, the complainant ought to be ordered to pay compensation for making a frivolous and vexatious complaint. He then, as required by S 250 (4) Cr P C recorded the complainant's objection and added under cl (b) to his order of discharge a direction that the complainant should pay compensation.

Held—the procedure adopted by the Magistrate was a sufficient compliance with the law as enacted in S 250 Cr P C—5 B R 647. See also (47) A N 214.

(5) Miscellaneous rules of Practice.

51. Composition of offences.—As soon as a composition is voluntarily effected it operates as an acquittal of the accused under S 345 Cr P C and the Magistrate has no power to deal any further with the case. But an acquittal under S 345 Cr P C is a very different thing to an acquittal under Ss 245 or S 247 and it is only in acquittals under one or other of the sections last mentioned that the Magistrate has been empowered to award compensation. An acquittal under S 245 or S 247 is the result of a purely Magisterial act, but an acquittal under S 345 is solely by an operation of law upon the act of composition and is thus quite irrespective of any Magisterial decision. 19 P R 1858. 10 B R 1076. Rn 457.

52. Responsibility of servant acting on behalf of his master.—The question whether a servant can be held responsible under S 250 Cr P C for an information lodged on behalf of his master, is a question of fact and depends on the question whether the servant is merely the mouthpiece of the master and is merely giving expression to his master's accusation or whether he joins personally in the accusation himself. In the former case he cannot be made liable to compensate the complainant. 11 C N 326.

53. Scope of the enquiry under S. 250.—An enquiry as to whether a charge is not frivolous or vexatious or not under S 250 Cr P C can be made only for the purpose of deciding whether compensation should be paid to the accused person.

10 B. R. 1076

54. Fine in excess of compensation.—A Magistrate cannot fine a sum over and above that which was ordered to be paid as compensation—(73) A. N 44; 38 P. R 1838.
55. Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order made by a Magistrate of the third class dismissing a complaint under S 247 and awarding against the complainant Rs. 5 - as compensation under S 250 [Act X of 1852] (91) A. N 120. [But See S 250 subs (2).]
56. Who can pass orders.—An order for compensation must be made by the magistrate who tries the case. It is not competent to a Magistrate who has heard nothing of the case except the complainant's pleas against the direction to pay compensation, to make the order for compensation—(92) A. N. 54.
57. Accused has no right to be heard in proceedings under S. 250.—The complainant being virtually the accused in a proceeding within S 250 cl. 2 is the person who has to make his defence. He is the person who is to be heard and not the accused. The latter has no right to be heard in a proceeding relating merely to the order for compensation—14 P. R. 1848.
58. Refund of compensation.—There was no provision in the C. P. Code for the refund of money paid away as compensation under S. 245 C. P. 1852.
1 Bur 353. 2 P. R. 1858. 16 P. R. 1690.
- It was held however in 19 A. 112 [See also Rn 213] that when the High Court directs on revision that the fine be refunded the compensation is recoverable by process under S 347 C. P. and not by civil suit.]
59. Village Magistrate.—Is not empowered to act under S 250 Cr P C. 25 M 607 (11) M N. 575.
60. Ground for refusing compensation.—An order awarding compensation was set aside on the ground that the conduct of the accused was not straightforward throughout. 65 P. L. 1901.
61. Form of order.—An order should not be passed in the form of a sentence of fine, the amount of which was to be paid as compensation to the accused. 8 C. P. 12.

III. REVISION.

(1) By High Court.

62. Power of the High Court.—An order under this section made by a First Class Magistrate may be revised by the High Court under ss 495 and 494 infra and when compensation ordered has been paid, the amount may be recovered under S. 547 infra, if the High Court so directs under S. 547 infra. 12 P. R. 1801. 12 P. R. 1855. See 10 Cr 299 (8).

- 62-A. Order against a European British Subject.—The High Court at Allahabad has jurisdiction to entertain an application for revision of an order of the City Magistrate of Lucknow in a case in which the complainant is a European British subject (irrespective of whether he has a claim to be dealt with as such) and against whom an order under S 250 Cr. P. C has been made—21 Cr. 767 (A).

63. Notice to the accused necessary.—High Court refused to interfere with an order awarding compensation to accused on the ground that the accused had in the mean time died and no order should be made without serving the accused with a notice. Rn 631.

64. Death of the applicant.—Does not cause the application to abate. It can be prosecuted by his legal representatives.
24 P. R. 1908. But see 6 P. R. 1893, 16 P. R. 1878. Rat 654.
65. Death of the accused.—The High Court refused to interfere on the ground that as the accused had died, no order could be passed to his prejudice as it would be passing an order to the prejudice of a person who could not be served with a notice. Rat 634.

IV. CHANGE IN THE LAW.

69. The scope of the section has been much enlarged.

- (a) Under the old Code—Code of 1861-9 only first class Magistrates could act—See 1 H. H. 181. Any Magistrate can now act under S. 230.
- (b) Compensation could be awarded only in certain specified cases [See Object and Application of the section]. It can be awarded now in any case triable by a Magistrate.
- (c) Compensation under the Code of 1861-9 could be awarded only in cases in which "a summons on complaint shall ordinarily issue" [5 B. 12]. No such restriction now exists.
- (d) The words "frivolous and vexatious" in the Code of 1861 were replaced in the later Codes by the words "frivolous or vexatious".
- (e) Under the old Code, compensation could be awarded only in cases instituted upon a complaint. See 6 A. 96=(83) A. N. 224, 7 M. 603 where it was held that where an accusation

- (f) Under the code of 1882, compensation could be awarded only in summons cases. But in the code of 1894, the heading has been so changed as to expressly include warrant cases. [See the heading]. [For rulings under Code of 1882 etc. See (85) A. N. 45; (83) A. N. 130; (82) O. M. 310; [See also (81) A. N. 99; 164; 161; 10 W. R. 19].
- (g) Under the Code of 1872, [unlike the Code of 1894] compensation could not be given on acquittal (as opposed to discharge)—See Rat 83; 22 W. R. 12; 74; (81) A. N. 107—But See 6 C. 581; 6 M. 381.
- (h) In the present Code the word "heard" has been substituted for the word "tried." A complete trial is therefore no longer necessary. [See 10 W. R. 61].

V. IMPRISONMENT IN DEFAULT.

69. Imprisonment must be simple.—Imprisonment must be simple and shall not exceed thirty days. See subs (2a).

70. Provisions under the old Codes.—Under the old Codes, there was no provision for imprisonment. There are several rulings laying down that imprisonment in default is illegal—See 21 C. N. 979; 19 A. 73; 22 C. 546; 18 A. 90; 1 Bur 429; 13 P. R. 1896; 2 N. P. 470.

[Note.—In 20 M. 127=2 Weir 321—it has been held down that a Magistrate cannot make an order for imprisonment on intimation by the person directed to pay compensation that he was unable to pay].

71. Stage at which the order can be made.—An order for imprisonment in default of payment of compensation is bad if it is made before any attempt is made to recover the amount by legal process—5 C. N. 214; 24 C. 211; See 20 M. 127; 14 P. R. 1902; 29 C. 164; 21 C. 979; Rat 611.

72. On intimation by the person directed to pay compensation—that he is unable to pay it, he cannot be ordered to be imprisoned.—20 M. 127; But See 21 W. R. 64.

73. Imprisonment cannot be made in anticipation.—S. 279 does not permit a Magistrate, having an order for compensation forthwith to add to his order that in default of payment of compensation imprisonment for a certain term shall be undergone. An attempt should first be made to realize the amount and if not recovered, then an order of imprisonment is to be passed in default.—18 C. N. 702; 5 C. N. 213; 214; 28 C. 251; 28 C. 164; 22 C. 540; 22 C. 139 (14); 18 Cr. 1014 (C); 13 P. R. 1896; 14 P. R. 1902; 273 P. L. 1901; 18 A. 90; 19 A. 73; 21 Cr. 220 (N); 2 Weir 329.

following day the Magistrate recorded this order, "No reason shown by the complainant who was present yesterday. Order above made absolute. Complainant to suffer simple imprisonment for 30 days in default of payment of compensation." Heit (1) that the portion of the order "complainant to suffer imprisonment" is "compensation" is illegal, (2) that the order should be amended as follows: "The complainant shall be recovered as if it was a fine and in the event of its not being so recovered, there shall be a simple imprisonment for 30 days".—18 C. N. 702. See 2 U. B. (1914) 31 21 C. 979; 28 C. 164; 20 M. 127; (16) M. N. 189; 5 C. N. 213 5 C. N. 214 Rat 611 3 L. B. 32, 21 Cr. 751 (Pat).

75. Warrant of distress.—A Magistrate in making an order for compensation is ordinarily bound, if the amount be not paid, to proceed to the recovery of it by distress and sale of the movables of the person ordered to pay. It was formerly held out the term ordered, unless the sum be sooner paid. But the warrant of distress cannot have currency simultaneously with the imprisonment because the alternative permitted in case of failure to realise has already been adopted.—23 W. R. 64.

VI. PUBLIC SERVANTS.

76. S. 250 does not apply to

- An order directing a constable who arrested and charged a carter with an offence under S. 34 cl. 3 of Act V. of 1861 and who failed to prove the charge, to pay Rs. 20 as compensation to the carter was set aside in 21 C. 979

- A constable who presented the charge-sheet to the Magistrate, where an A. S. P. had mentioned the prosecution of the accused under S. 211 P. C.—21 M. J. 814.

(2) Who may be ordered to pay compensation.

77. Police officers in non-cognizable cases.—Where a police officer initiates criminal proceedings in a non-cognizable case, a Magistrate has jurisdiction to award compensation to the accused under S. 250 Cr. P. C. 26 B. 150 (F. B.); 6 N. 82; Con 22 B. 934.
78. Municipal peons.—The accused was charged

C. is not applicable to the case of a Municipal Jamadar arresting a person whom he considered to be committing in his presence an offence punishable under S. 34 Act V. of 1861, the person so arrested having been sent up for trial in the usual manner by the police and acquitted.

VII. APPEAL UNDER SUBS. (3).

(1) Procedure on appeal.

79. In cases of appeals under S. 250 (3) Cr. P. C. which provides that there should be an appeal from an order passed under it, it is desirable that notice be given to the accused as he is the party prejudiced if the appeal be allowed and the order for compensation rescinded.—33 M. 89.
80. Prosecution for false complaint or perjury of the complaint does not stand in the way of awarding compensation to the accused. See 15 W. R. 9; 30 C. 123 (F. B.) 30 P. W. 1907; 18 P. R. 1901; 6 P. R. 1904. 21 M. 237; 15 C. P. 194. Con 26 C. 181. 22 C. 586.
[Note.—See Note No. 2 above.]

(2) Notice of appeal.

81. Notice of appeal from an order under S. 250 Cr. P. C. ought to be given to "such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf." In Madras the District Magistrate is such officer. [See Rule 60 the Criminal Rules of Practice] 27 M. J. 629 [29 M. 117, 33 M. 89] But a failure to give such notice would not justify the High Court to interfere in revision with the order of the appellate Court. [Ibid.; But See 29 M. 187 33 M. 89 35 M. 1091, 19 M. J. 130.]

- 81.-A. Right of audience.—The accused has no right of audience in such appeal.—27 M. J. 619
82. Procedure in appeals explained.—S. 250 Cr. P. C. is not a self-contained section (such as Ss 190 and 486) It does not declare what the powers of an appellate Court are in disposing of appeals under cl. 3 of the section, and it is necessary to invoke the aid of S. 423 for the purpose.—An accused person should have notice of the appeal in order that he may have an opportunity of supporting the order passed in his favour. [29 M. 167 Fd.] 38 M. 1091.

VIII. MISCELLANEOUS.

83. Lapse.—Compensation allowed to accused cannot be credited to Government 1 P R 1409 102 P R 1566
84. Fined in the case and ordered to pay compensation in cross-case. Accused was convicted and fined for assault. He had preferred a cross complaint on the same facts. The cross complaint was dismissed as frivolous and compensation ordered

86. Guardian or next friend of a minor complainant.—cannot be ordered to pay compensation to the accused 1 P W 1912
87. Letters patent appeal. An order for compensation passed under S 250 Cr. P. C. is one passed in a criminal trial and no appeal lies under S 15 of the Letters Patent to a Division Bench against an order of a single Judge of the High Court refusing to interfere with such order.—10 Cr. 208(B)

88. Contrast with S. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act.—S 250 of the Code applies to a case in which compensation is awarded to an accused person, because a frivolous complaint has been made against him. But where compensation is awarded, not to the accused but to the complainant and it is awarded under S 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act, S. 250 Cr. P. C. does not apply.—29 M. 517
89. Comparison of Ss. 250 and 180 Cr. P. C.—A comparison of the opening words of S. 250 with S 180 Cr. P. C. will show that they closely correspond and that the former are intended to cover all the three methods marked in S. 180 as

CHAPTER XXI.

OF THE TRIAL OF WARRANT-CASES BY MAGISTRATES.

Procedure in warrant-cases.

251. The following procedure shall be observed by Magistrates in the trial of warrant-cases.

Notes.

1. Presidency Magistrates.—The provisions of Chapter XXII Cr. P. C. do not apply to trials before Presidency Magistrates. A warrant-case must be tried by a Presidency Magistrate in the manner provided by Chapter XXI of the Code, subject only to the special provisions of S 362 as to the method of taking down the evidence.—Rat 539
2. Composite Cases.—See Notes under S 241 Cr. P. C.
3. Procedure under Ch. XXI must be followed in warrant cases.—The fact that a summons instead of a warrant has been issued in a case falling under this Chapter, will not justify the procedure as in a summons case [10 W. R 31] The conviction of an accused person under S. 243

4. Meaning of the word "trial".—The word includes the taking of evidence in support of the prosecution, as also the whole of the subsequent procedure laid down in Ch XXI of the Code for the trial of warrant cases.—[3 L. B. 280]

5. When a trial commences.—The word "trial" is not defined in the Criminal Procedure Code. It has been held that the trial begins when the accused is charged and called on to answer. [Per Wallis J. in 32 M. 220 F. B.] The word trial oc...

trial but only an enquiry as defined in S. 4 (1) Cr. P. C.—[Per Drake-Hodgman J. in 9 N. 42] Maclean C. J. defined "trial" as follows.—The proceeding which commences when the case is called on, with the Magistrate on the Bench, the accused in the dock, and the representatives of the prosecution, and for the defence, if the accused be defended, are present in Court for the hearing of the case". [23 C 543 (565)]. See also remarks of Wilson J. in 15 C. 608 at p. 620.

Magistrate cannot allow the withdrawal of a warrant case. He may discharge the accused, if the charge is groundless and the fact of there being no evidence can well be a sufficient ground for doing so [Cr R 90 of 29.9.95]

6. Illegality of arrest does not vitiate the trial.—Where the accused was brought under arrest under circumstances not sanctioned by law, it was held that the Magistrate was not concerned to enquire how the accused happened to come before him; nor was the subsequent trial and conviction invalid.—G P. R. 1899. 7 Bar S. 66 at 64.

252. (1) When the accused appears or is brought before a Magistrate, such Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant (if any) and take all such evidence as may be produced in support of the prosecution.

Evidence for prosecution

(2) The Magistrate shall ascertain, from the complainant or otherwise, the names of any persons likely to be acquainted with the facts of the case and to be able to give evidence for the prosecution and shall summons to give evidence before himself such of them as he thinks necessary.

Notes.

1. Evidence against accused to be recorded as early as possible.—An accused person has the right to have the evidence against him recorded as early as possible. The fact that there is or may be a great body of evidence forthcoming against him is not a ground for detention for an inordinate period [6 M 63]. The absence of some of the accused is not a "reasonable cause" for adjourning the enquiry into the guilt of those who are present before the Court [1 L B 60 (61)].

by plea, and such appearance involves the performance of all acts which devolve upon the accused in the course of the trial, such as answering the examination by the Court under S 342, or pleading or refusing to plead to the charge under S 235 of the Code—G S 206.

3. As to remands.—See notes under S. 344 infra.

4. Complainant should have full opportunity to substantiate his case.—Under S 252, the prosecution is given full opportunity of substantiating their whole case. But it is expected, and the expectation is a right and proper one, that the prosecution should come to Court with their case fully prepared and thought out. After the witnesses produced in support of the prosecution are heard, it is the duty of the Magistrate to see that prosecutors are not allowed to set the Court on to a roving enquiry, summoning persons in the hope that something may be elicited which would help their cases

12 A J. 15

5. Magistrate bound to examine all the witnesses tendered by the complainant.—Where the accused is summoned and evidence of the complainant is ready, it is desirable that the Court should not dismiss the complaint without taking all such evidence, as may be produced in support of the prosecution.

1908—See

N. 145

22 W. R.

6. Exercise of discretion necessary.—Cr. P. C. (=S 272) read with S. 302 of the Code, gives a Magistrate a discretion in summoning witnesses and he is not bound to summon every person named as a witness by the complainant [23 W. R. 9]. "A witness is not an inanimate being (sic) and is not to be moved about as if he were a stick or stone. He is a living person who has his work to do and whose convenience is to be considered. For a Magistrate to send for any person whom the complainant names in a supplementary list is a thoughtless act and in some cases, causes serious inconvenience to persons who ought not to be subjected to such inconvenience."—Per Knox J in 12 A. J. 15.

7. Duty of Magistrate.—Under S. 244, the Magistrate is to summon witnesses on the application of the complainant in summons cases, but in warrant cases the rule is laid down in S. 252. The Magistrate, in the latter case, is to ascertain the names of other persons acquainted with the case, from the complainant or otherwise, and shall then summon them.—2 Weir 323

8. Duty of the Crown to produce all available evidence.—The doctrine that the Crown is not bound to call witnesses on whom it does not rely must not be pressed too far. It is its clear duty to produce all persons who lay claim to a first-hand knowledge of the incidents under trial, and if the prosecution do not choose to place them in the witness box, it must at least tender them to the defence for cross examination. The Crown is not so much concerned to prove a particular theory as to acquaint the Court with all the relevant evidence; and it is for the Court to determine how much of that evidence is to be credited, and what inferences it warrants.—3 S. 200 8 C. 121 (125). 1 P. R. 1588.]

9. Warrant cannot be issued to witness in the first instance.—It is only when the summons is neglected that severe measures can be taken. A Magistrate cannot issue a warrant to compel the attendance of a witness, without first requiring him to attend by a summons.—22 P. W. 1907.

10. Non-payment of process-fees.—The dismissal of a complaint in a warrant case, although the offence is a non-cognizable one, for failure of the complainant to pay a cost fee is not legal. [2 Weir 321] There is nothing in the Code, which enables a Magistrate to demand from a complainant the expenses to be incurred by the witnesses, though such power is conferred by S. 244 (1) in a summary case. [8 N. 65]

11. Right to compulsion on absent witness. Where witness summoned by a party have neglected to obey the summons, he has a right to call upon the Court to compel their attendance [6 C N. 548]

253. (1) If, upon taking all the evidence referred to in section 252, and making such examination (if any) of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary, he finds that no case against the accused has been made out which, if un rebutted, would warrant his conviction, the Magistrate shall discharge him

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless.

(1) Grounds for passing order of discharge.

1. Order of discharge should not be passed until the evidences of all prosecution witnesses produced has been taken.—See Note no 5 under S. 252 Cr. P. C.
2. Effect of introduction of subs. (2).—Subs. (2) is comparatively new. There was no such provision in the older Codes of 1861 and 1872. Whatever may have been the law before the passing of the Crim. Proc. Code (Act V of 1894), under S. 253 cl. (2) of the present Code, it is competent to a Magistrate to discharge the accused after examining some only of the prosecution witnesses.—Per Ayling J. in Q. M. T. 302: See Rat 201.
3. Absence of the complainant.—In warrant cases not coming within the terms of S. 259 Cr. P. C., the absence of the complainant will not authorise a Magistrate to pass an order of dismissal or discharge except under the last clause of S. 253.—[10 C 67: See 24 W. R. 9 20 C N. 694] There can be no discharge under sub. cl (2) after the prosecution evidence is closed and a charge is framed against the accused merely because the complainant happens to be absent. [Rat 524]. Where a Presidency Magistrate dismissed a warrant-case for non-appearance of the complainant, held the order of dismissal was bad. [4 C N. 26 and 46: 1 C N. 67. See 17 O C. 18]
4. Discharge not to be ordinarily made after full enquiry.—Where there is a body of evidence which, if believed, justifies conviction, it is far better, as a rule, to draw up a charge and dispose of the case finally. But if a competent Magistrate, after hearing all the evidence for the prosecution and thoroughly discussing it, does dismiss the charge, a High Court should not set aside the order of dismissal, and enquiry, unless new and cogent coming.—[18 P. W. 1909]. The

12. Right of accused to inspection of exhibits.—An accused person is entitled to the inspection of all the documents filed as exhibits in the case. 1 B R 173

13. Opportunity to engage pleader should be given. A Magistrate should grant the accused an adjournment for which he prays, so as to enable him to secure the services of counsel for the purpose of cross-examining the prosecution witnesses.—14 P. W. 1916 See 6 C N. 838.

has been reached when there is ground for presuming that an accused has committed an offence witnesses [8 A. J. 707]

5. Acquittal of co-accused no ground for summarily dismissing supplementary case.—Where on the acquittal of a co-accused, the other accused against whom warrant had been issued surrendered before the Deputy Magistrate, and he passed an order that the

in law and proper course for the Magistrate was to issue a notice to the complainant requiring him to proceed with the case and then dispose of the case according to law.—12 C. N. 68

6. Further proceedings not taken after issue of warrant.—Where after the issue of warrants against certain persons, the Magistrate does not think it necessary to proceed further, the termination of the proceedings against them is in effect an order of discharge.—1 C. N. 212.
7. Illegal order of discharge after withdrawal of the case.—Where a Deputy Magistrate withdrew to his own file a case which he had originally sent to a Bench of Honorary Magistrates for disposal, and they had already recorded some evidence, and where on the day the case was posted before the Deputy Magistrate, no evidence was produced, and the Magistrate discharged the accused under S. 253 Cr. P. C. Held that the order of discharge was illegal and that he should have disposed of the case on the evidence already on record.—38 C. 824

[Note.—an order of discharge, made without any judicial investigation into the merits of the complaint is not a judgment within the meaning of S. 367 or 369 Cr. P. C.—Per Chose J. in 29 C. 726 (F. B.) • ('06) U. B. 2-41] warrant in a non cognizable case.—Rat 73. See 17 P. R. 1906. 6 P. R. 1899. 7 Bur R. 66 (64).

9. Want of jurisdiction.—Where a Magistrate finds that he has no jurisdiction to try a case, he should not discharge the accused, but should send him before a Magistrate having jurisdiction. 2 Weir 323.

10. Withdrawal of complaint.—Where no charge has been framed and the complainant in a non compoundable warrant-case offers to withdraw from the prosecution, it is not competent to the Magistrate to pass an order for acquittal. See 248 does not apply to warrant-case neither can S 315 be of any avail as the case is not allowed to be compounded by law.—15 B. R. 61. But See 1 B. 64. Rat 330 and 391: 36 M. 315

11. Doubtful cases.—Where after hearing the evidence, the Magistrate is of opinion that there are no grounds for presuming that the accused has committed the offence, he ought to discharge the accused under this section. He would be acting contrary to the spirit of S 251, if he framed a charge.—2 P. R. 1906

(2) Procedure.

12. Magistrate not bound to record reasons for order of discharge.—A comparison of the wording of Cl 1 and Cl 2 of S 253 and a reference to S 367 show that an order of discharge, after all the evidence is taken, is not a judgment and that it is not necessary for the Magistrate to state his reason.—[9 B. R. 250]. It is only where a Magistrate discharges without examining all the witnesses for the prosecution that he is bound under Subs (2) to record his reasons for the discharge [ibid]

13. Taking evidence for defence without framing charge is illegal.—A Magistrate after examining the witnesses for the prosecution that the Magistrate acted unfairly towards the accused and contrary to law. The order of discharge ought to be treated as one of acquittal under S 258 infra.

29 P. R. 1883. 18 Cr. 1006 (L B)

14. Magistrate acting under S. 350 with reference to warrant cases cannot act under this Section.—Proceedings before a Magistrate in a warrant case under Chap. XXI Cr P. C. are only an "enquiry" until a charge is framed and a charge being framed becomes a "trial" [32 M. 218. 32 M. 220 (F. B.) Fd]. Where the proceedings recommenced under S. 350 Cr P. C. are only an enquiry, they are recommenced as a trial, and the charge being framed the second Magistrate acting under S. 350, must, if he is satisfied that a charge framed by his predecessor is not well founded, acquit the prisoner under S. 257 Cr P. C. He cannot pass an order of discharge under S. 253 (2).

27 M. J. 549. 11 P. R. 1903.

(3) Further Enquiry.

15. Where order of discharge is really an order of acquittal.—S. 337 does not apply to the case of an accused whose discharge really amounts to an acquittal.—27 M. J. 549. See 29 P. R. 1883: 18 Cr. 1006 (L. B.).

16. Discharge under S. 253 no bar to further enquiry.—It may now be taken as well settled that where the accused has been discharged under S. 253 by a Magistrate, the District Magistrate has jurisdiction to hold further enquiry himself or direct further enquiry by a Subordinate Magistrate.

32 M. 220 (F. B.): 18 Cr. 706 (A) [9 A. 52 (F. B.) Fd]: 11 M. 331. 29 W. R. 46.

17. Power of Magistrate to rehear the case after discharging accused.—A Magistrate in a warrant case having passed an order of discharge, is competent to take fresh proceedings and issue process against the accused, in respect of the same offence without an order for further enquiry under S. 437.—29 C. 726 (F. B.) [Ghose J. dissenting]. 9 B. R. 250: 28 M. 310: 9 P. R. 1902. 26 P. R. 1905. 21 L. B. 27 (3f). 1 N. 18: See 29 M. 129 (F. B.): 18 M. J. 561. 24 M. 337: 31 M. 543. 29 A. 7. 38 C. 825. Con 23 C. 983: 24 C. 625. 24 C. 286. 2 C. N. 290. 4 C. N. 40: 22 A. 106. 28 M. 255. 6 C. C. 262

18. Further Enquiry.

19. Use of discretion in entertaining second complaints.—Where a second complaint was laid against a discharged accused, on the allegation that further evidence had been discovered since the order of discharge was passed, held, that the

the duty of the Magistrate who receives a second complaint in a case where there has been a previous order of dismissal or discharge, not to issue process unless he is plainly satisfied that there has been some manifest error or manifest miscarriage of justice or unless new facts are adduced which the complaint had not knowledge of or could not with reasonable diligence, have brought forward in the previous proceeding.—[101] U B 2-q. 19: 29 M. 126 (F. B.).

20. Further enquiry by High Court and Sessions Judge.—Under S. 439 read with S. 423 and possibly also under the Charter, it is open to the High Court to set aside an order of discharge under S. 253 in a warrant case and direct a retrial or further enquiry [24 C. 528]. But the High will not interfere when there has been a thorough enquiry [18 P. W. 109] Reading Ss 435 and 437 together, the Sessions Judge it appears, has jurisdiction to direct a further enquiry, if in his opinion misapprehension of discharge has led to the passing of an incorrect or improper order of discharge [32 M 214 See 5 W R 58 H P W 1910]

21. Discharge by Presidency Magistrates

The High Court has power under S. 477 of the Code to order a further enquiry in a case in which a Presidency Magistrate has discharged the accused person [11 C N 1221 26 C 124 27 R 54 See 6 C J 705 27 C 126 Est. 115]

22. District Magistrates.

A District Magistrate has jurisdiction to order a further enquiry on the ground that the order of discharge was due to misapprehension of evidence [6 M T 157 32 M 220 (F. B.) [Sarkar in Nazim J. et al.] 15 C 608 (F. B.) 5 C P 20 H P R 1891 11 M 331 32 P R 1901 2 P R 1901 20 W R 46 C N 8 P R 1000 8 P R 1000] Under the latter part of S. 437 he may make the further enquiry himself and frame the charge in course of it but he cannot frame the charge and direct a retrial on that charge [32 M 220 (F. B.)]. He cannot under S. 437 remand a case, once enquired into and dismissed, for retrial by a Subordinate Magistrate [4 C 617 20 W R 47]

[Note.—The last quoted rulings and the following rulings 1 C 282 2 C 405 10 C 268 (271) 1 Ch. 83 2 B 534 2 A 570 6 M 25 M H C R dated 22-10-77 and 16-1-78 were under the old Codes and must be regarded as superseded by S. 437 of the present Code]

23. Withdrawal of a case with a view to dismissal.—

The procedure of a District Magistrate who withdrew a case from the file of a Deputy Magistrate, when he was about to frame a charge and dismissed it under S. 253 Cr. P. C. was condemned in 30 C 694.

24. District Magistrate unless Deputy Magistrate should not be proceeded against, held that the order did not amount either to the dismissal of the complaint or a discharge of the accused; the District Magistrate had the before him jurisdiction under S. 437 to direct further enquiry into the case—12 C N 68

The effect of an order directing further enquiry is to have the enquiry open as it was before the decision under S. 253—7 M 151; 1 L B. 42.

(4) Miscellaneous.

25. Effect of transfer after discharge of some accused.—

Where after the discharge of some of the accused and the framing of charges against the rest, a case is transferred by the District Magistrate from the file of the Magistrate who has tried the case to that of another Magistrate, the order of transfer cannot operate as cancelling an order of discharge passed by the first Magistrate after due enquiry.—1 B R. 782.

26. Issue of process before order of discharge is set aside.—

It is competent for a Magistrate to issue fresh process against the accused, even though, he has been discharged without the order of discharge being set aside. [See 31 M 544; 29 C. 726 (F. B.); Rat 350] But it is illegal for a District Magistrate who had issued notice to the accused to show cause why an order of discharge should not be set aside, to issue warrant for re-arrest before setting aside the order. [15 P. R 1893]

27. Principle to be followed by High Court be setting aside an order of discharge.—In dealing with revision petitions against orders of discharge of accused persons by Magistrates, the High Court should follow the principle that which has resulted in grave injustice, but the question is merely one as to the appreciation of doubtful evidence stage of the case, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this Chapter, which such Magistrate is competent to try, and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.

Notes.

S. 254=S. 216 (1872)=S. 250 (1861).

(1) Application of the Section.

1. S. 254 does not limit or control the operation of S. 347.—See 254 makes it imperative on the Magistrate only to frame a charge and not to complete the trial to conviction or acquittal [Per Sadasiva Aiyar J.] S. 254 simply lays down the procedure for the trial of warrant cases, where the Magistrate considers it proper and a petition of composition by a person mentioned in the last column in the table in S 345, at once accept the petition and acquit the accused. It has no power to alter the charge already drawn up and proceed to try it.—23 P. R. 1914 (F. B.): 3 C N. 322; 3 C N. 514.

14. Contents of the charge. A charge should contain all that is necessary to constitute the offence charged and all that is required to give the accused a notice of the matter with which he is charged but should not allege positively any thing which is not justified by the materials before the Court [23 P. R. 1881]. Such circumstances should be set forth in the charge, that the accused may know what kind of offence it is he pleads guilty to and what fact he is called upon to rebut. [Rat 55]

15. Power to enquire into offences other than charged in the same trial.—If a Magistrate, to whom a proper complaint has been made, sits on the evidence that an offence different from the one expressly charged, has been committed, he has power to enquire and proceed against the accused with regard to such other offence [3 B. II (C C) 100]. He should also adjudicate on the original charge and dismiss it with leave to the prosecution to institute a more comprehensive case [5 W. R. 52]. If the offence so disclosed, is a summary case, the procedure laid down in Chap. XX should be followed. [7 M 51]

16. Magistrate powers not limited by the terms of the complaint or police report.—In framing a charge, a Magistrate is not limited to offences stated in the complaint or police report [11 C P. 9 (10)]. But a Magistrate may himself convict the accused for the offence, mentioned in the complaint and made out by the prosecution evidence, even though the evidence discloses another offence triable exclusively by the Sessions Court [27 A 69].

17. Charge should not be framed, so as to throw undue burden on the prosecution.—It must be remembered that while the prosecution is in all cases bound to prove so much of the matter charged, as is necessary to constitute the offence charged, it is not bound to prove, and cannot by reason of want of care on the part of the Court in framing the charge, become bound to prove more than this, and may, therefore very reasonably insist that the charge be so framed by the Court as not to cast upon it any unnecessary burden.—Per Plowden J in 26 P. R. 1889.

255. (1) The charge shall then be read and explained to the accused, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty or has any defence to make.

(2) If the accused pleads guilty, the Magistrate shall record the plea, and may in his discretion convict him thereon.

Proposed amendments to the section.—After section 255 of the said Code, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"255A. In a case where a previous conviction is charged under the provisions of section 221 (7), and the accused does not admit that he has been previously convicted as alleged in the charge, the Magistrate may, after he has convicted the said accused under section 255 (2) or section 259, take evidence in respect of the alleged previous conviction and shall record a finding thereon."

Notes.

1. Effect of the plea.—When the charge has been drawn up under S 254 and read and explained to the accused and he has pleaded under S 255 Cr P C, the inquiry becomes a trial [23 P. R. 1914 (F. B.) See 27 M J 539]

2. Charge must be explained to the accused.—The charge should be read and so explained to the accused that the Court is sure that he has understood the nature of the charge thoroughly, and it is only then that his plea should be received [5 C 826]. An accused person should have a clear apprehension of the offence to which he called upon to plead and rebut by producing evidence [Rat 55]. Where there is nothing on the record to show that the charge was properly explained to the accused, held, that his plea of guilty should not be accepted [(1933) 60 L B 328]

3. The plea to be effective must be unequivocal.—A mere admission by an accused person that "he had killed the deceased" would not amount to an admission of murder, if he is not asked why he intended to kill or in what circumstances he killed the deceased [9 M 61 See 7 C 96]. Before a prisoner can be convicted of murder on his own plea, he should have admitted that he intended to cause the death of the deceased or did so with a knowledge such as is described in S 300 I P C. Where a prisoner admits that he killed the deceased but adds that he did so in a struggle arising from the deceased having first attacked him [5 C 826] or that he committed the homicide because he was subject to epileptic fits [Rat 699], his plea can not be treated as a plea of guilty.

Note.—See the following cases 25 W. R. 23; 4 B. L. (appx) 101 9 B. R. 1316 Cr R 5 of 17-3-02]

4. Pleader cannot be called upon to plead to the charge.—No pleader can be called upon to plead, on behalf of his client, "guilty" or "not guilty," and it is improper for a Magistrate to act on such plea—Per Batty J. in G B R, 861.

Note.—But where the accused has been permitted under S 205 supra to appear by pleader, the pleader may plead or refuse to plead under this section—u S 206

5. Plea should be recorded as nearly as possible in the accused's own words.—It is expedient that the plea of the accused should be recorded as nearly as possible in the words used by him, so that it may be shown clearly that the accused admitted the facts necessary to constitute the offence with which he was charged—[C P Cr Cir Pt II, No 22; See 7 C 98 (17) C R G of 113-102] Where the plea is given in a foreign language, it should be recorded in the language in which it is interpreted, [5 C 826]
6. Conviction on a plea of guilty alone.—

There is nothing in the Code to preclude a Magistrate in a warrant-case, from convicting the accused on his own plea of "guilty" [3 L R 279] A plea of guilty recorded without even drawing up a formal charge cannot be the basis of a conviction [29 M. 372]. It is the prima facie duty of the prosecution to prove the facts necessary to constitute the charge. Deficiencies in the prosecution evidence cannot be rectified by the statements made by the accused in answer to questions put to him under S 342 Cr. P. C [27 M 234] A conviction which is illegal and therefore liable to be set aside cannot be sustained merely on the ground that the accused pleaded guilty to the charge in the lower Court [19 M. J. 271 See also (11) 2 M N. 576]

7. Accused threatening himself on the mercy does not fact that he Court should not prejudice him—12 C N. 140.

256. (1) If the accused refuses to plead, or does not plead, or claims to be tried, he shall be required to state whether he wishes to cross-examine any, and, if so, which, of the witnesses for the prosecution whose evidence has been taken. If he says he does so wish, the witnesses named by him shall be recalled and, after cross-examination and re-examination (if any), they shall be discharged. The evidence of any remaining witnesses for the prosecution shall next be taken, and, after cross-examination and re-examination (if any), they also shall be discharged. The accused shall then be called upon to enter upon his defence and produce his evidence.

(2) If the accused puts in any written statement, the Magistrate shall file it with the record

Proposed amendments to the section.—In Sub-section (1) of section 256 of the said Code, after the words "to state" the words "either forthwith, or, if the Magistrate thinks fit, at the commencement of the next hearing of the case" shall be inserted

1. APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Application of the section.

1. Section 256 does not apply to preliminary enquiries.—See 256, has no application to the enquiry into cases triable by the Sessions Court. In cases which are being committed to the Sessions, the evidence of each witness will ordinarily be concluded as each witness is examined, and the accused has no right to have his cross-examination conducted after the charge has been framed.—19 O C. 239 10 A J. 443; See 10 W. R. 25

2. Sec. 256 does not apply to security proceedings.—In security proceedings, the order passed by the Magistrate under S 112 is equivalent to a charge in a warrant case and the person against whom the order is made is fully aware of what is alleged against him * * * There is consequently no conceivable reason why he should be allowed the right of second cross examination. * * The reason which underlies the rule as to double cross examination in warrant cases is entirely absent here and the principle of "reasonable notice bona, except in a few" is fully applicable—Per S. 176 Vol I in 1 P R 1016 33 C 213, 12 Cr 89 (L R)

3. Case commenced as a warrant case but subsequently treated as a summons case.—At the time P W No. 1 was examined the inquiry was being conducted as in a warrant case. The accused persons were entitled to assume that they would have a further opportunity of cross-examination after a charge was framed and they might reasonably curtail and limit their cross-examination under the impression. When it was found that no offence triable as a warrant case was disclosed, it was the duty of the Magistrate to allow them an opportunity of completing their cross-examination—Per S. 176 Vol I in 16 Cr 270 (M)

4. Composite Cases Where a summons case and a warrant case are tried together, the procedure to be followed is that provided for the warrant case [11 C 91 14] As the accused could not have anticipated that during the trial, the charge in the warrant case would be dismissed, it was illegal for the Magistrate to refuse to allow the accused to recall and further cross-examine the witnesses, [18 M T 92 See 2 L W 574]

[Note.—In this case the trial commenced under S. 504 and 352 I P C but in the course of the trial, the charge under S. 504 I P C was dropped and the trial proceeded under S. 352 I P C only].

(2) Adjournments.

5. Adjournment for production of witnesses.—Under Ss. 236 and 237 an accused person is as a matter of right, entitled to an adjournment for the production of his witnesses 1 C N 313.
6. Accused not bound to show that he has reasonable grounds for his application.—A Magistrate is not competent to refuse to call the witnesses for the prosecution to be cross-examined by the accused and it is not necessary for the accused to show that he has reasonable grounds for his application—21 W R 29
7. The law explained.—A Magistrate should not of his own motion, discharge the witnesses for the prosecution, until the accused person has exercised or waived the right of cross-examination given him by the section. When it becomes necessary to adjourn the hearing, the Magistrate should in all cases inquire of the accused if he desires to the prosecution, it was held that the accused was entitled to have the witnesses whom he desired to cross-examine at the further hearing re-summoned—6 N P 281

8. Delayed applications.—It always depends upon the circumstances of each case whether a delayed application should be granted or not. But it is open to a Magistrate even after a case has been closed and at any time before judgment is pronounced to give an opportunity to the accused to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses—21 M J 283 See 4 M 130.

(3) Rules as to cross-examination.

9. When a person is called upon to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses. It is not giving an accused person reasonable opportunity to ask him immediately after the charge is framed, to cross-examine witnesses and a reasonable time should be granted to enable the accused to engage a pleader—(1911) 2 M N 192 16 Cr 756 (M)

10. The right under S. 256 amounts to absolute privilege.—Waiver by the accused's counsel of the right to re-cross-examine a prosecution witness cannot prejudice the rights of the accused under Ss. 236 and 237 Cr P C. The right referred to in S. 256 of the Cr P C is absolute and unqualified and is intended to apply only when the witnesses are still before the Court, and before they have been discharged from further attendance—21 Cr 297 (M) 37 C 236 See 6 N P 270 27 C 370, 4 C N 351

11. Cross-examination before charge.—This section does not prohibit cross-examination before the charge is framed, it permits a further cross-examination expressly directed to the case framed and embodied in the charge and would enable an accused person, if he has reserved his cross-examination, to exercise his right at that time, subject to a discretion given to the Magistrate under S. 237 Cr P C—[22 C 612 8 C N 838 (97-01) L R 74] Where the cross-examination before charge was on the distinct understanding that accused would not require the recall of the wit-was directed to pay the expenses incidental to the recall, specially as they offered to pay the same. [6 C N 421] not entitled to have them re-summoned as a matter of right. Where it becomes necessary to adjourn the hearing.

12. Where witnesses have been cross-examined before charge.—An accused person is not deprived of the right given him by S. 218, Act X of 1872, (= S. 256) to recall and cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution after the charge has been framed, by reason of the witnesses having been cross-examined before the charge was framed. 6 N. P. 251 27 C 370: See 6 M. T. 239 21 W. R. 29; 17 W. R. 51 2 B. R. 542 4 M. 130 Con Rat 930.

13. Reservation of cross-examination.—The Magistrate has a discretion to allow, the defence to reserve the cross-examination of prosecution witnesses except in the cases referred to under S. 256 Cr. P. C.—6 M. T. 339

14. In summary cases.—The provisions of S. 256 Cr. P. C. are not applicable in summary cases.

for the prosecution and found that the Magistrate considers that evidence as substantial basis for charging him [Rat 768 : 5 L B 20]

15. Prosecution witnesses called as witnesses by the accused.—Where the defence counsel being absent, the accused asked for an adjournment but it was refused and the accused said they were unable to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses and the case was adjourned for defence, and the accused called the prosecution witnesses as his witnesses—Hell that S. 151 of the Evidence Act was no bar to the witnesses being cross examined by the defence counsel as they were really summoned under S. 257 Cr. P. C. for the purposes of cross-examination—28 C 594.

16. The right to recall prosecution witnesses.—The provisions of S. 256 Cr. P. C. are clear and give the Magistrate no discretion. If the accused says he wishes to cross-examine any of the witnesses for the prosecution, they shall be recalled. The fact that there has already been some cross-examination before the charge has been drawn up does not affect this privilege. The accused is entitled to reserve the whole or any part of his cross-examination till after the charge and to complete it then—6 Bur. T. 67. 20 C 469. 27 C 370. 7 C J. 210; 14 Cr. 388 (L B.) 2 B R. 542

17. The provisions of S. 256 Cr. P. C. are imperative.—“There is one section of the Criminal Procedure Code, which is not infrequently ignored by subordinate Courts, though their attention has been drawn to it by many rulings and though the section is in itself quite clear. I allude to S. 256, in connection with which it has been frequently held that its provisions are imperative and that it is an illegality to neglect them. The relevant portion of the section runs, “he shall be required to state whether he wishes to cross-examine any and if so, which of the witnesses for the prosecution whose evidence has been taken.” I would like to draw the attention of the learned District Magistrate to such rulings as 20 C 163, 27 C 470, (02) A. N. 5—It has been laid down more than once that it is not until a specific charge has been drawn up and explained to the accused, that he is in a position to cross-examine the witnesses.”

(4) Meaning of terms.

18. Meaning of the word “trial”—It is clear from S. 256 (1) Cr. P. C. that in a warrant case, the trial does not begin till a charge has been framed and the accused claims to be tried—

D. N. 42 : 32 M. 220 (F. B.) [Per Wallis C J] 15 C 678 [Per Wilson J] See 29 P. R. 1914 But see 25 C. 863 (N15)

19. “Claims to be tried”—See (06) U. R. 51 : 3 L B 240

20. “Recall.”—Meaning—The word “recall” used in S. 256 Cr. P. C. does not mean “re-examination.” Cross-examination is intended for the testing of accuracy and credibility of witnesses and not for building up a case for the defence and the witnesses should, then and there, after cross-examination and re-examination have been discharged. The moment the stage has been reached when there is ground for presuming that an accused person committed an offence triable under Ch. XXI, the examination of the accused should be taken up and the charged-sheet drawn up. After this the accused should be called upon to enter upon his defence and produce his witnesses—3 A. J. 707 : See 8 A. J. 185

(5) Procedure.

21. Accused not bound to pay costs of recalled witnesses.—It is the duty of the Magistrate to recall the prosecution witnesses which must be done presumably at the public expense. A refusal to recall them on the ground that the accused had not paid the necessary expenses, is illegal. [12 P. R. 1907] Where a Magistrate refused to re-summon a Medical Officer for cross-examination unless fees for his attendance were paid, the High Court set aside the conviction and directed the Magistrate to issue process. [40 C N 351] As a general rule, a Magistrate cannot refuse to recall witnesses “except on payment by the accused of the costs for their attendance.” Such an order can be passed only under S. 257 infra, when the application for recall is made after the accused has entered upon his defence. [2 C. J. xvii; See 8 N. 65; 22 Cr. 112 (P.)]

22. Magistrate bound to ask accused whether he wishes witnesses to be recalled.—See (IV) Powers and Duties of the Magistrate right to cross-examine the complainant—11 C N ext.

24. When the witnesses should be discharged.—The procedure contemplated is that the hearing should be continued, if necessary, from day to day and the prosecution witnesses

W R. 48:

25. Accused should be expressly asked the right of cross examination given him by this Section. When it becomes necessary to adjourn the hearing, the witnesses can be discharged only if the accused consents to this step. If the Magistrate omits by inadvertence to ask the accused to exercise his right, he will not be entitled to refuse an application for recalling the discharged witnesses at the further hearing.—U N P 284 25 W R 48

26. Failure to cross-examine when opportunity is given.—“The object of this section is clearly to secure to the accused the opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses for the prosecution after he has been informed as to the nature of the specific charge which he is required to answer. Until he knows this, he is not in a position to decide on what points the evidence for the prosecution is material. If this opportunity is secured, I do not apprehend that he has any further right of recalling the witnesses. . . . If he refuses to exercise this right after he has entered upon his defence, he cannot demand as of right the recall of the witnesses for the prosecution if the case be adjourned because he has not produced his witnesses. He has had the opportunity intended by the section.—Per Spinkie J in 2 A 253 (254)”

27. Accused not entitled to a second opportunity.—Once the requirements of S 250 Cr P C requiring the accused to state, whether he wishes to cross-examine any witness, is complied with, there is no provision requiring the Magistrate to offer a second opportunity to the accused to have his witnesses summoned.—(12) M N 1121.

28. Obstructive tactics on the part of the accused.—The accused, after the charge had been framed, put in an application praying that the case might be committed to the Sessions.

The Magistrate rejected the application and called on the accused who had pleaded not guilty to enter on his defence. The accused thereupon declined to say anything and said that he would reserve his defence for the Sessions Court. The Magistrate thereupon again informed the accused that he was going to try the case himself and called on him to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses. The accused again declined and the case was adjourned for judgment. Before judgment the accused applied that he might be permitted to recall the discharged witnesses. held that the Magistrate acted quite properly in rejecting the application as vexatious and the accused was not entitled to recall the prosecution witnesses for cross-examination, after the case had been closed.—21 M J 283

29. Written Statements.—Subs (2)—A written statement cannot take the place of evidence nor of such examination of the accused as is contemplated by the Code [12 C 957 (‘03) A N. 1] “This Court has recently annuladverted on this practice of filing written statement, which is not provided for by the Cr P C and enables statements to be put before the Court as statements of the accused, when such statements are not in fact drawn up by the accused themselves, but by their legal advisers or friends and are entirely irresponsible [20 C N 124] Quere—whether, an admission contained in the accused’s written statement, would relieve the prosecution from the defect in letting in evidence of the facts admitted.—[10 M T 506]

30. Reasons to be recorded for refusing recall.—An order refusing an application to resummon prosecution witnesses without assigning any reasons as to why the Magistrate considered such application as vexatious and purposely designed to delay proceedings, is bad in law [4 C N 241]

II. RIGHT TO RECALL PROSECUTION WITNESS—WHEN TO BE EXERCISED.

31. Must be exercised when the charge is read.—The right of an accused person to recall and cross-examine witnesses for the prosecution must be exercised at the time when the charge is read and explained to him and if not exercised at that time, it cannot be afterwards insisted on although it is in the discretion of the Magistrate to recall the witnesses if he thinks fit.—[7 C 28] So where the witnesses had already been cross-made the formal charge and should allow the accused such opportunities of calling and recalling witnesses as the law gives them.—Rat 723

33. Charge framed at an early stage.—Where the trying Magistrate charges the accused at an

32. Application made a day after the charge.

—A Magistrate trying an offence under S 323 I P C, refused an application to resummon the complainant and his witnesses for cross-examination made by the accused a day after the charge had been read, and the Magistrate held that he was right in refusing the application.—20 C 109.

34. Application made after defence is closed.—Where witnesses for the prosecution were fully cross-examined and a charge framed against the accused, and the witnesses for the defence were examined and cross-examined, and on the day on which judgment was to be delivered, an application was put in on behalf of the accused for the recall of the prosecution witnesses for further cross-examination, held that the Magistrate was right in refusing the application.—20 C 109.

III. EFFECT OF NON-COMPLIANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF S. 256 Cr. P. C.

35. Trial de novo.—Where a Magistrate has de-denovo by some other Magistrate of competent jurisdiction—[7 C J. 240. See 19 W R. 53. (02) A. N. 5] Where an application was improperly refused the High Court directed a retrial from the stage when the charge was framed—[Rat 723]

See II. Right to recall prosecution witnesses when to be exercised.

irregularity cured by S 537—11 C P. 137. 9 Bur 23

37. When failure to ask accused if he wished to recall is a mere irregularity. Where the Magistrate did not ask the accused after framing a charge whether they wished to cross examine the prosecution witnesses again (S 256 Cr. P. C.), held that it was a mere irregularity as it appeared from the records that the accused had fully cross examined the prosecution witnesses before the charge was framed and no objection had been taken on the ground before the lower Appellate Court—16 Cr 5 (M) But See (02) A. N. 5
38. Prosecution to prove want of prejudice. The privilege conferred by S 256 Cr. P. C. is a substantial one and when denied, it is for the prosecution to show that there was no prejudice—18 M. T. 92.

39. May be a good ground for transfer.—The refusal of a Magistrate to permit the cross examination of the prosecution witnesses after all of them have been examined in chief, the cancellation of the bail bonds of an accused after an application for stay of proceedings pending an application for transfer of the case, and the refusal to furnish the accused with copies of dispositions of witnesses for the prosecution are good grounds for directing the transfer of a case—21 Cr 630 (Pat)
40. Proceedings after the illegal refusal are void.—The refusal to resubmit witness would render it necessary to reopen the case from the stage of the drawing up of the formal charge [Rat 723] Where a trying Magistrate, after a charge had been framed, refused to resubmit the complainant and his witnesses, the High Court directed the Magistrate to reopen the case from the stage where he made the formal charge and allow the accused the opportunity of calling and recalling witnesses to which he was legally entitled [14 C. N. 280]
41. In undefended cases.—Where an accused person not defended by a pleader and against whom a charge was framed without any previous intimation, applies for time and for summons to the prosecution witnesses to cross-examine them, and where the Magistrate refuses to grant both, his proceedings are not merely irregular but illegal, and a conviction, under these circumstances is one liable to be set aside

(11) 2 M. N. 192.

VI. POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE MAGISTRATE.

42. Power to reserve cross-examination of defence witnesses.—The Court has a discretion, for sufficient reason, to allow the cross-examination of the defence witnesses to be reserved, until the chief examination of all of them is over, there being no provision of law to the contrary—6 M. T. 259
43. Record must show that the requirements of S 256 have been complied with.—The Magistrate is bound, after the charge has been framed to ask the accused whether he wishes to recall any of the prosecution witnesses. The record must show that the requirements of S 256 Cr. P. C. have been complied with 11 C P. 137 9 Bur 23 12 Cr 89 (L.B.).
44. Duty of the Magistrate.—After a charge has been drawn up, it is the duty of the Magistrate to require the accused to state which of the prosecution witnesses he wishes to cross-examine. The fact that there has been already some cross examination before the charge was drawn up does not affect his privilege. It is only after the accused had entered upon his defence that the Magistrate can refuse such application under S. 277 Cr. P. C.—27 C 370 2 B. R. 512.

45. Power to recall at any stage.—As a rule the proper and convenient time for the purpose of cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses is at the commencement of the accused person's defence, through the Court has discretionary power to permit the accused to recall and cross-examine at any period of the defence, when the Court thinks such a course is right and proper.—22 W R 44
46. Refusal warranted only if petition is vexatious one.—A Magistrate is bound under S 257 Cr. P. C. to resubmit witnesses for further cross-examination after the charge has been framed, against the accused and he has entered the witnesses for the prosecution, no matter how fully and completely they have been cross-examined [20 C 469]. The accused has no right to insist upon the prosecution witnesses being recalled at a later stage, after declining to do so at the time when the charge was read over to him and he was called upon to make his defence [7 C 24].

V. MISCELLANEOUS.

48. Payment of expenses of witnesses.—Where in order to suit the convenience of the Court, the witnesses for the prosecution are allowed to leave the Court before the right conferred by S. 256 Cr. P. C. can be exercised they must be required to attend again. In the circumstances the accused cannot be asked to pay the expenses of such witnesses but all expenses which may be allowed them by the Court should be paid by Government.

8 N 65 See 1 C N 351 12 P R 1107

49. Reason of the amendment of the section.—“After careful consideration we have adopted the re-draft of these clauses suggested by the Judges of the Calcutta High Court. Even under these amended clauses, the right of cross-examination may be abused and witnesses unnecessarily harassed but we think on the whole, that the possible abuse of the system does not justify us in making any severer restriction on the existing right of the accused.”—Sd. Com. Rep.

257. (1) If the accused, after he has entered upon his defence, applies to the Magistrate to issue any process for compelling the attendance of any witness for the purpose of examination or cross-examination, or the production of any document or other thing, the Magistrate shall issue such process unless he considers that such application should be refused on the ground that it is made for the purpose of vexation or delay or defeating the ends of justice. Such ground shall be recorded by him in writing.

Provided that, when the accused has cross-examined or had the opportunity of cross-examining any witness after the charge is framed, the attendance of such witness shall not be compelled under this section, unless the Magistrate is satisfied that it is necessary for the purposes of justice.

(2) The Magistrate may, before summoning any witness on such application, require that his reasonable expenses incurred in attending for the purposes of the trial be deposited in Court.

Notes.

(1) Application of the Section.

1. When the accused is to enter upon his defence.—An accused person ought not to be called upon to enter on his defence before he has cross-examined the witnesses for the prosecution.

8 N 65.

2. Section imperative.—The language of this Section is imperative. The Magistrate has no discretion to refuse to issue process to compel the attendance of any witness, unless he considers that the application should be refused for any of the reasons specified in the section and which he is defeating the ends of justice. The case of each witness must be dealt with individually. The Magistrate has no right arbitrarily to limit the number of witnesses to be called on each point. 26 B 418 2 S 5 31 M 131 21 Cr 340 (A) 6 C 714 1 C N 211

3. Reasons for refusing application limited by terms of S. 257.—An application for process against a particular witness cannot be refused on the ground that he cannot give any reliable evidence one way or another [(11) 2 M N 192]. The refusal to summon witnesses because they were implicated in the charge, vitiates the trial and conviction [6 B L (Appx) 65].

4. Credit to be attached to witnesses must not be determined before-hand.—It is the duty of the Magistrate to summon witnesses for that a particular name has been entered in the list for the purpose of vexation or delay or for the accused who can speak to the facts of the case, and he ought not to determine beforehand what credit he would give to their evidence.

6 B L (Appx) 78 3 A. 392 (93) A. N. 10. See 6 B L (Appx) 65.

5. Conclusion that application is vexatious must not be adopted arbitrarily.—Where the defence of the accused was that the coolies emigrated did not come from the prohibited area under the Assam Emigration Labour Act and he applied for summonses to coolies to prove his defence, held that the Magistrate's characterization of the application as vexatious was unwarranted and the application ought to be granted. (11) 2 M. N. 172.

(2) Practice and Procedure.

6. What is substantial compliance with the provisions of the section.—It is a sufficient compliance with subs (2) of this section, if a Magistrate while refusing an application for summoning further defence witnesses, states facts leading to an irresistible inference that it was filed for the purpose of vexation or delay or defeating the ends of justice, although he does not expressly say that the application was for that purpose.

11 C. N. 789

7. Application filed "too late."—A Magistrate's order rejecting an application after recording on it the opinion that it was "too late" is a sufficient compliance with the section, and cannot be set aside in the absence of prejudice.—39 C. 781.
8. Refusal when to be exercised.—It is only after the accused has entered upon his defence that the Magistrate can in his discretion refuse the application of the accused to recall prosecution witnesses for further cross-examination on the ground that it was made for the purpose of vexation or delay.—27 C. 370.
9. Witness present in Court must be examined.—Though it is competent to the Magistrate to decline to summon witnesses for the defence under this section it is not for him to decline to examine the defence witnesses cited on the ground that their evidence is not necessary. [14 B B 360] It is not open to a Magistrate to refuse to examine a witness for the accused, when the witness is present in Court. [4 B R 461] Even when a witness appears after the case is closed and the Magistrate is about to deliver judgment, it is incumbent on the Magistrate to record and consider his evidence. [7 B. L. 564]
10. Having once issued summons Magistrate is bound to enforce attendance.—When a Magistrate has once issued process for the attendance of a witness for the accused, he cannot refuse to summon them on the ground that being friends of the accused they would have come to Court, if the accused had desired them to do so. Having once granted the process he was bound to assist the accused in enforcing the attendance of the absent witnesses.—See 10 C 631 G. C. N. 519 35 C. 1093. Rat 594; 29 P R 1884. 4 A 53; 9 C. N. cxxix.
11. Recording of reasons.—When a Magistrate ance with the provisions of S. 257, if the Magistrate states the facts which led him to the irresistible conclusion that the application was for the purpose of delay, though he does not say so expressly in so many terms. [11 C. N. 789]

12. Issue of summonses to witness not named in the list.—It is not obligatory on the Court to issue any further summonses to witnesses other than those named in the list filed at the time entering on the defence [7 B. L. 564] It is entirely discretionary with the Magistrate to grant an adjournment for summoning further witnesses or not. [9 C. N. cxxix]
13. When witness is found to be absent out of British India—When it is impossible to procure the evidence of a defence witness, as by reason of his absence out of British India, the Magistrate would not be justified in acquitting the accused, the proper course to be adopted being for the Magistrate to pronounce judgment on the evidence on record.—(81) A. N. 38.
14. The right to refuse summonses.—When the Magistrate is called upon to summons 200 witnesses in a case under S. 110, he acts strictly in accordance with law and exercises a jurisdiction which the law has conferred on him when he refuses the application if there is reason to believe that it was one made for the purpose of vexation and delay.—36 A 239.
15. Procedure under S. 257 begins after charge is framed.—The accused's right to call evidence, either witnesses or documents, does not arise until after the charge has been framed, and read to him under Ss 251 and 255 Cr. P. C. The right is given by S. 257 Cr. P. C. and is subject to the limitation enjoined by that section if the application should be refused if the Magistrate considers that it is made for the purpose of vexation or delay or for defeating the ends of justice [See 5 B R 980] A Magistrate thereupon can not call on the complainant at the instance of the accused to produce documents (e. g. books &c account) before the charge is framed.—8 S. 267.
16. Discretion in resummoning prosecution witnesses.—Under S. 257, there is a discretion vested in the Court to resummon the prosecution witnesses already examined and where a witness

But See 27 C. 370. 37 C. 235 4 C. N. 351

17. Procedure in summary trials.—Even if warrant cases tried summarily, the Magistrate must under S. 201 (1) not follow the procedure for warrant cases, and should grant the accused (if so requested) an opportunity to summon his witness.—5 L. B. 21

18. Witnesses who should be summoned.—If the witnesses cited by the accused are really witnesses who can speak in any way to the facts of the case, and who may be material for the defence, the Magistrate should summon them.—6 B. L. (n) 75. 7 B. L. 561 (572)

(3) Miscellaneous.

19. Application to summon trying Magistrate.—If the accused wishes to summon the trying Magistrate as a witness touching certain matters connected with the case, he can enforce his appearance under S. 257 Cr. P. C. unless the Magistrate considers that the application should be refused on the ground that it is made for the purpose of vexation or delay or for defeating the ends of justice.—20 A. 536. 2 S. 5

20. Prosecution witness subsequently called as defence witnesses. Where on the Magistrate refusing an application by the accused for an adjournment to enable them to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses, those witnesses were summoned as witnesses for the defence, held that they were in effect, summoned under S. 257 for the purpose of cross-examination and the accused had a right to cross-examine them. 25 C. 504 (506) 1 O. N. 19 (20)

21. Witness examined by the Court.—Where an accused first obtained process for the attendance of a witness but subsequently declined to examine him, and the Court examined him as a Court witness, whereupon the accused proceeded to cross-examine him but the Court refused to permit him to do so, held that the witness could not be regarded as a defence witness and the accused undoubtedly had a right to cross-examine him if he so wished.—29 C. 387

22. Accused's right to call witnesses to meet fresh evidence.—Where a Magistrate took fresh evidence after hearing the arguments on behalf of the defence, held that the accused had a right to resubmit the witnesses whom he had previously declined to examine in order to meet the evidence newly taken.—6 C. 714.

23. Opinion of the Sessions Judge.—On matters of procedure which arise in relation to this section, the Magistrate must be guided by the judgment of the Sessions Court.—Rat. 654

Acquittal . 258. (1) If in any case under this Chapter in which charge has been framed the Magistrate finds the accused not guilty, he shall record an order of acquittal

Conviction (2) If in any such case the Magistrate finds the accused guilty, he shall pass sentence upon him according to law

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (2) of section 258 of the said Code, after the word "shall," the words "unless he proceeds in accordance with the provisions of section 849 or section 562" shall be inserted

Notes.

(1) Preliminary.

1. Application of the section.—See 258 contemplates an order of acquittal only where after the framing of a charge, the Magistrate is of opinion that the evidence is insufficient to justify a conviction.—37 B. 369. 22 W. R. 25. But See (81) A. N. 142.

2. Case submitted under S. 350 Cr. P. C.—Where proceedings are submitted under S. 350 Cr. P. C. after the framing of the charge, held that after recommencing proceedings under S. 350 Cr. P. C. the second Magistrate must, if he is satisfied that the charge framed by his predecessor is not well founded, acquit the prisoner, under S. 258 Cr. P. C. He cannot pass an order of discharge under S. 253 (2).—27 M. J. 589. 14 P. R. 1903.

3. Effect of withdrawal.—As a prosecution under S. 406 I. P. C. is not covered either by S.

Order under S. 258 Cr. P. C. must be treated as order for acquittal.

4. (1) An order of dismissal of complaint under S. 254 is really an order of acquittal [5 C. L. 359]. The mere omission to draw a charge, would not make an order for discharge passed after examining both the prosecution and defence witnesses, anything but an order of acquittal under this section. [29 P. R. 1883 (91) A. N. 80. 18 Cr. 1006 (L. B.)]

5. (2) Where an accused person, who on the materials could have been charged under S. 467 I. P. C. an offence triable by a Court of Session, was charged under S. 465 I. P. C. and acquitted by the Magistrate, held, that such acquittal could not be considered as a discharge under S. 467 I. P. C. and a Sessions Judge would have no jurisdiction to pass an order under S. 436 Cr. P. C.—22 C. N. 117. See 9 B. II. 170

Order must be passed after proper adjudication.

6. (1) Defence witness unavailable.—A Magistrate cannot proceed to acquit the accused merely on the ground that a defence witness could not be summoned as he had left India. He must pass his order after considering such materials as are on the record.—(81) A. N. 38.

7. (2) Case not tried impartially.—The order of acquittal was set aside by the High Court, as the Magistrate failed to deal with the case before him with judicial care and impartiality as while laying great stress on all the consideration that might affect the credibility of the prosecution witnesses, he omitted to take into consideration what might be advanced in their favour.—18 C. N. 1244
8. Order of acquittal bars jurisdiction of District Magistrate.—A District Magistrate has no jurisdiction to order a retrial in the case, unless the order of acquittal passed by a subordinate Magistrate is set aside by a competent Court.—7 C. N. 493, 7 C. N. 711, 10 C. N. 316 See 3 C. L. 131
9. Order of acquittal on a minor charge no bar to second trial for a major one.—Where a man is acquitted of a minor offence (a summons case), it is no bar under S. 403 Cr. P. C. to his being tried for a greater offence (a warrant case) arising out of the same facts.—(86) A. N. 260.
10. Appeals against order of acquittal.—The High Court as a rule, would not interfere unless the judgment of the Court below was wrong and perverse or without jurisdiction and based upon obvious errors in procedure.—18 C. N. 666
11. Applications against orders of acquittal.—It is inexpedient, to interfere in revision at the instance of a private person with an acquittal after trial by the proper tribunal and application for that purpose should be discouraged.—19 C. N. 184; 11 C. J. 113.

(2) The order in the case.

12. In cases of doubt.—Even though a Magistrate has framed a charge, if he feels any reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the accused at the time of giving judgment he is bound to acquit him.—[Rat 851] A Magistrate must convict the accused on the strength of the prosecution evidence. He cannot rely on the weakness of the defence [Rat 5]
13. Conviction need not necessarily be by the Magistrate who framed the charge.—The section does not require that the conviction or acquittal should be by the Magistrate who drew up the charge.—[3 C. 493]
14. Sentence must follow conviction.—A Magistrate is bound to pass some sentence however nominal on conviction. He cannot direct the accused's release, on the ground that the hardship to which the accused had been subjected was a sufficient punishment.—4 M. H. (app.) 161. (84) A. N. 219.
15. Rule for assessing punishment.—Where the accused is charged with, tried for and convicted of only one offence, and the facts proved may, if taken piecemeal, constitute minor offences, forming ingredients of the graver offence of which he has been found guilty, only one sentence can be awarded.—(87) A. N. 274 (278)

259. When the proceedings have been instituted upon complaint, and upon any day fixed for the hearing of the case the complainant is absent, and the offence may be lawfully compounded, the Magistrate may, in his discretion, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained at any time before the charge has been framed, discharge the accused.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 259 of the said Code, the words "and the offence may be lawfully compounded" shall be omitted.

Notes.

1. Scope of the order under S. 259 Cr. P. C.—An order of discharge under S. 259 is not an order of acquittal, nor has it the effect of an acquittal under S. 403 infra [28 M 310 (311) 8 S 196]
2. Order of discharge should not be passed after the charge has been framed.—If the complainant is absent on the day fixed, in a warrant case after a charge has been framed, the Magistrate cannot legally acquit the accused on the ground that the complainant is absent. He ought to admit the accused to bail and enforce the attendance of the complainant and his witnesses under S. 92 supra.—[Rat 624 Rat 847 Rat 847 4 C. N. 26 20 Cr. 763 (N)]
3. Complainant not bound to produce his witnesses for cross-examination.—It is no part of a complainant's duty to call any witness for cross-examination or any other purpose of the defence, once the charge has been framed. See 259 Cr. P. C. gives no power to dismiss a warrant case in default after a charge has been framed.—20 Cr 763 (N)

4. Sec. 259 applies only to compoundable cases.—A Magistrate cannot pass an order "striking off" a warrant case, because the complainant is absent on the day of hearing. Under S. 259 Cr. P. C. which relates to warrant cases, the Magistrate can only pass an order of discharge in those cases in which the offence complained of may be lawfully compounded. In a case under S. 211 P. C., an order under S. 259 cannot therefore be made.—17 O. C. 18; See 10 W. R. 31.

5. Effect of order under S. 259 in composite cases.—On the day fixed for hearing of a complaint case under S. 352 I P C, the complainant was absent, and the Magistrate passed the following order: "Complainant absent. Accused discharged." Held—that where two offences are complained of, one of which is triable as a summons case and the other as a warrant case, both arising out of the same transaction, the Court cannot separate the two applying two kinds of procedure, but should adopt the procedure relating to the graver charge, i.e. the warrant case. Hence the order under S. 259 did not operate as an acquittal, even in respect of the offence under S. 352 I P C.—11 M 727 30 M 703 11 C 91 24 C 181 22 B 714
6. Sec. 259 does not apply where there is a withdrawal.—Where in a case sent up by the Police, the complainant intimated, before any evidence was recorded that the matter had been settled, and that he did not wish to proceed with the case, held that although an order of discharge was proper in the case that order could not be passed under S. 259 Cr P C which is inapplicable except in cases in which the complainant is absent.—[10 C 531 See 10 C 67]
7. Where there is evidence on the record.—A Magistrate exercising his discretion under S. 259 Cr P C is bound to consider the evidence on record and to see whether there is a prima facie case against the accused or not 12 Cr 184 (S).
8. Ss. 253 and 259 mutually exclusive.—In a warrant case, an order discharging an accused person, on account of the complainant's absence cannot be made under S. 253 Cr P C, but can only be made under this section in a case where the offence may be lawfully compounded.—20 C N 698
9. Absence due to unavoidable causes.—Where the absence of the complainant was due to unavoidable causes (e.g. floods) held that the order of discharge should be set aside, (further enquiry directed). 12 Cr 181 (S)

Note In a case when the absence of the complainant was due to no hour being fixed for hearing and the case being called up early, the District Magistrate was held to have acted very properly in dealing with the matter under S. 137 [Rat 988. 115-76].

12. (2) A Magistrate (inc. a District Magistrate) who has dismissed a complaint under S 279 is not precluded from proceeding with the case on a fresh complaint filed by the complainant.—29 M 310 (311) 29 C 102

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF SECTION 260.

(1) Object and application.

1. The object.—A summary trial under S. 227. (=S. 260) is intended to apply only to short and simple cases where little evidence is needed. [25 W. R. 65] The power to try cases summarily is to be exercised only in trial cases. When an adequate sentence cannot be passed in summary trial, the case ought not to be tried summarily [4 L. B. 335]
2. Chapter XXII does not apply to serious offences.—Summary procedure in cases of serious offences though legal is inappropriate [14 N. 140 13 C. P. 17 G. M. 396] The offence of cattle lifting is a serious one and ought not to be tried summarily [6 S. 101] When a conviction may entail serious consequences, the case should not be tried summarily [Rat 778 784 6 M. 396]

Note.—Where it is impossible to pass an adequate sentence if the case is summarily tried, the Court should not try the case summarily but follow the ordinary procedure.—4 L. B. 335 therefore the procedure under S. 260 Cr. P. C. is inapplicable. [6 S. 165 27 C. 131. 6 B. R. 253] under S. 260, order may be

3. " " "

(2) Cases which should not be tried summarily.

4. Cases of a complicated nature.—A Magistrate exercises his discretion wrongly where he adopts the summary procedure for the trial of a case, in which, from the nature of the dispute is apparent and title are Court will exercise discretion, [21 Cr. 374 (Pat). Rat 778. Rat 784 25 W. R. 65. 27 C. 320; 1 C. N. 311 13 Cr. 71 (S). 6 S. 120 14 N. 190 See O. P. Cr. Cr. Pt. I No 20 Pt. II, No 23] Where a good deal of correspondence has to be gone into and the case is by no means of a simple character, it is not advisable to try the case summarily [35 A. 173] A longitudinal claim of right deprives a Magistrate of jurisdiction to try the case summarily [10 C. 404 25 W. R. 65 6 S. 120]

—Summary

[184 P. L.

1911] Police constables charged under S. 29 of the Police Act (V of 1861) should not be tried summarily [ibid: 1 Apr. 21] A charge under S. 202 I. P. O. against a Vaidarand Kulkarni should not be tried summarily, as a conviction may entail further serious consequences [Rat 778. Rat 784] So where a police officer of many years standing was charged with criminal intimidation and was tried summarily and convicted, held, that the Magistrate did not exercise a sound discretion in trying the case summarily and depriving the accused of the privilege of an appeal.

G M 396

6. Trials likely to last a long time.—Where a case under S. 370 was tried under Ch. XXII, and the proceedings lasted from the 20th March to the 12th June, in the course of which a local inquiry had also to be held, and the property in question was moreover valued at over Rs. 50, held that the case was not one in which a summary trial should have been held.—(91) A. N. 143] In a case where the proceedings of the Magistrate covered more than 120 pages and occupied seven days, it was held that the application of summary procedure amounted to an abuse of the law [25 W. R. 63]
7. Note per contra.—Where the case is of a summary nature, the trial is summary, notwithstanding the length and carefulness of the record and decision [24 W. R. 66] Where a Magistrate is empowered by law to try a case summarily the fact that the trial is a protracted one does in no way affect his jurisdiction [(92) A. N. 30]
8. Deaf and Dumb accused.—Where the accused is a deaf and dumb man, it is inconvenient to try him summarily, even if the offence is summarily triable. Attempt should be made to trace his friends and relatives if any, who are accustomed to communicate with him, and enquiries should be made into his antecedents and ordinary mode of life.—S. B. R. 819
9. When a summary trial through legal is inexpedient.—There are many cases in which though the summary procedure is strictly legal, it is inappropriate and should not therefore be employed. Such are:
 - (a) cases which are prima facie likely in the event of a conviction, to call for more severe punishment than that can be awarded in a summary trial; as cases of cattle theft [ep. 6 S. 101] and cases against notoriously convicted offenders [See 1 Bur. S. 356. 2 Weir 324]
 - (b) Cases which are prima facie likely to be long and complicated. [See Notes Nos 4 and 6 above]
 - (c) Cases arising out of disputes as to title [See Note No 1 above]
 - (d) Cases in which for any particular reason it is desirable that there should be a full record of the evidence for future reference, as cases in which Government servants of any rank are concerned or accused persons. [See 181 P. L. 1911]—C. P. Cr. Cu. Pt. II No 23.

(3) Miscellaneous.

10. Offences involving forfeiture.—Where fine is prescribed as a punishment for an offence and confiscation of the accused's property follows as a consequence, the fact that such confiscation follows, cannot alter the nature of the case as regards the mode of trial that may be adopted, (e.g.) an offence under S 49 of Act XXI of 1876 3 C 366 (E.B.) [21 W R 31 and 43 overruled]

11. Presidency Magistrate.—The provisions of Chapter XXII does not apply to trials before Presidency Magistrates Rat 539.

[Note—An exception to the rule is an offence under the Cotton Duties Act XII of 1896]

12. Magistrates acting under S. 36 Cr.P.C.—A Magistrate of a District exercising his powers under S 36 Cr P C cannot try an accused person summarily.—[25 P R 1879]

12. A. Cases instituted otherwise than on complaints.—Where there is no complaint and the Magistrate acts on his own impulse, he commits a serious blunder if he tries the case summarily [25 W R 69]

13. Cases in which the Magistrate has per- the passing of a non-appealable sentence in such a case is illegal [3 C N cccxxvi See 52 P. L 1900] The brevity permitted in a summary trial does not mean that there should be no trial at all or that an accused can be heavily fined at a Magistrate's discretion on his personal knowledge, notwithstanding that the law gives the accused the right of demanding that the case should be tried by another Court [31 P L 1905]

14. Powers under the chapter must be cautiously exercised.—"The responsibility thrown on Magistrates entrusted with summary powers, is very great and the responsibility of those who have to entrust them with such powers is equally great. Magistrates who are sufficiently alive to the responsibility entrusted to them will take care that the procedure and the record is not made more summary than the law has laid down"—Per Kuer J in 21 V 189 (192)

II. MAGISTRATE CANNOT USURP JURISDICTION.

15. Offences must be strictly within the terms of chapter XXII.—The procedure under Chap XXII Cr P C can be followed only when the charge brought against the accused is plainly and directly one of those specified in S 260 G Bur T 137 22 W R 29 22 W R 65 29 C 409

16. Magistrate cannot split up the offence.—A Magistrate is not authorised to split up an offence so as to give himself jurisdiction over the parts which he would not have over the whole thereby depriving the accused of his right to appeal. For example he cannot overlook the portion of the evidence shewing that the accused came armed with sword etc and treat the offence which is really one under S 144 I P C as an offence under S I P C [4 G 18 29 C 409 27 C 983 1 C L 434 14 N 199, See 21 W R 69 2 C L 374 2 W R 29, Rat 988 Comp 5 C N 372 13 B 502]

17. Note.—The rule that the fact whether a case is triable summarily or not, must be determined by the complaint [25 W R 19 3 C L 374 3 Shome 17] does not seem to be an invariable rule. When a complaint comprises charges not triable summarily but the Magistrate ascertains that the facts that have taken place discloses only an offence triable summarily he may proceed under Ch XXII [See 23 W R 19 6 N P 254 10 A 55 (87) A N 103 16 C 715 22 M 459] Where the so called aggravating circumstances are mere exaggerations the mere fact that the complainant charges the accused with an offence not triable summarily will not oust jurisdiction [1 B R 683 Comp 25 B 80] Where a complaint alleged an offence under S 189 I P C but from the sworn statement of the complainant it appeared that the offence was really one under S 186 I P C held that the Magistrate had jurisdiction to try the case summarily [36 C 67.]

8. Charge cannot be modified to bring the case within the terms of chapter XXII.—It is not in the power of the Magistrate, when a person is charged before him with a grave offence, to reduce the accusation of his mere will to such dimensions as will make it triable summarily. The trial must be according to the nature of the charge.—22 W R 29 24 W R 21 24 W R 48 See 22 W R 43 23 W R 33 23 W R 3

19. Composite cases—Where an accused person is charged with offences, one of which is triable summarily and the other not so triable, it is not open to the Magistrate to discard the latter charge for the purpose of enabling himself to proceed to try the case summarily [11 C 236] The fact that the Magistrate had jurisdiction over both the offences and the accused is not prejudiced by being tried only for the lesser offence, does not meet the objection that the prejudice lies in the different procedure which dispenses with the formal judgment and abridges the privilege of appeal [6 P R 1887 5 P R 1848]

20. Offences must not be arbitrarily mitigated or misdescribed.—Offences should be truly described and not mitigated merely for the purpose of introducing a different jurisdiction or a lower scale of punishment by applying a summary mode of procedure [5 P R 1888 24 W R 48 11 C 236 27 C 983 1 C L 434] So where the accused was charged with theft of a box containing Re 30 in cash and the box worth annas 8 pias 6 and the Magistrate considered the box to be of no value and struck out the 8 annas 6 pias and thereupon tried the case summarily, held that the Magistrate was not at liberty, upon his own authority and without taking evidence to throw the box entirely out of consideration [22 W R 65] Where the complaint referred to an offence under S 392 I P C but the Magistrate tried the accused summarily and convicted him of an offence under S 323 I. P. C. held that he was not competent to do so. [21 P. L. 1907; See 29 C 499 21 W. R. 89]. Similarly an offence under S 452 I. P. C. cannot be arbitrarily reduced to that under S 451 I. P. C. [6 Bor T 137] or that under S 211 I. P. C. to an offence under S 182 I. P. C. [Rat 670], or a case of grievous hurt (S 323 I. P. C.) to a case under S 321 I. P. C. [Rat 985]. In a case, in which process was issued for the offence of rioting, it was held, that a Magistrate was altogether wrong in treating it as a case under S. 143 I. P. C. and trying it summarily. [See 5 C. N. 232] where the facts showed that the accused was guilty under S. 353 I. P. C. or S. 342 I. P. C., he could not be tried summarily for an offence under S. 353 or 341 I. P. C. [23 W. R. 3]. A Magistrate cannot treat a charge of wrongful confinement under S. 342 I. P. C. as one of unlawful assembly under S. 143 I. P. C. with the object of trying the case summarily. —[21 W. R. 21; 16]

III. OFFENCES WHICH ARE AND ARE NOT TRIABLE SUMMARILY.

(1) Offences which are triable summarily.

(A) Offences under Special Acts.

21. (1) Indian Railways Act (IX of 1890).—When a person is prosecuted under S 130 read with S 126 (a) of the Railways Act, the offence is not one triable exclusively by a Court of Session and a Magistrate has jurisdiction to try it and try it summarily. IV. PROCEDURE (Ss. 262-265)

(1) General Remarks.

44. Formalities must be strictly observed.—In summary cases under Ch XXIII (—Ch. XXII) the formalities provided by that Chapter must be most strictly observed. 22 W. R. 28, 21 A 189, (82) A N 178, 15 M. 84, 1 Ag. 24.

45. How to determine if the case is triable summarily.—In determining whether a case is triable summarily, under the provisions of the Crim Proc Code, the facts stated in the petition of complaint as well as the sworn statements of the complainant must be taken into consideration.—34 C 67 Rat 988. See 24 C 100 27 C 983-24 W R 3

46. Test of a summary Case. Whether a case is triable summarily or not must be determined by the complaint not by an estimate formed by the Magistrate after evidence has been recorded and such estimate cannot retrospectively convert a mode of trial which was originally illegal.—25 W R 1907 21 W R 89 2 W R 20 2 C L 373 21 P L 1907 3 Shome 17 6 Bar T 137. Con 22 M 459

47. Note.—The Magistrate's discretion.—The mere circumstance that the complainant puts down in his petition of complaint an offence not triable summarily would not necessarily preclude a Magistrate from trying the case summarily if the charge is not seriously prosecuted.—[(87) A N 101] Where the Magistrate on examining the complainant ascertains facts which disclose only an offence triable summarily, he can act under Chapter XXII although the complaint comprises charges not triable summarily.—23 W R 19 6 N P 254 16 C 715 10 A 55. See 1 B R 653

triable, would not necessarily oust the summary jurisdiction of a Magistrate under this section. Whether a complaint affords sufficient ground for a summary trial, or requires a trial according to the ordinary procedure, must be left in a great measure to the discretion of the Magistrate, exercised with due care according to judicial methods with reference to the circumstances of each case.—Per Mahmood J in 10 A 55

49. Framing of charge.—Although in a summary trial, the Magistrate need not frame a formal charge, still he must specify the offence charged in such a way as will give sufficient notice to the accused.—[16 C N 696 (82) A N 59] The accusation must be carefully explained [1 Bar S 594]

49A. Coviction on a plea of guilty.—In a summary trial under the Cantonment Code, if the Magistrate recorded in his order. Finally, he (the accused) admits his error in not having complied with the notice and throws himself on the mercy of this court. Held, that this was equivalent to a plea of guilty and that the accused could not be heard in revision except as to the extent or legality of the sentence.—[(97) A N 204] A Magistrate is bound to accept the plea if it is an unreserved and voluntary one. He cannot refuse to accept it, acting on his opinion that it is not a genuine plea.—[8 S 213]

49B. Examination of the accused.—Sec 263 does not give the Magistrate discretion whether he will examine the accused or not. This is governed by S 312. It gives the accused the right to refuse to say anything if he chooses. But there must be examination in all warrant cases.—41 C 713; 10 C N 1111

50. The procedure and not the proceedings to be summary.—A summary trial is summary only in respect of the record of its proceedings and not in respect of the proceedings themselves which should be as complete and as carefully conducted as if they were recorded at length.—C. P. Cr Cir Pt II No 23

(2) Record of evidence.

51. Only substance need be recorded.—Magistrates are not bound to record the substance of every separate deposition but to state generally what is the substance of the witness' evidence.—25 W R 6

Note.—But the substance of the evidence should be recorded in such a way that the Court of appeal will be able to form an opinion as to whether the evidence was sufficient to support the conviction.—4 L B 334

52. How the evidence should be recorded.—In a summary trial a Magistrate made rough notes of the evidence, which he subsequently copied and placed on the record and destroyed the original notes. He also introduced into the case the facts of another case which he tried at the same time. Held that the procedure adopted by the Magistrate was illegal and the destruction of the original notes was tantamount to destroying the original record with the result that there was no legal evidence which an Appellate Court could go into.—[21 Cr 229 (Pat)] A Deputy Magistrate while riding on a pony, convicted and fined an inhabitant of a Municipal town for obstructing a public way without issuing process on making a record or even dismounting. He subsequently prepared the record from memory or from rough notes.—Held that the procedure was illegal.—[15 M 83]

53. In non-appealable cases.—In a case which is tried summarily and in which no appeal lies, it is not incumbent on the trying Magistrate to put on record sufficient evidence to justify his order.—[(705) A N 143]

54. Proof of the evidence.—In ordinary cases, the record taken down by a Magistrate is the only admissible proof of what was said, but in a summary trial, when no obligation is laid upon the Magistrate to reduce depositions to writing, they may be proved by persons who heard them made.—Rat 334

55. Failure to record substance of evidence. A Sessions Judge should not quash a conviction in a summary trial on the ground that the substance of the evidence was not embodied in the Magistrate's judgment.—1 A 650 2 P R 1874

56. Record must show that the case comes within the purview of Chap. XXII.—It must clearly appear on the face of the conviction that the case was dealt with as one of those which come within the purview of that section. If the case be one of theft it should appear what the value of the property alleged to have been stolen really was.—20 W R 17 22 W R 24

57. Failure to comply with the strict provisions of Chap. XXII.—Where the judgment in a common gaming house S 3 of Gambling Act, held that the entry though it should have been more explicit was a sufficient compliance with the law.—(50) A. N. 34

(6) Miscellaneous.

66. Omission may be remedied subsequently.—A Magistrate in case of conviction ought to enter in the register kept under S 26, a brief statement of the reason for such conviction; but an omission to do so may, under some circumstances, be remedied at a subsequent time.—6 C. L. 273

Note.—It has been held however in H. C. N. 155 that where no reasons are given, the defect can not be cured by the explanation of the Magistrate sent to the High Court in pursuance of a rule issued on him.]

67. Record must be written by the Magistrate.—When the law permits a Magistrate to try a case summarily it was provided as a safeguard for the accused that in non-appraisable cases the record and in appraisable cases the judgments should be written by the presiding officer. It contains no provision enabling him to depute that duty to the Bench clerk.—6 M. 336

68. Delay in naming defence witnesses.—In a warrant case tried summarily though a formal

Rat 763

69. Instance of fatal irregularity.—Proceedings were set aside as being illegal on the following grounds:

V. THE SENTENCE SUMMARY CASES (S. 262).

74. No limit as to fine.—S 262 Cr. P. C. lays down the limit to the sentence of imprisonment which may be awarded at a summary trial. There is nothing in Chap. XXII which limits the amount of fine which may be imposed in a summary trial.—35 A. 173
75. Sentence of imprisonment limited to three months.—It is illegal to pass a sentence of six months R. I., in a summary trial. No sentence exceeding 3 months may be passed in such trial under S 262 (3) Cr. P. C.—4 L. B. 335
76. Power of High Court.—The High Court as a court of Revision can enhance the sentence up to 2 years, i.e. the limit to which a first class or Presidency Magistrate can pass sentence.—Bom. H. C. R. 30 7-'83 (F. B.)
77. Subs. (2) applies to substantive sentence

- (1) that the record of the proceeding was not made at the time of the trial (S. 263) which the Magistrate conducted riding on a horse, but was subsequently prepared at the close of the trial from memory or from rough notes.

- (2) that the Magistrate did not record the admission of the accused at the time in the words of the accused as far as possible as required by S 247.

15 M. 83

70. Magistrate bound to hear the evidence of all the witnesses.—S 263 Cr. P. C. excuses a Magistrate trying a criminal case according to the summary procedure from recording the evidence of any of the witnesses but not from hearing the evidence of all the witnesses.

39 C. 931

71. Summary procedure laid down in Chap. XXII Cr. P. C.—is not adapted to the trial of offences to which S 75 applies

1 Bur. S. 3-6

72. Length and carefulness of the record.—Where the procedure is of a summary nature, the trial is summary, notwithstanding the length and carefulness of the record and decision.

24 W. R. 65 (2) A. N. 30

73. Adjournment in warrant cases tried summarily.—In a warrant case tried summarily the Magistrate must, under S 262 (1) Cr. P. C. follow the procedure prescribed for warrant cases, and ought to grant an adjournment, if so desired by the accused, to enable him to summon the witnesses for the defence under S 257 Cr. P. C. unless the application is made for the purposes of vexation or delay or for defeating the ends of justice.—51 B. 20 only.—The rule of S 262, limiting the period of imprisonment in summary trials, applies only to substantive sentences of imprisonment. In cases of simple imprisonment ordered as a process for the enforcement of payment of fine, the general rules of Ss 32, 33 Cr. P. C. are applicable, and the principle of S 671 P. C. is unaffected by Ch. XXII Cr. P. C.—6 A. 61

78. Solitary confinement. There is nothing in the terms of S 262 Cr. P. C. to make it illegal to impose solitary confinement as a part of the sentence in summary trial. Sec 262, does not interfere with the Court's powers under S 73 I. P. C. or S 32 (a) Cr. P. C.—6 A. 53
79. Security under S. 103 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate trying summarily is competent to require security for keeping the peace.—(8) A. N. 181

VI. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Sundry matters relating to procedure.

80. High Court's power of enhancement in summary cases.—The High Court of Revision can enhance a summary sentence to one up to 2 years, i.e. the limit to which a first class Magistrate can pass sentence.—B. H. Cr. R. 30 7-'83 (F. B.)

81. Magistrate of the Dist exercising powers under S. 34.—cannot act under Chap XXII See S 260 25 P. R 1879
82. Defective record.—If a record of a conviction at summary trial under S. 23 Cr P C (S. 24) (1894) is defective, the defect is fatal and the conviction must be quashed—6 P R 1879
83. Deaf and Dumb accused.—See I, object and Application (c)
84. Subsequent regular trial without illegal summary trial being quashed is illegal as the accused cannot be tried again.—1 Bur. T. 271
85. Setting aside a conviction in revision where no evidence has been recorded.—The High Court would set aside a conviction based on S 188 P C even if the accused were convicted in a summary trial where there is nothing on the record to show that the order was lawfully promulgated by a public servant empowered to promulgate such an order—35 A. 136
86. Appeal.—An appeal lies under S. 107 from a conviction by a Bench of Magistrates invested with second or third class powers [9 M 36] But no appeal lies where the decision is by a Bench of Magistrates consisting of an Assistant Magistrate with second class powers and two or more Honorary Magistrates, as a Bench so constituted has, under the Government orders dated 31st March 1882, the powers of a Magistrate of the first class [9 C 95]
87. Setting aside conviction for insufficiency of evidence.—It has been held in 20 W. R 13 that if the evidence which comes before a Sessions Judge in a regular appeal from a Magistrate's order is not sufficient to reasonably satisfy him that the prisoners have been rightly convicted he ought to acquit them
88. Effect of trying summarily a case not
89. Compensation in summary trials.—S 262 renders applicable in cases of summons cases triable summarily, all the provisions of S 250 Cr P C—11 M 142 See (96) U. B 3-q 51
90. European British subject.—The District Magistrate of Bangalore who is Justice of the Peace is incompetent to try and convict a European British subject of an offence under S 8 of the Municipal Byelaw No 3 after a summary trial under S 260 Cr P C as the C P Code does not apply primarily to Bangalore and the Declaration of the Governor-General in Council No 732D of 10th March 1913 conferring certain powers on Justices of the Peace does not include the power of trying offences summarily under S 260 Cr P C—21 M J. 754
91. Valuation of stolen crops how to be made.—Where a tenant charges the landlord with theft of paddy worth Rs. 88 the Magistrate cannot try the case summarily taking the share of the tenant as half the produce, as under S 71 of the Bengal Tenancy Act a tenant is entitled to the exclusive possession of the whole produce until it is divided—17 Cr. 473 (Pat)
- (2) Jurisdiction of Magistrate.
92. Bench of Magistrates.—In Madras any Bench of Magistrates exercising 1st or 2nd class powers are empowered to exercise summary power—Port S. G. Gaz 1891 Pt 1 p 279
- 92A. Magistrates first class,
- (1) In Madras—all Subdivisional Magistrates of the first class have been invested with powers under this Chapter—Port St. G. G. 1874 p 1134
- (2) In United Provinces.—All Magistrates of the first class who are or have been officiating as Joint Magistrates and also all Assistant Commissioners of the first class—Sec. Gaz. 1888, p 97.
93. Proceedings of a Magistrate not empowered.—If any Magistrate not being empowered by law in that behalf, tries a case summarily, his proceedings shall be void—S. 530 cl (4) infra
- (3) Offences which a Bench of Magistrates may try (S. 261).
94. (1) A Bench of Magistrates cannot try any offence, except those mentioned in S 260 and S 261—21 W R 12; 9 C 106.
- 94A. (2) Conservancy clauses of Police Acts.—Offences under S. 48 of the Madras Police Act (XXIV of 1859) are within the cognizance of Bench Magistrates [13 M 142] See also, the General Police Act (V of 1861) S 34 and S 61 of the Bombay Police Act (IV of 1890)
- (4) Other matters.
95. Power of Local Government.—A second class Bench tried a case under S. 436 I P C which was transferred to them by the District Magistrate regularly and acquitted the accused, held, that the proceedings of the Bench were not void under rule 4 of the Local Government Rules made under Ss 15 and 16 Cr. P. C and the District Magistrate's order for retrial was bad.—[10] U. B. 1-q 70
96. Nature of retrial under S. 260 Sub. (2)—The rehearing must be de novo, as all proceedings taken before are void under S 530 (4)—See 23 W R 3
97. Clauses (b) to (k) not controlled by cl. (a).—Clauses (b) to (k) of S. 260 Cr. P. C being precisely expressed are not to be governed by cl (1) but may be given their full effect—Rat 600
98. Inspection of Registers by District Magistrates.—District Magistrates should satisfy themselves from time to time that the law regarding summary trials is properly observed and

Magistrate is competent to hold summary trial, are void [27 C. 403 21 P. L. 1907] especially that Magistrates do not exceed their jurisdiction—a duty which may most conveniently be performed by an occasional and not infrequent examination of the registers of summary trials.—Wilkins 113

99. Record not to be mutilated.—In appealable cases, a Magistrate should not make the record required by this section as an entry in the register prescribed by S. 263, and then on the Appellate Court calling for the record of the trial, cut out and send up the portion of the register containing this entry. The practice of mutilating official registers is open to the gravest objection, and is strictly prohibited.—Wilkins 113

CHAPTER XXIII

OF TRIALS BEFORE HIGH COURT AND COURTS OF SESSION

1. Proclamation

266 In this Chapter, except in sections 276 and 307, and in Chapter XVIII, the expression “High Court” means a High Court of Judicature established * * * under the Indian High Court Acts, 1861 [or the Government of India Act, 1915] and includes “High Court” defined * * * the [Chief Court of Lower Burma] and such other Courts as the Governor-General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India, declare to be High Courts for the purposes of this Chapter Proposed amendments to the section. In section 266 of the said Code, after the words “for the purposes of this Chapter” there is to be added “Chapter XVIII” shall be added.

Note.—For definition of “High Court.”—See S. 4 (j) and the notes under that clause

267. All trials under this Chapter before a High Court shall be by jury and, notwithstanding anything herein contained, in all criminal cases transferred to a High Court under this Code or under the Letters Patent of any High Court established under the Indian High Court Act, 1861 [or the Government of India Act, 1915] the trial may if the High Court so directs, be by jury

Notes.

- Note the provision in S. 528 (3) infra—“When the High Court withdraws for trial before itself any case from any Court other than the Court of a Presidency Magistrate it shall except as provided in S. 267, observe in such trial the same procedure which the Court would have observed, if the case had not been so withdrawn. Therefore unless the High Court otherwise directs, a case transferred to it shall be tried with the aid of assessors, if that is the mode of the trial in the Court from which the case has been transferred.

- As to transfer.—See also S. 499 (2) Cr. P. C. relating to European British subjects.
- Under the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act of XIV of 1908.—All person sent for trial to the High Court under this Act shall be tried by a Special Bench of the Court composed of three Judges and no trial before the special Bench shall be by jury.—See S. 11

Trial before Courts of Session to be by jury or with assessors

268. All trials before a Court of Session shall be either by jury or with the aid of assessors

Notes.

- By Jury.—If a notification is made by the Local Government under S. 269(1) proclaiming a particular Sessions Division as a “Jury District”

- The ordinary rule. Under this section, in the absence of any notification under S. 269, a trial in a Court of Session must be with the aid of assessors.—I.S.P.R. 1888.

3. When a trial by Jury or with the aid of assessors is said to begin.—In a Court of Sessions the trial by jury or "with the aid of assessors" does not commence with the reading of the charge, as the jury or assessors are chosen under S. 272 only if the accused has refused to or does not plead to the charge or claims to be tried.—15 B. 511
4. Trial with the aid of one assessor.—Where a trial before the Court of Sessions begins and ends with one assessor only, it is not a legal trial and the whole proceedings are vitiated by the error.—[25 B. 691 15 B. 511] Where one of the two assessors was found after the Public Prosecutor had closed his case, to be so deaf as to be incapable of understanding the proceedings held that the proceedings were null and void.—[21 A. 106] But where the trial was commenced with the aid of two assessors but one of them was absent owing to the illness of his mother and subsequently attended the Court for some days only after inter v., after performing the daily obsequies rendered necessary by her death, evidence in his absence being shown to and read by him, held that the irregularity was cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C. [24 M. 523 C. 113 A. 337 6 C. N. 715]
5. No difference in procedure.—The law makes no distinction as to the procedure at the trial between a trial by a jury and one with the aid of assessors except as to the summing up in the case of the former and the manner in which the verdict in the former and the opinion of the assessor in the latter are respectively taken. It is at this latter stage that there is a marking of ways and if the accused who is tried does not intervene at that crucial point and get the procedure applicable to trials with the aid of assessors enforced, he can not be heard to complain.—23 B. 421
6. Difference between a trial by jury and a trial with the aid of assessors.—In a trial by jury, the jury is the real tribunal and is aided by the Judge and in certain matters directed by the Judge, whereas in a trial with the aid of assessors, the Judge is the sole tribunal aided by each of two assessors. Though assessors do not form members of the Court, yet it is mandatory that a trial with the aid of assessors should commence with at least two assessors and at least one assessor must attend the trial throughout and give his opinion. The Jury form a tribunal or body with a foreman and the verdict is the verdict of the body and when there is no unanimity among the members of the body, the opinion of the majority prevails as the verdict of the body. But in the case of a trial with the aid of assessors the assessors do not form a body, and each acts and expresses his opinion individually and the Judge is to invite the opinion of each separately and record it. The Judge is the sole Judge of law and fact, and the responsibility of the decision rests solely with him, though in the case he is expected to take into consideration the opinion of each assessor. Per Lushington J. in 24 M. 523 at p. 526. As to the position of the Judge in jury trials, see 27 C. 255; and in trials with the aid of assessors.—14 B. R. 710.

7. Effect of trial by jury of a case not so triable.—No appeal lies on matters of fact where an accused person who ought to have been tried with the aid of assessors is tried by a jury.—25 B. 650 (F. B.)
8. Effect of recording evidence in the absence of assessors.—In a trial of murder, the Sessions Judge, relying on a statement made by the deceased convicted the accused, but there was evidence to show that the statement was not recorded until after the assessors had been discharged, held, the evidence so taken was recorded contra non iudice, i. e. before a tribunal which had no authority to record it, and conviction based upon such evidence must be reversed.—15 A. 135.

269. (1) The Local Government may with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by order in the official Gazette, direct that the trial of all offences, or of any particular class of offences, before any Court of Session shall be by jury in any district, and may, with the like sanction, revoke or alter such order.

(2) The Local Government, by like order, may also declare that in the case of any district in which the trial of any offence is to be by jury, the trial of such offences shall, if the Judge, on application made to him or of his own motion so directs, be by jurors summoned from a special jury list, and may revoke or alter such order.

(3) When the accused is charged at the same trial with several offences of which some are and some are not triable by jury, he shall be tried by jury for such of such of those offences as are triable by jury, and by the Court of Session, with the aid of the jurors as assessors, for such of them as are not triable by jury.

Notes.

1. Power of Indian Legislature to restrict the right of trial by jury.—The right to trial by jury can be taken away by the Code of Criminal Procedure. Such a provision cannot be said to be ultra vires, as contravening the terms of the proviso to S 22 of the Indian Councils Act (24 and 25 Vict. C 67)—17 C 467 See Amir Khan, 6 R L 302 and 379

The words "class of offences" referred to in S 269 are not restricted to the classification recognised by the Legislature, such as is found in the Penal Code (i.e. offences against the state, against the person) or in the Criminal Procedure Code (i.e. bailable offences, cognizable offences). Offences may also be classified according to the person who commits them or according to the person or property against whom or which the offences are committed or in regard to the particular occasion in connection with which they are committed. Thus, the fact of offences having been committed by Hindus or Muslims, Criminal tribes or having been committed against women or public property, would afford reasonable ground for classification. The notification by Government dated 30th August 1894 by which the Government revoking their previous orders providing for trial by Jury of certain class offences, directed the trial of persons concerned in the "anti shaner riots and disturbances in Malabar and Madras" (in 1894) should be tried with the aid of assessors and not by Jury. It is, that the offence connected with the outbreak was rightly treated as a class of offences and that it was competent to the Local Government, with the consent of the Governor General in Council, to revoke the previous notification so far as it related to that class—23 M 642

[Note.—In this case the offences tried were offences under Ss 145, 454, 505 and 323 I P C]

Scope of the words "by Jury in any District, when so ordered by Notification duly issued under S 269" in S 526 Cr. P. C.—The words "by Jury in any District when so ordered by Notification duly issued under S 269 Cr. P. C" mean that the trial of the offences shall be by Jury in any District, and not that the trial shall be by Jury of offences "committed in any District." There is therefore nothing to prevent the transfer of a Sessions Case under S 526 (1) from a jury to a non jury District

10 S 54 See S C J 59 (F. B.) [Per Woolcock and Gore J J]

Offence under S. 396 P. C. not triable by Jury in Oudh.—An offence under S 396 of the Penal Code is not one of the offences made triable by a Jury under the Government order which is embodied in paragraph 49 of the Oudh Criminal Digest—22 O. C 130

5. As to notes on S. 269 subs. (3)—See Notes under Ss 297-304 infra

11. Assam—See Ass Gaz 1903 Pt II p 170, for Assam Valley Sessions Court al before Court of Session to be conducted by Public Prosecutor

270. In every trial before a Court of Session the prosecution shall be conducted by a Public Prosecutor

Notes.

1. The section is directory.—This section is merely directory. The absence of a Public Prosecutor in a sessions trial or a defect in his appointment is at most an irregularity capable of being cured under S 537 by the final order unless it occasions a failure of justice—35 P R 1887

2. Analogous Law.—In England it has been held that in a criminal prosecution on indictment, the prosecutor has no right to address the jury or to conduct the prosecution R. v. Burt 2 B & Ald. 609 R. v. Gurney 11 C & C 414

3. Police officer as Public prosecutor.—For strong remarks against the objectionable practice of permitting police officers to conduct prosecution in Sessions Courts—See 13 W R 15.

4. Private pleaders engaged by party.—The Public Prosecutor may avail himself of the services of counsel engaged by the private complainant and in doing so he does not deprive himself of the right of general management. Where the assistance of Counsel has once been accepted, it is not excluded at the stage of the trial, but extends also to the summing up and the reply.—See 11 B. II. 102. See S. 493 infra.
5. Advocate of the High Court.—An advocate of the High Court may appear on behalf of the prosecution without being specially empowered by the Magistrate of the District for that purpose.—21 W. R. 11. But see below.

6. Counsel holding "watching brief."—Counsel instructed by a private person can watch the case on behalf of his client, but cannot conduct a prosecution before the Sessions Court without being specially empowered by the District Magistrate.—O. S. 31.

B—Commencement of Proceedings.

271. (1) When the Court is ready to commence the trial, the accused shall appear or be brought before it, and the charge shall be read out in Court and explained to him, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried.

Plea of guilt (2) If the accused pleads guilty, the plea shall be recorded, and he may be convicted thereon.

Notes.

(1) General rules as to the plea.

1. Duty of Court to see charge is carefully explained to the accused.—The charge should be read and so explained to the accused that the Court is sure that he has understood the nature of the charge.

that the accused fully understand what it is that he is admitting and pleading guilty to. [2 Weir 336, 9 M. 61, 3 B. R. 489]. It is not sufficient merely to read out the charge to the accused. It must be explained to him [9 M. 61. See 6 B. R. 575].

2. The record must show that the charge was explained to the accused.—Where an the plea as creating a bar to an appeal. [(1930) L. B. 328]. The record must contain the usual entry that the charge was read over as well as explained to the accused. An absence of the record, however will not invalidate the trial if the judgment makes a reference to those facts. [M. II. C. Ref. Tr. 17 of 1966].

3. What is meant by a plea of guilty.—Only the admission of an act or acts constituting an offence can be deemed as a plea of guilty. [1 C. P. 25] where an accused pleads guilty but goes on to say that he did not commit the offence with which he is charged, the plea is really one of not guilty. [11 W. R. 53]

4. Accused must state his own plea.—The accused must state his own plea or be asked to do so by his own or pleader. The plea is not to be entered upon to be pleaded on behalf of his client 'guilty' or 'not guilty'.

and it is improper for a Magistrate to act on such plea.—Per Ditty J. [6 B. R. 861].

5. Admission by pleader.—Admission made by a prisoner Yakkil cannot be used against a prisoner [17 W. R. 49]. The admissions made by a pleader who is appointed by the Court to help the accused in his defence, are not binding on him. [2 B. R. 751]

6. The plea of "not guilty."—See 271 and 272 contain all that is necessary as to pleading and there is no necessity to supplement their contents by a reference to any other system of procedure. The plea of 'not guilty' is not one recognised by the Criminal Procedure Code. It is not open to the accused in answer to an indictment, to make any answer except 'guilty' or 'a claim to be tried'.—Per Stephen J. in 11 C. 1072

7. The plea may be recorded in the language in which it is interpreted.—The Magistrate need not record statement of an accused in the words of the very language in which it is made, when it is a foreign language. The record should be in the language in which it is conveyed to the Court by the interpreter.—5 C. 528

8. Effect of failure to record the plea.—If the accused pleads guilty on a charge, the plea should be recorded. Where no such plea appears on the record, the conviction is bad, and must be set aside and a new trial ordered on the charge.—5 M. T. 216

(2) When plea of guilty should not be accepted.

9. (1) Long and rambling statement.—In cases where an accused person when called upon to plead to a charge before a Court of Session, instead of pleading guilty, makes a long and rambling statement more or less admitting guilt, it would be much safer if the Judge recorded a formal plea of "not guilty" and proceeded to try the case in the ordinary way, recording the evidence.—(58) A N 51

10. (2) When the offence was not explained to the accused.—The plea of guilty of an accused person can not be accepted, when it is clear that the offence was not correctly stated to him.—14 Bar R 261

11. (3) Qualified plea.—Where a prisoner pleads guilty but at the same time informs the Judge that he committed the homicide because he was subject to epileptic fits, the plea cannot be treated as a plea of guilty.—Rat 698

12. (4) Offence committed when the accused was 'not in his right mind.'—Where a prisoner admitted before the Court of Session that he killed his wife but at the end of his confession said that he was not in his right mind at the time, held that the plea in effect was one of 'not guilty' and that the trial should not have proceeded without the aid of assessors
5 N P 110

13. (7) When the prisoner is of "weak intellect."—If the Judge is of opinion that the prisoner "without being actually insane so as not to be aware of what he was doing, appears to be decidedly a man of weak intellect," he ought not to accept his plea of guilty.—See 51 P R 1905

14. (6) Plea of guilty accompanied by a plea self-defence.—Where a prisoner admits that he killed the deceased but adds that he did so in a struggle arising from the deceased having first attacked him, held, that his plea could not be treated as a plea of guilty.—5 C. 826

15. (7) That the false statement was made, to injure another is essential ingredient of an offence under S 211 I P C.—7 C. 96.

16. (6) Plea accompanied by allegation of "grave and sudden provocation."—Where an accused person admitted, in answer to a charge of murder, that he had killed his deceased wife,

Note.—Where there is a clear prima facie case of murder, a Sessions Judge cannot legally without trying the case, accept a statement made by the accused as sufficient to establish his plea of guilty of the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, on the ground of grave and sudden provocation and convict him accordingly for such offence on his own plea.—Rat 411

17. (9) Bare statements.—A bare admission by an accused person that he had killed the deceased would not, unless it is ascertained by questions why he intended to kill and in what circumstances he killed, cannot be taken as a plea of guilty.—9 M GI 8 B R 210

Note.—In 5 B R. 210—The accused merely pleaded that he hit the deceased on the head to take away his ornaments without saying that he had committed 'murder'

18. The general rule as to when a plea should or should not be accepted.—A plea of guilty can be accepted only when it is unconditional and absolute. Where the prisoner admitted having struck his wife on the neck with a dao but denied having any intention of killing her held that if a Court were to convict a man exclusively on his own admission, it was bound to take the admission as a whole and was not entitled to pick out and act only on those parts which told against him [23 W R 23 14 H. 564] Similarly, where the accused while admitting having presented a false petition of complaint, said "I did so under the influence of certain persons mentioned" held that the plea was not one of guilty [(66) A N 66] Where the accused admitted having accompanied the decoits for a short distance but said that he had returned back almost immediately and had nothing to do with the decoity which afterwards took place and did not know that such an offence was in contemplation, held, that the statement did not amount to a plea of guilty [7 W R 39]

19. Plea of guilty must cover each necessary constituent element of the offence.—Unless the accused distinctly admits each and every fact necessary to constitute the offence and unless the Judge himself finds on the admission made that the offence charged is legally established he should take evidence and come to decision thereon.—2 Weir 336

20. Effect of partial plea of guilty.—Where a person is charged with having intentionally given false evidence for having contradicted in three points in the Court of Sessions, the evidence which he had given before the Magistrate, and these have been made into six heads of charges, the two contradictory statements in each point being charged as separate instances of giving false evidence, and the accused pleaded guilty to one of the alternative charges, and not guilty as to the other, the accused may be convicted on a plea of guilty, and the verdict of the jury is superfluous. But it does not follow that a verdict of not guilty is to be recorded in the other alternative matter of charge. It might have been that both statements were false. Looking to the special nature of charges, the prisoner ought not to be allowed to elect which statement he shall admit to be false.—The fact should be tried as it is optional with the Court to do—8 W R 6 (Cr. Letters)

21. Accused not required to be plead alternatively.—An accused person should never be called upon to plead in the alternative but separately to each of the heads of a charge.—Rat 327.

22. The general rule in murder cases.—It is not in accordance with the usual practice to accept a plea of guilty in a case in which the natural sequence would be a sentence of death.—5 B R 240 [Per Jenkins C J] 19 B R 376. 51 P R 1905.

[Note.—Where it is doubtful whether the person, charged with murder pleading guilty to that charge has understood the meaning and effect of such plea, the Judge should proceed with the trial and take evidence.—19 A 119

23. Confessional statement at the close of a trial.—A confessional statement made at the close of the trial is not a plea of guilty upon which the Sessions Judge can record a finding without taking the verdict of the Jury.—2 Weir 371-7 B R 731.

24. Plea of guilty applies only to the specific charge to which it is pleaded.—Where a person charged with murder pleaded guilty, and the Judge convicted him of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, held that the Judge was not right in convicting the accused of an offence other than the specific offence to which he had pleaded [2 Weir 375 3 R. 59] Where the accused committed for trial of the offence of culpable homicide, pleaded guilty, but the Sessions Judge instead of convicting him on such plea, convicted him of grievous hurt on the evidence recorded by the committing Magistrate, held that the conviction was illegal. [Rat 413]

25. Where there is variance between the offence charged and the offence admitted.—The accused was tried on a charge of murder after having admitted in her examination that she had committed the offence of concealment of the child's birth. The offence of murder was not proved and the Court thereupon convicted her of the offence admitted. Held, that such conviction was illegal, without framing a charge of concealment of birth and trying the accused on that charge.—Rat 386 See Rat 410.

(3) Practice and Procedure.

26. Court not bound to accept plea of guilty—Sec 271 thought it directs that the plea shall be recorded does not direct that the accused shall be convicted thereon, but only that he may be so convicted, that is to say, it is left to the discretion of the presiding Judge in each particular case to determine whether in spite of the plea, it is or it is not desirable to enter upon the evidence.—19 B R 356

27. Procedure following upon a plea of guilty.—“The trial of an accused person does not necessarily come to an end as soon as he offers a plea of guilty. The accused on having pleaded guilty, should either be convicted on the plea of guilty and removed from the dock in which case he could be called as a witness against the other accused or the Judge should put it on record that he decides to put the accused on his trial in spite of his plea of guilty. He has the discretion to decide under S 271 sub 2, and that discretion ought to be exercised, as soon as the plea is offered and recorded. He is bound to read and explain the charge to the accused and he ought to satisfy himself by interrogation of the accused if necessary, that he fully understands the responsibility which he assumes by making a plea of guilty. Having done so, the Judge is then in a position to exercise properly the discretion which the law allows and to put upon record the reasons which guide his discretion in either direction. The course which it is intended to pursue should not be left in doubt.” Per Lord-ny J C and Kananga J in J C. in 20 O. C. 136 See 23 M. 151-2 Weir 375

28. Acceptance of plea by one of several accused should not be deferred.—Where an accused person pleads guilty, the Court should record the confession and forthwith convict him therein. If there are other persons being tried with him for the same offence, the Court should not postpone his conviction merely for the purpose of allowing the statements he may have made to be considered against the co-accused. It is against the spirit of law to postpone the conviction so that the person who has pleaded guilty may technically be said to be tried jointly for the same offence.—

30 A 510-23 A. 57 17 A 521-19 B 193 15 P. R 1911

[Note.—In 13 C. N. 552 it has been held that it is not always inc to accept the accused from t court reason, due to try him jointly with other accused and in that case his confession may be taken into consideration against the others.

“weakest kind.”—Per Gaithe C J. 4 C. 453 (F. B.) 2 C N 749 5 B 65 10 B 319 15 B 66 19 B 195- Rat 436 7 A 160. 17 A. 521; 22 A 415 10 M J. 147 (F. B.) 7 M 102; 22 M. 491 11 P R 1900 But see 10 O C. 328 29 A. 434

29. Procedure on refusing to accept the

in order to determine whether the prisoner has committed the offence to which he has pleaded guilty or any other offence with which he is charged.—[4 B L (appx) 101]

30. Practice where the plea is not accepted.—Where the accused made a statement “admitting the fact but alleging provocation” and the Judge decided that the plea did not amount to a plea of guilty is not accepted, plea of “not guilty” ought to be entered before the trial is proceeded with. [9 C J 55] As a matter of practice in Sessions trials, especially in murder cases, many Judges prefer not to act on the plea of guilty, but proceed that the trial does not terminate with the plea of guilty.—[23 M 151]

31. Procedure on plea being accepted.—If the Court decides to convict the accused on his plea

A plea of guilty, a trial may be continued where it is necessary to ascertain the actual guilt taken by the accused in order to assess the punishment—[21 A. 53]

32. Procedure when the accused has once claimed to be tried.—A confessional statement at the close of the trial is not a plea of guilty, upon which the Sessions Judge can record a finding without taking the verdict of the jury. After the prisoner has claimed to be tried, all the evidence whether the statements of the witnesses or a mission of the prisoner, should be laid before the jury.—2 Weir 334
33. Plea of not guilty qualified by admissions of guilt.—An accused person may admit some or even all of the facts alleged by the prosecution but if he pleads not guilty, the court trying him is bound to proceed according to law by examining the witnesses and giving an opportunity to the accused to cross examine the prosecution witnesses and adduce his own evidence.—9 B R 1316
34. Conviction solely on confession before committing Magistrate is bad.—Where an accused person does not plead guilty to a charge, the Sessions Judge will not be justified in convicting the accused solely on a confession made before the committing Magistrate—[2 N. P. 479] seem to be, whether in fact the trial proceeded as against the accused who had pleaded guilty as if he had done so, i.e. whether, for instance, he cross-examined or was given an opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses, whether he was examined himself, and in a case where there are assessors, whether their opinion was taken as to his guilt—(13) U. 38. Accused's denial of his plea of guilty.—A Magistrate recorded that the accused pleaded guilty. In an application for revision to the High Court the accused tendered in evidence his own affidavit setting forth that he did not plead guilty. Held, that the affidavit was not admissible. If there was any mistake about the matter, it should be the Vakil and not the client who ought to make the affidavit.

19 M. 209

272. If the accused refuses to or does not, plead, or if he claims to be tried, the Court shall proceed to choose jurors or assessors as hereinafter directed and Refusal to plead or claim to be tried to try the case.

Provided that, subject to the right of objection hereinafter mentioned, the same jury may try or the same assessores may aid in the trial of, as many accused persons successively as the Court thinks fit

Notes.

he is obstinately mute or dumb ex testatione Dei. If he is found to be obstinately mute, the plea of "not guilty" should be recorded, and the trial should proceed. If he is found to be dumb, ex testatione Dei an enquiry should be made as to whether he is sane or insane or incapable of being tried. If found sane, a plea of "not guilty" shall be recorded, and the trial should proceed but if found to be insane, the procedure laid down in Chapter XXXIV infra should be followed—Rat 19

2. When the trial begins.—A trial with the aid of assessors does not begin with the reading of the charge, as the assessors are only chosen under

S. 272 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, if the accused has refused to plead, or does not plead to the charge or claims to be tried—15 B. 514 23 B. 684 6 B. R. 671 See 12 M. 220 (F. B.)

3. Procedure when the accused refuses to plead.—If the accused refuses to plead or claims to be tried, the Court should proceed to try the case, where the trial is not by jury, it must be conducted with the aid of two or more assessors—2 B. L. 23 (F. B.).
4. Examination of the accused.—The accused person shall not be examined by the Sessions Judge immediately after he has been called upon to plead, if his plea be "not guilty"—3 Ag. 85.
5. If the accused pleads not guilty and public prosecutor offers no evidence.—In a case tried with assessors, if the prisoner pleads not guilty and if the public prosecutor is not able to offer evidence in support of the charge, the Judge should instruct the assessors that they are bound to find the prisoner not guilty.—[1 M. II (1897) xxxv] Where there is nothing which can, if believed, amount to proof, the case should not be put to the jury at all, as the verdict of guilty cannot under such circumstances be sustained.—[16 W. R. 19]

6. Meaning of "the same jury may try as many cases etc."—"By this we understand that one trial is to follow the other, i.e., that, on the conclusion of one trial, the same jury may proceed to try the accused in the next case. The law does not contemplate that two trials shall be conducted piece-meal in such a manner, that at their conclusion, the jury shall be called upon to decide at one and the same time upon two distinct classes of evidence which, though they have points in common, require careful discrimination as prisoners that the sole issues on which they are to be tried, and the evidence bearing upon those issues, should be laid before the jury, and that the minds of the jury should not be encumbered by the consideration of foreign and irrelevant matter"—Prinsep J. in 6 C. 96 (99)

273. (1) In trials before the High Court, when it appears to the High Court, at any time before the commencement of the trial of the person charged, that any charge or any portion thereof is clearly unsustainable, the Judge may make on the charge an entry to that effect.

(2) Such entry shall have the effect of staying proceedings upon the charge or portion of the charge, as the case may be.

Notes.

1. Applications under the section.—(=S 14 of Act V of 1875) should be disposed of by the High Court in its original Criminal jurisdiction.—[9 C. 937]

2. Object of the section.—Under S. 273 of the Code, in trials before the High Court, when it appears to the Court at any time before the commencement of the trial, that any charge or any portion thereof is clearly unsustainable, the,

Judge may make on the charge an entry to that effect. Such an entry has the effect of staying the proceedings upon the charge or portion of the charge as the case may be.—21 C. 97.

[Note.—In this case, the immoral act of sexual intercourse, at an interview, with a young prostitute procured for the purpose, was found not to be contemplated by S 372 I. P. C., and the charge was dismissed under this section]

C.—Choosing a Jury.

274. (1) In trials before the High Court the jury shall consist of nine persons.

(2) In trials by jury before the Court of Session the jury shall consist of such uneven number, not being less than three or more than nine, as the Local Government, by order applicable to any particular district or to any particular class of offences in that district, may direct.

Notes.

1. Effect of exceeding the number filled by the Local Government.—Where the Local Government has issued a notification that in trials by jury, the jury should consist of five persons, a District Magistrate, trying a person with a jury consisting of seven persons, under an old notification, acts improperly and the trial is a nullity.—26 A. 221.

2. Number of Jury as fixed by Local Government in different Provinces.—In Bengal (where the accused is not a European) sic. In the United Provinces. sic. In

Madras sic. in the Punjab: nine (Districts of Lahore, Delhi, Rawal Pindi and Peshawar). sic. (Districts of Amballa, Multan and Sialkot) and three (other Districts); in Bombay sic in the Poona Court of Session (of offences under Chapters VIII, IX, XII, XVII, XVIII I. P. C.) But in Bombay sic (for cases in which a European, not being a European British subject or an American, is the accused)

3. For Rules in Bengal for the trial of Europeans and Americans.—See Ben R. and O.

275. In a trial by jury before the Court of Session of a person not being an European or an American, a majority of the jury shall, if he so desires, consist of persons who are neither Europeans nor Americans.

Notes.

1. Native Christian is not entitled to Christian Jury.—A Judge is not bound to try a Native

Christian with the aid of a Christian Jury.—[1 W. R. 2] As to trial of Foreign Subjects [See 3 W. R. 11]

2. Hindu prisoner at the High Court.—A prisoner not being a European British subject and not being charged jointly with a European British subject is not entitled, under the provisions of the High Courts Criminal Procedure, to be tried by a jury the majority of which shall not be Europeans or Americans or both; this right only belongs to a European British subject.—1 B. 232.

276. The jurors shall be chosen by lot from the persons summoned to act as such in such manner as the High Court may from time to time by rule direct.

Jurors to be chosen by lot

Provided that—first, pending the issue under this section of rules for any Court, the practice now prevailing in such Court in respect to the choosing of jurors shall be followed, secondly, in case of a deficiency of persons summoned, the number of jurors required may, with the leave of the Court, be chosen from such other persons as may be present.

thirdly, in the presidency-towns—

(a) if the accused person is charged with having committed an offence punishable with death, or

(b) if in any other case a Judge of the High Court so directs, the jurors shall be chosen from the special jury list hereinafter prescribed, and fourthly in any district for which the Local Government has declared that the trial of certain offences may be by special jury, the jurors shall in any case in which the Judge so directs, be chosen from the special jury list prescribed in section 325.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In the third proviso to section 276 of the Code, for the words "in the presidency-towns" the words "in a trial before any High Court in the town which is the usual place of sitting of such High Court" shall be substituted.

Notes.

1. Mode of selecting jury by lot in High Courts.—The nine persons who are to be chosen by lot to form the jury ought to be selected from the entire number of persons summoned to act as jurors and that this selection which is to be by lot, ought to be made from one box, and not from six boxes.—1 B. 462

2. The object of selection by lot. The Legislature has taken special precautions to render impossible any intentional selection of jurors to try a particular case. In the first place, the persons who are to be summoned to act upon the jury are drawn by lot and then again, when they

3. Jury empanelled in inconviction of this section.—The selection of jurors contrary to the provisions of S 240 (—S 276) is an irregularity but when not shown to have prejudiced the prisoners is not an objection that would justify with reference to S 283 (—337) and S 167 of the Evidence Act, an interference with the verdict of the jury.—Per Field J. in S C 739 But See 33 A 355 7 C N 188, 12 Cr 537 (0)

[Note.—Justice Field's ruling had's support in the English ruling Hill v Yates 12 East P C. 229. See also Archibald p 237]

4. Effect of a juror not summoned serving on the jury.—In England it has been held that where a person whose name is not on jury panel, and who has by mistake been summoned as a juror, has served on the jury, the jury should be discharged and a fresh jury constituted.—See R v Phillips 11 Cox C C 112 down in S 276 of crim Pro. Code is such as can not be cured by the provisions of S. 337 of that Code [33 A. 355 12 Cr. 537 (0)]

RULES FOR SELECTING JURORS BY LOT.

(I) Rules in Bengal.

1. For Courts of Session.—(i) In order to nominate jury for the trial of any prisoner or other person to be tried by jury, a Sessions Judge shall cause to be put together in one box, cards or pieces of paper containing the names of all the persons summoned to attend, except such of the said persons as shall have been excused by the Sessions Judge from serving on that day in consequence of their having served as jurors on the previous day or for any other cause. Such cards or pieces of paper shall be as nearly as may be, of equal size, and shall bear the name of one person summoned to attend. The Sessions Judge shall then, in open Court draw or cause to be drawn, out of the said box, one after another as many of the said cards or pieces of paper as may represent the number of jurors required to try the case, and if any of the jurors whose names shall be so drawn shall not appear or if any be objected to, and the objection be allowed, then such further number shall be drawn as may be necessary to complete the number of jurors required for the case.

- (ii) In cases in which not less than one half of the jury must be Europeans (S 460 and 451 read with S 7, Act III of 1884) or both Europeans and Americans (S 451 read with S 7 Act III of 1884), jurors shall be chosen as follows:

First—Not less than one half of such jury shall be chosen by lot in the manner prescribed by Rule 1 from a box containing the names of only Europeans or Americans, or Europeans and Americans, until the necessary majority in complete.

Second—To the names of jurors so chosen shall then be added the names of all the other jurors summoned to attend, and the number necessary to complete the jury shall then be chosen by lot in the manner prescribed by Rule 1.

- (iii) In cases in which not less than one half of the jury must be neither Europeans nor Americans (S 275), the jurors shall be chosen as follows:—

First—Not less than one half of such jury shall be chosen by lot, in the manner prescribed by Rule 1 from a box containing the names only of such persons as are neither Europeans nor Americans until the necessary majority is complete.

Second—To the names of jurors not so chosen shall then be added the names of all the other jurors summoned to attend and the number necessary to complete the jury shall be chosen by lot in the manner prescribed by Rule 1.

- (iv) (1) When the jurors have been legally elected, their names shall be entered on the fly-leaf prescribed for records of Sessions Trials (Cr. R & O p 220). The "Foreman" (S. 240 Cr. P. O) being specially designated as such. See Hen. R. & O

2. District Magistrate Court.—The above rules mutatis mutandis, shall apply to the selection, of jurors in cases before District Magistrates, in which the accused is a European British subject, and claims to be tried by a mixed jury [S. 451 (i) Cr. P. C.] Such jurors shall be selected from the persons summoned under the provisions of S 462 of the Code to attend for the purposes of the trial. Rule no 1 of the 25th June 1885. Willis's addenda p 90

(2) Rules in Madras.

1. As to Madras rules for selecting jury by lot, See the High Court proceedings no 1333 dated 11th April 1883
- 2.

(3) Rules in Bombay.

Rule no. 3.—A week before the commencement of the Sessions, folded papers bearing the names of the jurors in the list (prepared under rule 3) aforesaid, shall be put into a ballot-box, and as many of them as the Sessions Judge may deem necessary shall be drawn by lot in open Court. The names of such persons as have served within six months of the date of the commencement of the Sessions are to be excluded from the ballot

Rule no. 6.—At the commencement of the Sessions, the names of the jurors summoned to attend shall be put into the ballot-box, and as many of them, as the Court may think necessary shall be drawn to sit as jurors for the trial of the case coming on first.

Rule no 7.—The rest of the jurors summoned shall be asked to attend at such time as the Court may specify, and the requisite number shall be selected from amongst them at the beginning of each case or day, in the number above specified to serve as jurors in the case or cases standing for trial See Bomb. R & O

For rules made by the High Court in the North-Western Provinces.—See U. P. R. and O

277. (1) As each juror is chosen, his name shall be called aloud, and, upon his appearance, the Names of jurors to be called accused shall be asked if he objects to be tried by such juror.

(2) Objection may then be taken to such juror by the accused or by the prosecutor, and Objection to jurors the grounds of objection shall be stated.

Proved that, in the High Court, objections without grounds stated shall be allowed to the Objection without grounds stated number of eight on behalf of the Crown and eight on behalf of the person or all the persons charged.

Notes.

1. Analogous Law.—In England the time for objection or as it is technically called challenge, comes after a full jury has appeared, but before any juror is sworn. [Archbold, p 207] In America, "a challenge must be taken when the juror appears, and before he is sworn, but the Court may, in its discretion for good cause, set aside a juror at any time before evidence is given in the action." [See also People v. Carpenter 38 Han 491=4 N. Y. Cr. R. 39] A juror may be peremptorily challenged at any time before he is sworn whether he has taken his seat in the jury box or not. [People v. Carpenter 3 N. Y. Cr. R. 92]

2. If opportunity to challenge is not given.

—It has been held that although it is a serious error for a Judge to proceed with the trial without giving the accused an opportunity of challenging the jurors, in accordance with this section, a conviction will not be set aside in the absence of prejudice [23 C N exi] In England the error is a material error and would necessitate a new trial [See Archibold 207 Gray R. 6 St Tr. (N. S) 177]

278. Any objection taken to a juror on any of the following grounds, if made out to the satisfaction of the Court, shall be allowed. —

(a) some presumed or actual partiality in the juror.

(b) some personal grounds, such as alienage, deficiency in the qualification required by any law or rule having the force of law for the time being in force, or being under the age of twenty-one or above the age of sixty years.

(c) his having by habit of religious vows relinquished all care of worldly affairs;

(d) his holding any office in or under the Court.

(e) his executing any duties of police or being entrusted with police-duties.

(f) his having been convicted of any offence which, in the opinion of the Court, renders him unfit to serve on the jury.

(g) his inability to understand the language in which the evidence is given, or when such evidence is interpreted the language in which it is interpreted.

(h) any other circumstances which, in the opinion of the Court, renders him improper as a juror.

Notes.

1. Objection to jurors.—The allowing of an objection to a juror coming within cl 3 of S 344 Cr. P. C. (=S 278) is within the discretion of the Court, and although the Judge is not bound to admit the objection, yet he should not treat it as frivolous—16 W R 56.

2. cl. (d).—A clerk in the office of the District Magistrate is not disqualified on that account from sitting on the jury—7 C 42

3. Analogous Law.—The presumed partiality mentioned in this section is substantially the same as the objections for implied bias enumerated in S 177 of the N Y Crim Pro Code—See Whitley Stokes Anglo-Indian Codes, Vol II p 164

4. Any other circumstance.—The following grounds on which a juror may be challenged in America as shewing implied bias may be usefully studied in this connection

(1) Consanguinity or affinity within the ninth degree, to the persons alleged to be injured by the crime charged, or on whose complaint the prosecution was instituted or to the defendant.

(2) bearing to him the relation of guardian or ward, attorney or client, or clerk of the attorney, or counsel for the people, or defendant, master or servant, or landlord or tenant, or being a member of the family of the defendant, or of the person alleged to be injured by the offence charged, or on whose complaint the prosecution was instituted or in his employment on wages.

(3) being a party adverse to the defendant in a Civil action, or having complained against or being accused by him in a Criminal prosecution.

(4) having served on the grand jury which found the indictment, or on a coroner's jury which inquired into the death of a person whose death is the subject of indictment

(5) having served on a trial jury which has tried another person for the crime charged in the indictment

(6) having been one of a jury formerly sworn to try the same indictment, and whose verdict was set aside or which was discharged without a verdict, after the cause was submitted to it

(7) having served as a juror in a Civil action brought against the defendant, for the act charged as a crime

(8) if the crime charged be punishable with death, the entertaining of such conscientious opinions as would preclude his finding the defendant guilty; in which case he shall neither be permitted nor compelled to serve as a juror—S 377; N. Y. Cr. Pro Code

5. Court may act without a challenge.—The Court, even without challenge taken, may and ought to excuse a juror on the panel when called, if he is obviously unfit to perform his duty, from physical or mental infirmity. Misell v. R. 8 St. Tr. (N. S.) 431; Archibold p 217.

279. (1) Every objection taken to a juror shall be decided by the Court, and such decision shall be recorded and be final.

(2) If the objection is allowed, the place of such juror shall be supplied by any other juror attending in obedience to a summons and chosen in manner provided by section 276, or if there is no such other juror present whom objection allowed, then by any other person present in the Court whose name is on the list of jurors, or whom the Court considers a proper person to serve on the jury;

Provided that no objection to such juror or other person is taken under section 278 and allowed.

280. (1) When the jurors have been chosen, they shall appoint one of their number to be Foreman of jury foreman,

(2) The foreman shall preside in the debates of the jury, deliver the verdict of the jury, and ask any information from the Court that is required by the jury or any of the jurors.

(3) If a majority of the jury do not, within such time as the judge thinks reasonable, agree in the appointment of a foreman, he shall be appointed by the Court.

281. When the foreman has been appointed, the jurors shall be sworn under the Indian Swearing jurors Oaths Act. 1873.

Notes.

1. Form of oath.—The Madras High Court has prescribed the following forms of oath.

(i) "I shall well and truly say and true deliverance make between our Sovereign Lord, the King, Emperor of India, and the prisoner at the bar and a true verdict give according to the evidence. So help me God."

or

(ii) I solemnly affirm in the presence of Almighty God, that I will judge truly between the King-Emperor of India, and the prisoner at the bar and will give a true verdict according to the evidence

[N. B.—The words in italics may be omitted if the juror objects]—See M. H. Cir. No. 1512 of 16th August 1873 and No. 162 of 23rd Jany. 1877.

2. Jurors not sworn under the older Codes.—Under the Code of 1861 it was held that "it was not necessary, in a trial by jury before a Court of Session under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that the jurors should be sworn."—[3 B II 54]

3. Omission to swear.—Quere—Is the omission to swear the jury in a Sessions Case one which would be covered by S. 13 of the Oaths Act 1873.—20 W R 19 See 11 C. P. 16.

[Note—See the following cases, —16 B 359 5 B R 551; 16 M. 105; 1 Weir 827 (F. N.); 10 O C. 337]

282. (1) If, in the course of a trial by jury at any time before the return of the verdict, any juror, from any sufficient cause, is prevented from attending throughout the trial, or if any juror absents himself and it is not practicable to enforce his attendance, or if it appears that any juror is unable to understand the language in which the evidence is given or, when such evidence is interpreted, the language in which it is interpreted, a new juror shall be added, or the jury shall be discharged and a new jury chosen.

(2) In each of such cases the trial shall commence anew.

Notes.

1. Trial must be doneo.—After the first two witnesses for the prosecution and had their statements read out to them, and they admitted that their evidence which they had heard was correct, Held that the trial was defective in view of the provisions of S. 282 Cr P. C.—36 A. 481.

2. New trial cannot be waived.—In England, it has been held that it is irregular for the judge even with the consent of the accused, to read over from his notes the evidence given before the former jury.—R. v. Bertrand (67) L. R. P. C. 320

3. If the illness is only temporary.—In the famous Crippen trial (R. v. Crippen (11) 1 K. B. 149), one of the jurors was taken ill. He left the jury box attended by doctors and a jury built, who however were not sworn for the purpose. After an absence of three quarters of an hour during which none but the doctors had spoken to the him, the jurymen returned and the trial proceeded. Held that as there was evidence to show that the jurymen had not been tampered with, there was no mis-trial. In America, in the case entitled Goersen v. Commonwealth [51 Am. Rep. 534=106 Penn St. 477], one of the jurors after retirement was taken very ill. He was put in bed in a communicating room, under the care of a physician who did not speak either to the him or to the others on the subject of the trial. Held that the verdict of guilty was not vitiated. In 11 Cr. 402 (G), five persons were appointed jurors under S. 139 Cr. P. C. Of these persons only four dealt with the case, one being ill and unable to attend, held that the report of the jury was illegal

4. Juror deaf and partly blind.—A Judge is bound to discharge a juror on discovery during the course of trial that he is deaf and partly blind. In such a case a de novo trial must be held.—See 19 M. 375
5. False evidence giving in a trial vacated under this Section.—The fact that the trial was vacated owing to the incapacity of a juror under S. 282, and the accused tried de novo cannot be pleaded in bar of the prosecution of a witness under S. 193 I. P. C. who gave false evidence in the course of the vacated trial.—19 M. 375
6. English Law.—If a juror is incapacitated the jury must be discharged and a fresh jury empanelled, who may be the remainder of the former jury, with vacancy filled up by a new juror. In such cases the defendant would be entitled to his challenges afresh, and all the jurors should be

Discharge of jury in case of sickness of prisoner

283. The Judge may also discharge the jury whenever the prisoner becomes incapable of remaining at the bar

Notes.

1. Misconduct of the jury.—There is no provision in the Criminal Procedure Code for discharge of jury for misconduct. Ss. 282 and 283 are the only Sections which provide for a discharge before the verdict is given. At the Calcutta High Court Sessions, the jury in a case wanted to give their verdict against the accused before even hearing the witnesses for the defence. The defence Counsel cited R. v. Fowler 4 B. and Ald. 273 and pressed for a discharge of the jury for misconduct. There being no provision for adopting such a course, the difficulty was met by a nolle prosequi being entered under the instructions of the Advocate-General under S. 333 Cr. P. C.—See 7 C. N. xxxi

[Note—The English law permits such a course—See Archibald 353]

2. Discharge of jury on account of misconduct.

Sessions Judge is not authorised to discharge, on that account, the jury in the middle of the trial and to traverse the case from one Sessions to another, to be tried by a fresh jury.—4 B. R. 939

[Note.—In such a case the jury may be directed to attend at the adjourned sitting under S. 297 infra]

D.—Choosing Assessors.

284. When the trial is to be held with aid of assessors, two or more shall be chosen, as the Assessors how chosen Judge thinks fit, from the persons summoned to act as such.

Notes.

1. Object of appointing assessors.—The real object of appointing assessors is to assist the Court, and the discussion and statement of points by a Judge sitting with assessors cannot be said to be otherwise than in furtherance of the object of getting the best assistance for the proper adjudication of the case.—7 B. L. 63 at p. 68
2. Objection to trial with assessors instead of jury must be taken before finding is recorded.—A jury case was by orders of the Government tried with the aid of assessors but no objection was taken to the trial before the Court had recorded its finding, on an objection being taken before the High Court, held, that the omission to take the objection at the trial was fatal to the contention that the trial was invalid.—23 M. 632

3. Trial with non-summoned assessor is invalid.—Out of six assessors summoned to appear only three attended, of those three two were discarded as not appearing sufficiently intelligent. The Sessions Judge appointed the third as assessor, and sent for two persons, a Revenue Court mukdar and a pleader to fill up the other two places. Held that the last mentioned persons not having been summoned to act as assessors, the trial in fact was held with only one legally appointed assessor and was therefore invalid. [(191) A. N. 207] Where one of the two assessors was a person who had not been summoned and whose name had been removed from the list of assessors held that the trial by the Court of Session was illegal [35 A. 570]

4. "Summoned to act as such."—Ss. 396 and 397 Cr. P. C. contemplate as the ordinary or normal procedure that all assessors should be summoned on the first day on which a Criminal Sessions commences, however many trials, it may be proposed to hold in the course of that sessions. Where therefore the sessions commenced on the 7th June and closed on the 15th June and a person who was summoned to serve as an assessor on the 14th June failed to appear on that day but appeared on the 17th and was chosen as an assessor on a trial which commenced on the 17th, held that he was summoned to act within the meaning of S. 284 Cr. P. C. and the trial in which he took part was not invalid—17 Cr. 17 (A)

5. Nazir of the Court acting as assessor.—In the absence of assessors duly summoned, the Nazir of the Court was directed by the Judge to act as an assessor, and the Judge noted that no objection was taken to the course taken by him, and in the end the accused was convicted, held, that the Nazir as an official of the Judge trying the case, was a most unsuitable person and the trial must be taken to be held with one assessor only and was therefore illegal.—13 O. C. 337

5A. Chance visitor to the Sessions' Court.—The trial of an accused person was fixed for a certain date when only one duly qualified assessor was present in Court, and capable of acting as such, whereupon the Judge ordered another person who happened to be present in Court, but who was not in the official list of assessors to act as an assessor, held that having regard to the provisions of S. 284 Cr. P. C., the trial was illegal 3 Pat. J. 141.

6. Selection of assessors.—The law does not as in the case of jurors, provide for objections being made to an assessor. The choice of jurors is by lot but the choice of assessors is entirely with the Sessions' Judge, who in the exercise of this power, should pay every consideration to any reasonable objection raised. In selecting assessors, the Judge must have regard to the nature of the case, to the person who is tried, to the nature of the evidence to be brought against him and to the public feeling. The assessors ought not to be pleaders, nor young men fresh from college, and devoid of experience. They must be persons of the independent condition in life, men of judgment and experience.—Per Jackson J. in 23 W. R. 35 at p. 39.

7. Zemindars as assessors.—"As a reason for his (the assessor's) removal (from the list of assessors), the learned Sessions Judge gives that the Magistrate recommended this on the ground that he was a large Zemindar and his position in life and status was much better than that of persons of the class from which the assessors are ordinarily selected. If this be the case, we are surprised to find that this recommendation should have been made and should have met with approval. It is surely not too much to ask from Indian gentlemen of position and rank that they should assist in the administration of justice, as the sitting of an assessor can, if the list be properly prepared, occur very rarely, and probably only once in the course of three or four years"—Kane and Ryland JJ. in 35 A. 570.

8. Hereditary Rajas.—It is contrary to the usage of the country and eminently undesirable that gentlemen of high position, such as an hereditary Raja, should be placed on the list of assessors—(97) A. N. 167.

9. Assessors likely to render efficient assistance should be chosen.—It is desirable that it should be in the power of the Court to select from among the assessors who are in attendance, those who may seem most likely to give efficient assistance in any particular case. Though the law provides for the choosing of "two or more," it is not desirable that ordinarily more than two should be chosen, because the larger the number of assessors, selected for each case, the greater the burden on the body of those registered as liable to serve.—O. P. Cr. Cr. Pt. II No. 33

10. Prestige of assessors to be maintained.—It is very desirable to maintain the position of assessors in public estimation and to make their duties as little irksome as possible. No assessor should be summoned too frequently. When assessors are summoned, the notice should be sent to the assessor and they should be respected for them to be necessary.

11. Trial with one assessor.—See Notes under S. 285 following

285. (1) If in the course of a trial with the aid of assessors, at any time before the finding, any assessor is, from any sufficient cause, prevented from attending throughout the trial, or absent himself, and it is not practicable to enforce his attendance, the trial shall proceed with the aid of the other assessor or assessors.

(2) If all the assessors are prevented from attending, or absent themselves, the proceedings shall be stayed and a new trial shall be held with the aid of fresh assessors.

Notes.

1. Application of S. 285.—Section 285 applies only to the case of a trial which has commenced with the aid of two or more assessors, who at the commencement of the trial were capable of acting as assessors, but one or more of whom were subsequently prevented from attending the trial by illness or other sufficient cause.—See 21 A. 106 25 B 694 3 Pat J. 141

2. Physical infirmity.—Where before a Sessions trial began, it was found that one of the three assessors who attended was deaf and the trial proceeded with the aid of the remaining two and it was subsequently discovered, after the public prosecutor had closed his case, that another assessor was so deaf as to be incapable of understanding the proceedings, held the proceedings were null and void [21 A 106 2 Weir 340]

[Note.—Cp 19 M 375 (a case tried by jury in which a juror was found during trial to be deaf and partly blind)]

3. The General Rule.—When a trial before a the proceeding on account of deafness etc the trial is really commenced and ended with one assessor only and is therefore illegal [See 21 A 106 3 Weir 340] Where after an accused person had claimed to be tried, a Sessions Judge chose two assessors but immediately dispensed with the attendance of one of them who was suffering from fever and proceeded with the trial with the aid of the other only. Held that the action of the Sessions Judge was illegal [15 B 514]

4. The minimum.—The law is that the trial must begin with two or more assessors, but it would be sufficient if at subsequent stages at least one assessor is present and that assessor had sat throughout the trial and heard all the proceedings [21 M 523 6 C N 715] Where during the course of a trial with 3 assessors one assessor died at an early stage of the proceedings and another became too ill later to attend, and the third assessor was also obliged to retire at the beginning of the address by the pleader for the accused and did not return till it was finished, held that the law contemplated the continuous attendance of at least one assessor throughout the trial and that condition not having been fulfilled the trial must be set aside [13 A 317]

5. Absent assessor cannot be allowed to resume.—In a criminal case commenced with the aid of two assessors one of them was absent during a portion of the trial though he subsequently resumed his seat and gave his opinion (Held Per Davis J) When the absentee assessor was allowed to resume his seat as assessor, the Court ceased to be a Court of competent jurisdiction and the irregularity was not curable by S 537 infra (Per Benson and Bhaskaran Ayyangar JJ). "though the proper course for the Court was to proceed without the absentee assessor, the irregularity was one which might be cured under S 537 infra [21 M 523] If an assessor is absent once he is to be considered to have been wholly absent. The judgment of the Sessions Judge arrived at with the aid of such an assessor is void. [6 C N 715] Where the Sessions Judge allowed one of the assessors to absent himself for one of the days during which the trial proceeded, and to return on the following day, held that the procedure was contrary to the intention of Ss 285, 295 Cr. P. C. The Judge ought either not to have given leave or should have adjourned till a day when both the assessors could attend [141 695] Even if the portion of the proceeding taken during the absence of the absentee assessor is read to him on his return, a trial held with his aid will be invalid. He should not be allowed to resume his seat at any time after he had once absented himself. [8 C P 9] interested or otherwise unfit to sit as an assessor the Sessions Judge should get the High Court to set aside the order by which the incompetent assessor was appointed and all the subsequent proceedings in the trial. In such cases, the Sessions Judge ought to choose another assessor and proceed with the trial de novo [(12) M N. 378]

6. ~~~~~

7. Assessor spoken to by influential men.—

The fact that the assessors have been spoken to by some of the influential men of the place interested in getting a conviction, is not a stigma to them and is no ground for the transfer of the case to a different Court under S 526 infra—(67) A \ 139

8. Trial without assessors.—In a case, in which the prisoner pleaded that he killed his wife but said that he was not of right mind at that time, held that the plea was one of "not guilty" and the Sessions Judge was not justified in going into the question of guilt or innocence without the aid of assessors [5 N P. 110] The trial will be invalid if a portion of the trial which consists in the taking of additional evidence takes place after the discharge of the assessors [15 A 136]

L—Trial to Close of Cases for Prosecution and Defence

286. (1) When the jurors or assessors have been chosen, the prosecutor shall open his case by reading from the Indian Penal Code or other law the description of the offence charged, and stating shortly by what evidence he expects to prove the guilt of the accused.

(2) The prosecutor shall then examine his witnesses.

Notes.

(1) Rules regarding Prosecution evidence.

1. Once the trial has commenced in cannot be postponed for examination of witness on commission.—An application for commission applied for by the prosecution during the trial and after the jury had been sworn, was refused on the ground that the trial and commission could not go together.—19 C 113
2. Trial should proceed de die in diem.—Sessions cases should not be tried piecemeal. Before commencing a trial, a Judge should satisfy himself that all necessary evidence is available. If it is not, he may postpone the case, but once
3. The meaning of "opening the case."—Counsel for the prosecution opens the case for the prosecution to the jury by giving the outline of the evidence and the leading features of the case. In doing so he ought to state all that it is proposed to prove as well as declarations of the prisoners as facts, so that the jury may see if there is any discrepancy between the opening statements of the counsel and the evidence afterwards adduced in support of them; unless such declarations amount to a confession when it would be improper for a counsel to open them to the jury, the reason being that circumstances under which the confession was made, may render it inadmissible in evidence. The general effect only of the confession said to have been made ought to be given.—Archibald pp 218, 219
4. Prosecutor in opening address should give names of the witnesses not examined before.—There is nothing in the Code which restricts the prosecutor at a Sessions trial to witnesses who have been examined in Court of the committing Magistrate; but in fairness to the accused the prosecutor should state in his opening address the names of witnesses whom he proposes to call, who have not already been examined under S 208 or S. 209, and the purpose for which they are to be produced. The mere fact that a witness has not been examined before a committing Magistrate is no ground for refusing to take evidence of a relevant witness tendered for the prosecution.—1 P. R. 1889.

[Note.—According to English practice, notice of the intention to call additional witness with a copy of the evidence which they are expected to give ought to be given to the prisoner.—Archibald p. 453]

5. The order in which prosecution witnesses should be examined.—It is competent to a Sessions Judge to suggest to the prosecutor that it would be convenient if a particular witness were called at an earlier or later stage of the trial, but it is not within his province to refuse to allow the prosecutor to call his witnesses in the order he chooses.—Per Chamber J. J C S. O C 55

6. Is the prosecution bound to examine all witnesses present at the occurrence?—It is the duty of the public prosecutor at a trial before the Court of Sessions to call and examine all material witnesses sent up to the Court on behalf of the prosecution, and the Judge is bound to hear all the evidence upon the charge. The public prosecutor is not bound to call any witnesses who will not in his opinion speak the truth or support the points he desires to establish by their evidence, but in such circumstances he should explain to the Court that this is his reason for not calling those witnesses and he should offer to put them in the box for cross-examination by the accused at their discretion. In the absence of any such explanation or of other reasonable grounds apparent on the face of the proceedings, inferences unfavourable to the prosecution must be drawn from the non-production of witnesses. 7 A. 904; 14 A. 521. 15 A. 6. 16 A. 84 (F.B.) (94) A. N. 57; 15 W. R. 34. 5 C. 614. 8 C. 121. 10 C. 1070; 14 C. 245. 11 B. R. 1162; Rat 591 2 Weir 378; 2 Weir 379-3 S. 209
7. Public prosecutor commits serious error of judgment in not examining material witnesses.—It is not within the province of the Judge to dispense with the evidence of any of the prosecution witnesses, and if the Public Prosecutor does so, he commits a serious error of judgment. The whole evidence should be put before the Court, and the Public Prosecutor is at least bound to tender the witnesses for cross-examination before the Sessions Court if so required [2 Weir 379]. It is the duty of the prosecution to call for examination all the witnesses present at the commission of an offence, even if some of them are to give accounts different from the one relied on. It is also the duty of the Judge not merely to receive and adjudicate on the evidence submitted by the parties, but also to inquire to the utmost into the truth of a case. [Rat 551]
8. Prosecution not bound to call "unnecessary" witness.—In a trial in a Court of Sessions or the High Court on its criminal side, the public prosecutor is not bound to call all the witnesses returned in the calendar as witnesses for the Crown, or to put such of those witnesses, as he does not examine, in the witness box to be cross-examined by or on behalf of the accused, if he believes that the evidence of the witnesses is likely to be false or is unnecessary. 10 A. 81 (F. B.).

9. Witnesses examined before committing Magistrate against the wishes of the prosecuting Inspector.—In conducting a case for the prosecution, all the persons, who are
 these persons were examined by the committing Magistrate against the wishes of the Sub-Inspector who was conducting the prosecution, held, that that was not a valid ground for the non-production of the witnesses in the Sessions Court and the conviction of the accused under the circumstances would be illegal. [Retrial ordered]—10 C. 1070
10. Duty of the Crown.—The doctrine that the Crown is not bound to call witnesses on whom it does not rely must not be pressed too far. It is its clear duty to produce all persons who lay claim to a first-hand knowledge of the incidents under trial, and if the prosecution do not choose to place them in the witness-box, it must at least tender them to the defence for cross examination. The Crown is not so much concerned to prove a particular theory as to acquaint the Court with all the relevant evidence, and it is for the Court to determine how much of that evidence is to be credited, and what inferences it warrants.—3 S. 200.
11. Is the prosecution bound to tender suspected witnesses?—In a Sessions trial the prosecution is not bound to call any witness or to tender witness called before the committing Magistrate for cross-examination. The prosecution cannot be forced to put forward a witness on whose evidence no reliance can be placed. It would be sufficient if the prosecution makes such witnesses to be present in the Court, so that the defence can call them if they like.—14 C. 245. 8 C. 121. 5 C. 614. 15 W. R. 34. 14 A. 521. 15 A. 6
12. Prosecution bound to tender witness whose cross-examination was reserved before committing Magistrate.—It is open to the public prosecutor to decline to examine at the Sessions trial a witness, whom he had examined before the committing Magistrate, but whose cross-examination by the defence was reserved. It is, however, his duty to tender the witness for cross-examination in the Court of Session, and if he declines the Court ought to call the witness for cross-examination—11 B. R. 1182. See R. v. Higgins 10 Cox 562
13. The accused not entitled to have a witness withheld by prosecution, in the box for cross-examination.—There is no provision in the Code analogous to the English practice entitling a prisoner to have a witness for prosecution who is not called, to be put into the witness-box for cross-examination. When the Judge did not comply with the request of the Counsel for the accused to be allowed to cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution who had been examined by the Magistrate but whom the Public Prosecutor thought it unnecessary to call before the Sessions Court, held that omission had not prejudiced the accused—5 B. H. (C. C.) 85

[Note.—The accused may under S. 291 infra apply to have the witness examined.—Ibid at p. 86.]
